DEBENTURES WILL BE SOLD EN BLOC

Money will be Paid to the Fund at the Rate of $5,000 a Month

Debentures to the amount of sixty thousand dollars a month, While in one block to meet the needs of the Patriotic Fund during the ensuing year. This matter was brought up at last night's meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council when it was decided to recommend that the Council raise the amount en bloc instead of making "two bites" of it. The money, when raised, will be placed in the bank to the city's credit, and will be paid over to the Patriotic Fund at the rate of five housand dollars a month. While in the bank the money will help to offset the city's overdraft and save a five and a half per cent. interest rate.

According to Ald. Stratton, finance minister of the civic administration, the city will have an overdraft until about August, when the first half of the taxes is due.

St. Andrew's Church Patriotic League

A very successful tea was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. S. McClelland's, 301 Boswell avenue, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Church Patriotic League. Many ladies called during the afternoon.

The cheery flower-decked tea room made them forget the snow and cold of the outside world. Mrs. McClelland was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Howard Waram and Mrs. J. John. Mrs. J. McClelland Sr., was in charge of the tea room. The tea table presented an attractive appearance with its large bowl of red carnations in the centre. The ladies, who looked after the guests in the tea room were: Misses Sills, Latimer MacKone, Briggs and Miss Lucy McClelland.

During the afternoon Mrs. R. W. F. E. Davidson and Miss G. Stevens sang which was much enjoyed by all present. A substaitial sum was realised.

CHILD DECAPITATED SHORTLY BEFORE ITS BIRTH

DETROIT, Feb. 9.—A coroner's jury placed responsibility for the death of a newborn infant upon Mary Klementowics, a midwife, and she was ordered held pending further investigation of facts leading up to the birth and death of the child, a boy, which occurred at the home of Mrs. Marcela Kurak, 475 Garfield avenue a few days ago. The case is a horrible one.

The baby, when born, was found to have been decapitated as cleanly as though done by a razor. Dr. Roy A. Hensel, who attended Mrs. Kurak soon afterwards, declared that the infant's head had been severed by some sharp instrument, while County Physician French is certain that the act was committed by a few minutes before the body was delivered, Mrs. Klementowics, the midwife, caused a sensation in court when she came to attend Mrs. Kurak, and says when she saw what had occurred, she fainted.

John Redmond Raises Home Rule Issue

LONDON, Feb. 9.—At a meeting of the Nationalist party held in the House of Commons yesterday, it was agreed that John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, should ask the Government leader in the House to grant an early day for discussion of the following motion:

"That, with a view to strengthening the hands of the Allies and to achieving recognition of the equal rights of small nations and of the principle of nationalities against the opposite German principle of military domination and government without the consent of the governed, it is essential, without further delay, to confer on Ireland the free institutions long promised her."

BUILDING WAR VESSELS AT CANADIAN SEAPORTS?

OTTAWA, Feb. 8. — On the third reading of the five hundred million dollar war appropriation bill in the House of Commons, Hon. Dr. Pugsley rose to ask the Premier whether in view of existing conditions, any portion of the appropriation would be used to build and construct at Canadian seaports certain war vessels, such as fast cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

Premier Borden stated that it was undesirable to announce in Parliament what was being done. "I may say this much, however," he added: "Communications of a highly confidential character have passed upon this subject. The Right Honorable leader of the Opposition (Sir Wilfrid Laurier) has been consulted regarding them."

The Premier added that, if Dr. Pugsley so desired he would acquaint him privately as to what information was available and what was being done.

Accident At Arsenal Plant

LINDSAY, Feb. 9.—An employee at the Dominion Arsenal named Link had a narrow escape from serious injury. He was engaged in the machine shop installing machinery, when one of the iron bars struck him on the side of the head, inflicting a bad cut near the eye and bruising his face. The machine, which he was helping to place in position, toppled, and Mr. Link narrowly escaped being crushed.

Veteran of The Somme Offensive

They are as follows: Capt. Fergus Oxley, Dublin Fusiliers, killed in action, October 19th, 1916; Sergeant V. N. Oxley, 18th Canadian Scottish, killed in action September 20, 1916; Lieut. Herman Oxley, King's Royal Rifles, wounded July 1st, 1916, and has had his right arm amputated. Captain Allen Oxley is on active service, and Lieut. G. E. Oxley was wounded twice, and is now home on five weeks' sick leave.

German Morale.

Lieut. Oxley disagrees with much he hears regarding the character of the German prisoner when first captured. He has seen hundreds of them and only men of low vitality, caused naturally by long exposure in the trenches, give gloomy reports of conditions in Germany. Lieut. Oxley says there is no doubt but what conditions are serious, but it is hard to credit some of the reports that are heard regarding the condition of affairs. "The German army on the Somme," said Lieut. Oxley, "is well fed and well looked after. There is no question about the German soldier being ready to surrender, but this ready to surrender part is not reached until they are overwhelmed."

Song Services.

The Somme seems to have a religious bearing on the troops, which is well borne out by the letters written home. At times song services were held in the front line trenches and in fact it is common for the soldiers to sing a verse of "Onward Christian Soldiers" and Fritz will carry on. The last chorus is generally accompanied to the tune of a machine gun. Lieut. Oxley paid a great tribute to the efficiency of the British "tanks." He said they were a gigantic success, and by all accounts the improved tank will be as big a surprise as the original appearance. Fairly dry ground is essential for the successful operation of the tanks. With suitable conditions they are a big factor in any offensive movement. In speaking of the duration of the war, Lieut. Oxley said, "From a military standpoint it is hard to conceive of the total rout of the German armies in a few months where a loss of half a million men either way seems to make no appreciable difference. It will take other means than a smashing of armies to end the war during 1917" said Lieut. Oxley.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart write you this letter."

Another Cold Spell On the Way

It Was One Degree Below Zero Last Night—Will Be Colder To-night

After a few days of quite moderate conditions another cold spell has arrived. Last night, as a beginning, the thermometer went to 1 below zero. In corroboration of a recent news item in this paper, Kinmount, according to the official reports for January, showed the low figure of 36 below; Haliburton 34 below; and Bancroft 33 below; Peterborough's low being 21 below. Dawson City in the Yukon, takes the grand prize with 62 below, followed by White River, Ont., with 48 below. Temperatures below 40 below zero were common all through the Prairie Provinces.—W.P.

"PEG O' MY HEART"

That Human Comedy at the Grand Next Monday

The quaint Irish brogue, the incorrigible red hair, the tempestuous humours, and the warm sympathies of "Peg O' My Heart" will be at The Grand on Monday next, February 12.

Large houses greeted this delightful little play when it played the Eastern territory before, and the announcement of its forthcoming engagement will probably be welcome news to many patrons of the theatre. This piece was written by J. Hartley Manners for Laurette Taylor, who promised to marry him if it was a success. It was a big success, and although the central figure, that of the hoydenish "Peg," was broadened and built to fit the cleverness and adaptability of Miss Taylor, the author also wrote a play that fits Marion Dentler admirably. As the part is the one big thing in the play, it is essential that just the right sort of an interpreter be chosen, and judging from the welcome extended Miss Dentler on her first tour of Eastern Canada with the Morosco Company two years ago, the United Producing Company made no mistake in selecting her for the title role for the present tour.

Holland's Defences Frozen Up East Frontier Lies Exposed

Examiner Special:

THE HAGUE, February 9.—The Netherlands Government, through the American Legation at The Hague, has formally declined to accept President Wilson's suggestion that it follow the course of the United States and break off diplomatic relations with Germany.

Holland's refusal to follow President Wilson's lead has naturally given satisfaction in German and pro-German circles, where the effectiveness of the German principle of terrorism is regarded as once more vindicated. It would be a mistake to assume that the Dutch are not in sympathy with President Wilson's action, but the German menace has overborne their generous natural impulses.

The Dutch Government's action will undoubtedly be approved by the Dutch people on prudential grounds. It is interesting to note that the Frankfurter Zeitung hint of a few days ago that European neutrals would embark on a highly hazardous adventure if they acted on President Wilson's suggestion has apparently been taken seriously in some quarters, but in fairness to the Dutch it should always be remembered that their east frontier, as the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant says, largely lies exposed at the present moment. After such a long period of hard frost the chief system of defences apparently do not possess as much value as they are reputed to have in normal times.

Will Provide Gerard With Military Escort

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, February 9.—American Ambassador Gerard is preparing to leave Berlin on Saturday. Secretary Jos. C. Grew is making all preparations for the departure of the Embassy staff at the week-end.

The Foreign Office stated Gerard would be provided with a military escort and a special train to Switzerland. All possible courtesies will be extended to the diplomat.

White Star Liners Are in the War Zone To-day

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, February 9.—The White Star liners Baltic and Adriatic, the largest ships which have defied the German submarine decree since the first day period of grace ended, and attempted to run the new "blockade" of England, were in the danger zone to-day, and considerable anxiety was manifested in shipping circles. The Baltic carried 446 passengers, among whom were two Americans.

AMERICAN FREIGHTER WILL DEFY GERMAN SUBMARINES.

NEW YORK, February 9.—The freighter Orlean, 5,000 tons, the first American ship to clear for the German "barred zone" since the unrecognised German blockade was declared, left Erie Basin, this morning and anchored off the Statue of Liberty until time to go to sea. She sails for Bordeaux, unarmed, unstriped, flying the American flag, and owned, officered and operated by Americans. She expects to reach the danger zone in ten days.

NAVY HAS SUBMARINE MENACE UNDER CONTROL.

NEW YORK, February 9.—The British navy seems to be getting the submarine menace under control, and it is presumable that many submarines have been captured or sunk. Only four ships were reported sunk today up to 2 p.m. New York time. Three of these were Norwegian and one British.

WILL UNDERTAKE RELIEF WORK.

ROME, February 9.—Vatican sources to-day said Holland, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries, had agreed to undertake relief work now carried on by the United States in Belgium.

Safe in Empty Store Aroused Suspicions

KITCHENER, Feb. 6.—Police Magistrate Weir reserved judgment for a week after hearing the evidence of Chief O'Neill, Sergeant Granger and Constables Farrell and Steiner in an action against Joseph Zuber, proprietor of the Welper House, who was charged with refusing to open a safe when requested by the police. Three members of the department made an inspection of the premises, but when they requested Zuber to open the large safe in an empty store he refused to do so, alleging that he did not know the combination. City Solicitor Sims argued that under the provisions of the Temperance Act the hotelman should have been in a position to open the safe. A. B. McBride defended the accused.

COMMISSIONER MAPP HAS TRAVELLED FAR IN THE S. A. SERVICE

Commissioner Mapp, who is now touring Ontario delivering lectures of the missionary work of the Salvation Army, is an officer of International experience, having been born in Bombay, India, and when his friends learned of his going into the Salvation Army were very much disappointed in the young man, who with self sacrifice and toil still kept to his purpose and has risen to the highest possible position but two in the world-wide Salvation Army. His first charge was in Calcutta, the old army work and Ceylon, then as Chief Secretary for the Land and Industrial Colony at Hadleigh Eng., then as Assistant Foreign Secretary at International Headquarters, London, and then as Assistant Field Secretary to the British Field.

In 1907 he came to Canada as Chief State Secretary to the late Commissioner Rees, thence to South Africa, and thence to Japan, Mrs. Mopp's health compelling his removal from that lovely spot that they both loved so much.

Commissioner Mopp will lecture in the Salvation Army Temple on Saturday night at 8 o'clock on India and Ceylon, their relation to the west, and on Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m., on Japan, our eastern ally.

His Worship Magistrate Dumble will preside on Saturday evening and His Honour Judge Huycke will be chairman on Sunday afternoon.

Roosevelt Pledges Support To Wilson

OYSTER BAY, Feb. 9.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt pledged his support to President Wilson in upholding the honour of the United States. He offered to the country his own service and those of his four sons in the event of hostilities.

Plans for a volunteer army division to be commanded by the Colonel, which his friends have worked on since the sinking of the Lusitania, again have come to the front and he admitted he had asked the War Department for permission to raise such a body of troops.

"Of course I shall in every way support the President in all that he does to uphold the honour of the United States and to safeguard the lives of American citizens," he said. I wrote to the War Department asking permission to raise a division if war is declared and there is a call for volunteers. In such event I and my four sons will go."

LEAGUE LEADERS BEATEN IN THE CHURCH LEAGUE MARK STREET WON AGAIN

	W.	L.	To play
George Street	3	1	2
Trinity-St. Andrew's	3	1	2
Knox	0	4	2

LAST NIGHT'S GAMES

Mark Street ..3...5 George St..3
Trinity-St. Andrews 3, Knox 1.

Trinity-St. Andrew's and Mark Street were the winners in the church league fixtures last night and as a result the race has considerably tightened up. Trinity-St. Andrew's handed Knox their fourth consecutive beating by 3 goals to 1, while the clever little team from East City stopped George Street after the Methodists had won three straight games.

The first game between Trinity-St. Andrew's and Knox was ragged, although the close score kept the interest up. Neither team scored in the first period, but Trinity St. Andrew's found the nets early in the second session. Knox tied it up at the beginning of the third but the winners came back with two counters before the final bell rang.

The second battle was a much better exhibition of hockey and was fast all the way with considerable combination and good individual play. The East City aggregation scored another clean cut win and are still strictly in the race. George Street led at the end of the first period by 1 to 0, and shortly after the second opened found the nets again. Then East City got going and scored twice only to have the boys from the big church nose out in front again. George Street led by 3 to 2 at the close of the second, but in the final period the blue shirts from across the river came through with one of their customary strong finishes and scored three clever goals, while George Street were blanked. Rutherford's goal keeping saved the latter a worse beating.

Geo Evans was the referee for both contests.

BUSINESS MEN WON THREE GAMES

The league game between the Canadian General Electric five and the Business Men caused considerable interest last evening. The Business Men were out for all three games and the C.G.E. were out to try and stop them, but when the battle was over and the smoke cleared away the Business Men had placed three more games to their credit, but not before they had fought their way all through the match. Mr. King Pin and his brothers behaved very good last night, especially for the Business Men, who had four men all over the 500 mark. Only one player of the C.G.E. reached the 500 mark. For the B. Men Lush and Weber pulled off a very difficult shot and the same credit goes to Early of the C. G.E. Lush for the Business Men was high roller for the night, with a total of 547 pins, and Dawson of the same team next, with 545. The last game was won by the Business Men in the tenth frame and only by 27 pins, which goes to show that the C. G. E. fought all the way. The game caused the greatest excitement of any game yet and the alley rang with the cheers of the large crowd that attended last night. As the league stands now the Business Men are three games up on the Printers ,who play the Grocers tonight at 8 o'clock. The game should be a good one as the Printers are out for all three games to stay with the Business Men. It looks as if the Printers and the Business Men will pull out of the league with a tie. If so the play-off will be one of the greatest games seen in Peterborough in a long time, but as there are two more games to be played a change may take place for both the leading teams. As it is now both teams are fighting it out to a finish and the remaining games will be worth going a long way to see. Henderson yesterday rolled 3 consecutive games for a total of 821 pins. This score goes up for the silver shield, and as time is going fast the bowlers will have to hustle to get in on the shield. It is worth going after and a large crowd should turn out to try for the beautiful prize that Mr. Solomon is putting up. It is still in Warne Bros.' jewellery window on George street and one look at the shield should encourage anybody to try and win it.

POTATOES ARE DEARER THAN EVER

25c. Added to Price Per Bag During Week, Making the Price Now $2.75—"Worst is Yet to Come" Say Dealers

This is a sad story for the head of a family, especially if he has a house full of youngsters who delight in potatoes. Potatoes are still increasing in price, and are now around the $3 a bag mark. Wholesalers quote $2.85 a bag, against $2.50 a week ago, and they say the worst is yet to come.

There was a time once in this city when people would eat potatoes without thinking of potatoes, but nowadays in the working class families, they count them as they put them on the dinner table.

But the real reason for the price of potatoes, it is claimed, is the shortage of transportation. There's lots of potatoes in the country, but there are not enought freight trains to get them to the cities. New Brunswick potatoes, which are selling in Peterborough at $2.85 a bag are being sold in New York at $2 a bag. The reason is that the potatoes can be shipped from St. John, N.B., by water to New York, whereas they have to come by rail to get to Petesborough. Shippers are calling for cars.

There is one consolation, and that is that the price of potatoes, it is expected, will come down when navigation opens, and perhaps before that time, because the dealers who have hoarded up potatoes in the hope of a high price will not be able to keep the potatoes always. They will deteriorate in quality, and many men who have kept them off the market, will be compelled to make a sale or risk a total loss.

Small Towns Lose Their Young Men

STATIONARY POPULATION OF OLD PLACES IS DUE TO THE AMBITIONS OF YOUTH.

The reason small towns never become big towns is tied up with the desertion of the young men, who go to the cities to make their way. Milford, N. H., decided to put a stop to this, and the November American Magazine tells how it was done. The writer says:—

"Most communities of less than fifteen thousand inhabitants suffer a constant loss of their best blood in the emigration of their young people. This is particularly true in the older States east of the Mississippi. With the exception of the favoured few whose families have wealth or own some established enterprise, the young man and, to a less extent, the young woman of the smaller town after completing his education seeks the larger cities or newer States or even foreign countries. This exodus is looked upon almost as a law of nature—as inevitable as the return of the seasons.

"Thus are our smaller communities sapped. The educated, enterprising young men go; the young women of their type, left behind, frequently refuse to mate with the only men available—indeed, often have no men of any sort to choose. This situation has formed the basis of many stories and one of the most popular plays of the present decade.

"But the thriving town of Milford, N. H., believes that its enterprising and able young folk do not have to be transplanted in order to succeed. It declares that if the individual endowed with ability to create a business in Montana or Mexico will only exercise the same serious study of conditions right at home, he will have an easier path and a surer reward. A short time ago the citizens of Milford decided to stop the emigration of its young.

"Let us ask all the Milford boys and girls about to finish school what they purpose to do," suggsted P. R. Woodman, of the Milford Board of Trade, 'and let us counsel with them to see if they cannot do it, or something equally as advantageous, here in Milford."

Tremendous Feat Of Engineering By The Italian Forces

Headquarters of the Italian Army, Feb. 7th. — The transportation romance of this 450-mile mountain front set down in cold, hard figures, reads thus: 2,448 miles of railroad rebuilt or repaired; 500 miles of new railroad built; 150 miles of air-line cables stretched for the teleferica system; 90,000 miles of telephone wire put up; 10,000 men troops, hospital and freight buildings erected; 200 miles of narrow gauge railroad laid in or behind the trenches, 110 new bridges thrown across rivers and precipices to accommodate 2,040 miles of operating road.

The work is credited to 120 civil engineers of the Government Department of Public Works, aided by Army engineers proper; likewise by 200,000 workmen, and 50,000 waggons.

The foregoing is the first official record of the exact extent of the construction work on this front, carried on steadily for 18 months despite enemy artillery, avalanches, snowfalls, rains, floods, lack of material, and all the other ills by which engineers are beset.

Many good men boast that they never buy at sales—and rightly so, for usually only cheap things are sold cheaply.

But this year we include our $18.00 and $20.00 Overcoats and Ulsters—each garment a masterpiece in designing and tailoring—in the finest British weaves—all sizes from 35-breast to 42-breast for $14.50.

For young men there are some smart styles in form-fitting Overcoats at $11.50 and $14.50, which are well worth the higher label prices. Next season the wholesale cost of these garments will be higher than the present label price.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—The Holstein Friesian Association of Canada opened yesterday what the members hope will prove a record year for their association, and for this class of dairy cattle throughout the Dominion, by electing John W. Richardson, of Caledonia, the new president. The other officers appointed for 1917 were: First Vice-President, Norman Michener, Red Deer, Alta.; Second Vice-President, Neil Sangster, Ormistone Que.; Third Vice-President, Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Victoria, B.C.; Fourth Vice-President, G. A. Brethen, Norwood, Ont.; Directors, A. E. Dickie, Central Onslow, N.S., A. E. Hewlett, Norwich; F. A. Malloy, Frankfort, Ont.; E. J. Kelly, Culloden, Ont. The members spent considerable time discussing probable changes in the constitution, and one proposal which carried after much diversity of opinion was that the fifteen directors elected appoint from among themselves the President and four Vice-Presidents. This change must be approved by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, so that it will be another year before it is approved. During discussion it was complained that the Toronto Fair Board was not anxious to meet with the Holstein breeders and also that the agricultural committee included prominent men interested in other breeds who were not friendly to the Holstein men. Another amendment to the constitution was that the directorate in future be elected according to basis of membership, the Province of Ontario to have eight members, the Maritime and Western Provinces one each, the Ontario directors to be balloted for at the annual meeting and those for the other districts by mail.

The annual repors showed an increase over last year's registrations of more than 900, making the total 11,053, and also showed that the list of members had been added to by 201 new names. The total assets are now $20,671, with no liabilities outstanding.

TORONTO, Feb. 9. — Out of the statement made by Sidney Thompson that ten million dollars worth of vegetables are grown in Ontario yearly the back yard gardening committee of the war-time thrift campaign in Toronto has evolved the slogan "A million dollars' worth of food in the back yards of Toronto and vicinity."

This the committee reckoned at a meeting held yesterday which would mean 100,000 gardens each producing ten dollars worth of vegetables and this amount will be aimed at.

Speech Punctuated With Revolver Shots

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 9.—A Reuter despatch from Budapest says that during a speech of Count Theodore Batthyani in the Hungarian Diet three revolver shots were fired from the gallery. Nobody was hurt and after some excitement a man was arrested, who made a confused statement, and was apparently intoxicated. Count Batthyani continued his speech with a remark that he must not be disturbed by ruffians.

WOULD SEND KAISER TO ISLE OF ST. HELENA

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Kaiser Wilhelm should be sent to St. Helena, and the United States should unite with Great Britain, France and their allies to send him there, in the opinion of George Haven Putnam, president of the American Rights league, who spoke here on England's part in the new internationalism before the congregation of the Mount Morris Baptist Church.

"There was once a man," he said, "who wanted to rule the world, with whom civilized Europe could not cooperate, and civilized Europe sent him to St. Helena. And that is the proper place for William of Berlin."

AMBASSADOR GERARD WILL LEAVE BERLIN TO-DAY

STEPS FROM CAR INTO OPEN MANHOLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—A well dressed man, as yet unidentified, dropped into a sewer manhole at Washington and Greene avenues, Brooklyn, at half-past nine o'clock at night, and the following morning he had not appeared at the East River end of the sewer, at Gold street, three miles away.

Carts had been dumping snow gathered from the streets into the manhole, the opening of which is between the two rails of the westbound track of the Greene avenue trolley line. A westbound car stopped over the hole at about the time an eastbound car stopped opposite.

A man wearing a long black overcoat, polished shoes and a soft gray hat alighted from the eastbound car, circled its rear end and waited for the westbound car to move on. When that car did move the man started briskly across that track without seeing the manhole and stepped into it.

As his body shot down he stayed himself a moment by seizing the rim of the opening. In that moment a labourer of the Street Cleaning Department tried to save him, but was able only to seize his gray hat. Then the man dropped on down into the black hole, a descent of eighteen feet, before striking the big sewer that drains a wide area into the East River.

The street cleaners had no ropes or ladders and were unable to get down into the hole. They called Hook and Ladder No. 105 and one fireman went down a ladder, with lanterns, but the man, probably made unconscious by the fall, had been carried on toward the East River by the stream.

The police were notified and Harbor squad A stationed launches at the Gold street opening of the sewer in East River. They watched the place with search lights.

It was said that the sewer at Greene and Washington avenues was too small to permit a party to go in search of the missing man, and that his body probably had been carried along lengthwise in the sewer. There was nothing in the gray hat that would identify the man.

I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your Nerve Food cured me when doctors had failed."

COLD SPELL AND LACK OF FOOD BRING SUFFERING TO AUSTRIA

VIENNA, February 10. — The public and press, accustomed to new sensations beyond the saturation point, may be considered to have completely relapsed into the apathetic routine which has resulted from thirty months of warfare. That diplomatic relations have been broken off between the United States and Germany, has become one of the many war facts, which are borne with stoical resignation. The press occupies itself with the possible action of European neutrals. The fact that some of these nations have borders contiguous to the central powers, is referred to cautiously, although Roumania's fate is alluded to here and there, as in the Neue Freie Presse, hitherto the leading peace advocate in the monarchy.

President Wilson gets scant notice, and what comment there is, is decidedly mild. Most editorials, among them those of the Fremdenblatt, the Tageblatt, the Zeit, the Pester Lloyd, and the Pesti Hirlap say that the President, in expressing the hope that European neutrals would also sever relations, proved that he was not informed on European politics, and was applying to Europe a doctrine similar to that of Monroe, which was wholly inapplicable.

There is much suffering here among the poor classes as a result of the spell of great cold. There is deep snow everywhere, and the food and fuel supply, which is at low ebb, is becoming a serious problem.

Cattle Markets.

The feature of this week's market has been the light receipts of cattle and consequent higher prices. While shipments of cattle for market have been to some extent curtailed owing to transportation difficulties, accentuated by snow blockades and extremely low temperatures and also by car shortages on the railroads, there is at the same time a feeling in the trade of a growing shortage of good killing cattle in the country. In view of this apparent gradual depletion in the country's supplies of cattle, the wholesale slaughter of calves and young immatured cattle is deeply deplored by many of the more observant men in the trade.

"It is no less than a downright shame," said a prominent commission man this week, "to see the indiscriminate killing off of our young cattle that is allowed to go on." It was strongly urged by others that it was high time the Government took some vigorous action in the matter, by absolutely prohibiting the killing of female calves and young cattle. The gradual depletion of the country's supplies of livestock has been allowed to proceed unhindered. It is pointed out that the situation must be well known to the authorities, and yet no effective action beyond an occasional warning sounded through the press, has been taken to prevent the present practice from becoming a serious menace to the food supplies of the country.

During the present week prices for finished cattle have steadily advanced, and though there was a slight easing off for the common qualities, the general average have been higher.

Sheep and lambs have held strong all through the week.

Calves have been strong and higher.

Hogs have again advanced, reaching to the $15 mark for hogs weighed off cars.

"ALL GONE."

In one hospital I visited, where beds were made up on the floors and in corridors, I witnessed one of the most pathetic incidents in connection with the terrible munition factory explosion of January 19, says a writer in the London News. A woman of the working class, her face drawn with agony, her eyes tearless, came to inquire for her two little girls, aged 5 and 7, respectively. They had gone on an errand for her and had not returned. The police had advised her to come to the hospital. In detail the mother described the children's clothing.

Yes, they had been admitted. She identified the tattered little frocks. Gently the matron placed her arms around the woman's waist, whispered something to her, and led her to a seat. Then the tears blinded her eyes.

"My God!" she gasped. "All gone!" The woman's husband had died on the western battlefield, and the news of his death was only received on the morning of the tragedy.

Attempt Is Being Made To Keep United States Out of the Conflict

Under-Surface Move of Neutrals—Conference of Madrid is Part of the Plan—Use Bernstorff's Influence Also—If He Reaches Berlin Before Public Indignation Forces Wilson to Move.

TWO BIG TRUMP CARDS

(By Robert J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, February 10.—While the United States hopes almost against hope—and prepares for an eventuality—a tremendous sub-surface move to keep this country at peace is now proceeding.

With what is believed to be the secretly tacit, but wholly informal sanction of this Government, the move to-day had developed along three lines, namely:

First, efforts of neutrals—confined now to almost all neutrals excepting the United States—to have a conference called at Madrid with a view to confining the war to its present limits, and if possible to get secret or public assurances from Germany that although she does not rescind her "barred zone" decree, she will not harm American or other neutral rights.

Second, an effort by this Government to avoid a break with Austria by having Austria modify her endorsement of Germany's undersea campaign, and,

Third, and latest, the expected efforts of German Ambassador Von Bernstorff to preserve peace after he reaches Berlin, provided, of course, the "overt act" has not been committed by Germany by that time. (This apparently is an independent move on Bernstorff's part, though it is admitted it can scarcely fail to meet with this Government's approval.)

TWO BIG TRUMP CARDS.

Rumours of this sub-surface "peace maintenance" plan have been prevalent for several days, but not until to-day did the full extent of the move become known.

The two big trump cards are the secret moves of neutral diplomats here to stall off war between the United States and Germany, and the German envoy's known and aggressive desire to preserve the peace for which he has long struggled.

Administration officials themselves do not admit that the moves are going on under the surface, but the United Press learned definitely that the neutral programme is ambitious, and that the State Department has been at least unofficially advised of the neutrals' intentions.

The Swiss Minister here, Dr. Paul Ritter, is a leading spirit in the conference plan. He and the other neutrals have conferred among themselves about keeping all the now neutral countries out of the struggle, and it is understood Secretary of State Lansing sat in with them at one session.

UNITED STATES WOULD WELCOME CONFERENCE.

In view of the American hope for neutral support, the proposed conference idea is not unwelcome here. The fact that none of the neutrals is breaking with Germany, although Bolivia and Brazil have threatened, and the fact that some of the neutrals might be forced into war on the side of Germany, makes the plan acceptable, though it is understood that the United States itself is not asking the present action.

One reason why the concerted action of neutrals is not unwelcome to this Government is that one of their avowed purposes is to carry on the fight, upheld by the United States for two years, to prevent the utter disintegration of international law.

Another reason is that the proposed conference is planned to set forth and protect the rights of small countries—another contention of the United States throughout the world.

According to American diplomats who have returned from Germany, the Imperial Government does not understand the American point of view as Von Bernstorff, who has been in America for many years, does, and he is expected to be of tremendous service in straightening out the existing serious difficulties.

WILSON TO HAUNT CAPITOL.

President Wilson plans to visit the Capitol and executive departments frequently from now on, whenever he desires information quickly or wants to take any steps in connection with legislation.

It was said officially that no surprise or alarm need be felt if the President suddenly goes to the Capitol at any hour of the day or visits any member of his Cabinet. So many pending questions have to be taken up that the president has found it too slow to call to the White House all the men he desires to see.

Mr. Wilson is making few routine engagements, and is keeping practically all his time open for work in connection with the foreign situation.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A FREE PRESCRIPTION YOU CAN HAVE FILLED AND USED AT HOME.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind and could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and the expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes from two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and the inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists, and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro by Warne Drug Co.

CHAPTER I.

THE CONFESSION.

It was growing late, and the September night held the breathless character of heat and humidity with which New York is usually cursed in July. Even the Great White Way, awakening to the new "season," sagged under the depressing influence of the weather. The crowds moved sluggishly, finding exertion attended with inconvenience and discomfort; there was little unnecessary traffic; conventional society perspired within doors; the less fortunte element patronized front stoops, while the proletariat took to the house tops. In the up-town side streets it was very quiet.

As John Wentworth turned into Madison Avenue and came before his own door he saw a man smoking a cigarette as he lounged against the low, cut-stone wall bounding the narrow strip of earth between the pavement and the building, the heavy air bringing to his nostrils the odor of Cuban tobacco.

Wentworth barely noticed him, and was about to go up the broad steps, when the stranger disconnected himself from the wall, moved forward and accosted him.

"Senor, will you kindly tell me the hour?"

There was nothing offensive or threatening in the request, nor did the man who made it look dangerous; but being a thorough New Yorker and wise in his generation, Wentworth did not attempt to consult his watch. "It is half-past ten," he said, making a shrewd guess, at the same instant in a comprehensive glance, taking in the details of his questioner.

By his accent, manner and appearance the latter was plainly a foreigner. His dark hair hung almost to his shoulders and there was just light enough for Wentworth to catch his expression and to see that his face was adorned with a mustache and goatee. The young man smiled as he realised that he had been suspicious of one whose slight, well dressed body would have been no match for his own muscular and athletic figure.

At the answer the stranger waved a small, well-shaped hand. "Much thanks, Senor. Buenos noches." At that he turned and strolled up the avenue with the deliberate slowness of one without an object other than a desire to kill time.

Wentworth reached the top step, and while feeling for his latch-key turned and looked after him. The young man appeared to be the embodiment of all that was fortunate, yet in truth while at the high tide of physical health and harmony, subconsciously he was far from being satisfied with himself. Even as he stood there, watching the receding figure he was vaguely aware that he was wasting his powers at ease, or at an avocation which at best was hardly more than pitiful; but he lacked the incentive to put his latent strength of mind and body into effective play. He had nothing to ruffle him in the way of a lack of money, nothing to disturb his temper in the way of enmity or jealousy, nothing to stir his blood through being loved by or loving a woman. He was moving on a sluggish current of self-ease, and unknown to himself, was being mildly punished by the law demanding sacrifice as an exchange for happiness.

Born to the purple and the silver spoon, his life had been such as naturally to extinguish high ambition; but his pride of self and family was great, fantastically so; it represented honor, and its honor had never been impugned. Had John Wentworth known what he lacked, he would have supplied the want; but at present he only felt the surge of something the nature of which he did not realise. It was not social aspiration. For "society" he cared nothing, having but few close friends and but one intimate. He did not know what he wished; there was no recognised want he could name, but the unimportant incident of meeting the stranger, who by this time was out of sight, seemed somehow to accentuate a rising protest at his own uselessness, though there was nothing in the trifling circumstance of the encounter that appeared to bear any relation to himself or his affairs. With an impatient jerk at the bunch of keys which had become jammed in his pocket, he turned and let himself into the house.

The front door was dark, and Wentworth was about to go upstairs to his own rooms when he noticed the library door was open, the soft light from within showing at the further end of the broad passage. It told him that his father had not yet retired. He hung up his hat and went down the hall for a good night word with his parent.

Captain Wentworth was nervously writing at a broad mahogany table desk strewn with papers, the glow from an intricately twisted electrolier falling on his thick and disordered white hair. His bushy white eyebrows were contracted, and he was fiercely biting the short ends of his closely trimmed white mustache. His was a handsome head, but one could see by his paleness and the lines of his face that he was physically depleted; indeed he had the appearance of one whose nerves were being ground to a fine edge. A small lacquered table stood at his elbow and on it were a decanter of wine, a cut glass ice-pitcher covered with beads of moisture, some glasses, and a plate of sweet biscuits. The air of the sumptuously furnished room was hot and close, notwithstanding the swung-back French windows.

As the front door closed the old gentleman abruptly ceased writing and listened, and as he heard his son's footsteps coming down the marble floor of the hall he hurriedly but carefully slipped the sheet on which he had been at work under the leather-lined pink blotting pad before him. He had but just concealed the paper when the young man appeared.

AN ECONOMICAL LUNCH

Take a few Oxo Cubes and save the expense of lunching out. A cup of Oxo and a few biscuits, or a sandwich, make a light inexpensive meal which will keep you satisfied and clear-headed until your next repast.

A cup of Oxo is always good. It can be made with an Oxo Cube and hot water with very little trouble. When you reach home after a hard day at the office, a cup of hot Oxo will do you ever so much good, and lessen the risk of a chill.

"You are pegging at it a bit too hard, dad," said John affectionately, as he paused by his father and noted the strained expression of his face. "You should be abed, sir."

Captain Wentworth ran his hand nervously up the thin gold chain attached to his eye glasses, and removing them, settled back into his pivoted chair and swung around to face his son.

"I know it, Jack, I know it." He spoke with a gasp, as though short of breath from excitement or exertion.

"What's the necessity, dad?"

In return the old gentleman looked at the young man as though he envied the fine lines of the tall, athletic figure; then ignoring the question, he passed his hand over his eyes and asked abruptly: "Where have you come from, Jack?"

"From the Grand Central, after seeing Tom Harper off on his hunt. We had been at my laboratory, or studio, or whatever you may choose to call it."

"Delectable amusement there, I suppose!" The elder man looked at his son as if measuring him for a purpose, his face very serious; the other who was selecting a cigarette from the case that he took from his pocket, did not notice the critical glance. His answer was nonchalant.

"I have comfortable quarters there, certainly. When are you going to honor me with a call?"

"I don't know. What does it all amount to, Jack?"

John Wentworth smiled. "Amount to? Is that a conundrum? Well, I hardly hope to get a painting hung in the Academy, or have more than an honourable mention in the photographers' exhibition. I can't say I possess a high order of ambition—but—delectable amusement, most decidedly!"

The old gentleman made no direct answer to this, but continued to gaze fixedly at his son, his broad chest heaving with every breath as if his lungs lacked air.

"Has Thomas gone to bed?" he finally asked.

"I presume so. The house seems to be locked for the night, save here." John glanced at the opened windows. "Then shut the door."

The words were so abrupt that the young man looked closely at his father before he obeyed. As he turned back from the door and lighted his cigarette he noted the captain's labored breathing.

"You are done up, dad."

"I am. God! If I could have but your youth, your strength!" The outburst was sudden and apparently uncalled for. The young man bent forward and looked with astonishment at his father, but the old gentleman's eye reassured him.

"Why this dramatic desperation, my son!" was the serious return. "Sit down, Jack. I have got to talk to you—if I can—but I haven't been able to take a deep breath all day."

"The old trouble?"

The captain nodded and tapped his chest over his heart. "My boy," he began, with an air of dogged determination, "I have never given you an intimate insight into my affairs; not because I was afraid to trust you; not because I thought you lacked either sense or sympathy, but because your tastes and mine have been along such different lines. My days have been devoted to business—yours have been passed in ambling along the easy road of a dilettante. To me you were unpractical, though I have not disturbed you by attempting to force your thoughts into different channels. But the time has come Jack, when against my wish and by the force of necessity I am compelled to talk to you. Indeed, the necessity has existed for some time—but I have shied at it—I have feared it."

The speaker paused and struggled for a deep breath. His son looked at him, his face showing a mixture of perplexity, anxiety and interrogation, but he said nothing, and the cigarette between his lips burned on uninhaled. The captain evidently saw the suppressed question in the young man's face, for after a spasmodic heaving of his broad shoulders he continued:

"I saw the doctor again to-day. He told me I must quit at once—go to Europe—or somewhere, but he won't guarantee my life for an hour. I know my condition quite as well as he, and—" He hesitated.

"Well?" The word came after a moment of deep silence the blood slowly leaving the face of the young man as he stared at his father.

"And I dont' care how soon it is over!" said the captain, with a determination and abruptness that spoke volumes of his metnal state.

"No—I mean it, Jack. When a man gets to be sixty years of age he has become disillusioned, no matter how optimistic he has been. If it were not for one's youth and consequent blindness life would be voted a failure by nearly every honest man arriving at my age. But that aside, Jack. You have your mother's patrimony; you have used it as suited yourself. How does it stand?"

"I have increased it a trifle, sir," was the rather mechanical response, as the young man threw away the cigarette which was scorching his mustache.

"That is good, Jack! That is good—and fortunate—for from me you will get next to nothing. I—I—" He stopped, mastered by his emotion.

"Are you trying to explain to me that you have met with losses?" asked the other, a new light springing to his eyes. "Why beat about the bush, dad? All I have shall be at your command, and—"

The old gentleman stopped him by again lifting his hand. "No Jack. If it were only that it would be simple enough. You have the generosity of the unselfish and the unthinking. I thank you. But it is not that, nor do I mean that my state of health is hopeless. I may live for some years, or I may not, but—" Again he hesitated.

The oppressive grip on John Wentworth's heart loosened a trifle. If the matter troubling his father was not a question of health it could not be serious. The young man's voice took a soothing tone as he cast off his load, lighted another cigarette, and said—

"You are far overwrought, dad. The heat is something awful. You've had a bad day—you've had them before. Don't talk any more to-night."

The captain shook his white head. "It is not altogether that. It is not the heat nor the bad day—I'm used to them. Listen to me. I must tell you, for if anything should happen to me, the matter would devolve on you for a time—until a new trustee could be appointed."

"Trustee! for whom?"

"Grace Merridale. She soon comes of age. Her papers are in the deposit vault. You did'nt know of this—you don't know her—but you have heard me speak of David Merridale—of Texas—since the days that we were at sea together? He was indeed my David!"

"Yes. I know.

"Well, he made me the trustee for his daughter, Grace, under his will. The amount of the scheduled estate is small—but there is another matter—a paper—he gave me to hold for his daughter. This is a trust outside of the trust at law—it is a personal trust. David handed the paper to me while he was dying—dying in my arms, Jack—dying from exhaustion after a trip across the Texas desert."

The old gentleman labored as he spoke. He stopped, and turning to the table at his elbow, poured out a glass of wine which he drank off. It appeared to stimulate him for with something more of vigor and less of distress he went on. "Jack, you would scarcely believe that so much was involved in a bit of paper not a legal document—a paper that would be meaningless to you—a square of red paper, for that is all that it appears to be; and stranger yet will you consider the place where it is deposited."

"And where is that?" asked the young man, hardly curious after his recent strain. There could be nothing serious in this. He knew his father's sense of punctilious honor, a sense he had himself inherited, and thought that perhaps the old gentleman might have placed the paper in some institution the name of which he was about to tell. Captain Wentworth lifted his hand and pointed to a painting hung on the wall behind his son.

"John in the back of that picture the paper in question is hidden." He stopped as if to to witness the effect of the strange statement.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Facts Concerning Epilepsy, (By Dr. William Held, 6th installment.)

For the purpose of completeness we pay passing attention to the statement recently made by a Cincinnati physician to the effect that he had discovered the germ of epilepsy and that the disease was communicable.

Briefly stated, the proven facts are that the identical germ heralded as a new discovery by Dr. Reed of Cincinnati, has been found in the blood of some epileptics by the French investigator Bra and a co-worker, nearly 20 years ago, and so described and depicted in his work. The lay reader may find technical proof of the non-existence of an epileptic germ tiresome. Suffice is to say, that the communicabilitybility and germ theory of epilepsy have been proven myths by the exact methods of the laboratory, and that these proofs have been convincing and acceptable by every bacteriologist. Germs in the blood of epileptics are always incidents and never causes of epilepsy. The intestines of all persons are laden with millions of various germs. The previous mentioned affinity of the epileptics blood for infectious matter and waste products, exercises no discriminating, no selective function; it seizes for filth upon any available source, hence germs will at times find entrance to the blood stream.

A Real Cause of Epilepsy: The immortal pathologist Koch has formulated a law which is recognised by the bacteriologists the world over, and is known by Koch's law. Roughly stated, it sets up the maxim that the specific cause of a disease is that particular element which may be obtained from the infected patient and transferred to other systems, in which it must produce the same diseased condition, and so on, ad infinitum. So to find the specific cause of epilepsy, the cause which may be shown to bring about the attacks under exclusion of all contributing or aggravating elements, we must be able to extract from the body of the epileptic a substance, which upon being engrafted upon the human or other animal, results in epileptic symptoms. We conducted experiments with the blood of epileptics, and after years of such research extracted from same a serum which possessed very peculiar and interesting features. When this serum is injected into an epileptic patient he will respond by either promptly succumbing to one of his epileptic attacks or in other manner demonstrating the presence of a material capable to master in the epileptic state. If no attack occurs there may be headache, dizziness, drowsy sensation, giddiness, depression, uncomfortable feeling or pain at the point of injection.

If however the same kind of serum is injected into a healthy, non-epileptic subject, none of the mentioned symptoms occur. This is so because the injected material in the body of the non-epileptic does not come in contact with the medium of its own kind; it remains neutral and is eliminated as so much foreign matter, through the various avenues of the system. The same results follow injections of such serums in animals, rabbits being mostly used for such work. If a rabbit receives two or more of the serum injections, the next dose if given before the preceding one is eliminated, that is in time to meet its own element, will produce epileptic attacks. The animal suddenly stops eating, lies down, stretches itself, turns over, and had a few quick spasmodic movements of the feet, and throws the head far back holding it in such position for a minute.

The rabbit soon recovers, returns to its feed, and appears as lively as before. It will not have another attack at any time unless again subjected to fresh innoculation. Sometimes the epileptic symptoms caused are not more than sluggishness of the animal, which often sits in its cage, does not eat, and oscillates the head sideward This is epileptic intoxication short of the convulsive feature. Medical critics have pointed out that the results here described might be what is known as anaphylactic reaction, that such results may be produced by the repeated injection of any serum or other albumen which reduces the animal's resistance to the particular substance bringing about the symptoms. This is all very true of anaphylaxis which term means sensitising, underprotecting or exposing to the influence of certain infections. But there are marked differences between the anaphylactic symptoms and the results obtained by epileptic serum injections. Under anaphylaxis the animal generally dies, and if it survives, it becomes more sensitive with each subsequent injection, never acquiring immunity, that is, a tolerance for the injected material. It never becomes so used to these injections as to bear one without succumbing. How different with the epileptic serum. The rabbit does not die, it does not become easier with each following injection to effect the animal, but on the contrary the rabbit lives through a goodly number of injections and finally recovers, and can no longer be made epileptic by injections. It is immune to these poisons.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

THE GREAT INFIDEL.

While Robert G. Ingersoll made for himself a legion of enemies by his attacks on Christianity, all must admire his eloquence. No man in America could more beautifully frame a sentence, and his eloquent remarks at the grave of his brother lead one to doubt if the great infidel was half so bad as his own words, at times, pictured him to be. A man who uttered so many beautiful things had but little room in his heart for atheism, with its cold, revolting, heathenish teachings. In a symposium on woman, Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll was asked to contribute his views. He replied as follows:

"It takes a hundred men to make an encampment but one woman can make a home. I not only admire woman as the most beautiful object ever created, but I reverence her as the redeemed glory of humanity, the sanctuary of all virtues, the pledge of all perfect qualities of heart and head. It is because women are so much better than men that their faults are considered greater. The one thing in this world that is constant, the only peak that rises above the clouds, the one window in which the light burns forever, the one star that darkness cannot quench, is woman's love. It rises to the greatest heights, it sinks to the lowest depths, it forgives the most cruel injuries. A woman's love is the perfume of the earth. This is the real love that subdues the earth; the love that has wrought all miracles of art; that gives us music all the way from the cradle song to the grand closing symphony that bears the soul away on wings of fire. A love that is greater than power, sweeter than life and stronger than death."

THE BOY.

The following story is told in one of our exchanges. We have many just such boys in this town. This particular boy had a slung shot and was shooting some little pebbles at trees and barns, and perhaps even at sparrows. The boy's aim went wild and the little pebble from the slung shot speeded wide of the mark and crashed through a window pane in a residence near by.

Did the householder get angry at the boy? Was the lad arrested? Did the housewife chase him around the block with a broom?

No, that wasn't the end of the unfortunate incident. The boy saw what he had done and could not resist the temptation to hide behind a tree. The woman came from the house and called to the lad. The youngster crept very slowly toward the house, his head drooping.

"Don't worry about that," said the woman. "I have a boy just about your size and your age. He is a good boy, just like you. But once in a while he makes a mistake and does a little damage to something. Don't worry about this. It won't cost much to have it fixed again."

The boy thanked her and walked away. For two days he did odd chores for his mother to save some money. He did not tell his mother what he wanted the money for until he had enough to pay for the pane of glass, and then he took the money to the woman and soon after told his mother about it.

This is just a little incident from every day life. A little damage done by a boy was passed over by a good housewife and the incident was so handled as to even help the boy who had accidentally shot a stone from his slung shot through a window.

Boys are boys. A scolding from some angry woman would not have accomplished half as much as did the calm and kind words from this particular woman.

PRINTED FILTH.

A speaker before the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, warned mothers against the popular books and magazines which she deems it dangerous for girls to read. One of the strong statements made was that "Robert W. Chambers has done more to tear down the American home and decent living than any other man in America." While this assertion is too extreme perhaps, yet the pernicious influence of stories of the Chambers type is generally recognised by those who keep studious watch upon current literature and its effects.

Both in magazines and books of a certain type there seems to be a keen rivalry as to which of these publications can go farthest into realms of the risque and glase over vices and infidelities in the home and in society with more or less brilliant verbiage. The homebreaker is lionised in these stories and marital unfaithfulness is apotheosised. The most banal influences are spread abroad under the cloak of brilliance in literary style—although some of this literary carrion is illy concealed by the verbal garbage that is thrown over it. There is filth and moral poison in the books and the magazines of the "smart" type.

The gleeful laugh of happy children is the best home music, and the graceful figures the best statuary. We are all kings and queens in the cradle, and each babe is a new marvel; a new miracle. The unaffected lamentations when he lifts up his voice on high, or more beautiful, the sobbing child — the face all liquid grief, as he tries to swallow his vexation—soften all hearts to pity, and to mirthful and clamorous compassion. The small despot asks so little that all reasons and all nature are on his side. His ignorance is more charming than all knowledge and his little sins more bewitching than virtue. His flesh is angel's flesh all alive.

FRIED APPLES.

Wash, pare and core, without breaking, two medium-sized apples, then cut them crosswise into slices a quarter of an inch thick. Mix a cup and a third of flour, two teaspoons baking powder, and a quarter of a teaspoon of salt; stir in two-thirds of a cup of milk slowly until smooth, then add a well-beaten egg. Dip the slices of apple into this batter, then fry in deep hot fat until browned and the apples are tender. When done, drain on brown paper, then sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve. Serve hot with well-browned sausages.

BROWNED CARROTS.

Remove the tops from the carrots, then scrape. Let stand in cold water for ten minutes, then cut into halves lengthwise. Cook in boiling salted water until tender, then drain and fry over the fire. Melt butter or drippings in a frying pan, and when hot add the strips of cooked carrots. Cook until brown on all sides, sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and serve.

PICKLED BEETS DE LUXE.

Select good red beets and boil till tender. Then plunge each separately into cold water and strip off the skins. Cut lengthwise into strips. Place these in glass jars, leaving plenty of room for the liquor to surround each piece. To a quart of vinegar add two pounds of brown sugar and boil. Skin and then add, tied loosely in a little muslin bag, a teaspoonful each of whole cloves, allspice and mustard, and a few pepper corns. Boil again, adding a little salt and cayenne pepper. Pour over the beets in jars.

HOW FAT FOLKS MAY BECOME THIN

By Elizabeth Thomas.

Perhaps you are suddenly becoming stout, or it may be that you have been putting on weight for years. In either case the cause is the same—lack of oxygen carrying power of the blood. This trouble occurs in adults of both sexes, and all ages, but it may be overcome very easily and without any of the privations that most people imagine necessary to reduce their weight.

Simply go to your druggist and get some oil of orilene capsules. Take one after each meal and one before going to bed. Weigh yourself so as to know just how fast you are losing weight. Wonderful results has been accomplished by this inexpensive recipe, but be sure to get the genuine oil of orilene in capsule form. It is sold only in the original sealed packages. Any large druggist can supply you, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00, by money order or registered letter. Goods will be sent in plain wrapper. Address D. J. Liddle Drug Co., Box 1149, Montreal, Canada.

PRETTY PETTICOATS

Some fancy net and lace designs in petticiats are elaborately trimmed with vines of tiny roses and ribbon, and are very wide, being four to five, even six inches in width.

A new fad shows the petticoat, trimmed with sprigs of paradise feathers in place of the ordinary silk fringe. The paradise fronds are interspersed with tiny flowers that trim a series of pleated flounces. The petticoat itself is silk musselline.

A new petticoat is made of two shades of chiffon. The arrangement suggests two separate garments hung from one belt. There are two flounces that extend to the hips, so that there is no chance of a thickening of the hip line by a superfluous layer of even so sheer a fabric as chiffon.

Green, purple, wistaria, Copenhagen, coral, rose, gold, Belgian blue, etc., are worn with plain tailored suits, but are frequently bound or piped with a bright color. Braces are added to some petticoats. The best grade of mercerised petticoats, similar stripes and floral patterns to those of silk and are made up in as great a variety of patterns.

The most beautiful gowns are the most simple.

Child Was Nervous, Irritable, Tired Out

She Had No Appetite and Her Complexion Was Pale and Sallow

How many parents realize the strain which going to school means to the child who is naturally nervous and of delicate health?

You see them come from the schools daily with pale faces, many wearing glasses, and looking tired and worn. At home they are irritable, do not sleep well at nights, and are upset by a little extra excitement.

If they are to grow to healthy manhood and womanhood their systems must have attention now. Such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders for children in this condition. We are constantly receiving letters from grateful parents telling what the Nerve Food has done for their children. This one is a fair sample:

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes: "My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was noticeable and it was wonderful plexion grew pale and sallow. Finally she had to keep her bed and have somebody with her all the time. She was afraid of everything, would get excited and tremble till the bed would shake. As she seemed to be getting worse under the doctor's treatment, mother decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After she had used about four boxes, improvement was lifeless and drowsy and her come to see how much brighter and stronger she grew week by week. She used ten boxes altogether and they cured her. She got fat and rosy and went to school every day with an ambition that she never seemed to have before. I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone, for it was indeed wonderful what it did for her."

NOTES AND NOTIONS.

WHITE SATIN IMPROVED.

To clean a white satin hat buy a five cent block or square of magnesia at the druggist's, and rub over the satin. Use plenty of magnesia, covering every bit of the hat. Leave for a few days. Then turn the hat upside down and shake off what is loose. If you do not like the appearance of the hat go over it again, using plenty of magnesia, and taking pains to do a good job.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S FOUR GORE SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

Do what one will the panel will find its way straight to the separate skirt, whether the garment be for general or dressy wear. It is prominently featured in this design, a model in four gores, with the side gores in two sections—upper and lower—joined at about the line of the hip, the upper section overlapping the lower and strongly suggesting side peplums. The fulness is not obtrusive, but it keeps its place.

Notice that for novelty the upper ends of the front gore are extended to give the effect of a belt; this treatment adds to the attractiveness of the model. The back view of the garment shows it to be similar to the front, the closing is at the side front.

With an afternoon blouse this skirt will make a graceful costume if developed in satin, taffeta, velveteen or other rich fabric; or, in a practical weave like serge, gabardine or novelty, worsted, it may relate with a blouse to complete a smart outfit for walking, sports and such wear.

The skirt, pattern No. 8,124, cuts in sizes 24 to 30 waist. To make in size 24 requires 4 yards 44 inch material.

No matter what the material, one gets the best value by depending upon the pattern. Every piece is plainly marked, so that a woman with no experience at all can count upon the best results in copying.

To obtain the pattern send to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

In our last we were speaking about the days of trial and trouble when the love of many would grow cold. It is a comfort to those that endure to the end to know that they shall be saved. The crown of glory will make amends for all their sufferings; one hour in heaven will compensate them for all their trials here. Then Jesus speaks in the 14th verse about the preaching of this gospel in all the world; it is called the gospel of the kingdom, because it reveals the kingdom of grace which is called the kingdom of glory. The gospel is preached for a witness to all nations; that is a faithful declaration of the will and mind of God concerning the duty which God requires of man and the reward that man will receive from God.

It is recorded in 1st John, 5, 11, as a witness for those who believe that they shall be saved and that those who reject the gospel and die impenitent shall be lost. The end of the world shall be then, and not till then, when the gospel has fulfilled the work appointed to it. Christ foretells more particularly the ruin that was coming upon the people, of the Jews, their city, temple and nation. verse 15. Here he comes more closely to answer their question concerning the desolation of the temple. What he said here would be of use to his disciples in reference to that great event—he describes the various steps of that calamity. 1st, the Romans setting up the abomination of desolation in the holy place, reference being here made to a prophecy Christ inserts, whose readeth let him understand, and from Daniel's prophecy, that it is to have its accomplishment now in the 16th to the 20th verses, it says, Then let those who are in Judea flee, let them quit the city with all speed, as Lot quitted Sodom.... and as Israel the tents of Dathan and Abiram. They must flee to the mountains. It was a time of imminent peril and danger. God opened a door for their escape, and all who obeyed the warning would reach a place of safety. But they must make haste; delays are dangerous. He that has grace in his heart carries his all with him, when stript of all. This was a public warning, for St. Matthew's gospel was published long before the destruction of Jerusalem, so that all had an opportunity of escape. Most of the Christian population left the city. He tells the people to pray for themselves and their friends, that their flight might not be in winter, nor on the Sabbath day. When the measure of iniquity is full, and when the people of God are safe and secure, then comes judgment. Many a city and kingdom has been laid desolate, but never any like this. No wonder that the ruin of Jerusalem was an unparalleled ruin, when the sin of Jerusalem was an unparalleled sin.

The nearer any people are to God in profession and privilege, if they abuse those privileges and are false to those professions, the heavier God's judgments will be upon them.—Amos 3, 2.

But we have a word of comfort here—in the midst of those terrible scenes of slaughter and destruction, for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened. God sets bounds to the wrath of their enemies, and in the midst of deserved wrath, God remembers mercy. Instead of complaining that our afflictions last so long, if we consider our sins we have reason to be thankful that they do not last always, and as we look about us we see many suffering ones, worse off than we are.

Christ foretells the sudden spreading of the gospel in the world about the time of these great events, verses 27, 28. As the lightning comes out of the east, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. The gospel shall be preached and shall fly as the lightning. The gospel is light from heaven. Christ preached it openly. It spread far and wide quickly. The spread of Christianity in so many distant lands of divers languages, by such unlikely instruments, devoid of secular advantages, and in the face of so much opposition, and in so short a time, was one of the greatest miracles ever wrought for its confirmation. How soon did the gospel reach the island of Great Britain? Tertullian in the second century notices it. The fastnesses of Britain though inaccessible to the Romans, were occupied by Christ. This was the Lord's doing.

Some understand these verses of the coming of the Son of Man to destroy Jerusalem. Malachi 3, 1, 2, 5. "But who may abide the day of his coming, and who shall stand when he appeareth?" So much was there of extraordinary display of divine power and justice in that event that it is called the coming of Christ. To many it would be unexpected, and the righteous judgements of God coming swiftly upon them would be compared to a flash of lightning—they were all so much preoccupied in their idolatries and vices and wickedness in provoking the wrath of God and the vengeance of their enemies.

Tertullian describes the persecution of the Christians as a war against the very name. Though a man was most virtuous yet it was crime enough if he was a Christian. Thus were the followers of Christ hated, for his name's sake.

All these awful predictions so minutely described by Christ were exactly fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem.

Christ foretells his second coming, verses 29-31. It is said to be immediately after the tribulations of those days. It is usual in prophetical form to speak of things great and certain, as near and just at hand to express the greatness and the certainty of them. Enoch spake of Christ's second coming as within sight. Behold, the Lord cometh. Jude 14. A thousand years in God's sight are just as one day. II Peter 3, 8. The tribulation of those days also includes all the other tribulations that the church must pass through. The whole state of the church on earth is militant, but when her warfare is accomplished then look for the end. Concerning Christ's second coming it is foretold that there shall be a great change, in order to the making of all things new. It shall be a visible change such as all the world shall take notice of. The glorious appearance of our Lord Jesus, who shall then shew himself as the brightness of his father's glory, and the express image of his person, will darken the sun and the moon, because of the glory that excelleth. II Cor. 2, 10. The sun and the moon will then be darkened; there will be no more occasion for them. To those who choose their portion in this life all comfort will be withdrawn; now God causes his sun to rise on the earth but then darkness must be their portion. To the saints that had their treasure above such light and joy of comfort will be given as shall supersede that of the sun and the moon. We do not need these vessels of light when we come to the Fountain and Father of Light. Rev. 22, 5.

I intend (D.V.) to give the views of the two schools of thought on this most important subject. These simple talks are being read by the soldiers in the trenches. One mother sends the Saturday Daily Examiner each week the sermon to her son, who reads it, and passes it on to his comrades. Many others are getting interested, and a number of people who do not go to church read them.

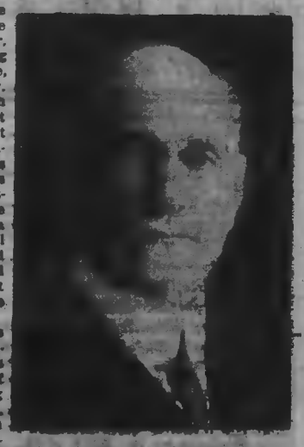
The World Outlook on Church Union

By THE REV. ARTHUR J. BROWN, D.D., LL.D.
BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN THE U.S.A.



ARTHUR J. BROWN.

The alternative before the churches is like that before the Allies in Europe—stand together, not as sympathizers fighting separately, but as a united force, or suffer irretrievable disaster. Nothing is plainer than that North America is not being won for Christ as things are now and that it cannot be so won unless the churches combine. Fields overlap. Organizations are needlessly multiplied. Expenses of maintenance are heavily increased. Communities which could be adequately served by one Church have a dozen. Buildings are small and poorly equipped. Time and money of members are so absorbed by the struggle for existence that little is done to advance the cause of Christ.

The fact that most communions approve exchange of pulpits and intercommunion, accept one another's baptisms, ordinations, and letters of transfer, and show an increasing disposition to enter into territorial, federative, co-operative, and even union agreements eloquently testifies to the breakdown of sectarian feeling. In making territorial divisions and readjusting boundary lines so as to avoid overlapping, numerous churches have been shifted bodily from one communion to another by formal agreement between the governing bodies. In Korea and India, transfers involving thousands of Christians have taken place between Methodists and Presbyterians. A conference of representatives of the Anglican Church Missionary Society's Mission and the American Presbyterian Board's Mission at Kasganj, India, March 13, 1914, agreed that the Anglicans should withdraw from the Etah District and that the Presbyterians should withdraw from an adjacent one, the Indian Christians in each case to fall under the care of the Mission left in sole possession of the field. Similar agreements have been made in numerous instances in the United States, especially between Congregationalists and Presbyterians, and authorized committees are trying to lessen the evils of over-churching in small communities by encouraging feeble congregations to consolidate, the denominational affiliation of the consolidated church to be determined by priority of occupation or preponderance of interest. If such agreements are justifiable in mission fields, why are they not justifiable elsewhere? If it is proper for four denominations to unite in a Montana village or an India district, why is it not proper for them to unite in the country at large?

The necessity for action is not wanting, but on the contrary is urgently pressing. The reply that "conditions are not ripe" for organic union confuses the objectors with Providence. Conditions have been ripe for a dozen years. It is objectors that are unripe. We may say with Shakespeare's Henry V. at Agincourt:

"All things are ready, if our minds be so."

Suppose the Churches do not unite what then? Laymen are giving the answer in significant ways. Organizations like the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., social settlements and a variety of other associations show that increasing numbers of Christians are resolved to get together in Christian work, and that as they cannot do so through their churches, they will outride of them. The time has passed when Christian men can prudently assume an attitude of indifference or obstruction toward the movement for organic union. While attempting to avoid what they believe to be a danger in union, a worse thing may befall them and the cause of Christ—a churchless union of laymen who will simply ignore their ecclesiastical guilds.

The union of the people of God is coming. Too many earnest souls are praying for it, providential indications too definitely point toward it, the words and mind of our Lord are too unmistakable to permit doubt. It may or may not come now; but come it will, sooner or later. "What trials and delays must be endured," to quote Dr. Henry Van Dyke, "What obstacles and difficulties overcome, what long and perilous journey accomplished, before the vision is realised, God only knows. It may be that the conflict with evil must grow sharper and more bitter before Christians learn that division means defeat. It may be that the shame of forsaken temples and a vanishing Sabbath and a system of education without religion must grow deeper, to make men see the fatal consequences of disunion, rivalry, and mutual distrust among the disciples of Christ. It may be that disaster and humiliation and weakness must befall the Christian forces and they must be driven to some dreadful battlefield of Armageddon to make them stand together against the united powers of darkness and unbelief. Or it may be, and God grant it, that the lesson will be learned in brighter paths and slowly spelled in syllables of hope. But whether by bright ways or by dark ways, whether through suffering or through rejoicing, God lead us toward the consummation of Christ's unity in church union; God keep us obedient to the heavenly vision."

MYSTERY IN ESCAPE OF ARMY OFFICER

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Mystery surrounds the escape of an alleged army deserter who was freed from his non-commissioned officer captor when soldiers and several other men riding in an army bus started a fight on the road to Fort Totten, at Willet's Point, from Flushing, L.I. In the absence of Colonel William Haan, commandant at the fort, officers there refused to discuss the incident. Sergeant James Cavanaugh, of the Coast Artillery, was placed under arrest after being found near the fort, a part of one of his fingers blown off.

According to the police, a non-commissioned officer arrested in Manhattan Tuesday night a private named O'Neil, who is alleged to have deserted. He was on his way to the fort with his prisoner when the fight started. In the mix-up the captive escaped. The officer's revolver and belt were torn from him. His identity has not been revealed.

Sergeant Cavanaugh was arraigned before a magistrate in Flushing and turned over to the military authorities. He was accused of having a revolver in his possession without a permit.

This huge machine was brought up to the castle walls. The moat was filled in with rubbish and the machine pushed forward till its drawbridge could reach the walls. A covering of hides was used as a protection against the defenders' burning arrows. The attackers ran up the ladders behind and streamed on to the parapet to effect the breach.

MYSTERY MAN OF BRITISH ARMY IS WIPING OUT PAST

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Disappearance from the army under a cloud, 21 years a "mystery man" in South America, and now ancient British court records are skeins revealed to-day in the story of the man who came back.

Friends of Sergt.-Major Greener, Royal Engineers, have just learned the whole truth in connection with Greener's sudden leave from his battalion headquarters at Aldershot in 1896.

The irresistible lure of the war which called the deserter from a remote part of Chile caused him to appear before a court martial, again at Aldershot, just 21 years and three days after he was officially reported missing on the barracks room bulletin board. Desertion usually means death, but this court-martial had only the heart to reduce is victim to the rank of private.

It was back in the days when the Duke of Connaught was commander-in-chief of the Engineers. Greener had charge of a little yard and shed—the balloon works—a particular portion of the Aldershot camp which is now credited with being the germ of the Royal Flying Corps.

Court records, yellow with over two decades of life, show to-day that someone was guilty of selling certain army supplies. It meant that Greener dropped out of army world and until he "gave up" in Manchester a few weeks ago, no one knew whether he was alive or dead.

Many army rumours, as the years dragged on, credited him with fighting with the Boers at Magersfontein, located him in China, India, Canada, the United States and elsewhere. Greener's own story shows that he was nowhere during all the years but living down the past as a mining prospector in the mountains about Iquiqua, Chile. It was in this isolated rendezvous that the tales of European battlefields reached the deserter, and the call of the army was overpowering. It drew him back to England to face what might seem dishonourable death.

Virile and direct at forty when he fled from Aldershot, Greener is in the sixties to-day, but still erect and soldierly. His temples are whitened and there are lines in his face. He wears the simple uniform of the Sappers, and is soon destined for his further "come back" in Northern France.

To remove automobile grease or any dark, heavy grease from washable goods, apply a small piece of butter and rub it in well, then wash with soap and rinse.

STRATHCONA STORIES

BECKLES WILSON RECALLS EPISODES IN CANADIAN'S LIFE.

The Late High Commissioner for Canada Was Related to the Originals of Two Dickens Characters — First Purchase of a Black Fox Skin Showed Lord Strathcona's Talent as a Trader.

ONE of the best stories in Beckles Wilson's "Life of Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal" tells of the death by drowning of one of his boyhood chums at Forres, Scotland. Nine-year-old Donald called on the bereaved family, and "with a gravity far beyond his years, condoled with them, and on leaving begged that they would accept a slight token in memory of his friend. He handed them over all of his pocket money, amounting to a shilling and some odd coppers. "Thus was the child father to the man."

It is interesting to know that Lord Strathcona was related to the Cheerbyle brothers, those delightful old men in Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby," who were always so considerate of each other, of their employes, and their mother. Lord Strathcona's paternal grandmother was the sister of Mrs. Grant, the mother of the brothers, whom Dickens happened to meet while on a visit to Manchester.

One morning in the early days of the present century an elderly individual, of no very prepossessing appearance, called at the office of the High Commissioner for Canada in London, and asked to see Lord Strathcona. He was told that his Lordship was far too busy to see any but those who had appointments with him.

"Well," was the confident reply, "he'll see me if you tell him my father drove him to Aberdeen when he sailed to Canada."

The message was delivered, and the man admitted. Five minutes later he appeared with a five-pound note in his hand. He repeated his visit three weeks later with a similar result. A month or so later back he came again. The secretary protested to Lord Strathcona that the man had had two five-pound notes already.

"Oh, well," said Lord Strathcona, in his quiet way, "I cannot see him. Give him another five-pound note, and tell him he need not come again. You may add that his father did not drive me to Aberdeen when I went to Canada. As a matter of fact I walked."

Black fox skins were the most valuable pelts in the early days of the Hudson's Bay Company, as they are to-day, and Lord Strathcona's story of his first purchase of a black fox skin is decidedly amusing as well as showing the diplomatic talent he was afterwards to find exercise for in a far greater sphere. He was then quite young, and was stationed at Tadoussac post, at the mouth of the Saguenay. News one day came to his bourgeois, as the officer in charge of a post was called, that a trapper named Dugas had several fine skins, but that for some fancied grievance had announced his intention of not selling them to the company, but of taking them himself to Quebec. The man, a half-breed, was camping about twenty miles away. Mr. Smith was sent to investigate and buy the furs if he could. He was insultingly received, but he was resolved not to lose his temper. Not a word was said about the furs. He assisted the old squaw, whom he addressed as "Madame" Dugas, to boil the pot, and cut firewood. He helped to skin a rabbit, gave the trapper tobacco, retailed news and anecdotes of mutual friends, sympathizing with Dugas in his grievance against the bourgeois, for whose hasty conduct he apologized. But what was even of more potent effect, was a little book of pictures and a couple of sticks of barley sugar which he had thoughtfully slipped into his pocket for the children. These naturally won the heart of the squaw and her children. Still not a word about furs. He rolled himself up in his blanket when night came, and went to rest. Up at dawn he first collected faggots, and then caught some fish for breakfast. The meal over he announced his intention of going farther on a visit to another trapper, and thanked them for the hospitality which he would long remember. "Perhaps," he added, "you will still be here on my way back. If so, we may meet again — who knows?" He then shouldered his pack and was shaking hands, when Dugas, who had been standing by in a fit of sulky astonishment, cried out, "You no want my furs?"

Whereupon Smith said: "What? Monsieur Dugas, you have furs to sell? Ah, that will make Mr. H. sorry, very sorry to think that he should have lost his temper. What a pity!"

"Tenez," said Dugas, and he brought forth from his lodge a bundle of several very fine skins, one of which he threw over his arm, stroking it lovingly. "That is the best fox I ever trapped. This other is nearly as good. I said I would not sell them to the bourgeois, and I won't. You are a young man, and perhaps you do not know the value. In Quebec I would get thirty pounds; but I do not wish to leave my family and go to Quebec. You may have them, and if your bourgeois says they are not worth thirty pounds you may send them back to me. I will not take the money now. Voila," and he pressed the bundle of skins upon the young trader.

The upshot was that he paid the sum of £23, all the money he had on him, and he and Dugas parted the best friends in the world. Dugas even accompanied him to the camp of the other trapper, and insisted on advancing the funds to pay for the latter's small catch out of what he had himself received, the money to be returned at Mr. Smith's convenience. The furs proved to be worth twice what he had paid.

A Cool Soldier.

A French grenadier who was exasperated at some injustice that had been done him by a field marshal pointed his pistol at the marshal and pulled the trigger, but it did not go off. Without moving a muscle the veteran cried, "Four days in the cells for keeping your arms in a bad state!"

A PICTURESQUE LEGEND.

One of the Stories Told About Historic Roumania.

Directly in line with the Austro-German advance into Roumania through the Rothenthurm (Red Tower) Pass is the Wallachian town of Curtea d'Argesh, one of the most interesting places, historically and architecturally, in the whole kingdom. The National Geographic Society of the United States has issued the following bulletin describing the unique village.

Not more than thirty-five miles south-east of Rothenthurm Pass, and twenty miles north-west of Pitesci, on the railroad which connects these two points, is Curtea d'Argesh, one of the oldest towns in Roumania and the second capital of the principality of Wallachia, founded in the nineteenth century.

"When the famous Roumanian chieftain Radu Negru (Radolph the Black) led a band of pioneers over the Transsylvania Alps down toward the Wallachian plains he first established his court at the right bank of the River Argesh, which rises in the Transsylvanian Alps and flows in a south-easterly direction, entering the Danube at Turtukai. Thus was Argesch established and one of Radu's first cares was to build a church on what tradition says was the site of a Roman temple. The beautiful pile of white and gold architecture now know as the cathedral of Curtea d'Argesch and generally recognized as the most impressive ecclesiastical structure in Roumania is supposed to have been raised on the foundations of the earlier church by the Wallachian Prince Negoe, or Neagoe Bassarao, during the first half of the sixteenth century.

"Roumanian history is highly colored with legends, and one of the most picturesque traditions handed down from generation to generation is that which concerns the erection of this cathedral. Prince Negoes, so goes the story, was a prisoner in Constantinople during his early manhood, and during that period was commissioned by the sultan to build a mosque. When the work was completed Negoes persuaded the pleased potentiate to give him (the architect) the material which was left over. This was sent to Curtea d'Argesch, and when the prince finally returned to his native land he employed Manole, an architect, to erect a cathedral under his personal direct supervision. Thus a Byzantine-looking structure with certain Moorish embellishments began to take form, but the work proceeded too slowly to satisfy the prince, and Manole was ordered to hasten operations. The later, fearing for his life if the building were not soon completed, yet handicapped by a series of mishaps to the walls, was finally prevailed upon to listen to the superstitious advice of some of his associates — that the church walls would never stand until a living woman had been placed inside to support them.

"Who should be the victim? It was finally agreed between the architect and the masons that the first woman arriving at the church the next day with food for her husband should be sacrificed. All agreed to keep secret the method of choice, but Manole alone kept his word. The other wives, being warned, stayed away from the building the next day, but Utza, Manole's devoted helpmate, appeared as usual. With his own hands Manole placed Utza in a crevice and immured her.

"The walls fell no more after that, and the cathedral was soon completed. But the arrogant workmen were so boastful of their achievement that the prince, in disgust, had all the scaffolding of the church removed while the masons and the architects were putting the finishing touches to the roof. Thus, all the builders fell to death—all save Manole, who one day approached the parapet and, hearing his beloved wife calling him, fell to the pavement and died. A fountain, named for him, commemorates the place where he was killed.

Thus was the cathedral with its two large domed towers, and its two smaller cupolas with their curious diagonal windows, completed. Since that time several monarchs have embellished it. Just thirty years ago, it was repaired by Lecomte du Nouy, a French architect. After his work was finished, King Carol and Queen Elizabeth (Carmen Sylva) were among those who participated in the service of consecration."

The Manchurian Fatalist.

In the early fall in Manchuria, the natives undergo a sort of magic change from farmer to bandit. It seems something of a psychological somersault—one day a plodding farmer, the next a highwayman. After the tall kaoliang, or giant millet, is cut, and escape is not so easy over the bare plains, another clap of the hands and lo, a peaceful farmer once more! It is not only the farmer who plays this exciting game; many another staid member of the community has his little fling. Some even combine their roles, differentiating according to the seasons. With the Oriental's disregard to conditions a man is often bandit, merchant, and magistrate all at once.—Alice Tisdale, in the December Atlantic.

A Premium on Marriage.

In Belgium they place a premium on marriage by allowing a married man two votes at an election as against the single man's one. In Madagascar one must be a father or pay for the default. If a man is unmarried or childless at the age of twenty-five he must contribute annually $3.75 to the support of the state, and each woman who has remained single or is childless at twenty-four is taxed $1.80 per year.

A "Friendly Match."

I speak of a "friendly match," not at all forgetting that dictum of the old Scot to whom his opponent, breaking some trivial rule, said, "I suppose you won't claim that in a friendly match?" "Friendly match!" was the reply. "There's no such thing at golf!"—London Telegraph.

THE GROWTH OF PARTY.

Story of Origin of Terms "Tory" and "Whig."

When Mr. Austen Chamberlain, writing to the president of the West Birmingham Unionist Association, reiterated the view that party politics must for the present be suspended, he touched upon a question which, in the United Kingdom, as in other countries, is steadily growing in moment day by day. Many men in many countries are inclined to reconsider the whole question of party government; to examine into its origin, and to try to discover how much or how little of it has any just place in the economy of nations.

England is, of course, the home of party government. When the little band of horse drovers from Galloway, styled in Scotland "Whiggamores," marched to Edinburgh after the defeat of the Duke of Hamilton in 1648, filled full of opposition to the King and the court party, they little thought they were helping so much to make history. Neither had the Irish brigands of the Elizabethan wars, known to the men of Hugh O'Neil as Tories, any such ideas. Yet they gave their names to the two great parties which to-day, though changed past all recognition, still dominate the political life of the United Kingdom.

It was during the last quarter of the Seventeenth Century that the two names were first heard as political titles. The country was seething with intrigue. The bitter debate on the Exclusion Bill, the bill which aimed at barring James, Duke of York, from the throne, was at its height. Sir Titus Oates was earnestly perjuring himself to establish the actuality of the famous plot which has come to be called by his name, and the Earl of Shaftesbury was gathering in a host of petitions from all over the country urging that the papist, James, Duke of York, the King's brother, should be excluded from succession to the throne, and the Duke of Monmouth proclaimed heir in his place. Shaftesbury's petitions were answered by thousands of counter-petitions expressing "abhorrence" of any such action. And so the country came to be divided into two great factions—the "petitioners" and the "abhorrers." Later, some wag on the other side, recalling the march of the Whiggamores and their loud outcry against the "King and court," dubbed the "petitioners" "Whigs." The petitioners, on their part, remembering the Irish brigand of the Elizabethan wars, the man who was professedly a loyalist, but really preyed on all parties, and they retorted by dubbing the "abhorrers" "Tories." Of course the party system had its beginning far anterior to this. Whig and Tory were, in fact, but the lineal descendants of Roundhead and Cavalier. By the time, however, that William and Mary were seated on the throne, Whig and Tory, as party names, had become well-established facts. Both parties were in favor of government by King and Parliament; but the Tories thought much of the divine right of the King; whilst the Whigs were much more inclined to look upon him as an official. The Tories, moreover, were stout supporters of the established church; while the Whigs, through themselves churchmen, were ever inclined toward the Nonconformists, and, from the Tory point of view, had many dangerous leanings in that direction. Members of both parties were to be found in all ranks of society. Whig and Tory were never class distinctions.

The division persisted long after the cause of it had been forgotten, and in many, if not most of their original aims and objects, the two parties have exchanged places. In the days of William and Mary the Tories reckoned themselves the true representatives of popular rights and of natural and national interests; whilst the Whigs were the great foreign expansionists, the party, in fact, of adventure. It is curious to note, to-day, that whilst the word "Tory" is as frequently used as ever, the term "Whig" is seldom heard. The word "Tory," it is true, is generally used by the Liberal when speaking of a Conservative, and it carries with it a "note of fine contempt." The Conservative, to-day, however, does not retort with "Whig," but with "Radical."

What Did She Mean?

A bishop had occasion to preach in one of the smaller southern cities, and as soon as the service was over many people went to him to express their appreciation of the sermon. One woman in particular was most outspoken in its praise. "Why, bishop," she said, "you can never know what your sermon meant to me. It was just like water to a drowning man!"

A NOTICE, bearing aldermanic sanction, recently appeared in the local press regulating the hours during which boys may play hockey on the three public skating rinks. It should be observed in passing that these rinks in the North, West and South Wards respectively have attracted crowds of young people, whose enthusiasm for the ice wanes only with the winter. The rinks were scarcely completed before the small boy appeared with his hockey stick, and rapidly grew to such numbers that his game monopolized the rinks. Skaters were crowded into the corners, and the little tots of boys and girls who were struggling in their first uncertain strokes were crowded to the side lines, unwilling and envious spectators.

This was the condition that lead to the announcement that hockey would be permitted only during specified hours. The change this notice was designed to effect must have become known to the boys who attend these rinks, but recent observations have failed to discover any abatement of the hockey nuisance during the hours set apart for skating. The hockey stick is as prevalent and discommoding as ever, and in the evenings, on one rink at least, a tin can serves as a puck. Moreover, to the number of these boys on skates is usually added a group who slide around on their boots and chase the old tomato can with no more pleasure to themselves than the roadway would afford. It should be remembered that the night crowds include many older boys and girls, who apparently are employed in factories and shops during the day. For them there should be special consideration, in view of the fact that the evening provides their only leisure.

When Silence is Golden

If that announcement meant anything it bore a message to the offending boys that they must be unselfish in their play, that they must consider the rights and comforts of others, and if the regulation were made effective it would form a primary lesson in good citizenship to these youngsters in their most impressionable years. But if it is merely another rule that may be broken at will, then the announcement has done, or will have the effect of doing, more harm than good. For it condemned an evil which, in its immediate lapse, it condoned. Better a thousand times that the notice had not been published and the nuisance silently tolerated. For the boys perceive that they can scorn such regulations which, to them, have all the sanction of a by-law. The seed of disrespect for the rights of others, if not for lawful authority, becomes implanted in their minds, and the last state is far worse than the first. This is a perfectly obvious outcome of the neglect to demand ordinary discipline and respect for certain regulations, and youth will undoubtedly develop a disregard, even a contempt, for other laws regulating their public privileges as they grow older. In the home the parent is advised not to give an order to his child unless he requires obedience. Silence were a thousand times less destructive to good training. And this applies with equal force to the community in the direction of its youth in the ways that lead to good citizenship. The conduct of young folks at play emphasizes the scope of wise supervision, a recent innovation of which some persons affect a lofty disapproval.

It is true, perhaps, that in a particular phase the subject is of minor importance, but every day brings new declarations that the men of to-morrow must be assets to citizenship. To that end surely the boys of to-day should be trained to consider the rights of others, to respect the laws of the community and to be amenable to the discipline thereby demanded.

As Others See Us

To substantiate the case thus outlined, examples are not confined to the skating rinks. They are, unhappily, innumerable and discouraging. There is well-known contempt of signs forbidding trespass on public parks. Too frequently the public ironically accept them as invitations to trespass. Mr. Jas. Rose, caretaker of Jackson Park, once related an incident that bears upon this attitude. While making the rounds of the park in the days when war seemed a remote possibility, he was approached by a stranger, whose speech immediately disclosed his German descent. "In my home," he said, "no one would be guilty of cutting down saplings or of disfiguring trees in a public park. The boys are taught to protect the trees and to properly use such places." The bridge of Japanese design was a scrawl of letters cut into the wood. Some were freshly made initials, others were less conspicuous under a treatment of paint. The defacement provided a glaring reproach to the ideals of the people for whose pleasure it was generously given. These scrawling initials became the stamp of gross natures that must have been devoid of the least appreciation of the beauty of the park. Certainly the disfigurement betrayed an utter lack of trusteeship and of regard for public property. In other days the German visitor's criticism might have been accepted with approval, but since August, 1914, the word "verboten" has acquired a sinister significance. The Teuton taint, however, cannot minimize the relevance of that indictment, its force and the conditions that warranted it.

Examples of Failure

And now to bring the subject nearer home, illustrating the final effects of the disregard the hockey regulations for public rinks are bound to breed. Last year's Council inaugurated a system for the regular collection of night soil. Briefly, the system in its original form failed utterly. The citizens for whom it was planned refused to comply with its requirements, and the Council countenanced and condoned the violations until the by-law was presently a dead letter.

The garbage collecting system is retarded by citizens who, like the boys with the hockey sticks, choose to be a law unto themselves. Their idea of citizenship is scarcely above the boys' conception of rights of the non-hockey players. The respective attitudes toward the civic regulations are certainly on par. Other examples are scarcely necessary. If they were, further evidence could easily be obtained from the city's dead by-laws. Last Monday night the Council passed its two-thousandth by-law, and a search in the archives would surely reveal innumerable regulations that were made to be flouted. By-laws of the character of that intended to prohibit spitting on the sidewalk might be cited probably by the score. They may have been sporadically enforced, but their total effect has gradually developed the popular notion expressed in the cynicism "laws were made only to be broken."

Finally, when it is declared that the small boys' hockey during restricted hours is only a trivial matter to be condoned after being condemned, it must be urged that if there was no intention to discipline the boys it should not have been expressed. But the announcement having been made, and very properly too, the boys should have received their first lesson in the obligations of citizenship. For "the boy is father of the man."

Citizenship, therefore, is a most essential factor in a community's life and progress. It must be estimated at its real value, and cultivated as an end in itself and as a means to that greater end to which the City and the City Fathers are avowedly striving — to make Peterborough a bigger and, particularly, a better place to live in.

NEW YORK, February 10.—Work began to-day aboard United States monitor Amphytryte, in Brooklyn Navy Yard, and two miles of heavy steel netting. In case of danger from submarines in time of war, this netting will be stretched across the entrance to New York Harbour from Sandy Hook to Rockaway Point.

It is claimed the netting is able to resist any submarine.

87,318,096 Canadian Hens Give Day's Eggs To Great Britain

Over seven million dozen eggs were exported from Canada to Great Britain last year, about twice the quantity exported two years ago, before the war. The official figures were given at the Canadian Produce Association convention in Montreal by Mr. H. R. Gray, of the Gunn Langlois and Company, of Montreal, as follows:

	Dozens	Valued at
1914 ...	4,310,979	$1,060,023
1915 ...	9,203,064	2,206,284
1916 ...	7,276,508	2,459,619

The Montreal Board of Trade quotes the following export of eggs from the port of Montreal:—1914, 118,339 cases of eggs; 1915, 284,698 cases of eggs; 1916, 875,725 cases of eggs.

PRODUCTION IS INCREASING

Mr. Gray told the convention that the production of eggs in Canada is steadily increasing. Of late years this has been more noticeable in Prince Edward Island, the Middle West, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta where the farmer is gradually finding out that mixed farming, which has been so beneficial to the older provinces, is also of great financial benefit to him. Only a few years ago, Ontario was shipping car loads of eggs to the West, but to-day this condition has been reversed.

Mr. Gray said that the British market would look to Canada for its supply of eggs. The American egg had been a keen competitor, he said, but owing to its superior quality and the quality of its casing, it had more than held its own. He thought that the Canadian and the American eggs should always be marked differently, because he said: "We have something to be proud of in our Canadian product, and it is only fair that we should protect ourselves against inferior eggs that may be shipped to other countries.

EGGS IN STORAGE.

He thought, too, that statistics should be obtained regarding the number of eggs held in cold storage at such places as Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and other cities, in order that they would be able to guage what supply there was to meet the export demand. He considered there was in Canada an excellent opportunity for the development of the poultry business and he said the average Canadian farmer was wide awake to it.

Ald. P. W. McLagan of the firm of Lovell and Christmas, read a paper on "System of Weighing and Inspection of Butter, and the Necesaity of a 'Weigh Master Appointed in Winnipeg and Toronto." He pointed out that as most of the provinces, parlaready grades for butter well established, all the other provinces should grade butter on the same principle. Something ought to be done too, regarding weights and he thought that inspectors of weights should be appointed. The advantage would be that when a person purchased butter they would get a certificate from an impartial person to say that the purchaser was getting what he paid for.

SUSPENSION OF GRAND JURY.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Government will introduce a bill in the House of Commons on Monday for suspension of grand juries during the remainder of the war.

COUNCIL TRANSFERS CITY'S ACCOUNT TO BANK OF TORONTO

By Resolution Carried at Last Night's Meeting, by Vote of 6 to 4—Takes Effect on March 1st

FROM BANK OF MONTREAL

By a vote of six to four, the Council last night decided to transfer on March 1st the city's account from the Bank of Montreal to the Bank of Toronto. A motion to that effect was moved by Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald Saunders, and was supported by Aldermen McIntyre, Saunders, Stratton, Duncan, Weir and Taylor. Those who opposed the change were Aldermen Smith, Worth, Langford and Dobbin.

Towards the close of 1916, tenders were called for the citys banking business and among those responding were the Banks of Montreal and Toronto. When the question was presented to the Council in the Finance committee's recommendation that the tendrs of the Bank of Toronto be accepted the resulting vote was tie as follows:

Aye—Aldermen Saunders, Stratton, Duncan, Weir and McIntyre.

Nay— Aldermen Evans, Dobbin, Langford and Mayor Duffus.

On that occasion Ald. Edgar made the plea that there was practically little difference in the two tenders, and recalling the assistance rendered by the Bank of Montreal which, Ald. Edgar stated, had loaned Peterborough $100,000 when it was sorely needed after the Bank of Toronto's refusal, for these reasons the business should not be transferred.

Little Discussion.

Last night there was little or no discussion of the proposal.

Ald. Weir said he had followed the former discussion in the press, and felt that the transfer should not be made.

Ald. Smith saw no appreciable difference in the two tenders. He was mindful of the fact that the Bank of Montreal had helped the city, and it would be a wrong policy to go back on the bank that had formerly helped the city out.

Replying to Ald. Worth, Ald. Stratton stated that the city's overdraft ranged from $40,000 to $100,000 between the months of January and October. In October and November the city had a credit balance.

Ald. Smith moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Worth, that no action be taken, but the amendment was defeated, 6-4, and the motion carried.

The offers of the two banks before the Council were identical as far as interest rates were concerned—5 1-2 p.c. on overdrafts and 3 1-2 p.c. on credit balances.

Rev. C. T. Scott In George Street

The Rev. C. T. Scott, D.D., who will occupy the pulpit of George St. Methodist Church to-morrow, is a well known figure in the Methodist Ministry. Last year the Rev. B. Lanceley, of Toronto, was the anniversary preacher. Rev. R. G. Peever goes to Belleville to conduct anniversary services in Bridge Street Church.

One Instance of Value of National Service

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., February 10.—The practical value in one instance of man-power inventory recently completed by the National Service Board is already being demonstrated in its usefulness.

Sir Henry Drayton, K.C., chairman of the Railway Commission, has now requisitioned several hundred men of skilled trades through the National Service board. The organization of the National Service Board is such, that within twenty-four hours of the receipt of the call, the names of hundreds of men, capable of solving the situation, were in the hands of the Railway Commission.

There will be no church parade for the 247th Battalion to-morrow.

Capt. Belton and Lieut. Latimer, with the aid of the 247th Battalion Band, are carrying on a recruiting campaign in Port Hope.

Major O'Flynn, of the 247th Battalion and manager of the 247th Hockey team, left to-day for Belleville, where on Monday he will join the ranks of the Benedicts.

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., Feb. 10 —Private John Jones, 38, single, of the frontier force whose home is in Brantford Ont., was killed almost instantly this morning, when Instructor Joseph Frost, thinking he had inserted blank ammunition, pulled the trigger of a machine gun. Rigid enquiry has been ordered.

Mrs. Watkins, of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club, has received the following letter from Pte. Fred Casson, who is a prisoner in Germany:

Dear Mrs. Watkins, — Just a few lines to let you know I received your parcel safely and appreciate your kindness very much. It is a great help to us and we are glad to know that the people at home have not forgotten us. I have been a prisoner a little over six months and am getting tired of it. There are several Peterborough boys prisoners, but we all expect to be home soon as I am of the opinion that the war is near a finish. I am not allowed to tell you what I would like to but you will find out later on. Thanking you very much I remain,

PTE. FRED CASSON.

MR. J. A. McKONE WILL GIVE AN ADDRESS TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

Mr. J. A. McKone, Principal of Peterborough Business College will address the Y.M.C.A. men's meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock. Every man and older boy is invited.

The monthly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors will be held on Tuesday evening with supper at 6.30 o'clock. It is important that every member be present as officers for the ensuing year are to be elected.

The Senior Collegiate Club had a social evening last night in place of the regular session. Members and friends of the club, including the ladies, attended to the number of about ninety and spent the fore part of the evening in skating and snow-shoeing, returning to the Y.M.C.A. at 10 o'clock for lunch and a social hour in the gymnasium. This is thought to be one of the most successful social events of the season and will serve as a great stimulus to the Association work among Collegiate members.

Attended Session.

Messrs. J. E. Smith and C. N. Meserve attended the session of the Y. M.C.A. National Council on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. This proved to be one of the most important sessions of the Council ever held. The increasing work of the Y.M.C.A. among soldiers made it necessary to adopt a budget for the ensuing year of about three quarters of a million dollars. The great problem that will face the Association after the war was one of the most important items up for consideration. The Russian prisoners, many of whom are princes and members of the leading families of Russia, who are now being served by the Y.M.C.A. in German prison camps will return home demanding an extension of Y.M.C.A. effort throughout the Russian Empire. Twenty-five leading College men are devoting their full time to work among the Indian troops who are in France and it is expected that these Indians will be so impressed by the Y.M.C.A. idea that the Association movement in India will assume proportions hitherto undreamt of. "Foreign fields are ripe" bidding for Y.M.C.A. work as never before, so the Association may rightly say, after the war, that its field is the world. The responsibility for this great extension effort on the part of the Y.M.C.A. rests upon the North American Association as even the Mother Country is appealing to our Associations for aid in placing her Y. M.C.A. work on a more permanent and progressive basis.

A Problem.

The problem to be faced by our City Associations after the war is to serve returned soldiers and immigrants who are sure to come to Canada. Mr. Bishop, the General Secretary of the National Council, stated that it was expected that every Association in Canada this year would be obliged to do two years' work in twelve months, keeping up its regular programme and equipping itself for the special programme, to serve men returning from the front, which will doubtless be launched within a year.

Friends of the Association movement are requested to give their hearty support in 1917 for this is really the crucial year in the history of the Association and the Association leaders trust that the Y.M.C.A. will meet the test.

LUSITANIA CLAIMS FILED $5,000,000 AND ARE CLOSED

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—By a ruling of Federal Judge Mayer, the filing of damage claims against the Cunard Steamship Company, over the sinking of the Lusitania, has been closed. Exceptions were made in two cases where delay in putting the matters before the court was unavoidable.

Claimants were previously ordered to appear before Commissioner Alexander Gilchrist, Jr., on or before December 26 last. The total claims filed exceed $5,000,000, while the liability of the company may be limited to $100,000, the value of the freight and passage money of the ill-fated vessel.

HAS COAL SENT BY EXPRESS

TORONTO MAN SENT A RUSH ORDER TO KINGSTON.

KINGSTON, Feb. 9.—"For God's sake, send me a ton of coal," wired a resident of Toronto to a local coal dealer. He asked that the coal be sent to him immediately, by express. The local dealer complied with his wish, and the Toronto man, in addition to paying $8.25 for the ton of coal, was called upon to cover $10 express charges, so he had to pay dearly for his ton of coal.

KEEPING ALIVE THE MARTIAL SPIRIT IN THE UNITED STATES

That is the Hope and Desire of the American Administration at the Close of One Week of Broken Relations With Germany—Naval Preparedness.

GOVERNMENT FEARS WAR

(By Carl D. Groat)

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.— The Administration, fearing that ultimately war or 'a state of war' with Germany must come, is anxious to keep alive the martial spirit in America.

It wishes to guard against the sapping influences of an undue sense of security. On the other hand, there is no manifest move to raise an army for actual warfare, though there has been some progress made toward naval and economic preparedness.

This epitomizes the government position to-day at the close of one week of broken relations between the United States and Germany.

It finds much of neutral shipping ordinarily plying the Atlantic shivering in home ports; Germany has slain ship travellers in an apparently indiscriminate sea war, and shipping has been destroyed at the rate of about three quarters of a million tons monthly.

The President himself has determined to follow the literal wording of his recent speech to Congress—to ask only for means of protecting American seamen's and people's lives. He will heap upon Germany the burden of an actual declaration of war.

SURPRISED RELIEF AND DELIGHT AT WILSON'S ATTITUDE

Never Since the War Started Has Optimism Been So Rampant Among the Allies as To-day--How the News Was Received in England

A PROFOUND INFLUENCE

By T. P. O'Connor

Copyright, 1917, Central News.

(By T. P. O'Connor.)

LONDON, Feb. 10.—It is impossible to exaggerate the thrill of surprised relief and delight with which all here, especially those who love America most, received the news that America had broken with Germany and had joined hands with civilized nations in the enterprise of breaking forever the savage reign of militarism.

This impression was greatly encouraged and strengthened by cable extracts from American speeches and newspapers with their unbroken chorus of rallying American opinion behind the President, including even the hyphenates whose American patriotism so easily conquered old racial affiliations.

Never since the war started has optimism been so rampant among the allies as to-day and in addition there is the growing opinion that they will defeat the Germans on the western front and news that each day brings near the approach of actual famine in Germany. On top of all this comes the entrance of America, which is felt to be the coup de grace. The chief anxiety is whether Germany will withdraw her bluff and avoid war with America or rush with mad-dog fury into an encounter with the last and most formidable enemy.

Up to the moment that war is declared the British people here will restrain any demonstrative expression of their feelings, but if that dread eventually comes, there will be a national outburst here which may bring the American and British people nearer than at any moment since the rupture in the eighteenth century. All the Americans in London are enthused, though as the cables say of the people in America they meet the situation with a calmness and self control worthy of so great an occasion.

The Parliamentary session is likely to be interesting and perhaps exciting. Ireland will soon again claim the attention of politicians of all parties. The Roscommon election was one of those ridiculous paradoxes which is possible in every democracy. Sir Horace Plunkett, who stood as an extremist opponent of the constitutional party, was doing his duty as a government official while his unhappy but brave sons were in the post office or in one case dying in a gaol yard, is known to have constantly applied to John Redmond for official promotion to a better office with higher pay. The people gave the father their votes not for himself, but in pity and sympathy for his children.

Have Joined Forces.

Every factionist and every secret enemy of Home Rule, are masking as super-patriots and all factionist newspapers have joined forces. These are not the chief factor but sympathy and pity. This means that Ireland still hotly resents the savage executions and instead of soothing her exasperation, Dublin Castle with characteristic stupidity aggravated it petty acts of tyranny. These things will have to be brought up in the House of Commons. They may force a re-opening of the Irish settlement. The entrance of America into the arena also has exerted a profound influence upon the Irish as well as the military situation. Thus everything points to a session of Parliament fraught with possible momentous new developments.

Kitchener League Will Hold Dance

On Wednesday evening next the Canadian Kitchener League will hold a dance at the Oriental Hotel for the benefit of the boys overseas. The dance will be very informal and should have a large support.

The Cherniavski Trio

One of the brilliant concerts of the season was the recital given by the Cherniavski Trio at Massey Hall on January 12th. They won a greater artistic triumph than even that achieved on the occasion of their first visit. They proved their mastery of ensemble playing in the trio for piano, violin and 'cello by the Russian composer Arensky, a work distinguished by spirit, feeling and fancy. The violinist, Leo, gave Ernst's extremely difficult Concerto in F sharp minor, revealing dazzling execution and an elastic, warm singing tone. The pianist, Jan, an exceptionally gifted and finely trained player, contributed Chopin's Nocturne in E major, Prelude No. 24 and Scherzo in B flat minor. The Nocturne was beautifully rendered while the two other numbers were feats of virtuosity. Mischel, the 'cellist, played the Saint-Saens Concerto in A minor with skill and technique, and refinement of tone and style. The highly satisfactory accompanist was Alex. Czerny. Retalls and extra numbers were numerous.

"Musical Canada"

These three brilliant artistes will appear in Peterborough on Monday evening in the Conservatory Hall. If at 8 o'clock there are any spare seats, rush seats will be sold at the door for 75c.

Tickets one dollar, from Studio of Music, 207 Brock Street, and Heintzman's Music Store, George Street.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, FEB. 10, 1917

A REAL EYE-WITNESS.

Heretofore Canadians have had to depend for chronicles of the splendid work of Canadian soldiers at the front, upon what are comparatively outsiders, and upon second-hand, warmed-over reports by a so-called Canadian "eye-witness," who witnessed things through other eyes. The remedy for this undesirable state of affairs is now provided. After strong representations, Canadian newspapers have secured the appointment of a real, live newspaper man at the front—in the thick of it. Mr. Stewart Lyon, managing editor of the Globe, has been selected by the Canadian Press as their representative. The choice is a good one. Mr. Lyon has the needed qualifications largely developed. He has the Scotch-Canadian grit; he has the trained vision that sees the news value of the situation, and the literary skill to effectively express what he sees. With a real eye-witness, with our Canadian boys at the front, we shall be kept better informed on to what they are doing, and how they do it, for they do do it.

STRICTLY PARTIZAN.

The Toronto Telegram remarks that since Parliament has adjourned, "the nation will have a surcease of wood pile talk supplied by Hon. G. P. Graham, E. M. McDonald, Sir Sam Hughes & Co." Here the cloven foot of partisanship sticks out. Are these men—amongst the cleverest debaters in Parliament and amongst the most high minded—to be singled out for opprobrious reproof, simply because they are critics of the Government? Are there no "wood pile" orators among the government members? How would the Telegram class Hon. Robert Rogers? In a cowardly way he abuses the privileges of Parliament by abusing a judge whom he appointed, and is as good a Conservative as himself—he couldn't be worse—because that judge refused to believe him on oath, and convicted him of gratuitously raising the figures of a tender for a public building, in order that campaign funds for his party might be forthcoming; and, as a matter of fact, they were forthcoming. It is purblind partisanship that sees only good in its own party, and all bad in the other party, that compasses the most of the rascality, and bad government and misuse of power that obtain in this country.

OF THE RIGHT STUFF.

There are complaints that there are large numbers of Canadian officers of high rank in England for whom there is no command, and who are consequently idle, drawing big pay, and doing nothing but contribute to spending the twenty millions a day the war costs Canada. Perhaps the fact that they are idle, owing to their commands being divided into drafts, is unavoidable. They can, however, be doing service if they like. Lt.-Col. Greer, of the Sportsmen's Battalion, Toronto, now in training in England, is the first high officer to set the example of surrendering rank in order to get to the fighting line. He has volunteered to go in command of a company, instead of a battalion. He shows that he is of the right stuff; and many other officers, if they were of the right stuff, and were of eligible age, might even take their place in the ranks, as others have done, in order to do their bit. In so doing they would only be doing what thousands of other Canadians, their equals in social position, and in peace accustomed to as comfortable lives, are doing by serving in the ranks. The situation is too serious, in all respects, to justify retention in ineffective, idleness, of the expensive luxury of military lay figures—frame-work for uniforms, and little else.

LOST

AN OLD MONKEY MUFF AND SKATE was taken by mistake Tuesday night from the Jackson Park rest room. Will the party who has same communicate with Neill's Shoe Store and receive their own.

TAKE THE BULL BY THE HORNS

"Taking the bull by the horns" is a strong, direct, and generally effective way of doing things; and it seems that something like this will have to be done in regard to the coal situation in which the traffic trouble is a large, if not sole, factor. Mayor Duffus told of having written and wired Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Railway Commission, asking his influence to help deal helpfully with the traffic shortage. (This was an obviously good thing to do, and probably many other mayors did the same thing. But this activity has, it seems, not brought the desired results.

"The city of Kitchener tried to do more—to take the bull by the horns. One day this week the City Council sent a committee to—the sore spot—to the coal and freight yards across and at the border, to find at first hand what was the matter, to find out why cars loaded with coal that had been on the way for more than a month, had not arrived. They would find out reasons and perhaps substantially stimulate yard masters to cut out cars in which they were interested, and send them forward.

If this action has no effect then it does not seem anything else will do. Kitchener is living up to the spirit of the old motto—"if you want your business done, do it; if not send—or write or wire." They apparently took the directest way, the business-like way to solve the coal shortage problem, which is serious enough now and threatens to become more so, and demands the directest kind of action.

SACRIFICE SHOULD BE SHARED.

The Ottawa Press-Journal, Conservative, and therefore strongly in favour of the policy of Protection, is not hide-bound in one matter at least. While it may believe that the exclusion of foreign-made products is a benefit to home industries, it is patriotic enough to concede that the public interest overrates partisan or even party advantage through exacting the pound of flesh. It believes in the rule, but evidently believes that there are, or should be, exceptions, if not to every rule, at least to one rule—the exclusion of oleomargarine from Canada. Upon this point the Journal-Press, under the heading, "Good Food Blocked," says:

Two Quebec firms have each been fined $200 for selling oleomargarine. They are J. B. Renaud & Co., of Quebec, and Omer Carrier, of Levis, and we think they deserve to be advertised free, for although they broke the law which prohibits the sale of margarine in Canada, it is possible that their offence may help to the abrogation of a statute which is at present a moral wrong. Surely the prohibition of a cheap and wholesome food to the people of Canada at a time when all food is high-priced, is not justifiable. The Dominion Government should suspend such a statute. The prohibition of margarine is a thing which has as an excuse nothing except the interest of dairy farmers. Promotion of the interest of dairy farmers by the Government, as of that or any other class of the people, is an excellent thing up to a point where wrong to the whole country palpably outweighs the special class interest. This is clearly the case as regards present prohibition of oleomargarine in the interests of dairy farmers. The dairy farmers of Canada are not limited to butter making. They have various avenues of prosperity open to them, particularly at present. Blocking a good and cheap food from the Canadian people in war time in order to enhance the profits from butter making of a single occupation in which butter-making is only one string to a profitable bow, is a thing which should not continue.

The Journal-Press puts the case very moderately, and shows true patriotism in basing its demand upon the idea of promoting the interests and welfare of the people as a whole, especially people of small income, whose means will not permit them to buy butter at 50 cents a pound, and have to eat dry bread. It is probable that the importation of margarine would lead to its being bought only by those who will, if the price continues to rise, not buy butter at all. Though margarine is a clean, wholesome article of food it is not butter; and people who can afford to buy butter, will continue to buy butter, though margarine should be available at a considerably lower price.

Nobody, it is hoped, wants to be unreasonable in this matter, and it is not too much to ask the dairy interests to take a reasonable view of the situation. It is only reasonable to ask consideration of the extraordinary conditions. Food prices are oppressively high, and any government action that would relieve the pressure, if only at one or two points, would be welcomed by many. The admission of many articles now on the taxable list, free of duty, would be a measure of relief. War conditions force the government and people to courses that are not in accord with government policy, nor national sentiment. For the first time in our history we have direct taxation, provincially imposed; and the conditions justify it; the people more or less willingly submit to it as one of the sacrifices necessary in view of the war situation, and the extraordinary demands it creates. The people generally do not escape sacrifices, and it does not seem unreasonable that certain interests can claim exemption from the duty of sharing the sacrifices that all others are constrained to make.

ONLY ONE WAY.

In the absence of conscription a species of moral compulsion is to be resorted to in this city by the soldiers' wives and other dependents with a view to reaching the slackers and in this connection a street parade is announced for Saturday next. The women are to be commended for their zeal but the prospect of success crowning their efforts is not very bright. The men who are now holding back are not to be shamed or cowed into doing their duty.—Brantford Expositor.

THE BLOCKADE OF GERMANY.

With Germany trying her best to isolate Great Britain from the rest of the world, it is a source of gratification to get repeated evidence of the effect of the Allied blockade on Germany. Thus Dr. Lentze, the Prussian Minister of Finance, in a speech before the Prussian Diet last month, is reported in the Dutch paper as saying: "The blockade is making itself felt more and more, and it cannot be denied that it lies heavily on the country, and yet it must be put up with. The interference with the private affairs of civilians and the difficulties connected with the supply of foodstuffs and the high cost of living are certainly very great. Many a man with a small income, who, perhaps, has a large family, has certainly great and grievous hardships, but what does the welfare of single individuals matter as compared with the future of our whole people?" Coming from the spokesman of that portion of the German Empire which direct the whole Germany policy, this admission is an exceedingly significant one. Also it must have made the German people wonder what the Kaiser meant when he told them, after the battle of Jutland, that the British fleet had been defeated, pulverized, and driven from the seas.—Montreal Herald.

The History of the Spanish Armada Will Repeat Itself in Submarine Peril of To-day

Britain loses in one day of submarine warfare twice the 31,985 tonnage of the 191 ships that met the Spanish Armada. Britain lost in the Battle of Jutland almost one-third as many seamen as the 17,472 sailors who delivered the world from the peril of the Spanish Armada. Britain has mustered 5,000,000 men in arms for Liberty in 1917, and brought these men to the service of the same good old cause for whose defence England raised 50,000 trained men and 50,000 untrained men to beat back the Spaniards in the Armada year of 1588.

* * *

Spain, with the Spanish Armada, and the Spanish Inquisition, was a less dangerous foe to human liberty than Germany. The organized scientific deviltry of Germany would hold the human race in shackles for centuries if Freedom's could be dethroned in the source and centre of Freedom's power—THE BRITISH ISLES.

* * *

These are the most terrible days of the most terrible war in history. The days are terrible, not in slaughter, because Canada has mourned, and Canada will mourn bloodier battle days. The days are terrible in their significance, because the next few weeks must decide whether the British navy can crush the German submarine campaign or the German submarine campaign can crush the British Isles.

* * *

The hills of the British Isles are not bright with the fire of beacons that blaze their warning against the German peril of 1917, more terrible than the Spanish peril of 1588. The darkness of these nights in the Old Land is not a darkness of fear. The God of Liberty is abroad on the waters in 1917 as the God of Liberty was abroad on the waters in 1588. The soul of Elisabethan England put its confidence in the ships and sailors that overcame the Spanish peril. Today the soul of all the British nations can put its earthly trust nowhere else than in the sailors and ships that go to victory or death in the work that will overcome the submarine peril. The prayer of the millions of free people who plead with the God of Liberty to bless the ships and the men employed in the defence of Liberty cannot be phrased in nobler words than these words from the prayers in which Elisabethan England pleaded at the altars of her faith in the time of the Armada:

* * *

Let Thine enemies know and make them confess that Thou hast received England unto Thine own protection. Set, we pray Thee, O Lord, a wall about it, and evermore mightily defend it. Let it be a comfort to the afflicted, a help to the oppressed. And, forasmuch as Thy cause is now in hand, we beseech Thee to direct, and go before our armies both by sea and land. Bless and prosper them, and grant unto them, O Lord, Thy good and honorable success and victory, as Thou didst to Abraham and his company against the four mighty kings, to Joshua, against the five kings, and against Amalek, and to David against the strong and mighty armed Goliath. We acknowledge all power, strength and victory to come from Thee. Some put their trust in chariots and some in horses, but we will remember Thy name, O Lord, our God. Thou bringest the counsel of the heathen to nought and makest the devices of the people to be of none effect. There is no king that can be saved by the multitude of an host; neither is any mighty man delivered by much strength.

Bless Thou all our forces by sea and land. Grant all her people one heart, one mind and one strength. Give unto all her council and captains wisdom, wariness and courage that they may speedily prevent the devices and valiantly withstand the forces of all our enemies.—Toronto Telegram.

GARBAGE COLLECTION

Difficulty has been caused in the collection of ashes by the receptacles being too large of awkward in shape for handling and by not being strong enough. They should not be of more than two cubic feet capacity or weigh more than 75 pounds when full, and should be sufficiently strong. Neither should they be too small, for this unnecessarily increases the time required in handling and the expense. No other material or refuse shall be mixed with ashes. Table and kitchen waste must be drained and wrapped in paper. All refuse must be placed out for collection before the collector calls.

Householders are asked to carefully observe the regulations, so as to avoid unnecessary trouble for all concerned, and to co-operate to make the work successful.

ALD. LANGFORD IN FOOD FORM ON THE ECONOMY ISSUE

True to his mission of counseling economy, Ald. Langford sounded an alarum to his confreres last night, to keep the lid on expenditures just as tightly as possible. He believed Mayor Duffus was departing from the path he had set out to follow, and his economy plank was becoming so loosened His Worship was in danger of losing sight of it altogether.

"How much is the Police Commission's estimate increased this year?" Ald. Langford asked and added that the citizens wanted to know why the force could not be reduced.. (Hear, hear, from Ald. Stratton).

"We must all help to keep down the rate. If we say it is high on account of the war we may hope to return to 25 mills. But we can't say it. We're not paying out of the rate, but by debentures, and there is no relief in sight. I desire the progress of the city, but we must do all we can to keep the rate down and to get the other spending bodies to fall in line.

Mayor Duffus—"You can't say we have departed from economy. We haven't touched the rate yet. We have no control of the School Board. The Library Board can secure money up to 1-2 a mill on the rate, and they haven't touched that sum yet. The Police Commission has not increased its appropriation yet, so that can't be criticised. The force has been reduced from 13 to 11 men.

Ald. Langford—"Could they not reduce it 4 or 5 more?

Ald. Stratton—"Are they going to increase police salaries as reported?"

Mayor Duffus—"I am only one member of the Police Commission. I generally opposed increases asked last year, but since then everybody has been receiving increased salaries and the police force needs good men. You (Ald. Langford) wouldn't work on the force for $750 a year, would you? These men have to be out at all hours and in all weather. They hold their hands to their ears, on their coats while you are going home. And while we are in bed they are protecting public property.

Ald. Langford replied that he would not object to the police estimate if it were not increased.

Mayor Duffus—Well that clears up that point. I thought you were dealing with increases. The police staff must be large enough to do the work. It was only reasonable to give the men a raise. We are paying only $14,000 where other cities our size pay $20,000.

Ald. Langford—"What I desire to emphasize is that it is easy to raise the tax rate, but it is hard to reduce it.

He moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, who believed it too late that the School Boards and Police Commission be asked to cooperate with the Council in an effort to keep the tax rate as low as possible.

Ald. Stratton—"You should have brought that in earlier.

Ald. McIntyre—"They paid no attention to it last year."

Ald. Smith stated that the Board of Education's demands were about $4,000 higher than last year.

This was occasioned by the opening of new rooms, heavier coal bills, since more heat was required for the additional rooms. Regarding the police force the total cost for eleven men was not as high as it was for 13.

The motion was carried.

Deputation to the Legislature Re Roads

During the approaching session of the Legislature which opens on Feb. 15th, a big deputation from the province will present the question of improved public highways. The annual Good Roads convention will synchronize and Peterborough's representation was left to Mayor Duffus to arrange. This was provided in a resolution moved by Ald. Stratton, seconded by Ald. McIntyre at the Council meeting last night.

Overland

Undoubtedly the Industry's Crowning Achievement

From your point of view this announcement is most important.

For herein we set forth the achievement toward which the Willys-Overland organization has aimed for the last eight years.

This achievement in a word is the completion of the gigantic Willys-Overland organization to a point where a comprehensive line of automobiles can be made and marketed under one head.

This means the elimination of all waste, all lost motion and much greater factory efficiency.

This means an even higher grade of cars at much more attractive prices.

All of which means a substantial saving for you on the next car you buy.

For now and for the first time in the history of the automobile business we as one single organization offer the public a full and comprehensive line of automobiles.

This concentration—this greater efficiency—this more effective means of pulling together is going to set a new standard of low priced high-grade automobile values.

For we operate on the basis of—
—one executive organization
—one factory management
—one purchasing unit
—one sales expense
—one group of dealers
—to plan, produce and sell all Overland, Willys and Willys-Knight models.

Buying power is concentrated. Costs are distributed over all these cars. The savings are enormous.

As a result we are producing cars of exceptional quality—and marketing them at unusually low prices.

The new models are listed in this announcement. They include Overland models from the snappy comfortable $930 Light Four to the beautiful Light Six Sedan at $2220.

They include also the big, handsome Willys-Knights from the Four at $1800, to the super efficient Eight at $2730.

These new models establish price records, value records and performance records which we believe will prove to the public conclusively that the vast economies of vast production are the key note and manufacturing secret of the greatest value for the least amount of money.

A Cathedral City Under Arms

(BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS)

The city is not hustling, but it has lost its historic calm. The aspect of the High Street is military, rather than clerical, the close is invaded with khaki and the blue and grey of hospital uniforms. Men from all corners of the Empire wander along the trim paths, lounge in groups under the elms, stretch themselves on the smooth green turf and stare up at the tallest spire in England.

To the soldier it is very peaceful, not much like war, but to the inhabitants of the cathedral city it is very much like war. Money has poured through the streets in undreamed of streams; and men have gone from it in numbers unthought of. It does not realize the horrors of war, but it has felt its grip and knows what sacrifice means.

During the first few months of preparation, the tumult and disorder in this peaceful corner of England was bewildering, but now the city has regained a little of its lost tranquility.

In the close, walk canons and learned doctors at their leisure; in the town the business of the day goes on unceasingly and the streets are filled with khaki. The ladies of the close continue to worship and cultivate their gardens while their sons and daughters serve their country in more active fields.

Evensong is said, no longer sung in Salisbury Cathedral for during the war there is no choir. Some old clergy and a few men in late middle age answer the 3 o'clock call to prayer, and a few elderly ladies emerge from the beautiful gardens at the same summons.

Through the wide, open door of the west front you see the empty nave with its grey columns and the tombs of great men. The faint sound of distant voices floats out and calls you to the Lady Chapel, where the simple service is held. A boy sits at a harmonious waiting for the moment when he will be called upon to play the hymn which is the one musical effort of the service.

When the prayers are said the congregation strolls away under the elms and cedars. In a far corner of the grounds is a group of Australians—for Australians are here now, not Canadians—with the verger, who is about to guide them through the Cathedral.

He describes the tombs and monuments, careful to emphasize to them their "links with the mother land," and the bronzed young fellows listen with the patience of the very young for the rather old.

The memorials to soldiers and sailors interest them most, and before two which commemorate the deaths of officers fallen in the present war, they showed an added reverence. The torn old colours of the English regiments hanging high among the vaulted arches of the aisles drew their respective gaze and the cloisters round the cedar-shaded graveyard appealed to them very much.

Going into the town you pass many shops, and in the window of one is a notice to say that "soldiers may buy postcards on Sunday." Another tiny shop makes a specialty of cards printed with tender messages and heroic sentiments. To the dashing anzac are offered verses of indescribable sweetness and he seems enchanted.

In a fine old Georgian Hall in the busiest part of the city the soldiers from the neighbouring camps are given tea and music every Sunday. On the walls are portraits of great men and beautiful women who have played their part in the history of the town and neighbourhood. The smoke from hundreds of pipes and cigarettes obscures Puritans, Cavaliers and ladies in court dress.

A cheerful spirit of energy is busy all over the city. The historic inns are occupied by soldiers' families from all over the Empire.

At the station there is a railway servant who is 57. He declares he shall "join up" if it lasts much longer. He has seen the best blood of the Empire go out of this station and will probably see much more.

TROOP TRAIN DERAILED 233RD BATT. ABOARD

"Sweeping along at a fairly good clip towards Winnipeg, a Grand Trunk Pacific train conveying the 233rd Battalion of French-Canadians eastward met disaster shortly after two o'clock yesterday morning, four or five Pullman cars rolling down the embankment. Two men are near death, and nearly forty others are more or less injured. One of the fatally injured men is a coloured porter, who was waiting on the Medical Officer of the battalion, Dr. Russeu, and the doctor is the other one not expected to recover. The injured have been brought to Winnipeg and the track will be cleared within a few hours.

"Lieut.-Col. Leprehon is in command of the battalion. The engine and two cars went safely over the spot where the rail broke but the fourth car shot sideways dragging the remaining four cars along with it down the embankment which at this point is fairly steep.

"When the accident occurred Lieut.-Col. Leprehon was asleep in his berth. He was pitched to the opposite side of the car with such force that for several moments he lay dazed. He was able to climb through a window and directed the work of aiding the injured. There were 300 men on the train, all asleep at the time of the accident.

The Official Report.

At the office of the First Vice-President of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway it was learned that the special train carrying troops from the west was derailed at 1.25 a.m. forty miles west of Winnipeg. The last five cars fell down a steep embankment. The c[illegible] rear [illegible] broken rail. A number of soldiers were badly shaken up and were brought into Winnipeg, where they are being taken care of at the General Hospital. No one was dangerously injured.

All Discharged From Hospital.

Winnipeg, Feb. 9.—At the office of the Vice-President of the Grand Trunk Railway, a report was received from the Chief Medical Officer of the road that all the soldiers injured in the wreck west of Winnipeg had been discharged from hospital. None of the injuries are serious.

H. T. MILLARD'S UP-TO-DATE BICYCLE AND MACHINE SHOP

That a small and rather unpretentious bicycle shop on Hunter St., possesses a rather unique history, dating back much farther than the average citizen might naturally imagine, and of more than passing interest, are the facts recently unearthed by a visiting newspaper man.

The half-tone reproduction from an old photograph shown below was taken about 30 years ago and is a picture of Best & Metheral's bicycle shop as it appeared at that time. The old-fashioned bicycles standing outside of the shop speak for themselves, also the old board sidewalk in front of the store will be noted in contrast to the modern cement walks so long in use now that few remember the time when board walks were in vogue.

Best & Metheral started in business about the year 1890 as a machine repair shop, and later invented an oil engine and a greatly improved steam boiler and engine for small boats.

Mr. Millard, in addition to an extensive bicycle and auto tire sales business and a modern up-to-date repair shop, vulcanizes auto tires, being the first in town to install steam and electric vulcanizers for this work.

EXPERT REPAIR WORK.

Machine shop repair work has always been a strong feature of the business, and this had become so well-known that considerable time was lost persuading customers to take away broken castings and articles that were past being profitably repaired. To overcome this difficulty an oxy-acetylene cutting and welding outfit was installed, and Mr. Millard took a course of study in the art of oxy-acetylene welding and now, instead of sending away work he is busy trying to convince the public that the impossible can at last be done.

The powerful flame from the cutting torch of this modern invention burns at a temperature of 5,600 degrees, and will cut off a great steel girder in a few minutes, that by the old method of a sledge and cold chisel would have taken two men hours of hard labor to sever. The Quaker Oats Co. are taking advantage of this appliance in removing the debris of the late fire.

The welding torch used in connection with the apparatus is still more wonderful and of more practical interest to the general public. By its use teeth may be built on large gear wheels often without removing the wheel from the machine to which it is attached, or other parts repaired at a less cost than dismantling the machine would entail.

Anything from a pair of scissors to a locomotive can be repaired, melted together and in some cases made stronger than when new, at a fraction of the cost of replacing the broken part; and in these days when all metal products have become so costly and many things are impossible to get, even from the manufacturers, the possibility of having repairs rapidly and cheaply done in town should prove a real boon to the people of Peterborough, not to mention the patriotic reason that every article repaired instead of being replaced gives some mechanic so much more time to turn out munitions to win the war.

About the year 1895 the "safety" low frame bicycle came into use and a year or so later pneumatic bicycle tires (the improvement that made the bicycle so popular) were invented. In 1895 Best and Metheral started to manufacture bicycle frames and continued in this line until the big slump in the bicycle business in 1899, brought about partly by over-production and partly by tire trouble, as tires in the early days of the bicycle were costly and difficult to repair, a great number of the large manufacturers failed, and their stocks came under the hammer. Bicycles were sold for less than manufacturers' cost.

Best & Metheral were the first, and in fact the only firm in Peterborough who ever really manufactured bicycles, not merely buying them made up and affixing their name plate. It is interesting to note that there are still in use in Peterborough a number of these bicycles made so long ago, but so substantially and well built that they are still giving good service.

As far back as 1898 they installed a power driven air pump and an air tank to accommodate their bicycle customers with "compressed air free," being the first in Canada, and probably the first bicycle shop in the world to thus accommodate the public.

In 1908, Mr. Metheral, having dissolved partnership some years previously, sold the business to the present owner, H. T. Millard.

Harry Kelly Alive and Well Suit Case Mystery Explained

Lindsay Man Will Have an Opportunity of Reading His Own Obituary---Was Supposed to Have Been Buried in Downeyville Cemetery---Mistaken Identity.

LINDSAY, Feb. 10.—On Thursday it was stated that all doubts had been removed concerning the death of Mr. Harry Kelly, son of Mrs. A. D. Mallon, formerly of Lindsay, because of the finding by the British Columbia Provincial Police of his suit case and letters, which had been forwarded to his sister in Fort Francis, Ontario. It has been learned, however, that the suit case was the property of one, Harvey Perry, who, it would appear, has been interned in the Catholic cemetery at Downeyville as Harry Kelly.

This information has been conveyed to Mrs. George Neill, of Lindsay, in a letter from Mr. Neill's sister-in-law, in Toronto. A portion of the letter reads as follows:

"It was Harvey Perry that was buried. He had a suit case of Harry's and Harry told him to leave it at a hotel in Nelson for him. In it were letters from Mrs. Harty and Mrs. Driscoll, our cousin, and some letters to Harvey Perry, but how it was that Perry's people were not notified the same as we were I don't know. We have sent them word. He only has one brother and a sister. It is Mrs. Harty they are communicating with, and I have not heard from them yet.

"Well, Harry wrote me twice and he is fine and dandy, and I guess he will come home, but he says he would rather stay where he is till summer. He has a good contract and wants to finish it, but you know I, and in fact all of us, are so delighted to know he is alive we can't wait till summer to see him."

Needless to state Harry's relatives are delighted at the joyful news that he is still living. When he returns to Lindsay he will have an opportunity of reading his own obituary in the local papers, and of also viewing a grave in Downeyville cemetery, which was supposed to contain his remains.

"ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP"

Booked For a Return Engagement

Canada has proved so successful to "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," that Mr. Whyte is playing a series of return engagements in the principal cities of the east before his western tour, which has been postponed until spring.

The date for the return to this city has been set for Saturday, matinee and night, Feb. 17, when capacity houses should again prove the rule at the Grand Opera House.

It would be hard to find a more appropriate and timely attraction than this wonderful tale from the Arabian Nights, with its pretty story, magnificent scenes effects, brilliant music and beautiful girls, not to forget the half dozen really funny comedians.

For this series of return engagements several new musical numbers have been added to the score, and several new comedy situations have been incorporated into the action, so that it will prove equally as attractive to those who were so fortunate as to have been able to secure seats for the first appearance of the piece here a few weeks ago.

WHERE ARE COLOURS AND INSTRUMENTS?

LINDSAY, Feb. 10.—What has become of the 109th Battalion colours and band instruments? Nearly every returned soldier brings the information that these were carefully packed for shipment to Lndsay. The Lindsay military authorities are in the dark concerning their whereabouts.

HOTEL LENOX IS FIRE SWEPT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 10.—Carrying men and women down ladders and fire escapes, firemen worked to get all the guests out of the hotel Lenox, Back Bay, when it was swept by flames early to-day.

Probably over half the guests were asleep when the alarm was sounded. Scantily clad, they were taken, overcome, from their rooms to the streets. It is thought that some are dead.

Suggested $54,000 As City's Grant To Patriotic Fund

At a special meeting of the Council last night a by-law was passed authorising the issue of debentures for $60,000, providing the city's contribution to the Patriotic Fund.

During the second reading of the by-law, Ald. Langford after being informed by Ald. Stratton that the debentures would be offered for sale "en bloc" moved that $6,000 of that sum be contributed to the British Sailors' Relief Fund and the remaining $54,000 constitute the city's grant to the Canadian Patriotic Fund. The County Council had given only $36,000 and since the money was distributed to soldiers' dependants in the city and county in the ratio of five to three the city Council was bearing its share of the Patriotic Fund in providing $54,000. There was no seconder to the motion.

Mayor Duffus explained that the County Council had decided to give $36,000 before they were requested by a deputation to assist the Patriotic Fund this year. The Mayor stated that the committee had been informed that if they needed further aid from the County this year it would be forthcoming.

Ald. Dobbin further explained that the County was raising its grant directly through the current tax and can increase their grant later in the year if necessary by borrowing the required extra from the bank, but the city, by the debenture issue must provide for the total amount of its contribution.

Mayor Duffus pointed out that the city would contribute $5,000 to the Fund monthly and would receive the benefit of the interest on the remainder.

Ald. Langford stated that the war might be concluded before the end of the year and the entire contribution might not be needed. In view of the increasing tax rate, he said, the city should save wherever it can.

Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent medicine for little ones. They sweeten the stomach; regulate the bowels, break up colds and simple fevers, cure constipation and make teething easy. DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Malmerins says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood takes the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

The Influence, Power And Poetry of Folk Song Upon The Russian School of Music

Written For the Women's Morning Musical Society By Annie F. Allan

In view of the present frightful struggle in which Slav is slaying Slav, and of our great interest in these races as represented by Russia, Poland, Serbia, Roumania and Montenegro, to speculate as to what place the future years will render to them in regard to their literature and music is most interesting.

If it be true, and poets and history say it is, that sorrow and suffering transmute themselves readily into song, and that a down-trodden race may lighten its burden by expressing sadness in tonal form, we are amply justified in looking for great strides and advancement to be made by the Russian School of Music when this war is over. Russia will attain her rightful place and recognition in the realm of art.

The pent-up feelings and aspirations of her people will find a greater outlet than ever before. When the day dawns and we are endeavouring to forget the art of war and to learn it no more, when we are seeking to heal and not to kill, when the Prussian vulture has been taught that a true and noble civilization is too great and too sacred a thing for us to allow it to be uprooted and overthrown, music will then become one of the means whereby we may in time forget those things which are without beauty and tenderness, and will prove one of the links in the chain of common interests as between nation and nation, which will help to eliminate the soreness and bitterness created by this awful struggle.

The mere mention of the word Slav suggests to many. Something exotic semi-barbarian and a good deal of mystery combined with a strong tinge of romance. In imagination we see the wild hordes of Tantars and ferocious troops of Attila sweep past us, and our mental vision is filled with picturesque figures of nomads from the plains and mountain passes of Asia Minor, sweeping everything before them, invading Europe from north to south and from east to west. Warriors, we can fancy we see at night grouped around their camp fires playing their primitive instruments and dancing weird figures with the sagacity and robustness of semi-barbaric physical prowess.

Even, to-day our light operas, if the scene be laid in any of the countries mentioned, regard them as the fitting haunt for brigands, horse-thieves, gypsies, strolling players and other melodramatic personages.

Hundreds of years have gone by since then. Their nomad life in most parts of Europe has been tamed by domestic habits and other restrictive influences of civilization. With the exception of the primitive peasant their present life but faintly approaches that of their roving forefathers. In some parts of Russia and among the scattered Slavs of the Balkans, the mile posts of civilization are few and the Slav still retains the power of primitive man that has proved a dominating factor in their musical expression and dances.

A NEW RIVAL IN MUSIC

For many years the musical world appeared to belong almost exclusively to Italy, France, and especially to Germany, but even in music we are finding that the trade mark "made in Germany" no longer gives added prestige or lustre and that "made in Canada" will prove a better recommendation.

A formidable rival has arisen to the German school in the music of Russia Poland, Bohemia and Hungary.

Glinka was the real founder of the Russian School, followed by Tchaikovsky, one of the world's great masters of orchestral utterance and Korsakoff and Russian folk-song was made its foundation. Chopin began the new era by introducing the current of Polish music into the European stream, Liszt followed with the melodies of the Hungarians and Tchaikovsky added the national colour of Russia.

In their compositions are evident all the semi-barbaric power, exotic colouring, extremes of abysmal grief and of maddening joy, that give to Slav music its unique and enviable prominence in musical art.

Mrs. Hesselberg of Toronto, wife of Edward Hesselberg the pianist, in a clever and readable article on the "Development of Russian Music" defines what she terms the "exotic traits"—she says, "they are in reality new factors in musical evolution that had been almost if not entirely ignored by the composers of France, Italy and Germany and the general adoption of which by European musicians will bestow on their art a new and lasting charm."

MARKS OF SLAV MUSIC.

What are these exotics? She goes on to ask, are they not, firstly, the use of other scales and modes than our own, secondly, the constant co-mingling of major and minor and the preference given to the latter mode, and thirdly, greater rhythmic variety and more frequent use of the tempo rubato." In searching the realms of music to find whether other races have enriched their literature with such weird and fascinating folksongs as have the Slav family, we find that while the Latin races excel in the melodic contents of their folksongs, these, by their lyric nature seldom reach the great dramatic climaxes of sorrow and joy that mark the Slav music.

The Teutonic family, which has added many musical gems to folksong literature cannot claim much credit for originality of form or harmonic effects. It was the classic German song that won the prominence it holds in musical literature. The Celtic races can also boast of extensive folk-song literature, their honour, quaintness and lyric tints awaken the true musician's admiration, but it must never be overlooked that it is the influence of folk-song upon classic music that is the truest record of its power and worth. The songs present characteristic traits of a strong individuality and it is this unequalled individualistic trait that gives Slav music a dominating position in the domain of the muse.

To fully appreciate these truly inspired musical creations, "one must meet," says Helen Ware, "the Slav peasants, in their humble straw-roofed houses, follow them to their work in the fields, join in their merry-making at the inn, spend some long winter evenings with them in the jolly company of their cronies, tramp with them, watching their sheep and cattle. One must join the chorus of girls singing the slow Csardas and other Slav dances, linger with them at the fair, while waiting for "Fate to bring a mate," hear their merry-making at the wedding, see the mother bend o'er the cradle, singing a lullaby to her youngest born, follow them throughout their primitive life, seeking the language of the Muse as the means of expressing sentiment and emotion.

There is hardly a phase in the life of these people not commemorated in song. However, trying the labour, the spirit of song never leaves them."

A NATURAL EXPRESSION.

These peasants know music not as an Algebra of black dots and dashes, but just as a means of expressing their deepest emotions, for with Slavs to sing it is as natural and necessary as to breathe.

The grim history of these races is truthfully depicted in their folk-song and the melancholy note dominates all their music, even the dance. The Slav who has no favourite song is unknown and in some of their folk-song we find delicate touches of poetry and one is astonished at the keen appreciation portrayed in these pictures of human life and nature, for example the sorrow of a wild duck upon finding its mate killed by a hunter. A general understanding exists," says the Canadian Journal of Music, "that there is little difference between Hungarian and Slav music, while as a matter of fact, there is a wide distinction, which is explained by the Hungarian and Slav temperaments. Severe climatic conditions and lack of political liberty are factors influencing the Russians to the extent where an ultra-melancholic spirit has strongly permeated their life and music.

SLAV AND HUNGARIAN CONTRASTS

The thousand-year-old history of Hungary contains many a bloody chapter, yet they have enjoyed political liberty for generations, while their climate is ideal with its four definite seasons. In choosing their instruments the Hungarian and Slav races display totally different judgment, almost a sure test as to whether or a so-called Hungarian Band is the genuine article or not is the presence or absence of brass instruments, for the Hungarian gypsy never uses one. Again in choosing subjects for their songs we find that in the Hungarian folk-song there are no purely cradle songs, whereas the other Slav nations have some most beautiful compositions of that nature. The Slav dance is written in three-four time, while the Hungarian is in two-four or four-four time. The modern Slav composers, as a rule, appreciate their songs much more than the Hungarian does Dvorak and others have remained faithful to them and though the material itself is not so dramatically rich as Hungarian, they furnish the Slav composers with a splendid field to work in." The Hungarians have hardly any great singers, whereas the Slavs have given to opera and also to the concert stage a legion of great singers, instrumental performers, and dancers. The Hungarian Government supports a splendid Academy of Music and Symphony Orchestra; but does nothing for its great musicians. Russia, that land of suffering and sorrow, subsidizes worthy Russian composers and helps to scatter their music broadcast. This gives Slav music a great advantage over that of Hungary. Though Russian music has only of recent years achieved continental renown, it has always been loved and cultivated in its own country. The Slavs loved music from the earliest times, and despite the church's ban that love was never stamped out. In 1649 by order of the Patriarch, all the musical instruments in Moscow were burnt in the market place, but it was the last effort of the church. Peter the Great, though he did not encourage music, perceived the importance of the drama, but under Empress Anne, things showed a great improvement which continued under her successor, Empress Elizabeth. With the advent of Glinka came the first grand climax in Russian music. The most national of all Russian composers was Moussorgsky whose "Boris Godounov" has now won such remarkable esteem.

Korsakoff stands out in the history of Russian music as one of the most distinguished and distinctly racial composers of that circle to whom is due the inauguration of the National School of Russian Music.

In conclusion, suffice it to say, that the Russian School for its originality, novelty, abundance and beauty is a most formidable rival to other Schools and is come to stay. In the past few years it has fairly invaded London and Paris, where it has been received with open arms, now it has come to New York and is spreading to our Dominion of Canada.

CONSTRUCTION OF OUTFALL SEWER PRESENTED MANY DIFFICULTIES

Mr. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer Furnishes Some Interesting Information Concerning the Work—Special Method of Construction was Necessary Owing to Quicksand

Mr. R. H. Parsons, the city engineer of Peterborough, has been kind enough to furnish information concerning an interesting bit of sewer construction in wet sand, which he recently completed.

It was necessary to lay about 7,100 lineal feet of sewer along King, George and Park Streets, having internal diameters of 33, 30 and 24 inches with a general grade of 1 in 1,000. The two larger pipe were reinforced concrete tile pipe. The ground was nearly level and was almost entirely sand, with water at eight feet below the surface. Immediately the wet sand was excavated it became quick and required to be handled in a careful manner. The trench in the dry ground was about nine feet wide, with a rail laid on either side to carry a travelling double pile-driver. Lackawanna interlocking steel piles 18 feet long were driven into the sand on each side of the open trench, leaving about 6 feet clearance between. These were held in place as the wet sand was removed by hand, by 8-in. x 12-in. elm walings and screw-trench braces every 4 or 5 feet horizontally and 4 feet vertically. The dry trench was shored up by the usual type of waling and struts. The average depth of the trench was about 15 feet, consequently the quicksand had to be removed to a depth of about 8 feet.

A Special Method.

As the quicksand would not carry any weight it was necessary to adopt a special method of sewer construction. Tamarac piles 4 to 5½ inches in diameter were driven into the sand 4 to 10 feet, and 6 feet apart longitudinally and 4 feet apart transversed. Caps 2 ins. x 10 ins. were placed on the parallel row of piles and on the caps 2-in. x 10-in. platform lumber. The platform was a few inches below the required invert level of the sewer. Rough boards were placed on either side of the trench and on these and the platform was placed 1:2½:5 concrete. The sewer pipes were cast in moulds on the surface by Messrs. Taylor and Hall and the concrete was composed of 1:2:3, reinforced with triangular mesh 4 ins. x 4 ins.—half a pound of metal to the square foot placed in position to take up tensile stresses. These pipes were 8 feet long.

The reinforced concrete pipe were carefully set on the concrete in the required position and the space between the external sides and the trench boards filled in with concrete with a splayed finish. The exposed parts of the joints were grouted with cement and covered with a layer of rich mortar.

Was Slow Work.

Pile-driving was a slow work as it took as many as 180 blows of the hammer to cause the pile to sink 12 feet. Water jet and steam jet were tried to facilitate the driving but they were found of little use. The cost of labour and fuel for pile-driving amounted to an average of about 58 cents per lineal foot forward, whilst the excavation, piling, drawing piles, laying the pipes and refilling, cost about $6 per foot run. The total cost of the work, including everything, amounted to about $12.61 per foot run.

The pile-driving was done by a pair of hammers operated on a double derrick and from a compound drum, so that there was no changing from side to side. The derricks straddled the trench and ran on rails. The equipment for extracting the piles consisted of a rolled steel joist resting on a frame on each side of the trench and on the joist there was placed a 10-ton chain block which could be moved from side to side as required.

Pumping had to be carried on by means of a 3-inch centrifugal pump driven by a 10 h.p. electric motor. Power lines were attached to temporary poles set along the route.

WOMEN WHO SUFFER

Can Obtain New Health Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Every woman at some time needs a tonic. At special times unusual demands are made upon her strength. Where these are added to the worry and work which falls to her lot, weakness and ill health will follow unless the blood is fortified to meet the strain.

Weak women find in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the tonic exactly suited to their needs. Most of the ills from which they suffer are due to bloodlessness—a condition which the Pills readily cure. These pills save the girl who enters into womanhood in a bloodless condition from years of misery, and afford prompt and permanent relief to the woman who is bloodless and therefore weak. Mrs. Wm. H. Wagner, Rosenthal, Ont., writes: "After the birth of my second child I suffered from troubles which most mothers will understand without going into details. The doctor who was attending me said an operation would be necessary, but as I dreaded this and as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had been of great help to my sister I decided to try this medicine, and I can truly say that after using the pills for some time they made a complete cure and made life more enjoyable than it had been for a long time. I think every woman suffering from the ailments of our sex should give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial as I know from my own case the great benefit that follows their use."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes or $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

RAILWAYS CONFISCATE COAL IN TRANSIT TO FACTORIES AND PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

Contracts Ignored by Shippers—Local Companies Giving Best Service in their Power—Some Deliveries Made at a Loss—Council to Investigate

In the fuel situation the worst is yet to come, according to the expressions at a rather woeful experience meeting the Council conducted for a time last night. It was a rather interesting though a doleful recital, and it left the usual depression and realization of impotency which is ever present with the poor consumer these days after the grocer, the baker, the shoemaker and the rest of the Treasure Island crew have in turn operated on him.

Mayor Duffus opened the session by referring to his recent efforts to secure relief for coal consumers. He had written many letters and sent telegrams to Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Railway Commission, and some of the cars mentioned had apparently been accelerated in their passage to Peterborough. Mayor Duffus stated that he had gone into the local situation thoroughly, and as a result believed that all the dealers were delivering coal as fast as they could. Some of them have none to deliver.

No One Has Suffered.

"I don't think any person has suffered from the want of coal," continued His Worship. "I know that the dealers delivered all last Sunday, in large and small quantities. Some was sent out in automobiles, and other sacks in express sleighs. The great trouble is with the railways. There are 7,000 cars of coal tied up across the line."

Ald. Stratton— Is it correct that dealers are charged $11 a ton for soft coal?

Ald. Smith and Ald. Saunders replied in the affirmative.

Ald. Stratton—Toronto is paying only $7 to $8.

Separate School Supplies.

Ald. Weir followed with a few examples that had come to his attention recently. His company had received an order from the Separate School Board. The price submitted to the Board was $6.73. One car was shipped from the mines, but was confiscated by the Pennsylvania Railway. Another car is now on the way, and should it be confiscated the Separate schools may be forced to close temporarily. They have at present about enough for a week. Ald. Weir telephoned to Toronto recently urging the forwarding of a supply of furnace coal for a hospital.

"Two cars arrived to-day," he said, "and we started to draw them up coal to-night. They had just half a ton left in the bins. That coal crossed the line on Feb. 5th. It was here to-day. Other cars crossed the line on January 31st, and we haven't heard anything more of them yet. We have lots of coal on the road but we are out of nut coal. Our company has 1,000 cars stranded in Buffalo."

Where Trains Fail.

Ald. Weir remarked that Wm. Scott and the R. Hicks Co. Ltd. had been in a better position than the other dealers. It was largely a matter of the railways. Companies served by the Erie and the Lehigh Valley lines had their coal trains dumped on to sidings in Buffalo. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western line ran two trains daily through to Toronto.

Contracts Suspended.

Ald. Worth stated that the Bonner-Worth Co. required a car of soft coal a week. There was never a bigger holdup in soft coal, he said, than right now. "We had a contract for $2 a ton at the mines, but were told we could get supplies only at $5.50. The Peterborough Fuel and Carters Co. has a contract for $2 ,but can't get the coal. We are getting it for $5."

Ald. Dobbin —I suppose they find that people will pay whatever price they are asked.

Mayor Duffus—One car was shipped to Mr. Low on Dec. 20, but it has not arrived yet.

Munitions a Magic Word.

Mr. Smith stated that the Wm. Hamilton Co. had had some trouble until they were advised to use a munitions ticket on the cars consigned to them. The G.T.R. had confiscated one of these cars recently and had it on their unloading strike when they discovered the munitions ticket and released the car. The G.T.R. had confiscated all the coal they could get hold of, said Ald. Smith. The railways have got it in their own hands. There was practically no soft coal coming to the city.

Tried to Get Wood.

"We tried to get wood," he continued, "but were told there were no teams to draw it. The Toronto World has suggested that the Government take over the railways and that appears to be the only solution. Unless the Government takes them over there is no early relief in sight.

Mayor Duffus stated that Mr. Hicks had informed him that his company had some wood to deliver and would send in out in quantities not exceeding half a cord. Up to the present their 26 teams have been too busy delivering coal.

Confiscation by Railways.

"How is it," queried Ald. Worth, "that the railways can confiscate coal and pay only its cost price. We had one car on the way at $4.50 a ton and another at $6.50 a ton. They took the $3.50 car and forwarded the $4.50. When we bought again it cost us $5.00. That happened three times. They selected the lower priced coal, and we had to purchase at the higher price."

It was stated that R. Hicks & Co. had a contract for 600 tons for the Public schools and was delivering at the contract price of $5 coal that cost their company $9.

Finally Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the fuel question be investigated by Ald. Langford's Railway committee, which was instructed to act as quickly as possible and bring in a report to the Council.

Cut Out Any Unnecessary Travelling

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—All complaints received in regard to curtailment of the passenger train service are receiving the consideration of the Railway Commission as it is the desire of Commissioners that no section of the country should be made suffer unduly. Officials state that the public could help a good deal by refraining from unnecessary travelling and thus help movement of munitions.

Fire Consumed Farm House While Neighbours Slept

The home of Andrew Faulkner on the 3rd Line of Emily ten miles from the city was destroyed by fire last night between 11 and 12 p.m. Reports from that vicinity indicate that the family had an extremely narrow escape, three of the children having had to be thrown from upstairs window into a snow bank. Neighbours near at hand knew nothing of the loss until this morning, and Mr. Faulkner, it was stated, had to fight single-handed rescuing his family and saving his barn.

Necessarily thinly clad, it was even reported that he carried water in his bare feet and confined the fire to the dwelling, which was totally destroyed. He then hitched up his horses and drive to his brother-in-law's with his homeless family.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR BACK HURTS FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS WITH SALTS

Meat Forms Uric Acid, which Clogs Kidneys, Irritates Bladder or Causes Rheumatism

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Drafts To Be Sent In Future Oversea

No More Complete Infantry Battalions to Go From Canada

NEW SYSTEM FOR UNITS

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—Provision has been made for the representation of various territorial divisions of Canada by battalions or groups of battalions in England at the front. Consideration is consequently being given here to plans to bring into conformity with this new arrangement overseas, the system of raising reinforcements in the Dominion and despatching them to England.

When the new system is worked out there will be units in each section in Canada producing reinforcements which will move on to that district's reserve battalion or battalions in England, and thence be transferred to the corresponding units in France. A number of militia units have already been authorized to raise reinforcements for overseas service and permanent units for the enrolment and training of recruits will probably be formed. No more complete infantry battalions will be sent abroad.

Drafts to Be Sent.

Instead drafts, including a small percentage of lieutenants and headed, perhaps, by a "conducting officer" of higher rank, will go from Canada. The "conducting officer," if no employment at his own rank is available for him in England, will have the option of reverting to a lower rank or returning to Canada.

It is announced that as most of the railway work at the front is done in the early summer no more railway construction battalions will be authorized for some time. Moreover, enough forestry units to meet requirements have been authorized. Recent advices from England are to the effect that no more Canadian artillery or Army Service Corps officers need be sent overseas for some time, in view of the promotion of men who have had experience in the ranks.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

POOR EXHIBITION OF SPORTSMANSHIP BY THE KINGSTON JUNIORS

Played Seven Men Against Six Against Petes Last Night in Spite of the Fact That They Already Held a Four Goal Lead—Game Developed Into a Burlesque in the Last Period.

Last night's junior game at Kingston, which started with the Peterborough Juniors playing six men to seven, wound up in a burlesque, which Kingston won by 17 goals to 2. The Petes were the real gainers, however, as they came out of the farce with all the credit, while the Kingston Club lost hundreds of friends through their unsportsmanlike action in playing seven men to six on their own ice and with a four-goal lead from the first game in Peterborough. McKee and McIntyre were unable to get away for the game, and Frost, who was to have substituted for McIntyre, missed the train, and as a result the Petes had only six men to send out, with 107-pound Bernie Park as one of them.

For the sake of the big crowd on hand and for the sake of sport itself one would have expected the Kingston management to drop a man, but they played safety first and sent out their whole seven, much to the disgust of many of the Kingston fans.

Outweighed many pounds and with six men against seven, the Petes gave an exhibition in the first two periods that had half the crowd cheering for them. For fifteen minutes in the first period they held the Limestone seven scoreless. With Montgomery and Murray holding down the defence and the pony forward line working overtime, Kingston failed to find the nets until five minutes from the end of the period, and it was a fluky one at that, a pass from the corner by Shewell glancing into the nets off Graham's stick. Goal No. 2 was an equally fluky one, as Graham and Montgomery collided and Stinson had clear sailing to the nets. Just before the period ended Kingston made it 3 to 0.

Early in the second period they added another. Then Montgomery tore off a rink-length rush and circled the Kingston defence and slid the rubber past Walsh. The cheers of the crowd showed that the plucky stand of the little Peterborough youngster against odds was appreciated. With six minutes left to play in the second period Kingston made it 5 to 1. Then Montgomery, after a beautiful rush, got a bad toss into the boards, and had to retire for the rest of the game, and the engagement finished with Kingston playing six men to five. It was a burlesque from then on. Kingston made it 8 to 1 at the end of the period, and the last session was a farce. The handicap of playing with five men against six with the speedy Montgomery off, was too much and the Petes gave up the attempt in the last period. Walsh, the Kingston goal-keeper, made it a bigger farce by going up on the line, but the Petes who had overheard the play being discussed in the rest period, turned the joke on the homesters by skating away from Walsh and letting him come through unchecked, while Murray stepped out of the nets and allowed him to score. The big net guardian looked kind of foolish as he skated back.

Graham got the only Peterborough goal of the period by a beautiful rink-length rush, just before the bell rang. The little Peterborough rover played by far his best game of the season and had the crowd cheering him all the way. When he got the rubber at his own nets and slick handled through the whole Kingston team for a counter, the cheer that went up was by far the loudest of the night.

Not satisfied with their odd-man advantage the Kingston gang disgused some of their best supporters by roughing it considerably, with Elmer the chief offender. Park was knocked out once with a slash across the neck; Graham got "butt-ended" and several other Petes recivd souvnirs. Elmer capped his performance by slashing Murray, the little Peterborough goaler across the shoulder and face.

No winning team ever got such a cool reception in its own town as the Kingston outfit received last night. When the fans sized up the difference in the bulk of the two teams, and saw that the homesters were going to use seven men against the six light Petes, many in the crowd turned against their own team and when the visitors held Kingston scoreless for fifteen minutes the red, white and blue youngsters gained many more friends. They were cheered every time they broke away, especially Graham, who was as good as any man on the ice.

The little rover was Peterborough's star. Montgomery did great work, and his absence was sorely felt, while Murray played a grand game in the nets in the first two periods. He had no chance in the last. Young Park made a fine showing against Gratten and the others all worked hard until the last period.

The teams:

Kingston		Peterborough
	Goal
Walsh		Murray
	Right Defence
Evans
	Left Defence
Hall		Montgomery
	Rover
Elmer		Graham
	Centre
Stinson		Cherrett
	Right Wing
Shewell		Park
	Left Wing
Gratian		Bartley

To put the finishing touches on the lack of sportsmanship evidenced, the account of the game sent by Kingston correspondents to the Toronto papers represented the Petes as having seven men in action, giving McKee and McIntyre as members of the team, whereas both boys were in Peterborough.

The Top Rung.

Poor old Campbell Bannerman when by a series of accidents he became Prime Minister, addressing a meeting, said they might be anxious to know what it felt like being a Prime Minister. It is thought that occurs to everybody about a man when he reached to the giddiest elevation of the highest place it is possible for him to attain. I have read some very interesting studies in self-knowledge by President Wilson when he was addressing the frank and unillusioned audience of newspaper men at Washington. I have talked with Rufus Isaacs—as he is still known to his friends—after he had become Lord Chief Justice, the highest judicial office, as everybody knows, in the British Empire, on how it felt to be a Lord Chief Justice. He first made the general observation that somehow or other after any great advance in life, one felt a day or two after as if it had always been like that; surprise and gratification die almost immediately. As to the Lord Chief Justiceship, he felt at home and if he had been doing the job all his life, within five minutes after he had taken his seat for the first time.

Lloyd George.

I had the opportunity the other day of seeing how another of the greatest personal triumphs of modern times felt on reaching his giddy eminence. It was the first time I had seen Lloyd George since he became Prime Minister. I made it a rule not to go and see men in high office unless I have something to say that must be said, or unless they send for me; partly because I think it inconsiderate to tax the time and attention of men who have such terrible responsibilities; partly because their doorsteps are sufficiently crowded already with the people that want something from them; and I want nothing.

Lives Higher Up.

Mr. Lloyd George, as everybody knows, lives when he is not at Downing street, at a house in Walton Heath. It is a smallish house, with a pleasant balcony looking out on a couple of acres of land. To me it is uncomfortable in winter time; for Walton Heath is seven hundred feet up and a wide exposed common; but Lloyd George doesn't seem much to mind cold, and the garden is a source of unending joy to him. Probably it recalls that little garden he cultivated when he was a child in a Welsh village, and the productions of which, though small and due entirely to his labour and skill, helped to equalize the family budget. In spring and summertime he occasionally works at it; though as a rule he prefers to spend every moment he can spare on the very fine golf links which are within a few minutes of his home. Walton Heath as a settlement is of very recent growth. Twenty years ago it was without any houses except a few farm houses. Land could be bought almost for a song. Then the golf links were made; the great James Braid was induced to become the professional; the club began to fill up till it had a long waiting list; and land went up with a bound. One of the pioneers was Sir George Riddell, who after a prosperous career as a solicitor became interested in newspapers, and has now achieved a great fortune. He is almost the Lord of the Manor, and any friend who visits the club has, willy nilly, to be his guest. He is the landlord of many houses about the Heath; was once the landlord of two Cabinet Ministers — Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Masterman—but the latter was beaten for Parliament, and his house at Walton Heath knows him no more. Sir George Riddell is one of Mr. Lloyd George's closest friends.

Breakfast at Nine.

Close by is the house of Mr. Robert Donald, the editor and director of the two powerful papers—the Daily Chronicle and Lloyd's Weekly —the one with a circulation of nearly a million daily, the other with a weekly circulation of more than a million. Mr. Donald asked me to pay this visit; when I arrived I was whisked up to Mr. Lloyd George's house; but the Premier was starting off to see the scene of a big explosion, and we had only a few minutes to talk. But as he wanted to have a chat with me he invited me to breakfast with him on Tuesday. He laughed like a boy when he saw my face fall, for he breakfasts at nine, and I have an old journalist's unconquerable hatred of getting up early in the morning. Well, it shall be half past nine for you, he said, on this morning; and I assented, glad of even that little concession. But as a matter fact; what happened was that when he returned from the scene of the explosion, he found it too cold in the snowy weather to go back to Walton and resolved to dine at the National Liberal Club; and his secretary, Mr. Sutherland, rang me up and asked me to join the party. The National Liberal Club is no longer in the palatial buildings it occupied on the Thames Embankment; that building, like so many others, has been commandeered by the Government. Its abode now is the Westminster Palace Hotel—the nearest big hotel to the House of Commons and therefore in olden days the favourite resort of lawyers from the country and all people interested in the doings of the House of Parliament. It was in the hot eighties when we had constant all-night sittings the favourite residence also of the most active members of the Irish Party. Parnell, Justin McCarthy and myself were once all residents there together and often we had to rush over from the House of Commons to snatch a few hours' sleep so as to be able to keep on our then merciless warfare against all parties in the House of Commons.

A Kill-Joy.

I observe that Mr. Dillon had to contradict— he did it playfully as it deserved—a statement that he had a champagne breakfast with Mr. Lloyd George. Champagne at breakfast is a form of enjoyment unknown in England—or anywhere else I should say; but champagne with Lloyd George at breakfast, or almost any other time, is a curious and amusing antithesis to his tastes and habits. He is quite willing to give champagne or anything else to his friends if he thinks they want it; for he is no stern and narrow puritan who likes to be a kill-joy to his friends. But he doesnt know the difference between one wine and another; and whenever he tastes wine he sips it like a young lady at her wedding who has never touched it before. He is equally indifferent to what he eats. I found him surrounded wine of any sort in her life. Little them except one, the young lady universally known as Olwen; and I do not know that in any working man's house in England you could find a simpler table or a simpler environment. A little cold chicken, a little apple-tart—that was the lordly fare, enjoyed I am glad to say with quite a respectable habit. All the family are teetotal; Mrs. Lloyd George is a strict Methodist, has never, I believe, touched wine of any sore in her life. Little Megan, that weird reproduction in short petticoats of her father, of course touches no alcohol. What are you taking Dick Lloyd George said to his son. Tonic water, said the son. Give me some; Lloyd George touched it made a wry face but said it was as good as anything else, and consumed the bottle. Ginger ale or lemonade was the beverage of the rest of the party—including William Sutherland his secretary, and Edmond Browne, a great big Tipperary man, now a highly prosperous barrister in London who, asking nothing and expecting nothing from Lloyd George, is one of his most devoted friends.

Such, then, is a characteristic day in the life of Lloyd George. It will give an indication of that Spartan simplicity of the greatest figure in the British Empire, and it explains the appeal he makes to the masses of the people and the strict self-discipline which reserves all his strength for his gigantic task.

Report Covering the Financial Activities of Peterboro' Branch Of The Patriotic Fund

Semi-Annual Statement Covering Operations For the Last Six Months—A Brief Resume of Facts Relative to the Fund Since Its Inception.

Mr. W. R. Morris, auditor for the local branch of the Patriotic Fund and Relief Association, has completed the semi-annual audit, covering operations for the last six months, and the statement is printed below. There is also a brief resume of facts relative to the Fund since its inception, showing the whole of receipts and disbursements.

It will be noted that the Fund has distributed all of the moneys subscribed and, indeed there is a debt to the head office that will presently be liquidated. Occasionally is heard the statement that the allowances made by the local Branch are not so liberal as those made in some other places. Be this as it may all the money raised has been given away, and fairly, too, considering the individual necessities of those on the Fund. To increase the allowances would mean that very much more money would have to be raised than has been the case. In any event much good has been accomplished, and the Fund has been the means of, to a large extent, equalizing the incomes to the dependents of men on service.

In a few hours the United States navy had been augumented by the enlistment of a former cook on the American freighter Housatonic, the only American ship sunk in the new submarine warfare.

The Truth About The Milk We Drink

Raw Cow's Milk is The Worst Possible Kind of Milk a Baby Can Be Fed

"Milk is the most perfect food furnished by Nature. It contains the three essential elements in nutrition—PROTEIN, FAT and SUGAR—in addition to mineral matter and water in such proportions as to render it a very acceptable article of diet. A BIG GLASS OF IT IS EQUIVALENT IN FOOD VALUE TO A QUARTER OF A POUND OF BEEFSTEAK. In fact, an eminent authority has said that a glass of milk, taken over and above a man's ordinary food requirements each day, is sufficient to produce in one year's time a gain of twenty-four pounds in weight."—Professor Hawk, Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

If milk cost double what it does to-day it would still be one of the Cheapest and Best Foods in the world.

But CLEAN Milk is absolutely indispensible. To produce CLEAN Milk, it must first be CLARIFIED and then PASTEURIZED. Duty demands it. There is no other safeguard.

It has been proven that all disease-producing germs and 99 per cent. of all other bacteria are destroyed when milk is heated to a temperature of 140 to 148 degrees for 30 minutes. This process does not affect the taste or in any way interferes with the NUTRITIVE VALUE OR DIGESTABILITY OF MILK.

Professor Hawk's experiments with boiled and raw milk shows that "boiled milk digests more rapidly than raw milk. Boiled milk forms much smaller curds in the stomach than does raw milk. The curds of pasteurized milk are seldom larger than small peas. If one examines the curds formed from raw whole cow's milk in the human stomach, one will find that one hour after the milk is drunk the curds are fully as large as a man's thumb. These curds may coalesce and at a later stage in digestion enormous, rubber-like curds, at least three or four inches in length and one inch in diameter, may be regurgitated. Under the same conditions the curds of the boiled milk are seldom larger than small peas."

WHAT IS THE LESSON TO BE LEARNED FROM THESE SCIENTIFIC FACTS?

This, namely, that such wholesome and delicious Pasteurized Milk as that served to the patrons of the

With a double holiday approaching and in view of the crisis in our foreign relations, the average professional would be discouraged from attempts on the long side and bears may be given a little more swing for the time being. Underlying conditions we regard as certain to bring about a much higher range later on, peace or war, and so would suggest buying the Steel, Copper, and War issues on attacks on the market. Also the shipping shares. These latter will be subject of bear rumour at times, just as yesterday, when the Adriatic was sunk, on the floor of the exchange, but their vessels are gaining in value the more, because of ship losses everywhere. Refusal of Washington to order convoys of American ships through the danger zone shows how Wilson is trying to keep us out of war. The California carried none of our countrymen; report has it which would dispose of this bear argument, but we fail to see how a break can be avoided unless Germany backs entirely down on this general question. We remain very bullish on Western Union and Steel Foundries which may come in for special runs. Bears are likely to hammer Cotton and Wheat more or less successfully. Buy them on breaks.

HUN PRISONER DIDN'T CARE.

"Makes No Difference Who Comes Into War; for Me, it is Finished."

With the British Armies in France, Feb. 8, (via London, Feb. 9.)—Meagre details of the breach of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany have just reached the German soldiers in the front line trenches, according to the statement of prisoners taken by the British today. At Bailleseourt Farm, north of Grandecourt, eighty men and one officer of the 85th German Infantry Regiment were captured. Most of them were from Hamburg and were formerly engaged in the shipping trade and spoke English fluently. One of the prisoners said that he had heard from his own sources that America had broken off relations but that he did not know exactly what this would lead to.

Another prisoner, shrugging his shoulders, said: "It makes no difference now who comes into the war. We don't care. For me, the war is finished, and the sooner all is over the better."

NOT AFRAID OF U. S. NAVY

GERMANS CLAIM THAT SUBS WILL OUTMATCH BIG WARSHIPS.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—A despatch to the Post from Berne, dated Feb. 8, says: The German newspaper in particularly close touch with the Government are preparing the public for a declaration of war by the United States. The semi-official Strassburg Post published yesterday, a letter from its Berlin correspondent in which the following explicit statements were made: "The Chancellor declared in a secret sitting of the main committee of the Reichstag that he had reckoned with the possibility that the United States would break off diplomatic relations owing to the unrestricted submarine campaign. The Government, therefore, was not surprised when this happened, and will not be surprised by a declaration of war on the part of the United States against us. America's naval power does not alarm our navy. Our submarines of the latest type cannot, owing to the invisibility of their periscopes, be easily attacked by large warships, whereas, for the same reason, they can be very dangerous to the latter, because they can approach within a few hundred yards and fire a torpedo before they are seen."

REV. T. H. MITCHELL IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—A special service for a communion service to be held on Sunday morning at Old St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Carlton and Jarvis streets, was held last night, when the Rev. T. H. Mitchell, D. D., of Peterborough, preached an eloquent sermon. He declared that stoicism is a practical philosophy of life, but a complete acceptance of the doctrine destroys the blessings of philanthropy. He pleaded with the congregation to accept the true spirit of Christ's teaching.

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell has been mentioned prominently with this pulpit, made vacant by the death of the Rev. Dr. Harper Gray. Several ministers have been under consideration, and, while the Presbytery has made no decision, it is stated that the authorities of the church are not adverse to accepting the minister named.

Young Canadian Lovers Land in Scotch Prison

It was an old, old story, with a difference, that was told in the Glasgow Summary Court—the story of a devoted couple, objections on the part of the lady's parents, and, an elopement. There the tale takes a different twist, for the honeymoon was spent on the Atlantic, and the bridegroom subsequently languished in prison for a week.

John Oswald McGibbon, a Canadian officer, and Eileen Marie Pember, or McGibbon, his wife, a charming young girl, smartly dressed, were charged under the Aliens' Restriction Order. They admitted contravening the regulations at Princes Dock on December 18, by falsely representing to the aliens' officer that their name was Osborne.

On their behalf Mr. Robert Marshall said that McGibbon had been an officer in the Canadian army, and had just recently resigned. The only thing he had done wrong was to be found still wearing the King's uniform.

Mr. P. F. McKenna, the Procurator-Fiscal, said there was nothing behind the case other than what had been stated. Both defendants belonged to good families in Canada. They arrived in Glasgow from St. John, N.B., and gave the name of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Osborne. They produced a document issued in Ottawa which was intended to corroborate their statements. A search was made of heir belongings, and among their correspondence were found letters addressed to Mr. and Mrs. McGibbon. The man had been in prison for a week whilst inquiries were made to establish his status. If McGibbon was not entitled to wear his uniform, he was open to another charge, and if he was entitled to wear it he would doubtless have to explain to the military authorities why he was here.

Defendants' representative pleaded that they should be dismissed. They had suffered sufficiently for what, after all was an innocent stratagem, adopted to get into this country. They were both young and had been passionately attached to each other since they were fifteen.

The sheriff said this was one of those romantic, silly things that people did when at the romantic age but these were not times when the authorities could be bothered with sentimental considerations. The husband was fined £20, and the wife was admonished.

As might be expected, the Eskimos have hedged about the walrus hunt with many strange superstitutions. Every boat must be dully "doctored" before they set out by smoking it with offerings of meat and tobacco; no food can be cooked on the ice by the boat crew until the first kill has been made; the walrus must not be butchered in the boat, but on the ice, else the offending shade would cause the other walruses to stay away.

Army Inspection Of Horses To Be Held Wednesday

Date Has Been Changed From To-morrow—Bring Your Horses in On Wednesday of This Week

The army inspection of horses for the French Government which was to have been held in Peterborough to-morrow has been postponed until Wednesday. This is due mainly to the difficulty of securing satisfactory transport service, owing to the extension of the submarine campaign. Each transport is capable of carrying on an average about six hundred and eighty horses. On Wednesday of this week Green and Cruickshanks will be prepared to purchase all the horses available for this class of work. The two inspectors sent here by the French Government are giving excellent service and a fair inspection is assured to everybody.

Bring your horses in on Wednesday. The inspection will be held at the Dickson stable on London street.

BREAK WITH AUSTRIA MAY COME THIS WEEK

In Note to Brazil Vienna Government Announces Participation in Prussian Frightfulness—Washington Awaits Further Details, But Sees No Possibility of Avoiding Severance of Relations.

NEW ENVOY NOT ACCEPTED

WASHINGTON, February 12.—That a break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Austria-Hungary is impending is the general belief here, following the news that Austria-Hungary has informed the Brazilian government that she intends to follow the lead of Germany in conducting unrestricted naval warfare.

The greatest importance it attached to the despatch from Rio de Janeiro, which is the first definite information of Austria's intentions. Steps will be taken by the State Department immediately to ascertain the Austrian position exactly.

If Austria makes it clear that she too will conduct submarine warfare without rtstriction, President Wilson will break relations as with Germany. The action may be expected to come within the next few days.

NOTES ARE IDENTICAL.

Brazil, according to the cable despatch received, has received from Austria a note identical with that received from Germany announcing her policy regarding sea warfare. The note received by Brazil from Germany was identical with that received by the United States and was the basis of breaking off relations last Saturday.

Brazil, in response to the German note from Austria was identical with policy. Because of the fact that the note from Austria was identical with that from Germany, the reply sent was identical.

The United States on the day after the receipt of the German note received a cablegram from Mr. Penfield, the American Ambassador at Vienna, announcing his understanding that Austria intended to follow the leadership of Germany in the new sea warfare policy. The State Department immediately directed Mr. Penfield to make inquiries at the Foreign Office for official confirmation of the statement.

NEW ENVOY NOT ACCEPTED.

Count Adam Tarnow-Tarnowski, the new Austrian Ambassador, arrived in Washington on the day the German note came. Soon after he asked, through the State Department, for an interview with the President so that he could present his credentials. The call at the White House was not arranged, apparently because of the uncertainty whether Austria intended to conduct illegal warfare.

Count Tarnow-Tarnowski is in Washington waiting for a summons to the White House. He is one of the foremost members of the Austrian diplomatic service and came to the United States to succeed Dr. Dumba, whose recall a year ago was asked for by this government. The new envoy, upon inquiry of the Austrian government, was found to be acceptable personally to the United States.

The United States three days ago received a note from Austria-Hungary on the subject of naval warfare. The note was not made public by the State Department and no reasons for withholding it were given. It was supposed that further inquiry would be necessary, probably because certain features were stated indefinitely.

The note received by Brazil now is believed to show conclusively that Austria intends to conduct submarine warfare along the same lines as Germany, which all along had been supposed, but not stated definitely.

AUSTRIA ANNOUNCES SUBMARINE BLOCKADE.

RIO JANEIRO, February 12.—Brazil has received from Austria-Hungary a note identical to that of Germany respecting submarine warfare. In reply the government has sent a protest to Vienna identical with that already despatched to Berlin.

The American Naval Attache left for the United States on board the Swedish steamship Saga.

OUR SERIAL STORY

The Red Paper

By C. HOTCHKISS

Young Wentworth's eyes were again filled with troubled wonder as he mechanically turned and glanced at the picture indicated. He knew it well enough. It had been one of his own first efforts, and had been kept by his father more as a souvenir than for any artistic value. It was hung high over the mantel and out of easy reach.

"Something of a romantic cast, this, dad," he said, with a strained endeavour at ease of manner, for he had little doubt that for the moment his father was suffering from some sudden mental disturbance; the whole interview had been strange. "Isn't it a queer place for you to hide a paper of worth?"

"You may think it strange, Jack. Perhaps it is. To you the thing would appear meaningless—merely a bit of colored paper only, but I repeat, it belongs to Grace Merridale on her coming of age, and does not go to her as a legal right—it is not included in her father's will. It becomes a matter of honor to me—or to you—to see that she gets it. My son, that paper is of incalculable value to any one with a full knowledge of its character and contents."

"Then, why have you not kept it in the deposit vaults with the legal matter?" interrupted the other, now somewhat impressed.

He had known of the Merridales, father and daughter; but, as they had always lived in Texas, he had never seen them. He knew that David Merridale had indeed been a David to Captain Wentworth's Jonathan; that they had always been loyal friends since the days when they had been on the sea, though both had long since forsaken the ocean. But why should an intensely practical man as was his father should conceive the romantic idea of hiding a valuable document in a picture in his own library, where it might meet with destruction, he was at a loss to understand.

At the question put by his son, the captain wet his lips with his tongue, and his paleness was for a moment overcome by a slight flush.

"I had it in the vaults," he said impressively, "but I could not keep it there. I am telling you this that you may know—" He ceased abruptly; then, grasping the arms of his chair in a grip so firm that it turned his knuckles white, he leaned forward.

"My heaven, John! The worry over that paper—the temptation of it—is killing me. My peace lies in parting with it—yet my honor guards it."

The captain had cast aside restraint—his voice was raised. His son looked at him as if fascinated; in reality he was stunned by this exhibition and his half consumed cigarette fell to the floor as he bit through it. There was hardly a moment of silence before the captain went on, an inward excitement becoming more and more outwardly visible. He held his hands towards his son on as though in appeal. "John I have come to it at last! I am a ruined man! Not through speculation, or unwise investment; I never was money-mad or had enough to play with, but—but I have been haunted until that paper alone can satisfy the demand of the vampire who has sucked my blood for ten years. Ten years, Jack! I am almost spent—ruined by a blackmailer!"

The young man got unsteadily to his feet. "Black-mailed! You, blackmailed!" he exclaimed, his dark eyes distended with astonishment. The old man, now pale from exhaustion, nodded.

"Yes; for an unwarranted act in my early life. I dare not tell you. It has been hanging over my conscience for forty years, and for the last ten has threatened me like the sword of Damocles. Under it I have been broken physically and financially—and the finish is near. I am at the end of my resources. I have robbed your future, but—but—" his hands clenched—"the final price I will not pay. I WILL NOT PAY! It is a matter of my honor!"

CHAPTER II.
A TRAGEDY.

For a few moments the two men looked at each other, the younger one standing, his eyes wide and his emotion too great to admit of action. Had his father struck him he would have been less incapable of thought and speech.

He felt like one who had gone gaily along a pleasant path to find himself suddenly confronting a yawning precipice, and he was as well aware in that moment that his easy, devil-may-care life had come to a full stop as he was later when the prospect became a certainty.

It was the captain who first broke the oppressive silence—a silence so profound that the ticking of the French clock on the cabinet mantel dominated all other sounds. He raised himself slowly, and smiled a wan, forced smile.

"I need not have been so violent—so brutally violent," he said, quite calmly, and with a slight wave of his hand. "The matter got the better of me. The excitement was bad—bad! I was told to guard against it. But I am glad I spoke, John. I think I feel better for it, though it took all my nerve force."

The young man seemed to awake from a dream.

"I am not sure I know what has happened," he said, passing his hand over his eyes. "I hope I have misunderstood you, sir."

"I spoke plainly enough, I think," returned the other, with the uncalled for testiness of the heart sufferer, who can usually brook neither stupidity nor opposition.

"Possibly," returned the young man ignoring his father's tone, "but I still feel somewhat abroad, and have not yet got the thing into proper mental focus. I only made out two concrete facts, sir. First, a paper is hidden in a picture; and, second, that you have been the victim of someone—you did not mention whom. What are the relations between the two? I'll answer for the settlement of your enemy if you will give me his name and tell me where he can be found."

"Which is tantamount to expressing a desire to ruin your family's reputation! It was to save this that has brought me so low!"

"But, sir, I have a right to know, even if you forbid me to act."

"Yes—but not to-night. I am not equal to it. I have spent myself."

"And when, then?" There was little softness in the young man's voice, and his attitude was truculent, though the latter did not reflect on the old gentleman who now sat in his chair in a semi-collapsed state; but the question was eagerly put, and demanded an answer.

"To-morrow, perhaps. Yes, to-morrow. But not this way, John. I can write and be calm. I will write it all."

"And the name of—him?"

"Yes—everything."

"You promise?"

"I promise. I have only this to say now. Never part with that paper until you can place it in the hands of Grace Merridale. She will be of age in two months. Your responsibility will be short. I will write an explanation of its nature, for she would know nothing about it—no more than you. And be careful, for if that monstrous villain should become aware—"

"No more to-night, dad," interrupted the young man, as he saw signs of a return of his father's excitement. "Write it all out to-morrow. Let me help you upstairs."

"No—no; I am all right again," said the old gentleman, impatient at the interruption. "Go to bed yourself. I will follow soon. It is not yet eleven. I will read awhile; I could not sleep now. Good-night, John."

It was a curt dismissal, but it might as well have been a command, for the son had always respected his father's slightest wish. He hesitated for a moment, then he laid his hand on the captain's shoulder and held out the other. He had not been so demonstrative in years.

"Good night, dad. Whatever has been—or whatever is to be, we are at one in this."

His father grasped the outstretched hand and his eyes became moist. "Good night, Jack. God bless you my lad. I have been foolish to bear this load alone for I might have known I could depend on you to help me out. I wish I had spoken before. I might have been saved much."

With a feeling too deep to be expressed in words the young man turned and left the library, but he did not go to his own apartments. Sleep, or even bed, was out of the question for him. Like one dazed by a blow which still left him part of his faculties, he took his hat from the broad antlers which hung in the hall, and went into the hot, still night, closing the door softly behind him. As he did so he felt that he had forever shut out his old life—that a new epoch had dawned for him; but the idea was misty and lacked detail; it did not startle him.

As the white haired man in the library heard the front door close behind his son he threw aside the book he had taken from the table, shook his fist at the imaginary presence of someone; then with an air of determination and with a grim smile on his handsome face he drew a sheet of paper before him and began to write to his son. It was perhaps fortunate that he did not take out and complete the letter he was writing earlier in the evening.

John Wentworth walked up the avenue with his head in something of a whirl. He had received a distinct shock. To him it seemed impossible that his father could have laid himself open to blackmail and that the honourable name of his family was in danger of being publicly smirched. The young man had been too bewildered to inquire into the nature of the fault (he dared not call it crime) for which his father suffered, and he knew that even had he thought to, he could not have asked. Unless his father voluntarily revealed this mysterious act of his youth, he, his son, could not force his confidence.

And to John Wentworth it made little difference whether or not his parent was guilty; he was too loyal to his blood, too proud of his name, to fail to spring to the defense of that which was dear to him. It was all too mysterious to his open nature. He tried to throw it from his mind, but failed. Like the refrain of a popular air which sometimes catches the brain and echoes through it until it becomes unbearable, the words "blackmail" and "crime" sang in John Wentworth's ears. He was impatient for the morrow when he hoped he would know all and could determine how to act; and after that—what?

He walked along like a man in a dream and without more definite object than to keep moving. Of the presumably important subject — the paper concealed in the painting—he did not think at all, and the name of Merridale did not once enter his head. At Fifty-ninth street he turned into Central Park and strode through the black shadows without realising his whereabouts. What paths he traced he never knew but he was finally brought to himself by a policeman, who demanded his business there at that hour. He pulled out his watch. It was one o'clock. Wentworth came to himself. "I think I have no business here," he said. "I did not realize how late it was."

"Walkin' off a still, like as not! Do you know where you are?" asked the patrolman.

"I'm afraid not," said Wentworth looking around.

"Well, yer at the uppen end of Central Park, and you'll get right out into the street. Who are you anyhow?"

"I am a respectful citizen at least," returned the young man a trifle upset in his dignity, as he produced his card bearing his name and residence.

"We'll let it go at that," said the other. "You had better be home and in bed. Go straight ahead and out, me man, and don't let me see you around here again."

Indignant, yet feeling a vague sense of humility, Wentworth left the park and turned east to Fifth avenue. From there he strode homeward, his brain in better order from his encounter, though he was far from being settled. Nearly an hour later he swung into his own street; and as he neared his home, he saw the lights in his father's library were still burning at full blast, and that the windows were yet wide open. There was something in the sight that hurried his heart and steps, and turning the corner he bounded up the stoop.

In a moment more he was in the hall, dark now, as the library door was closed. Feeling his way through the gloom, Wentworth reached the door, and without the formality of knocking threw it open. The conditions meeting his sight caused him to stagger back with a quick cry.

At the first glance the room seemed to be in great confusion. Papers covered the carpet; the desk chair was upset, the drawers of the writing table were either wide open or pulled out entirely and lay on the floor. In front of the open fire place was the body of Captain Wentworth, flat on his back, arms outstretched and collar and necktie torn as if from a struggle.

With a bound John was at his father's side; but he knew the old gentleman was dead, even before he placed his hand over the still heart. When he did so he drew it back quickly. It was wet—not with blood but with ice water. The captain's vest and shirt were soaked, his white hair was matted with water and water still hung in drops on his set face, while a lump of ice, which had not had time to melt, lay on the floor a few feet away.

With his sight quickened by the conditions the young man noticed the cut-glass pitcher lay on the floor near the body of his father, and that a little beyond the carpet was black and soaking with water. On the body itself there were no immediately discernable marks of violence beyond the torn collar and necktie, and that ordinary rough work put on it. It is motive of assault—done before dyspepbeen—was plain from the fact that the captain's heavy gold watchchain and watch were still on his person, and his open coat gave no evidence of his pockets having been rifled.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair, which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart colour and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

She Overreached Herself

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

When Thomas Deane was an old man his wife died, and he became dependent upon his daughter, Hester, for care and companionship. Unluckily at this very time Hester fell in love with a man of whom her father did not approve.

When Hester Deane married George Martindale without her father's consent Mr. Deane took into his home Edna Tiernan, a niece of his wife's about his daughter's age, and turned over to her his household affairs. Mr. Deane soon became so dependent upon Edna that dispite the fact of his being three times her age he wanted her to marry him, for he was a widower and Hester was his only child.

Now, Edna was in love with a man who was paying her a great deal of attention, but had not proposed to her. If he would marry her she might tell her aged lover that she was already spoken for, but if she told him that she was free, but would not marry him, she might lose her home, and she had nothing to live upon. The man she wanted, Edgar Thorne, was well to do and could give her a good home. But from all appearance he had no intention of making her his wife.

Edna endeavored to steer a middle course between the two men, but one evening Mr. Deane, entering a room suddenly where she and Thorne were together found them locked in each other's arms. Thorne in order to protect the girl told Deane that she was his wife.

Deane, after Thorne had left the house, questioned Edna about the situation. She confirmed Thorne's statement, claiming that Thorne was not able to support her, and they were waiting till he was in a better financial condition to acknowledge the marriage and live together.

Deane was perplexed to know what to do. He was inclined to forgive his daughter for marrying without his consent, bring her back with her husband and still give her the care of his household. He said nothing to Edna about this, but when she saw a letter he had written to Hester on his desk she surmised what it meant. Seeing him commit the letter to a maid to be mailed Edna took it from the maid's hand, saying that she would attend to its posting. The letter never reached its destination, but in due time a reply was received by Mr. Deane from his daughter stating that she would not forgive her father for his treatment of her and she and her husband would continue to live where they were. This letter was forged by Edna.

Deane fell sick after this, and Edna took care of him, he being entirely dependent upon her ministrations. During his illness he was obliged to rely upon her for assistance in the execution of certain papers, whereby it became evident that he possessed a considerable property.

At once it became Edna's object to induce him to make her his heir. He was gradually sinking, and she dominated him in his weakness. A few days before his death she induced him to permit her to send for a lawyer to make a will. Mr. Deane gave orders when the man arrived that he be shown to the sickroom and no one else be admitted. The will was executed and Edna informed that all the property had been willed to her. But the attorney was instructed to retain possession of the document. Being assured by both men of the truth of this statement, Edna was satisfied and content to wait for the end, which was a matter of only a few days.

After the death of Mr. Deane Edna called on the lawyer who had drawn the will and asked to see it. It was shown her, and she read that all the testator's property was willed to Edna Tiernan Thorne.

Edna was not so dull as to suppose she could inherit under this will unless married to Thorne, and even then, the property having been left to her as Edna Thorne when she was Edna Tiernan, she doubted if the will would hold good. Without a word to the lawyer she went away to find Thorne On meeting him she told him of the situation. On hearing it his face fell. He had married another woman, keeping his marriage a secret from Edna, fearing that she would make trouble for him. Being a grasping man, he regretted his marriage, for Edna now gave him to understand that the Deane property was considerable.

Edna was crushed at the failure of her efforts. She confessed to the attorney for the estate that she was Edna Tiernan, but not Edna Tiernan Thorne. He told her at once that the will was void and that if no valid will was found Hester Deane Martindale being heir at law, would come into possession of the estate.

No other will was found, but Hester had no difficulty in proving her claim to her father's fortune as his only child. It turned out a surprise to every one, it having been supposed that Mr. Deane was in very moderate circumstances.

The only offset to Edna's crime was her confession to Hester that she had destroyed her father's letter forgiving and recalling her and had written him a forged reply.

Hester Martindale treated magnanimously the woman who had so abused her. Remembering that Edna had nursed her father in his last illness and that he had intended to leave his property to her, Hester granted her an income for the balance of her life but Hester would never permit the forger to come near her.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to such in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washings the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headache, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin ont the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

AUSTRALIA'S NEW IMPULSES.

How War Has Galvanized Productive Economy of Commonwealth.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 10.—The first concrete statement of the Commonweakth Advisory Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, which was issued lately, shows that inquiries are being made concerning:

The production of cream of tartar for the manufacture of baking powders and self-raising flour.

Damage done by insects to grain in store, along the lines of research being followed in Canada and England.

The cotton industry in Australia—particularly in Queensland—and the invention of a practical mechanical cotton picker.

The control and eradication of the prickly pear pest, which is spreading at the rate of a million acres yearly.

Technical education.

Introduction of the metric system, and of decimal coinage.

So far ten special committees have been formed by the Executive. They are conducting researches into the following subjects:

Chemicals; especially the local manufacture of those hitherto imported and upon which the country has been largely dependent upon Germany and other enemy nations.

Mode of occurrence of gold in quartz to aid in the localization of payable gold and thus cheapen deep prospecting.

Posidonia fibre and the utilization of the immense deposits thereof in Spencer's Gulf, South Australia.

Cattle tick, which has cost the Commonwealth millions of dollars' loss.

Alunite; the production in Australia of potash salts, the supply of which from Germany was cut off by the war.

Yeasts and bread-making; particularly of shortening the period of the maturing of the dough.

The nodule disease in cattle, which, like the tick, has caused immense losses.

In conjunction with State Committees, the Council is investigating:

Phosphatic rocks in Australia, to increase the supply and lower the price of phosphatic fertilisers.

Production of tannin from Australian woods and barks.

Production of rennet for cheese-making.

Wood distillation and the recovery of by-products now going to waste.

An industrial census of the Commonwealth.

The Medicinal Plants Board of Victoria has discovered that cinchona bark can be produced in almost unlimited quantities in Australia, and has arranged for the planting of seeds of tropical plants in Queensland. As regards quinine, it is pointed out here that before the war Germany's export trade in quinine to all countries amounted to $1,500,000 yearly.

Avoid Harsh Pills! Doctors Condemn Them

Most Pills unfortunately are harsh and drastic; they cause inflammation and great discomfort. Rather like nature is the way a pill should act, mildly but effectively. Science has established nothing more satisfactory as a family pill than the old reliable pills of Dr. Hamilton's, which for forty years have had a premier place in America. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are very mild and can be effectively used by the aged, by children, and indeed by men and women of all ages. No stomach or bowel medicine is more reliable. No remedy for indigestion, headache or biliousness is so effective, so mild, so certain to quickly cure as a 25c box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

MOVIES TO PROMOTE SAFETY.

Special Car for Exhibition Purposes Being Equipped by Government.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—The first moving picture railway car in Canada is being inaugurated by the Canadian Government system. The safety department organized in 1914, has done excellent work. The figures for 1916 are not yet available but in 1914 and 1915 members of the safety committees all over the line reported the correction of over 6600 unsafe conditions and practices. During these two years also 23 fewer employes were killed, a decrease of 60 per cent.; 407 fewer employes were injured, a decrease of 29 per cent.; three fewer passengers were killed, a decrease of 50 per cent.; and four fewer trespassers met death.

Hon. Frank Cochrane has now authorized the fitting up of a car for the exhibition of moving pictures dealing with the dangers of taking chances on the railway work. It will spend a week at each of the terminal points.

AUSTRIAN NAVY CHIEF DEAD.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—A Vienna despatch, says Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent, announces the death of Rear-Admiral Oskar Hansa, commander-in-chief of the Austro-Hungarian Navy. Death was due to pneumonia.

Had Chronic Indigestion Thought She Would Die

After Years of Suffering Attributes Cure to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Eating too much or using foods that do not agree are the usual causes of indigestion.

The trouble usually begins not in the stomach, but in the liver, since it devolves on this organ to filter the excess waste matter from the system.

Now, since Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the greatest of liver regulators, it naturally follows that they are unexcelled as a cure for chronic indigestion.

With the liver, kidneys and bowels active the poisonous waste matter is quickly removed from the system and there is nothing to interfere with the natural and healthful working of the organs of digestion. In this way only can lasting cure be effected.

Mrs. Rebecca Elliott, Magnetawan, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to write you in regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I had gastritis of the stomach for three years, and could get nothing to stop it until I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I would have an attack of this trouble with my stomach every three or four weeks, and was so bad at times that my friends thought I would surely die. Thanks to these pills, I have not had an attack for six months, and believe that the cure is thorough. My husband has had very satisfactory experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. He was much run down, and very pale and weak, I persuaded him to use the Nerve Food, and after having taken five boxes he looks and feels real well."

It is such experiences as these that have made a place for Dr. Chase's medicines in the great majority of homes. They do not fail, even in the most complicated cases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Limited, Toronto.

CANADIAN SALVATIONISTS ARE DOING SPLENDID WAR SERVICE

Over 1,000 Have Enlisted in Toronto Alone—26 Officers in the Ranks—Army Chaplains are Popular with Men —Home League Playing a Big Part

"I know of no organization in the world," recently declared General Sir Francis Lloyd, commanding the London (England) district, "that has been more unselfish than the Salvation Army in this war."

That is true of the Salvation Army, not only in England, but everywhere else. It has freely spent and been spent in the service of the Empire, and of humanity in this war—in Canada, as elsewhere. Last year a very generous and noble gift was made by Salvationists in Canada, in the form of five motor ambulance cars, which they donated for service at the Russian front. The presentation was made at the London Guildhall. The then Russian Ambassador, Count Benckendorff, who has since died, was too ill to attend to receive the cars on behalf of the Czar of Russia, but he sent a very grateful letter, and one of his staff acknowledged the gift in a very impressive speech.

The number of Salvationists that have joined the army from Ontario would be anything between 2,000 and 3,000. From Toronto they have contributed about 1,000 enlisted men, including twenty-six Salvation Army officers, who enlisted in the ranks.

There are a number of Salvation Army chaplains with the Canadian forces overseas. The senior of these is Chaplain-Captain Penfold, of Toronto, who left for overseas in November, 1914, and who has shown exemplary energy and zeal, and has met with great success in his special work, both in England and in France. He is now attached to the 2nd and 3rd Entrenching Battalions, and has established a Soldiers' Rest Hut for the benefit of the soldiers right up at the trenches. His is the only Salvation Army institution close to the firing line, most of them being at the various bases. It is heartening to learn that he pays a high tribute to the fidelity and zeal of the Salvationists with the Canadian forces both in France and in England.

TORONTO CHAPLAIN OVERSEAS

Another Toronto Salvation Army officer who is an overseas chaplain is Chaplain-Captain C. B. Robinson, whose activities lie in the Shornecliffe area. In that area, about ten miles in extent, there are about twelve camps, and nearly all of these camps are visited by him every week. He writes very gratefully of the excellent impression for God and the Salvation Army, which the Salvationists have made on the authorities and on their comrades-in-arms.

Chaplin-Captain Alfred Steele is another Toronto Salvationist. After doing duty for three months at the Exhibition Camp in this city, he was attached to the 19th Battalion, and went to the West Sandling Camp, England, in May, 1915. His work in connection with that battalion has been spoken of in the highest terms by the colonel.

Chaplain-Captain Kimmins was in charge of the Salvation Army work at Camp Borden as assistant camp chaplain, having previously been stationed at the camps at Niagara-on-the-Lake and at Exhibition Park, Toronto. It was estimated that at Camp Borden the Salvationists and adherents together numbered something like 1,500.

A very well-known Salvation Army officer who was killed in action recently was Charles Milton, who was formerly chaplain at Barriefield Camp. He as a captain in the Salvation Army and a member of Col. Henning's staff. He went to Barriefield, where, by the way, he was presented to the Duke of Connaught, from Ingersoll, where his last appointment with the Salvation Army lay, and qualified there as lieutenant. He was an old soldier, however, and wanted to be with the men, and, consequently, enlisted. He went to the trenches and was killed in action almost immediately. The veterans of Kingston are erecting a marble memorial tablet to his memory.

Sergt. Barsby, of Toronto, was chief of the men's wing of the Salvation Army Training College. Now he is employed as drill sergeant on special service, visiting different centres.

THE HOME LEAGUE

Much, perhaps most, of the good work that the Salvation Army does among Canadian soldiers is never heard of by the general public. But that it has ever at heart the soldiers' truest welfare is daily evinced in countless welfare. Solders are visited and talked with freely and with the kindliest and most genuine interest. The families of those who have left are the recipients of much practical help and interest. Salvationists and adherents at the front are regularly corresponded with, and to these, we may be sure a "War Cry" is not the least welcome item in their mail. And many a touching story could be told of self-denial in Salvation Army circles for the benefit of the lads in khaki.

There has recently been started in Canada an organization under the auspices of the Salvation Army, which, while not specially for war-time purposes, yet finds in this time of war a wide scope for its activities. This is the "Home League," the object of which is to show how the humblest of homes may be turned into a "home beautiful" the centre of love and happiness. It aims at helping the mother to the end that she may train her young ones to be good and capable citizens, and (more than that) God-fearing men and women.

The league, which originates in a suggestion of Mrs. Booth, by means of social meetings, practical talks, demonstrations of sick nursing, thrift clubs, working parties, and so forth, endeavors to point the way to making the home an abode of order, love, and peace. It is doing a great work, and the comfort its practical and kindly interest is proving to many soldiers' homes is beyond question. Moreover, it has been responsible for making a very large number of children's clothes and other useful garments and articles for the soldiers' near and dear ones. To numerous soldiers' homes it is carrying the message of solace and consolation in trouble.

Mrs. Commissioner Richards has the oversight of the league for the whole Dominion. There are over fifty branches, and these are increasing at the rate of five or six a week. The members belonging to each branch number anything between twenty and fifty or sixty. There are some fifteen branches at present in Toronto, and the good work that is being done at these is worthy of high commendation.

Service, sacrifice, and self denial—such things are familiar enought with the Salvaton Army. And in this war it is finding and proving adequate to abundant opportunities for the exercise of these virtues. It should be mentioned that in France and in England the Salvation Army maintains no fewer than 600 huts for the soldiers.

DYSPEPSIA

MOST DIFFICULT TO CURE BUT B. B. B. DOES IT

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure.

You eat too much; drink too much; make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of time before dyspepsia follows.

That forty-year-old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia, and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we receive from time to time.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N. S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your great medicine Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled very much with dyspepsia for the past two years, I was recommended all kinds of medicines, but they did not help me any. At last a friend advised me to try a bottle of B.B.B. I took four bottles and was totally cured. I will gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

On the Frankfort-Hadaway farm, near Coal Mines stop, on the Youngstown & Southern suburban electric line, is a pugnacious male sheep whose headwork is wonderful according to the Youngstown Telegraph. "Billy" doesn't use his head for his own advantage as much as he does to boost others along. One afternoon, not long since, a youth who lives in the vicinity left the car at Midway station and was walking quietly across the field when he felt a terrible attack from the rear that lifted him completely off his feet and advanced him a yard or so before he recovered his balance. Turning, and recognizing "Billy" as his assailants, the young man started to sprint. Pursued and pursuer made a streak through the atmosphere until the youth, some yards in the lead, cleared the pasture gate with a single bound. A farmer who happened to be passing, said to the young man: "I must say you are some runner. "Hugh!" grinned the youth, "you oughta seen the start I got."

England's Writers Bowed Down By Personal Losses In War

LOUIS TRACY, HERE FOR A REST, TELLS OF THE LOSSES IN LONDON'S ARTISTIC COLONY.

FEW IN MOOD TO WRITE

A. W. Ennis Has Given up Painting to work in a Munition Factory.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—"Naturally when nearly every English author has thrown himself heart and soul into the war, there is a dearth of literary output from England at this time," said Louis Tracy, the English novelist, known best in this country for his 'King of Diamonds' and 'Wings of the Morning.' Mr. Tracy is taking a brief rest in this country from the war excitement in his own.

"But how can it be otherwise?" he asked. "How can a man give his attention to writing in the clash of this great contest? It is too close to us. We have all lost some one in the great conflict Many of the most prominent figures in the artistic world of London are bereaved at the death of a beloved son, and it is almost unheard of to find some one who has not suffered the loss of a relative or a dear friend. And under these conditions we cannot engage in the literary activities of peace.

"The struggle is too close to us. The younger men have given themselves cheerfully, like gallant English gentlemen, and such of them as have not already filled a grave somewhere in the war zone are fighting in the trenches or labouring in the ambulance corps. The men whose advanced age precluded their acceptance by the Government for the more strenuous forms of service have interested themselves in the work of organization that goes on immediately behind the lines of fighting men and in England.

"I was living in the village of Whitby, on the coast, when the first German sea raid took place—early in the war, when a marauding squadron bombarded a number of inhabitants. See, here is part of a shell that killed a coast guard on that morning. I believe he was the first man to be killed on English soil," and he showed some black pieces of metal that had been welded together to form the base for a little inkwell. "It was presented to me by some friends of mine, and I have carried it with me ever since.

BROUGHT HOME TO ALL.

"That affair brought home to us the seriousness of the war that was being waged on the Continent, and made us realize, for the first time, that our immunity from attack was only fancied. So I set to work with a number of friends and organized a battalion for home defence. At first the Government objected, fearing that it would interfere with the regular work of recruiting but when they realized that we were only taking the men who, because of age, were not to be enlisted in the main army and perceived the real value of our work, they gave us their support and cooperation And in a short time the movement spread all over England, Sir Conan Doyle formed a similar organization in London, and at the present time no part of the English coast is without its battalion for home defence. The men are stationed twenty to a village, and in the event of an invason are prepared to see to the safety of the telegraph lines, railroads and other means of communication.

"But the colony of artists and writers with whom I had lived at Whitby, previous to the war, is broken up and scattered beyond hope of ever being re-formed. Such who have not been killed are serving in the trenches, ambulances, ammunition factories, or other places into which the turmoil has diverted the energies of the nation. And on a much larger scale the condition prevails in the artistic centres of London—the Inner Temple, Leicester Square, the Authors and Savage Clubs are practically deserted. There is no time for the arts. And then, too men are far too saddened by the daily list of death to put their hands to the pen. Kipling is doing very little writing, for he has been saddened and aged by the death of his only son; but the boy died as his father would have wished, fighting for his country. Horace Vachell, J. L. Garvin, editor of The Observer, and others far too many to enumerate, have suffered in the same way. I, too, have lost my only son.

"Of the few literary men who have remained aloof from the war, George Moore is probably the most conspicuous figure, and he has such a well-known distaste for anything that savors of harshness that he has come in for but little comment. And, then, he is an old man. Even the most ardent militarists have dealt lightly with him. Bernard Shaw is much disliked for his utterances and writings against the war, but there is hat of the grinning philosopher, a spirit of contradiction in him, that will not permit of agreeing with any one else. His genius for contradiction has forced him to take the stand that has won him so much disapproved by the English people.

YOUNGER WRITERS AT FRONT.

"A few of the younger writers will come out of the struggle with greatly enhanced reputations for they are doing good work. Patrick McGill gave up his position as assistant librarian of Windsor Castle and has been serving steadily throughout the war. How he finds the time to write no one knows, but he has turned out some notable contributions to contemporary literature. I think Alfred Noyes is doing the best work of his career, and undoubtedly the stimulus has come to him from the great conflict. Ian Hay, with his 'First One Hundred Thousand,' has won many readers, and he deserves them, for he has treated a great subject in a great way. That first hundred thousand that we sent to France in the first days of the war was the finest body of men ever gathered together under the sun.

"I consider H. G. Wells's 'Mr. Britling Sees it Through' the most understanding book on the war that has yet left the press, and I doubt if any one goes beyond him, for he has the vision of a prophet and has analyzed public opinion in a manner that no other writer has been able to do. He sees the seriousness of the conflict and has a discernment that has told him how the people realized it, and how it has changed life in England. Hugh Walpole, who, at the opening of hostilities, was a master in Epsom College, has been serving with the ambulance corps in Russia, and as a result of his experiences, has given us 'The Dark Forest,' a work which no critic can ignore in compiling the list of momentous war books.

"The painters have been particularly unfortunate in that the war has destroyed the market for their work, but they have been no more backward than the other artists in giving aid to their country in her time of need. A. W. Ennis, whose studies of the River Nile caused such a stir in English art circles a few years ago, and whose paintings are well known in this country, has probably ruined his wonderfully delicate hands by his labours in a munition factory.

"The old life is gone, never to be seen again, for when the 5,000,000 men who are in service return, they will return with an education and knowledge that will make them unwilling to take up the old ways. The England of pre-war days was a land that had grown soft and luxurious from overease, but she will emerge from this conflict a finer and stronger country, toughened and strengthened by the trials which she has undergone. And we will see the effect on the rational character epitomized in a literature of far greater breadth and strengh; a literature of greater import and value than anything that has gone before. And I do not think the end is far away. We have been a long time getting ready, but at last we are ready. We have five millions of men in the field; men who are trained and hardened and provided against any emergency that may arise. And next spring will see the inauguration of a colossal drive that will sweep everything before it and bring the struggle to a close in less than a year.

"I am over here for a rest, but a few days ago I wrote offering my services to Lloyd George, and if there is any way in which I can be used I will return to England and give all that I can."

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

Run-down, Weak and Nervous—Made Strong by Vinol.

For the benefit of Peterboro school girls who overwork and get into highly nervous, weak and run-down condition, we publish this letter from Dorris Coplier of Forth Worth, Tex.: "I go to the high school and take music lessons, and became run-down, weak and very nervous, so I could not do anything. I would shake all over, and could have screamed at times, and was really unfit to keep on with my studies. Mother purchased a bottle of Vinol for me and within a week I was better, and in two weeks I had gained five pounds and felt fine."

It is the curative, strengthening elements of beef and cod liver peptones, aided by the blood-making, revitalizing effect of iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, contained in Vinol, which made it so successful in building up health and strength and overcoming the nervous condition of Miss Coplier, and we ask every school girl in Peterborough who is in a like condition to try Vinol, on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit.

Peace This Year On Allies' Terms, Says Maeterlinck

NICE, Feb. 10.—"Peace will come this year, but it will come through a victory of the Allies."

This is the opinion that Maurice Maeterlinck gave me in the study of his of villa Les Abeilles, on the hills overlooking Nice. The last time I saw him he had come to Paris to give me a message for America on the German deportation of Belgians. This time I came to Nice to ask his views on peace.

"It is good news for the whole world if peace is to come this year," I said in reply to his remark.

"Oh, yes," he replied. "This is the year of peace. It is bound to come after the big battles now being prepared. The Germans will be beaten and will have to give in."

"Then you don't believe in peace by negotiation?" I asked.

"No," he said. "It is impossible The Germans must be beaten to their knees. Their militarism must be crushed. Then there can be real peace, permanent peace. When Germany has been forced by armed strength to acknowledge herself wrong, then only negotiations between the two sides can take place.

MUST ACKNOWLEDGE WRONG

"That is the fundamental condition of peace. Germany must first acknowledge herself wrong; then starting from that basis, peace can be discussed, reparation exacted, guarantees established, Germany at present is a wild beast and must be tamed as the first step toward arriving at a permament basis for the future."

"Do you think the German reply to President Wilson's speech has done anything for peace? I asked.

"No," he replied. "On the contrary, it shows the futility of negotiation at the present time. The Allies' reply to Wilson's note and the German reply to Wilson's speech, put side by side, show how far apart the opponents are, for the German reply breathes in every word pride of arms, brutal pride of victory and power.

"It is evident that there can be no peace, no negotiations for peace, until that spirit is broken. The great struggle will come this year. It is being prepared for now by both sides, and as a result of that struggle peace will come and Allied victory.

"Germany has shown in her latest note that she is still animated by the pride and vain glory of the Hohenzollerns. What does she say of Belgium in that note? The brief reference to Belgium means only German suzerainty. There can be no other reading. Better utter annihilation, better that Belgium and the Belgian people be lost to the world forever than made subjects of German tyranny, as Alsace Lorraine has been enslaved by Germany for nearly half a century.

"And what does she say of Serbia? What of the countries at war. What of little Montenegro? Not a word. Only slavery for Belgium and for all neutrals a threat of the terrors of piracy. Does one need more than that to understand Germany's haste? Now she has threatened with murder and sudden death all neutrals who venture on the seas There can be no peace without liberty for all nations, reparation for all misdeeds and guarantees of a chastened Germany. Belgium and Serbia must be restored. There must be a reparation to Belgium for all she has suffered.

NEW NATIONS TO ARISE.

"Serbia must be enlarged in accordance with her legitimate ambitions and at the expense of those who tried to destroy her. Subject peoples must be freed. There must be a new Poland and new nations of all the peoples now subject to Germany who do not want German rule.

"There must be a new Bohemia. One sees a separate kingdom of Hungary and beside it new nations of peoples now subject to German domination.

"The Allies' note to President Wilson outlined the conditions of peace they seek, and Germany must be beaten into accepting those terms. But, first and most important of all, German military power must be utterly and finally broken."

WESTERN CANADA'S CROPS

Farmers Enabled to Pay The Original Cost of Their Land

ONE outstanding fact in connection with the wonderful crops that have been harvested in Western Canada is that the prices obtained for the crops have in hundreds of cases enabled farmers to pay the original cost of their land. Many instances have come to note of farmers who bought their lands twelve months ago, and with their first crop were enabled to pay the whole cost of the land and still have sufficient left to carry them through the year until another crop.

Land that was bought for from $15 to $30 per acre has produced crops worth from $40 to $75. The prevailing high price of wheat particularly, and other grains as well, has of course been responsible for this to a great extent.

When it is known that many farmers produced an average of over 50 bushels of wheat to the acre it will be easily understood how they made such vast profits this year. These high averages were not confined to any one area but were reported from all over Alberta and many parts of Saskatchewan. The yield of C. S. Noble of an average of 54 bushels 23 pounds of wheat to the acre for 1,000 acres is doubtless a world's record for a tract that large. Mr. Noble a few days ago purchased another 2,000 acres a few miles west of the city of Calgary, and contemplates making it the best stock farm in the West. He never does things by halves and when it is known that he expects to purchase as well some of the best breeding stock obtainable it will be seen that the livestock industry of Alberta will receive no little impetus from Mr. Noble's entry into the business.

Stories are common of farmers who have more than paid the original cost of their land from the proceeds of this year's crop. Many of the automobile firms are unable to get sufficient cars to supply the demand, as practically every farmer is buying at least one of the smaller cars and many of them are purchasing the larger cars. One firm in Calgary sold $200,000 worth of cars during one month of this year, which was a record. Almost every small town now has its garage where all repairs can be made and new parts bought. This, and the general prosperity which it indicates, instigated considerable building activities, and carpenters and builders have been unable to keep up with the amount of work ordered. A great many new elevators are being built this year and this of course has also had its effect on the building trade.

An instance is given of one farmer in the southern portion of Alberta who paid $3,800 for his farm last year. This year he harvested 3,900 bushels of wheat alone, and after his crop was taken off be received an offer of $5,000 for the farm, which he refused. He also realized over $1.50 per bushel for his wheat, or $2,000 more than the total cost of his farm.

Flax has been particularly good, one man in Southern Alberta having a yield of 37½ bushels per acre. This is an exceptional yield, even in Alberta, but on the whole with flax worth $2.25 per bushel it can readily be seen that it is an exceptionally profitable crop.

Yields of 50 bushels and over of wheat were frequent, most of which graded one northern or two northern, and netted $1.50 or over per bushel, according to how early in the season it was sold. Farmers who held until late in the year have reaped the benefit in considerably higher prices for their grain than those who sold during September or October.

Last year Western Canada crops were even better. During 1915 and 1916 the rainfall was considerably heavier than in average years, and this fact has directed attention to the irrigation districts of the province where the same results can confidently be expected every year. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company, which has developed about 800,000 acres of irrigible land in Alberta, is very optimistic as to the future of irrigation farming in that province.

The bank clearings, which are a pretty good business barometer, have increased in some cities as much as 100 per cent over those for the same period last year, and all the western cities and towns show big increases, some of them exceeding all past records. On the whole, the Canadian West is at present experiencing prosperity—prosperity of the solid kind, that has a real foundation, and is not merely the result of speculation or borrowed capital. It is a prosperity of the farmer, the backbone of the country, and when the farmer is prosperous it is merely a matter of time until the money reaches all classes in turn.

ELOPMENTS ARE CONTAGIOUS

Taking advantage of the precedent established by the young woman's parents twenty-three years ago, Miss Ida Michaely and Ward Knapp, and Miss Della O'Dell and Albert William Rose, all prominent in society in Yonkers, N.Y., eloped three months ago, and were married in New York City. News of the elopements were not known until the other day, when the two young wives, smilingly, told of them.

"You know that our parents eloped more than twenty years ago, so we thought we would too," one of them remarked.

The engagements of Miss Michaely and Mr. Knapp, and of Miss O'Dell and Mr. Ross, were announced several weeks before the double elopement. The dates for the wedding had not been set and friends assumed that they were going to be married in the spring.

On November 9th Mr. Knapp became ill. Physicians told him an immediate operation was necessary and he decided to go to St. John's Riverside Hospital. Miss Michaely thought they would be married before the operation was performed, and on the following day they went to New York city. Miss O'Dell and Mr. Rose accompanied them.

The ceremony was performed in St. Paul's Episcopal church by the Rev. William Morris Gilbert. While Miss O'Dell and her fiance were affixing their names to the certificate, they too decided to be married. The second ceremony was performed with Mr. and Mrs. Michaely as the witnesses.

Two hours later Mr. Knapp underwent the operation. Mrs. Knapp and Mrs. Rose went to their parents' homes and said nothing of the elopement until last Thursday. They were forgiven.

"In this," I asked, "what do you see for the Hohenzollern dynasty?"

"It is the end of the Hohenzollerns," he replied. "One way or another, the Hohenzollern dynasty must come to an end and the German people's, like all others, be released from the tyranny of a race thirsty for blood."

His eyes burned with a blazing light as he concluded:

"The beast is in its death struggle now. The hands of justice and freedom are at its throat. A few last convulsive efforts and the end will come."

His own hands reached out, the fingers working convulsively as if he himself would throttle the beast and avenge his country.

PEOPLE EAT MORE ON CLOUDY DAYS

Restaurant Men Say That Most Patrons Linger at Tables in Gloomy Weather.

Watch what you eat the next time it rains or snows. Perhaps you think the weather takes away your appetite. It doesn't. It makes you eat more. The November American Magazine explains what weather does to the restaurant business. The writer says:

"A study of weather and business has its surprises. For instance, restaurant men know that appetites are not the same on a dark, gloomy day as on a day that is bright and cheerful. Natural enough! The surprising fact is that they eat most on the day that is dark and dismal.

"'On a cloudy day,' an old restaurant man tells me, 'people just sit and eat. There is nothing else to do. On a nice day they eat less and hasten out into the open. But the less they eat the more particular they are about the quality.'

"Not so long ago a young woman opened a good little restaurant near the Department of Agriculture, in Washington. Most of her customers are employees of that department. She does a big business every day, but the rush it greatest when the day is the stormiest. On a fine day the men from nearby buildings walk to restaurants further away, just for the exercise. Those who do not go to other restaurants cut down their eating in order to spend all the time possible in the open air.

"No one knows just how much business is affected by the subtle influence of weather on human temperament. Dentists find that patients are inclined to be slow to make appointments and quick to break them on cloudy days. A cloudy day is depressing to many persons, and they lack the nerve to face the ordeal of having their teeth cobbled. The same thing that hurts the dentists' trade helps the regular pill doctors. A lot of persons whose spirits are dampened by the weather, or whose ills seem aggravated, think that if they go to a doctor and purchase an expensive prescription from him they will feel a great deal better."

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a tort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Fashion has remembered that there are dress-up affairs of childhood, during the winter, for which the artless maiden not yet in her "teens" needs a smart and graceful frock and the result is shown in the illustration No. 8,071. Any little girl will be in raptures over it.

The overblouse suggests the jumper idea and for novelty has the pockets placed just where they look best and where the girl likes to have them; beading or wool embroidery is fashionable for embellishment. The low cut front of the overblouse shows to advantage the under waist, which is finished at the neck with a very fetching frill, and the "ruff cuffs" to match have as much appeal. The closing is at the back and a one-piece gathered skirt completes the frock. The separate overblouse slips on over the head.

This design will be superior developed in velvet velour de laine or like fabric with motif decoration as pictured; the waist being of net, silk or material to blend. Of course the model may be made up for afternoon wear in a more practical weave or combination of weaves, like checks, plaids, serges, &c. Whatever the choice of material. If you like the things you make yourself, you will have style and value by using the pattern to reproduce the design—no skill is required.

The dress pattern No. 8,071 cuts in sizes 6 to 12. To make in size 8 requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material for overblouse and skirt and 1¾ yards of 36 inch goods for the waist.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for, 25 cents.

GERMANY IS DELAYING DEPARTURE OF AMERICAN CITIZENS IN BERLIN FOR POSSIBLE RETALIATORY MEASURES

"Ultimatum" Was Backed With Threat to Hold Americans if Permission Releasing German Ships From American Harbours in Case of War Was Not Granted---Ambassador Gerard Refused to Sign Treaty---Says Germany is Suffering Greatly From British "Starvation Blockade."

WILL CONTINUE SUBMARINE POLICY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Carl W. Ackerman).

BERNE, via Paris, Feb. 12.—Germany is delaying the departure of American citizens in Berlin for possible retaliatory measures in case the United States declares war. Practically a demand was made upon Ambassador Gerard before he left Berlin to sign a treaty in effect guaranteeing permission for German ships to leave American harbours in case of war, this "ultimatum" being backed up with a threat to hold American correspondents as hostages if such action were not taken. Gerard, it is reliably reported, told the German official who brought this threat that if Americans were forced to remain in Germany, Americans would regard such action as cause for war. He refused to sign. Switzerland is granting the Americans every courtesy and hospitality. Ambassador Gerard has begun communicating with President Wilson at Washington, using code messages for the first time from a neutral point.

A large number of Americans still remain in Berlin and are anxious to leave, but indications when the Gerard party left, were that they would be delayed days and even weeks. The Berlin Government fearing that America may declare war, apparently desires to have a few American citizens within Germany on which retaliatory measures might be exacted, in case the Germans in America are interned.

BERNE, Feb. 12—This is the first despatch received direct from Carl Ackerman, United Press correspondent, since he passed beyond the control of German censorship. He is a member of the immediate party with Ambassador Gerard, and has been in Germany, or with the German troops, ever since the war started.

SUFFERING FROM STARVATION.

BERNE, Feb. 12.—American Ambassador Gerard, who is here with two hundred Americans, expects to sail for the United States on February 24th from Barcelona, Spain. Americans with the diplomatic and consular party declared to-day that while Germany is suffering greatly from the British "starvation blockade," the nation apparently is resolved to continue the policy of unlimited sea warfare. Come what may. Gerard himself refused to be interviewed.

PTE. TOM GOODWIN, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and is now with the 6th Canadian Reserve at East Sandling Camp.

Reserve Guns For The American Mercantile Marine

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Reserve guns of the Navy, designed for use on merchant auxiliaries and submarine chasers, will probably be available soon to American ship-owners who brave the German danger zone. The Navy Department has a number of these guns which, it is said to-day, could be even loaded directly if necessary. They are just the type for merchant ships.

While the State Department has held that direct transfer could be made, there were signs to-ay that the Government desired to avoid making such arming appear to be an official move.

CALMER ON WESTERN FRONT.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Patrol activity in the Champaigne and Argonne theatres of war and successful raids in Argonne and near Hill 304 were the only fighting activities reported in to-day's official statement. Elsewhere it was calm, the report said.

AUSTRIANS WERE REPULSED.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The repulse of continuous attacks by large picked forces of Austrians on the Carso front was reported in to-days official statement.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The British steamer Netherlee, 4,227 tons, was sunk.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The British steamer Lycia, 2,715 tons, has been sunk.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The war is now costing England $28,177,035 a day, Chancellor of Exchequer Bonar Law declared in House of Commons to-day. His statement was made in connection with a move for a vote of credit.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The trenches captured southeast of Serre have been evacuated by the Germans because they were unserviceable, to-day's official report asserted.

Lack of Coal Causes Heavy Loss To Floral Co's in Kitchener

KITCHENER, Feb. 11.—The arrival in the city to-day of from fifteen to twenty carloads of coal of various grades promises to relieve the acute situation which prevailed here yesterday, when the supply was much below the demand, local dealers being completely sold out. In scores of cases consumers were compelled to borrow a sufficient supply to tide them over to-day in expectation of securing coal on its arrival in the city.

The Central Heating Plant, which supplies heat for about fifty business blocks along King street, was almost on the verge of closing down owing to lack of coal, but the management was successful in securing sufficient supply until Monday. Three local industries closed down during the day, and on Friday night the contents of seven houses of Jansen's conservatories were damaged by being frozen, owing to exhaustion of the coal supply. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

In the majority of churches to-day it was announced that the week-night meetings in the churches would be withdrawn until the coal situation is improved. Mayor Gross last evening received a message from G.T.R. Freight Superintendent Eish at Stratford that all coal cars en route between Detroit and Kitchener would arrive to-day, and about twelve cars came in by special freight this morning. There was no delivery made of coal to-day, however.

Some men when their wives ask them where they have been always lie on principle to keep from getting out of the habit.

Threat Against Holland Is Only A Clumsy Bluff

Troops Collected on Dutch Frontier a Rotten Lot, Not Fit for Fighting—Are Busy Trench Digging—No Anxiety Exists

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 12. — A correspondent to the London "Times" says: I received accurate information regarding the so-called German threat against the Dutch frontier. My informant said: "It is perfectly true that towns and villages on the Dutch frontier are now crowded with troops. Emmerich, which usually has 300, now has three regiments. They are not fighting troops, but mostly old and second class. They are a rotten lot, but numerous. It is repeatedly asked what they are doing. They are always busy trench digging, and one is usually told they are intended partly to suppress smuggling and partly to protect the German frontier in case of an invasion by England. This concentration of troops, however, has led to an expression of the hope by the civilian population and some soldiers that they may be intended to invade Holland. On the other hand, directly I began to talk with intelligent people who were not bluffed by the number of troops assembling I found no great anxiety over the invasion of Holland, which was not even discussed."

CHINA HAS DECIDED TO BREAK WITH GERMANY

LONDON, Feb. 12.—China has broken off diplomatic relations with Germany, it was authoritatively reported here this afternoon.

PEKIN, Feb. 12.—The note handed to the German Minister by the Minister of Foreign Affairs in reply to Germany's declaration of the resumption of unrestricted submarine warfare was made public to-day. The text of the note in part is as follows:

"The new measures of submarine warfare inaugurated by Germany are imperilling the lives and property of Chinese citizens even more than the measures previously taken, which have already cost China many lives and constitute a violation of international law. The toleration of their application would introduce into international law arbitrary principles incompatible with legitimate intercourse between neutrals and between neutrals and belligerents.

"China therefore, protests energetically to Germany against the measures proclaimed on February 1, and sincerely hopes that the rights of neutral States will be respected and that the said measures will not be carried out. China will be constrained to its profound regret, to sever diplomatic relations. It is unnecessary to add that China's action is dictated by a desire for further peace and the maintenance of international law."

Orders for Sunday and Monday, February 11th and 12th, 1917:

1. Duties—

Next for duty, Tuesday, February 13th, 1917: Lieut. T. W. Quinn.

A. E. Brittain, Lieut.,
Adjutant 247th O. S. Batt., C.E.F.

Mrs. Joseph McCoy, 565 Rogers Street has received the following interesting letter from her son, Pte. Jos. McCoy, who enlisted in the 109th Lindsay Battalion and is now at the front with the 21st Canadians:

France, Jan. 11.

Dear Mother and All,—Just a few lines to let you know I received your two letters and your parcel this week. I got the parcel one night and a couple of nights afterwards I got the letter telling me it was coming. None of the other parcels have come yet. I got a letter from Jim the other night telling me all about the big fire. It certainly must have been awful. Thank God they were spared anyway. Its awful to think of the poor little kiddies who will be left without a father now, and no one hardly to look after them, only their mothers, and with living as high as it is in Canada now. But when you think of may be thousands of similar cases happening in one day out here why that doesn't seem as anything then.

Say that chicken you sent me was certainly all right, and I never think of it but I laugh. When I got those parcels I was in the line, just the place where they come in the best. It was on Christmas eve and I was sitting down in a dugout about twenty feet under the ground, with one of the corporals and a stretcher bearer. (They are both Scotch fellows and I was sitting in between them) when I opened my parcel and spotted the chicken. Well I opened the can and handed it to the corporal to help himself and he would dig out a piece and the other fellow would steal it. Then he would get the can and the corporal would steal his. I was eating chocolates and catching all the chicken that was falling. Then it came my turn and I got a pretty good piece, took a couple of mouthfuls and asked the corporal if he would have some of it, and darned if he didn't take it. I was only fooling him, but he fooled me a whole lot worse. Then the next thing was to give the rest of the boys a piece of cake and they all enjoyed it immensely. Then to finish up the evening I went out to the German trenches to see what they looked like, and Fritz didn't see me at all nice, but the old beggar doesn't worry us any. I don't try for any more medals again. I don't think. I would like to tell you about my little trip over there, but I haven't time to-night. You see I am on guard, and its only a few minutes more until I have to go out, but all I can say it was real good fun while it lasted.

CARD FROM A CANADIAN PRISONER

Mrs. Monks, of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club has received a card from Corp. J. L. Davis, acknowledging receipt of parcel on December 28th. Corporal Davis is a prisoner of war in Germany.

Economy In Coal Urged By Local Dealers

PTE. HENRY KNOWLES a Peterborough boy who is with the 6th Canadian Reserve at East Sandling Camp. He went overseas with the 93rd Battalion.

Situation Remains Acute and Will Likely Continue So For Two Weeks— Factories Assist Each Other By Loans of Car Loads —Some Institutions Face Short Supplies.

PUBLIC SHOULD CO-OPERATE

A special meeting of the City Council has been called this evening to discuss the coal situation.

EARL

The coal situation remains acute. Four or five cars were received by local dealers this morning and are being delivered to customers. If the public will economize in the consumption of coal as much as possible during the next few weeks, buying only for immediate needs, there should be no distress, Mr. Robert Hicks stated to the Examiner to-day, and reviewing the entire situation he strongly urged the co-operation of the public with the dealers in orday that the supplies coming in may be widely distributed, and that no person may be without fuel. Economy in the small sizes, nut and pea coal, is Mr. Hicks' particular advice at this time.

Ald. Weir of the firm of Weir and McCarthy, stated that he had received three cars last week which were sold out at once. To-day he had no coal to sell, although they had big supplies somewhere in Ontario and on the way to Peterborough. St. Peter's school is filled up with a supply that should carry it into April, St. Mary's Convent has enough for ten days or two weeks, but the Sacred Heart school's bin carries only sufficient for three or four days. The Immaculate Conception school burns hard coal and is well provided.

Factories Loan Coal.

The local factories have largely assisted one another by a practice of loaning coal. When several cars would arrive for one company it would turn over a car to some other factory that was short, and when a shipment to the latter concern arrived it would return the loan. In this way the soft coal crisis has been met without any serious affects to the manufacturers.

The Metal Products Company is reported near the end of its present supply, and dealers, it is stated, have only sufficient to cover their contracts.

Reports from other cities in the province indicate that Peterborough has been comparatively well provided, thanks to the foresight of the dealers, who tapped sources that were out of their regular service.

MAJ. GERALD HALL ARRIVES HOME AFTER 18 MONTHS ABSENCE

Return Voyage Was Filled with Excitement—Two Ships Torpedoed

CANADIANS IN ENGLAND

Major Gerald Hall arrived in the city on Friday, after eighteen months spent in England and France.

Major Hall expressed himself greatly impressed by the number of Canadians in England at present. "Everywhere I went," he said, "there were Canadians—the boarding house keepers, the shop-keepers, and the people I met socially were from home; in fact, since arriving in England I had practically no conversation with anyone but Canadians. I can only call to mind talking to two who weren't. As for war you hear more of it here in a day than there in a week."

His voyage out was filled with excitement. The Scotia, on which he sailed, started before the submarine blockade, but two ships in the immediate vicinity of it were torpedoed, one shortly in front and one seventy five miles off. The names of these ships, for military reasons, are withheld. The Scotia started and arrived without convoy and had an exceedingly rough voyage.

PREPARING FOR LIFE.

We see in the public journals of the country an appeal from the Minister of Finance to the people, to "begin now to save money for the next war loan."

It is now rather late to make such an appeal, when the high cost of living—with butter at 50 cents, or thereabouts, per pound; with eggs selling at nearly five cents a piece; with potatoes selling at $2.50 per bag, and only often little children hang round the grocer's cash, and woe betide the gamin who keeps his cap on his head while the Cure prays, for he will inevitably have it knocked off and his ears cuffed for his irreverence.

The Protestant and non-conforming British soldier gradually absorbs some of the temperamental feeling of the more emotional religion of the country in which he is fighting.

The impossible, the unbelievable in all material things has come to pass in this war in two years. All life is upside down. Why, then, should not the impossible and unbelievable in these strenuous days.

We are fighting for our liberties, the liberty to live peacefully at home, pursuing the peaceful course of our lives. Our country, through our government, demands money to help win the fight to keep all these things, and the call to the people to help by contributing to loans should be heeded.

But, as a people, we are ill-prepared to meet such a call. We have not been a saving people—only a few of us. We have not saved money; we have used it on easy living; we have wasted it on foolish pleasures and harmful self-indulgence; and now, when the call comes to save, in order to help save the country, and our liberties, we find that we can't save effectively, and largely because it costs all our income to live, and, above all, we don't know how to save.

The secret of saving involves the secret of right living; and that involves training and practice. We have not been taught to save. We have not been schooled to save. We have been brought up with the example before us of our parents, who spent all they could get their hands upon, and lived as if there were no to-morrow—no future to be provided for—practising the foolish and futile philosophy—"eat, drink, and be merry for to-morrow we die"; whose only gospel which they righteously observed was, "take no thought for the morrow; sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

And "the evil" is upon them and us to-day. The government calls upon us to save to lend, and we can't save, because we haven't learned how in the true sense—as a matter of principle and habit; and because it takes most and all, and in some cases more than our available means, to live.

But even under the adverse conditions we can save. We can economise in a hundred ways we have not thought of when the necessity was less urgent. To do this involves a sacrifice of appetite and desire, and the practice of the strictest economy.

Our soldier lads are fighting hard battles for our sakes, for our country, and for its future, as a worth-having heritage, to hand down to our children. They are fighting for our future; and we should look forward and make provision of insuring the future.

We see now how we could better serve our country if we had been more saving, more thrifty. If we are wise, we shall profit by our remissness. We spend thousands upon thousands, in the aggregate, the country over, to teach our children, our future men and women, to make their way in the world — to make money and amass wealth.

But we omit the one thing needful—in the great majority of our schools—to teach the children how to make the best, the proper, the legitimate use of the money we spend our millions to help them to make.

The best way to impart this indispensable knowledge, to make our future men and women good, frugal, thrifty and valuable citizens, is the establishment and operation of the Penny Bank Sytsem in connection with our schools.

Of course, there are objections to this—it will interfere with the curriculum, it will interfere with the work of the teachers—it will interfere with cramming for examinations, the heads of the children with tags and scraps of knowledge of a multiplicity of subjects that have no practical bearing upon practical success of their future lives—that, as we who have passed through the process, know, are speedily forgotten.

Nothing is taught in our schools that is not good to know, if it is taught well enough to be remembered. But there is a great deal taught that is not retained, and if retained is not bread-and-butter-making knowledge.

No one undervalues knowledge; the more of it the better. But it seems wise to use our schools mainly to help school pupils to get on when they come to take their place in the world.

If we, by practice, teach the indispensable lesson—implant the principles of saving and thrift, we shall do more than in any other way fill a great need.

Everybody, almost, but some theoretical educationists, are of the opinion and, in practical life have a knowledge of the fact, that our public school curriculum is over-loaded, and over-loaded with subjects—excellent in themselves—but not a means to help the future man or woman to make his or her way in the world.

If a generation ago we had had Penny Banks in our schools, we should have had to-day a generation of citizens who would know what saving and thrift mean, and would have been equipped with means to not only cope with latter day difficulties of living, but would have been able to meet the call of the Finance Minister to save; save, and contribute to means to help Canada do more fully her share in winning a war fought for the salvation of liberty and the happiness of humanity.

The statesman, the school administrator or any other administrator, who looks only to the present, who does not prepare in the broadest way for the future, is blindly groping in the rut of routine and perfunctory performance of illy-appreciated duty.

INFORMATION WANTED.

A few days ago a New England grocer purchased from a commission firm a barrel of apples, for which he paid $6.50. On removing the head of the barrel he found, among the top layers, this note:

"I got $2.50 for this barrel of apples; how much did you have to pay?"

This is a companion incident to that of the Prince Edward Island farmer, who put a note in a bag of potatoes, stating that he got 85 cents per bag for them; and the purchaser in Toronto paid $2.50.

In both cases there was an increase in the price of the purchases of three times the price paid to the producer. The information wanted by the public, who have to meet such conditions, is what influences operated to cause such an increase of cost of a staple articles of living. Freight charges would not altogether account for it; nor legitimate profit. The conclusion is that even in this time of scarcity and high prices, somebody is "soaking" the public. One does not object to a fair profit; but it is that unfair profit—a 'robber's toll—that somebody is exacting. We need to be put under martial law in regard to the food situation. Under martial law everything is subordinated to the demands of the war situation, or the needs of the state in that connection. Martial law or its equivalent, the strong hand and the strong arm of the government, could make interests, especially over-reaching private interests, subordinate to the need of the state. This may not be an easy thing to do; but if it is not done, or something else to similar effect, our authorities must confess themselves impotent to discharge their duty towards the public from whom they derive their trust.

SIMPLY "CHEEK."

The Journal-Press, of Ottawa, the official organ of the Borden Government, calls upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier to repudiate Mr. Lanctot, of Laprairie, on account of what the latter said in the House of Commons. In debating the 500 million dollar war appropriation bill, Mr. Lancelot said, as reported in Hansard:

I wish to register my protest against the ruinous methods employed by this government in connection with the expenditure of the war, so far as Canada is concerned. * * * * We are now facing a new demand for $500,000,000. This is going too far altogether."

The Government organ demands that for this Sir Wilfrid Laurier should repudiate the speaker, who is classed as a Quebec Liberal. The Journal-Press says:

"And so the institutions of this country, which permit men like Roch Lanctot to hold a seat in Parliament are to be preserved by the blood and the toil and the sacrifices of other men."

This gentleman is the same man who said we didn't owe the British anything; who "had no use for England and the English;" who declared we "had to shoot holes through the flag to breathe the air of liberty." Yet with these sentiments unrepented, he has a seat in the Cabinet, not only unrepudiated, but petted and encouraged by Sir Robert Borden. Why should not the Government organ demand from Sir Robert Borden his repudation as well as that of the two other members of the Cabinet, whose Nationalism, now and in the past, has done more than any other one thing, or hundreds of them, to kill recruiting in Quebec? Its damnable corrupting the Liberal Quebecer who cult may even have been the cause of corrupting a Liberal Quebecer, who has offeneded the organ. The situation is not arguable and the shortest way to deal with it effectively and pointedly, is to adapt the language of the Journal to its own contention:

"And so the institutions and the liberties which permit men like Blondin, Sevigny, et al.—anti-British Nationalists—unpurged of treasonable utterances, to hold seats in a Canadian Parliament, and in a Canadian government, are to be preserved by the blood and the toil and the sacrifice of other men."

Under the circumstances, the demand of the Journal-Press for the repudiation of a solitary back-bencher, for an expression of individual opinion, while Nationalist wickedness and treason an enthroned in high places. is—well, simply, "cheek."

Price of Tea Is Advancing

Stocks of Tea Are Light in This Country—The Markets at a Glance

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

The outstanding development in the grocery market during the week has been in the tea market. Advances were recorded in the primary market in London of three cents per pound, and the local market followed upward two or three cents per pound. There was eager competition for existing stocks. Tea importers bought back from wholesalers stocks of tea at higher prices than quotations were being made previously to the retail trade. Package teas have advanced. Stocks of teas are light in this country. Shipping facilities in getting teas from India and Ceylon is one of the biggest factors in sending prices upward. Package teas are also in firm market and advances are anticipated in these lines. Sugar held steady in an uncertain market. There is considerable speculation as to the effect the German submarine policy may have on the shipment of raw sugars from the Island of Cuba. Business in sugar in Canada at the present time is on a hand-to-mouth basis. Flour remained unchanged during the week. Some fine samples of Spanish table fins have reached the Toronto market. These are the first to be brought to this market. Some cheap rice was offered to the wholesale trade in Toronto during the week through a Chicago brokerage firm who wanted to unload. This did not in reality reflect the condition in the primary market where the price is firm. Shelled walnuts from California also put in an appearance in Toronto for the first time. Although dark in appearance, they are of fine flavour.

Both dressed and live hogs were firmer in price and meats products were accordingly in firm tone. Creamery butter inclined to a weak market. Storage eggs are about cleaned out. Supplies of these have been exhausted about a month earlier than usual. About the only relief in sight is a larger production of new-laid eggs. With mild weather favouring the hens, this production would be reasonably sure. Cheese is in firm market. An advance has been recorded in one of the well-known brands of cigars. Another manufacturer of condensed and evaporated milk has increased the price. Business has been fairly good during the week.

Metal Markets.

Hardware prices continue to advance and the trade generally looks for continued high prices for another year. The demand for iron and steel is as insistent as ever. Ingot metals have scored big advances in price during the past two weeks. Antimony for instance has doubled in price, while lead, tin and copper have gone to higher levels. Freight embargoes placed by the railways on shipments east of Toronto have seriously affected the trade, both wholesalers and retailers being greatly inconvenienced. Business continues good. One large hardware jobber reports an increase of 25 p.c. in January business over the corresponding month of last year. All paint materials are firm in price, and linseed oil has advanced 15c. per gallon during the week. Among the many lines on which advances in price have occurred during the week are: washing machines, jack chain, auger and car bits, padlock, Stillson wrenches, steel game traps, coal oil, corn brooms, bolts and nuts. Hardware manufacturers are badly handicapped owing to the scarcity of raw materials and efficient labour.

American-Built Submarine For Spanish Government

There has recently been completed at Quincy, Mass., by the Electric Boat Co., a submarine, which represents the latest development of the art of submarine building in the United States. The vessel is about two hundred feet long, and the company states that in her size and dimensions she may be compared to the German submarine "U-53," which very suggestively put into Newport last summer before starting out to raid shipping off the Atlantic coast. The company claims that she is entitled to be reckoned as of the 800-ton type, although it seems to us that she is scarcely large enough to fulfill the requirements which the experts of the United States Navy Department consider to be indispensable in a sea-going submarine of this displacement. The speed of the vessel is 15 knots when running under her oil engines at the surface, and 10½ knots when using her motors in the submerged condition. On the surface her radius of action is stated to be over 5,000 sea-miles, and submerged she can travel 100 miles without coming to the surface. For running on the surface and for charging her batteries, she is equipped with two 600-horse-power Diesel engines, which were built at the Groton plant of the company. The armament of the boat consists of four torpedo tubes mounted in the bow, and she also carried a 3-inch rapid-fire gun which is so mounted that it can be used not only against surface craft, but can be elevated to repel air craft attacks. This gun is placed immediately in front of the conning tower. It is steered electrically through a comparatively small lever, which for size may be compared with the throttle on the steering wheel of an automobile. All cooking is done electrically. Great care has been used to use all space to the best possible advantage and insure against any tendency to crowd or cramp. It is very near perfection, according to present standards.

Rather Ill-timed Little Jokes Of Nationalist Postmaster-General

Mr. Blondin, who admits that "in a jocular way" he told the people of Dorchester that if conscription came they could evade it by trekking across the border into the United States, has signalized his promotion to the portfolio of Postmaster-General, by restoring "Berlin" to the postal map of Canada. Of course this "shooting holes in Kitchener" is only another instance of Mr. Blondin's irrepressible jocularity. On taking office what so irresistibly funny as to rescind an order given by one's predecessor? It is so clear and definite a way of telling all and sundry "I am boss now." And if one can follow up the new instruction with a patronizing statement that one's predecessor, through ignorance made a mistake, how impressive it is, to be stampped at the outset as a monument of wisdom! Especially is this sort of thing gratifying if one's past happens to be the past of Canada's present Postmaster-General.

When the war had reached a stage when the name of the German capital became a reproach to the civilized world, the English-speaking residents of Berlin, Ontario, began to agitate for a change in the name of the Canadian city. Naturally, there was opposition. We, ourselves, were not very enthusiastic about the necessity for a change. But the residens of Berlin grew to hate the name and th result was that Kitchener was chosen by vote of the electors of the city after a four days' ballot, in May last. By royal proclamation dated September 1st last the new name came into force. Mr. Casgrain, then Postmaster-General, issued an order that all mail matter addressed "Berlin, Ont," be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office. The lovers of the old German name however, would not let the matter rest there and it is this order that Mr. Blondin has obligingly revoked. One of the reasons he assigned was that Mr. Casgrain had acted "on his own initiative and without consulting his colleagues and officials." Since then, we are told, the mails have been flooded with matter addressed "Berlin" from German sympathizers in Canada and elsewhere.

As we have already remarked, we were not wildly enthusiastic to have the name changed but, once discarded, it surely should never have received any official recognition. After four months of disuse, in postal and other matters, it was a grave mistake to drag "Berlin" again out of the discard into which it had been flung. The Dominion and the Ontario Provincial Governments should see to it that the honoured name of Kitchener, once chosen by the people and officially recognized, should be the only name of the thriving manufacturing city of Western Ontario.

In the meantime it is just as well to remember the most humorous of Mr. Blandin's little jokes:

Shooting holes in the Union Jack;

Advising Dorchester people to evade conscription, if it came, by skipping across the border;

Some joker.—Montreal Herald.

JAPAN TO FORBID TRADING WITH CITIZENS OF GERMANY

TOKIO, Feb. 12.—An order by the government prohibiting trade between Japan and citizens of the Central Powers will be issued soon, it is expected here.

Japan, unlike other of the Entente Allies, has taken no action to prevent commercial intercourse between her nationals and the citizens of the Central Powers. Students of Far Eastern affairs since the beginning of the European war have regarded her treatment of alien enemies as establishing a precedent in international law. Japan has taken the most energetic steps to safeguard private property rights of Germans in Japan and to protect the person of non-combatants. When Japan sent her ultimatum to Germany Baron Koto publicly invited German merchants to remain in Japan and to carry on their business as before the beginning of hostilities.

In June 1915, Great Britain requested Japan to break off commercial relations with Germany and her allies. Japan on July 1, 1915, informed Great Britain that she was unable to accede to the request. It was said then than the decision of the Japanese government had been reached after officials had conferred with leading business interests, and, in part, because of the fact that the laws of Japan at that time did not permit of the enforcement of such a measure.

NOTICE!

GARBAGE COLLECTION

Difficulty has been caused in the collection of ashes by the receptacles being too large or awkward in shape for handling and by not being strong enough. They should not be of more than two cubic feet capacity or weigh more than 75 pounds when full, and should be sufficiently strong. Neither should they be too small, for this unnecessarily increases the time required in handling and the expense. No other material or refuse shall be mixed with ashes. Table and kitchen waste must be drained and wrapped in paper. All refuse must be placed out for collection before the collector calls.

Householders are asked to carefully observe the regulations, so as to avoid unnecessary trouble for all concerned, and to co-operate to make the work successful.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WITH THE CURLERS

DISTRICT CUP GAMES.

Peterborough's entries in the District Cup games that begin in Toronto to-morrow left this afternoon to be present for the draw to-night. They are composed as follows:

Jas. Metheral, Percy Fitzgerald, E. G. Patterson, Alex. C. Kay (skip).

R. L. Dobbin, A. W. Archibald, Ray P. Best, W. D. Campbell (skip).

These are two strong rinks that should give a good account of themselves in this competition, which ranks next to the Ontario Tankard. Once they hit into a winning stride they will go far before they are stopped, and they left with the determination, at least, of bringing home the silverware.

LONGBOAT RE-APPEARS.

When Tom Longboat, the famous Onondaga long-distance runner, disappeared from the 180th (Toronto Sportsmen) Battalion he disappeared completely. Not even his intimate friends knew of his whereabouts. A private communication from England on Saturday conveyed the intimation that the Indian was in the 107th Battalion of Canadians which is now engaged in agricultural work in rural England.

On Saturday, according to a Canadian Associated Press despatch, Longboat ran in a military race at Woodford, England. He finished third, beating all other Canadian entrants. Ted Wood of the 180th, holder of the American professional record for ten miles, was fourth; Percy Selken of the Canadian Grenadiers, also a former Toronto professional, was fifth, and "Hec" Phillips, the well-known Toronto Y.M.C.A. athlete was in twentieth position.

SHRINES AND MIRACLES

(BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS)

Among the first and most lasting of all the impressions which crowd on Tommy when he goes to France is the region of the French nation visualized before him.

As the troop ship goes slowly up the river to Rouen a French priest stands on the bank and with uplifted hands blesses the men as they pass. Often little children hang round this Cassock, and woe betide the gamin who keeps his cap on his head while the Cure prays, for he will inevitably have it knocked off and his ears cuffed for his irreverence.

The Protestant and non-conforming British soldier gradually absorbs some of the temperamental feeling of the more emotional religion of the country in which he is fighting.

The impossible, the unbelievable in all material things has come to pass in this war in two years. All life is upside down. Why, then, should not the impossible and unbelievable in spiritual things also come to pass? The man who in days gone by found such refuge in "it stands to sense," now shakes his head wisely and says, "funny thing, but—"

All people, when they come under stern discipline and are obliged to practice obedience are as children again, and that is why soldiers and sailors show a peculiar and charming simplicity of heart, why there is a pathos about them that appeals to all who stop at home. And so the ground is ready made for new religious feeling, for belief in the miraculous, for the absorption of superstitions, for the desire for something tangible, for some comfort to hold to in times of trouble and above all for hope.

It was the desire for hope and comfort that made the people turn to Joan of Arc during the first days of the Hun invasion. Their firm belief in the guardian angel powers of "the maid" helped them through many hard days. She appeared above Nancy. She led the troops in their successful attack in Alsace. She stood between the advancing Germans and the retreating allies, and the stories of her protection of the martyred towns of which Gerbeviller is best known, have been accepted by bishops as absolutely authentic. Then came the miracle of the preservation of her statue outside Rheims Cathedral. While shells destroyed everything round about, the gilden figure on the horse remained untouched and the French stuck the tri-colour on her outstretched sword.

Who started the belief that the fall of the statue of the Virgin and child from the Cathedral at Albert would come about on the day when peace is proclaimed, nobody in France cares, but all France believes. Most significant of all signs from the British soldiers' point of view is the preservation of the wayside crosses and crucifixes. Praying places on the road were before this war looked upon as wholly Roman Catholic; now they have become part of the universal religion apart from all political and artificial divisions.

Marvellous stories are told of the preservation of women and children and wounded soldiers who have gone to the shrines for sanctuary. And it is primarily and wholly because of the repetition of these stories in soldiers letters home, and their half-shy suggestions when home on leave that 'it would not be half a bad thing to see one hereabouts, so you could find a bit of comfort thinking of us," that has led to the erection of shrines with an honour list, in the streets of London and all over England.

Other things have come, too. Women when they receive the "effects" of their sons and their husbands have found little crosses, a rosary or perhaps a saintly relic, the gift of some sympathetic French peasant or Red Cross nurse, little bits of religion which have been held to as a mascot and having helped some soldier through many bad hours have now come to his relations with the message of some spiritual life, of some belief in the world where all is not destruction.

Men who have seen their comrades with such relics have written home asking for rosaries to be sent to them.

A doctor working at a base hospital said he had great belief in the miracles of faith due to the possession of some treasured mascot. He had several instances to quote where wounded men had said: "A Sister in a French hospital gave me this; it's a mascot, give it to me in my hand"; and belief in the treasure had given just that stimulus to the mind which was necessary for recovery.

The outstanding point about all this revival of religious feeling it that it has come about through no planned mission, through no scheme of proselytising. Man has gone back to the primative, and while this is the time of greatest national destruction, it seems also the time of the most extraordinary mental construction.

The men are learning much while they are soldiering. They will come back and expect great things of us; we cannot go on in the old way. Our duty is not to disappoint them.

British Take Steps To Prevent German Gold Leaving U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—The latest move in the manipulations by which Great Britain and Germany are struggling for the financial whiphand in the war through the New York money market went to the credit of England.

The British Government, it was learned on highest authority, has cabled its agents here to warn all British steamship companies against accepting for shipment to South America gold which, the Government believes, may have come in large part from the unloading of securities here by Germany.

For the last few days, it was pointed out in well-informed banking quarters, a large volume of sales of American securities for the account of Germany had been going on. Not only local sales of securities deposited here for German account were referred to yesterday, but also heavy transactions through Holland.

In the opinion of banking authorities in close touch with financial relations between this country and Germany, the liquidation of American securities in German hands was due to the uncertainty concerning the entrance of the United States into the war. This liquidation, it was expected, would go on until further definite action in the relations between the two countries.

TO TIE UP GERMAN CASH

Discussion arose as to whether the money deposited here to the credit of Berlin might be tied up indefinitely in case of conflict with the Central Powers, much as England withheld German securities in London at the outbreak of the struggle. The inference drawn was that the same question had arisen in the minds of Teuton agents here. The probabilities, however, were not believed to indicate that similar drastic action would be taken here toward German investors under like circumstances.

It was estimated that the total German holdings in this country of American securities which might be affected, came close to $50,000,000 before the selling of the last few days. Calculations were made to the effect that there was on deposit in this city for the account of German interests upward of $5,000,000.

It was noted that yesterday about $1,000,000 in gold was withdrawn from the sub-treasury for shipment to South America. The day before one bank took out $200,000 and another $500,000. In each case yesterday it was represented that the shipments had no connection with Germany, the transactions being based principally on exchange. Statements were also made that the gold withdrawn yesterday had been arranged for shipment several weeks ago, when war risk rates were more favourable.

SEVERAL SHIPMENTS MADE

It was acknowledged, however, that several shipments of the metal had probably been made in the last few weeks for German account. A circumstance frequently mentioned in banking circles was that it is a comparatively easy matter to hide the firm which shipped the funds through an exchange deal. In all probability, the impression was, some shipments have already been made by bankers who had no idea as to whether the gold was for German account.

The case with which the original nature of shipments could be disguised created a doubt in the mind of some financiers as to the way in which Great Britain would determine whether shipments were actually for German account. Judging by the communication with agents yesterday the British Government decided that the best way out of this difficulty lay in instructing all British steamers plying between here and South America to accept no more bullion as cargo for the Latin republics.

TO DEMAND CREDENTIALS.

To make assurance doubly sure orders were transmitted to the British cruisers patrolling off New York harbor to demand credentials from American ships, showing that gold shipments are in no way connected with Germany.

The purpose of this step is apparently twofold. It not only aims at hampering Germany's disposal of her American securities and their conversion into cash which would be available in South America, but it is also believed to insure that as much gold be kept here as possible, so that the money market may be kept favourable to any British borrowing operation and munitions purchases.

An Address By Commissioner Mapp At the Temple

His Honour Judge Huycke Occupied the Chair in the Afternoon

Peterborough has had many distinguished visitors in Salvation Army circles in years that have gone by, but possibly none so well received or alluded to than Commissioner Mapp, who was in the city over the week end.

A large crowd gathered on Saturday night to hear him lecture on India and China and enjoyed it very much. Magistrate D. W. Dumble ably filled the chair to the satisfaction of all concerned and voiced by Brigadier Morehen, the Divisional Commander. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer on Chief Howard's motion, seconded by Adjt. McElheney and carried by an almost deafening hand clap by the audience.

Sunday morning at eleven o'clock was a feast of rich things through the Commissioner.

Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. was the lecture on Japan from where the Commissioner has lately come. The country's history, population, products, scenery, customs, social and religious, were all explained in detail, and the magnificent work of the missionaries were eulogized by the Commissioner, who addressed the Temple full of people for over an hour.

His Honour Judge Huycke, in his own pleasing way, made an excellent chairman indeed, and was thanked heartily by Brigadier Morehen, Divisional Commander.

A very hearty and vociferous vote of thanks was moved by Captain J. H. Burnham, M.P., and seconded by Alderman Dobbin, in the afternoon, in his own original way to the lecture.

Among those who were present on the platform besides the chairman, Judge Huycke, was J. H. Burnham, M.P., Alderman Saunders, Alderman Duncan, chairman of the Reception committee of the City Council, Alderman Dobbin, Alderman Worth, Alderman McIntyre, Mr. G. N. Gordon.

At the evening meeting at 7 p.m. the building was full and the Commissioner's sermon was very riveting and convincing. The truths dealt with had such an effect upon the audience as to produce the splendid result, visibly, of twenty seeking the Saviour of Souls.

Female Help For The Farm

LINDSAY, Feb. 12—Most of the farmers are at their wit's end to know where their help is to come from during this year. "It is utterly impossible to get a man," said a Manvers farmer. "I have made enquiries in Millbrook, Bowmanville, Oshawa and in Lindsay, but I failed to find one man willing to go farming. I have been in Lindsay all day and visited the different hotels where we usually used to pick up idle men, but there are none to be found now. Times have changed, as the only men I met in the hotels were sick men, or travelers on business."

In 1914 the wages of a farm laborer ran from $14 per month to $25 or $30 on the average, now $35 to $40 will be paid.

"I don't care what the cost is if I can get a man," said a Mariposa farmer. "I cannot let my place go to waste."

A Somerville farmer said he took his crop off last year all by himself. He had one son and he went to war. "I must have a hired man this year" he said, "or let the farm go to waste as I am not able to work it alone."

It is a regular wail from the average agriculturist in regard to where help is to be procured.

"The recruiting has taken all the young men and emigrant boys from our settlement," said a Verulam farmer, and the labour situation is a hard problem to solve." This man said he seeded a large acreage to meadow last year and would endeavour to go in more for stock-raising.

"It will devolve upon the female population to help out as they used to do in the early history of Canada," said a Fenelon tiller of the soil. "When women did the binding, and shocking, while the men cut the grain with sickles.

One man and his wife could reap and bind half an acre each day, but of course the acreage sown was diminutive compared to what we have now. It is compulsory that some measures must be undertaken to help the farmer and if necessary business men and office clerks should turn out to assist their country friends.

Is Conscription Necessary?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The essence of war is action; therefore, our business is to act. Nobody should realize the wisdom of action and the folly of words now more than the whole British Empire. It is now a delusion, to say time is on our side. It was true at the beginning when we were unprepared, but it is true no longer. Time is an advantage to the weaker side, not to the stronger, and we now are the stronger. We may say we can last out longer than the Germans; but need the war be prolonged until we are ruined, and the flower of our manhood decimated, and I believe the chief reason that would cause prolongation of the war to be the laggardly mobilization of the whole of our national resources. This factor has operated adversely in the past, and it is our duty to see that it is not in evidence again. The presence of a far-seeing, strong control ensures that the nation is mobilized militarily, industrially and economically in such a manner as to give the best results for a minimum wastage and this, I am convinced, can only be accomplished by the mobilization of the whole man-power of Canada. The successful prosecution of the war demands a determined, clear-cut policy designed to bring us to our goal in the shortest space of time. Such a policy cannot turn aside to study the grievances of a few. Such grievances are bound to arise. Almost anything can be forgiven, but weakness and indecision. It is impossible for any man to say what will happen next spring. The Germans may start an offensive in an unexpected zone, which would deflect a considerable part of our objective. We must abandon pleasant illusions and settle down to grim realities. Not very long ago Sir William Robertson was telling Britain that we want more men; we want them now, and in due course we shall want all the men who can be spared; Canada's reply should be "conscription." The enemy is doing this thing. Are we less patriotic than the Hun. Any day you can see men doing unessential work that should be working on munitions. There is little diminution in the luxury shops, which absorb an enormous amount of labour, which ought to be at the disposal of the government. Failing to enforce conscription must tend to prolong the war, and every year the war lasts means so much more loss of life, more waste, endangering the whole economic structure of the country. Our great Dominion has taken the cudgel in support of the motherland, and her great and good has principles. The call of the fathers gone forth, our truest, and gone best have volunteered; a lull or forth. There it at past is the reasdelay in recruiting, bull dog spirit son? Has the Br we left with the spent itself? If, they are undesirsluggards? Credit to any country. ables, and, therefore, is the only, Conscript reach the actual slacker. solution carried, physically fit, I be- The when fully mobilized, will fill, her promised quota. Married men mobilized for the industrial work, until called upon in their proper ratio. Married men are not the most economical subjects for the firing line. Should the supreme sacrifice be paid the wife and family are left dependent upon the state. This uneconomic risk is not necessary at present, though I am fully convinced that the married men, as a whole, would welcome conscription. I would relieve him of the responsibility of having taken the step which in his heart and soul, he desires to do, but could not feel justified when he looks at the several small, loving faces saying daddy. The real men of Canada do not hold their wives responsible for their non-enlistment, but his own want of knowledge of the proper time when he should take the vital step between love and duty. We, true members of the glorious British Empire know our women. The woman's consent is given though it breaks her heart, but as it is intelligence and not foolhardy bravery that will win this war, so it is intelligence that must rule the married men under the present voluntary system. Conscription relieves individual responsibility to collective responsibility and unity of purpose is strength of purpose. With regard to the single, physically fit, I ask, is it a lack of knowledge of the history of our great Dominion, of which they claim an heritage, that they have failed to come forward; are we willing to hand over to our enemies what our noble pioneer forefathers suffered so much privation, hardship and death for that we, their grandchildren, might be inheritors of this splendid country which is pretty safe to prophesy will, in due time, be the heart centre of the commerce of the British Empire, if we mobilize its resources and strain every effort, etc., bring about a victorious end of this war with its Hun fiendishness of action; As stated in the beginning of this sketch, the essence of war is action; get the so we should waste no time; conman power mobilized, man from the men power, for 20. Put the government script every available man of them; disage of 16 years, where their services tribute the most valuable to the state. will be of more advocate an equal rate of pay for the soldier overseas as the industrial worker, who stays at home, risk and hardship. To my mind is a crying shame that the most and best citizen risking his life and suffering trench hardships to save the stay-at-home, should receive the minimum rate of pay. There is something wrong with a government that permits it. In the highest interests of humanity and for the upholding and safe keeping of the true British ideals, of which we are so proud, we must put away sentiment, and face the true facts; show a sound judgment; put aside party spirit (which at the present time might be more harmful than the German 45 centimetre Howitzer) bring in conscription and thus speed up the end with the great saving of human life and suffering.

There must and will be victory for the Allies.

KAISER'S WORD TO GREEK KING

SALONIKI, Feb. 12.—The Kaiser, according to information which has reached the Greek Provisional Government, has sent a significant message to his brother-in-law in which he tells King Constantine that he cannot co-operate with him or come to his aid against the allies in Macedonia. "All I ask of you now," he says, "is that you shall keep your throne."

This word of Imperial advice has more than casual importance. It throws light on several matters. For one thing, it sounds like the dirge of Germany's schemes, which undoubtedly were real and active up to a few weeks ago, for making an attempt with the co-operation of the Greeks to clear the Balkans of their foes. For another thing, it explains the docility with which King Constantine is evacuating his troops from northern Greece in to the neutral internment camp prescribed for them by the allies in Peloponnesus. But byond its immediate application this expression of the Kaiser's personal desire to see his brother-in-law still upon the throne of Greece after the war, is a foreshadowing of one of Germany's schemes for the future. Why should the Kaiser trouble to urge his kinsman to a course that self-interest would naturally dictate unless along the same lines lay aspirations of his own? This Imperial message, in fact, fits in with possible German plans after the war, which those in touch with Greek affairs are beginning to perceive clearly. If the terms of peace leave to Germany so much as a brain o intrigue with, Greece will be in the field to which she will instinctively turn. Greece forms a part of the middle Europe idea, the partial realization of which Germany has tasted during the war. Her long, indented coastline gives her naval importance disproportionate to her size. Her position at the very gates of Egypt and the East has considerable strategeic value. If Germany had won complete sway in the Balkans during the war she would have made Saloniki a Mediterranean Kiel.

EDITOR BARES PRISON RECORD

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Philip F. Franklin, forty-eight years old, went to Gaithersburg, Md., a village not far from Washington, several months ago looking for opportunities to make his future home. He found a newspaper for sale, the Gaithersburg Journal, a weekly publication. He bought it, rented a little house and brought his wife and young son to the village. They were happy.

Mr. Franklin worked hard. Mrs. Franklin made many friends. The little boy went to school. Mr. Franklin soon became one of the most prominent citizens of the village. Strangers came to Gaithersburg occasionally to see Mr. Franklin. He received them at the Journal office. They were men, and Mr. Franklin explained that they were friends from another part of the State.

Everything went well with the Franklins, so far as the public knew, until several weeks ago, when Mr. Franklin announced to the authorities and published an article in his newspaper saying that he had been robbed of $980 in cheques. The cheques, he explained, had been in his office.

Three Boys Arrested.

The officials of Montgomery county, in which Gaithersburg is located, set out to find the robbers. Suspicion rested on three boys, Beverly and Frederick Gray and Clifton Day, when the authorities learned that they had called at the Journal office one day and left town mysteriously the next. They were arrested and taken to Rockville, Md., the county seat of Montgomery county, for trial.

Mr. Franklin was called as the first witness in the Rockville police court, as the prosecutor believed it necessary to prove first that a theft had been committed.

"Those boys are not guilty," Mr. Franklin began. "There has been no robbery."

"I told the story to hold off blackmailers," he said. "I have been in prison and the men who have been hounding me for money are former convicts who know my record.

"It would add nothing to the story to tell the nature of the crime for which I served my term. I served four years for a crime for which I was convicted when I was thirty-one.

"Since my liberation I have led an upright, righteous life and tried to be a Christian. I have been honourable and honest, and shall always regret the error of my young life.

Work Long to Redeem Himself.

"Determined to redeem myself I went to Wilmington, Del., and worked hard, long and faithfully. Able to save sufficient money I came to marry and take care of the girl I had been year or two later the little home along and my wife and I were after my happy.

"It was not many years before convicts considered liberation that I was doing found me in what was not making fortunate circumstances by blackmail for fairly well, and of my standing enough money. I loved my home and family and could not bear to have in the community near and dear to me blasted by the disclosures which I have been threatened to make. In an hour of weakness, based on pride, I succumbed to their demands for money.

"This started the trouble which I have been having ever since every other ten years.

"They followed me were never to Prospect. Many times demanded place I have been times when satisfied. But the last penny I more. They got the more they they exacted.

Had Used Worse Story.

"I went from town to town in which I would find me. They set to manufacture a great worse story than the truth. They to make me believe they could anything about a former convict the world would believe it. I paid them to keep their lying mouths shut.

"They have been after me in Gaithersburg since October and have gotten $700 from me since I became editor of the Journal. Recently they came to me again with blackmailing demands.

"To make them believe I had no money, I manufactured the story that some one had entered my office and stolen $930 in checks from me. No such theft ever was committed. I made this story up so the blackmailers would see it or hear it and believe I was a poor man who had just been robbed."

The three boys were released. Mr. Franklin will tell his story in the next issue of his paper.

Lieut. Hubbs Describes The Manner in Which the Peterboro' Boys Manned the Guns

Captured Officer Refers to a Number of Peterboro' Boys Who Figured In Last Year's Activity—Lieut. Matthews Was Among Them—Interesting Account of an Attack by the Germans.

A member of the Examiner staff has received the following interesting letter from Lieut. Fred Hubbs, son of Mr. C. E. Hubbs of this city. Lieut. Hubbs is now a prisoner of war interned in Switzerland. The letter, which reads as follows refers to the activity of a number of Peterborough boys:

Murren, Switzerland, Jan. 15.

It is about a year ago I wrote you from a soft seat in a London hotel on the day after I saw the Peterborough boys of the 8th C.M.R. march out of Bramshott Camp for Flanders. I knew then that I was due to join them soon up front, but a mistake of an official at the port of landing in France sidetracked me to another corps for a short time and I did some work around Plogstreete and Messines before joining them in the same unit, but we all met again finally, on the side of the road the day we moved into the salient, and if they were not in my direct command, as we had hoped to be when we left Canada, we were at least all in the same battalion. For three months up in that cockpit we had more good luck than falls to the average soldier in Flanders, and casualties were away down considering the work we had to do. On the morning of June 2nd, most of us had been taking our morning nap after going all night, when the Bosh opened on us with everything he had or could bring up. This was on a front of a mile, to the left of, and front of, and to the right of Zillebeke. The Pats had the left, the first C.M.R. the centre and us (the 4th C.M.R.) the right, and on either flank of this line was an untenable gap of about three hundred yards, in low ground. The 5th C.M.R. held part of the support trenches just in rear and the 2nd C.M.R. some others. What was behind the Pats I don't know. However, he came at us with all calibres and trench mortars, commencing on our front at about 8 a.m., though some of the Pat's boys tell me he was a bit earlier there. I was awakened about 8.45 by the rust on the corrugated iron roof in my dugout shaking down in my eyes from vibration of the explosions, and got out and had a look around. They were coming pretty fast then and most of our wire was gone and the parapet in many places, and soon after this Gen. Williams was wounded on our front, and Gen. Mercer turned over but not hurt. About 10 a.m. the German stuff was coming over our front at the rate of 120 a minute (I held a watch on it), and it was just one roar of explosions and trenches and parapets going up everywhere We could do nothing but keep busy with shovel and dig one another out and help those who were hit, and you can imagine if it is a matter of pride to those of us who are left to know the way every one of the boys buckled in to help one another. Well this kept up until about 1 p.m. or a little after. I will leave it to you how much was left of us. Then the Bosh raised his curtain of fire behind us to prevent support coming up, and got around our flanks and our front as well. I was hit somewhere around 10 a.m and crawled to a dressing station considerably mussed up, but I heard my guns open up from inside the station and know by that what was going on. Our boys got their rifles i.e. what was left of men and rifles, and decided to give Fritz a run for his money anyway. It was at least twenty to one against us. A German senior officer told one of our senior officers who was with me in the exchange station in Constance, that they (the Bosh) had three divisions and 25,000 shells to make sure of us, to say nothing of trench mortars, etc. It was a foregone conclusion as far as our fate was concerned. They got my guns, and all my gunners but three, in about five minutes, including Ira Bradley from Peterborough, who was on No. 4 gun, and though the boys went to it as good any one ever did, they had so many on to them that they were soon wore down and had to quit. How they could fight the way they did, after that four hours of terrific shelling was simply wonderful, as most of them must have been half dazed at least from concussion and explosions, being buried, and digging one another out. The Boches said that they never expected to find anyone living in the trenches, and came over with their bayonets fixed. Added to all this previously mentioned they blew a mine in our front line just as they advanced. Some of those in support got out. I heard weeks after about Capt. Coleman fighting this way out. Sergt. Randal told me in Stuttgart that he had seen some of our boys retiring in good order and holding the Bosh off but it seemed too good to be true, but when I heard who it was that engineered it, the believing was easy. Well, Fritz picked up the pieces, that is all that was there, and got some of our chaps to his own line that afternoon. Those of us who were helpless laid where we were. They carried me over next day at noon, after our counter attack stopped for the day, and I bid goodbye to the war as a combatant. I met Darkman and Drummond in Stuttgart, where we were all in hospital, but they were the only ones of the old 8th crowd from Peterborough with me, although I had Weatherup (died) from Barrie, O'Neill, Kingston, Jodoin (Ottawa) Beadle, Toronto (now interned here with me), Randall, interned (Chateau D'Olp), Sprague (Belleville) and also several from the Pats and 1st C.M.R.

On June 2nd our artillery did not come back, except one battery of 18's, I believe under Matthews of Peterborough. These went to it from the start but what could they do to cover that front. I heard later that they got Matthews during the show, but if everyone had been working like he was there would have been a poor chance for Mr. Fritz to have crossed No Man's Land, and if he had crossed he could never have got back. I saw three stunts just the same as this he tried to pull off not more than a month previous on or near my front, and our guns put him home every time. However it is the fortune of war and it seems these things have to be some times, but Peterborough can hold up her head for the share she had in that little show. I don't say that they were the best men who went out to Flanders—not at all—but I do say there were none better.

Yours, etc.,

Fred Hubbs,
Prisoner of War,
Murren, Switzerland.

PINCH OF POVERTY DUE TO CARELESS USE OF RESOURCES

Each Wage Earner Shoulders Dead Loss of Nearly $6 a Week

The pinch of present high prices is seen as a penalty for the wastefulness of the nation by Prof. Rudolph M. Binder of New York University. Waste of lumber, coal, water power, by floods, by insects, of animal and human life, by fires, pests and in food products costs each of the thirty-three million wage earners in the United States $5.75 a week, Professor Binder says in the New York Sun. Here in part, is the story:

High cost of living? Why not call it the penalty of utter wastefulness? If willful waste does indeed invite woeful want then the responsibility for the present cost of living is national. No one class of citizens should be held accountable. All of us are implicated.

By our conduct active and passive, we waste ten billion dollars annually. This means that out of every $1 earned forty cents counts for nought. Indeed, it is not unlikely that this amazing wastage may be even greater rather than less. And yet we wonder why our money brings us so scant a return.

The public must have been shocked the other day when it learned that annual food wastage in New York alone amounts to milljons of dollars. Indeed, in November the bureau of ... and drugs condemned 1,467,... lbs. of foodstuffs and in 1915 because ... it received and destroyed 18,479,00... were unfit for use totaled immense ... of food. Natural gas is recognized as most perfect of all fuels, and yet waste every year 1 billion cubic fe... of this source of heat and energy.

The gas allowed to escape unprofitably, in one way or another, would suffice to supply every city in the United States of more than one hundred thousand population. Just think of it—millions of people could have the benefit of free heat if that gas were made available instead of being allowed to escape uselessly into air, or otherwise wasted.

Full eighty million tons of anthracite coal is now being left behind in the mines each year, and it is estimated that since coal mining began in this country fully two million tons of anthracite and three billion tons of bituminous coal have been left in the ground under conditions which make future recovery highly improbable.

But the coal actually put in service, for which every consumer pays higher because of the wastage, is burned at a great loss, most of the heat being allowed to escape unutilized. According to one of our foremost engineers, power plants waste twenty per cent. or more of the coal they burn. This represents an annual wastage of something like 325 million dollars.

We waste through non-use annually thirty million horse-power which our water power could furnish. At the moderate assumed cost of $20 an indicated horse-power a year, which is considerably below the average price, this waste amounts to 600 million dollars. If this water power were used our coal could be conserved for future uses or employed for heating and other purposes only where water power is not available.

Why Gasoline Jumps.

The Bureau of Mines recently announced that only from 15 to 25 per cent of the oil in a sand is extracted by ordinary methods of production. Not only that, but we are informed that "millions of barrels of oil have been wasted by being allowed to flow into the streams, by being mixed with water or by evaporation." So much for the way we abuse our petroleum fields. No wonder the price of gasoline is never stable and generally is climbing.

And how do we fare in the lumber industry? The authorities tell us that but 35 per cent. of all the timber cut eventually reaches the ultimate consumer. Stumps, sawdust, slabs, broken timber, logs, etc., left in the woods represent the remaining 65 per cent. Think of the millions of dollars thrown away.

Don't let us forget that we are confronted with an annual bill of 650 million dollars resulting from losses to growing crops, fruit trees and grain in storage through the attack of noxious insects. The multiplication of these pests is declared by experts to be largely the consequence of careless methods of agriculture.

The attacks of flies, ticks and other insects on animal life cause a yearly waste estimated at 267 million dollars. And human life is by no means immune. Flies, mosquitoes and other germ carrying insects and the bookworm cause the death of some 100,000 persons annually. Assuming that an adult American represents a cost up to maturity of $1,500, this economic sacrifice is equivalent yearly to 150 million dollars.

Wolves, rats, mice and other depredatory animals cause us annually losses among live stock and crops reaching a value of 100 million dollars. We suffer another 100 million dollars loss in live stock due to disease.

And while we are dealing with the ravages of disease don't let us forget that industrial diseases claim a toll among human workers every year of 775 million dollars. These diseases are incident to nature of the employment and to the bad conditions surrounding the workers. Such losses are entirely avoidable.

We waste 25 million dollars a year in the handling of our mails, while under normal conditions the German government makes a net profit of 28 million dollars on a much smaller gross business. In other branches of our governmental life, federal, state and municipal, while the losses cannot be reduced to specific figures, there is no doubt but that they are enormous.

Fire losses to buildings throughout the United States come close to 250 million dollars annually.

The egg is a conspicuous figure in public discussion just at present. No wonder it is well nigh a luxury, because careless handling brings in its train an annual loss which is figured at 40 million dollars. This wastage is largely the result of breakage in transportation.

When Americans complain of high cost of food they should remember that a large percentage of our potato crop rots unnecessarily every year. This is because we have failed to adopt a potato drying process such as is used in Germany. Because of this failure we lose food to the value of 25 million dollars every season.

And, again, 12 million dollars is thrown away annually through our failure to utilize the leaves of potatoes and other plants for fodder and fertilizer. Germany turns those farm by-products into a source of revenue.

It is upon the shoulders of the wage earners the burden falls. Every wage earner is bearing up under a dead loss of $300 each year, a minimum of $5.75 a week. No wonder the cost of living is high!

At the opening of the meeting the following resolution of condolence was read:

Moved by T. Hendry, seconded by T. Seargeant. That we, the members of the Quarterly and Trustees Boards of Mark Street Methodist Church, desire as early as possible to convey to our beloved Pastor, Rev. R. A. Whattam, and family, our deep, heartfelt sympathy at the great loss they have sustained in the sore bereavement of their mother. We do earnestly pray that God's Grace and favour will abundantly comfort, cheer and sustain them in the hour of their sorrow, loneliness and grief, that the life of their beloved and sainted mother may ever be a moulding influence in the forming of the noblest character and an inspiration to attain unto the best.

As a token of our affection and esteem we would express our admiration of your manly Christian qualities—your unwearying devotion to the Master's cause, your zealous effort in behalf of our beloved Zion, your self-denying labours for our people's good, your gentleness, your courtesy, your uniform kindness and readiness to serve, your cheerful optimism and spirit of hopefulness, blended with untiring zeal, have gained our admiration, won our hearts, quickened our faith, enlisted our service, lifted us to a higher plane of living and a larger sense of our privilege and obligation.

As a slight token of our deep regard, we ask you to accept this gift. (a purse of money.) Signed on behalf of the congregation.

THREE DRUNKS WERE COLLECTED DURING THE WEEK END

The names of three Irishmen who flirted with the contraband of the Ontario Temperance Act were called in police court. Only two of them responded and were each fined $10, plus $3.75 costs and a dose of the same medicine awaits the third, who will be reminded of his appointment with Magistrate Dumble and appear tomorrow. Two of the men are employees of the Metal Products Co. and one of them is only three weeks here from the United States. This man said he got his liquor from a man whom he met in a pool room. They went out to an alley on Hunter street, where the whiskey was drunk.

VALENTINE TEA

The Empress was the scene of one of the most successful entertainments which have been held this season, on Saturday afternoon. The grill room, where afternoon tea was served, was cleverly and attractively decorated in flags and strips of hearts which carried out the idea of the "Valentine Tea." The tea table, presided over by Mrs. Widdifield and Mrs. Gomer, was tastefully arranged with red carnations, cunning little red candles and ferns. Those assisting, prettily attired in white dresses and wearing red belts, were the Misses Georgie Stevenson Amy, Jean and Doronthy Hill, O. Allan, Robins Cummings, Dorothy and Esme Aylmer, Genevieve Sullivan, M. Harstone, Elinor Collins, M. Eastwood, and Helen Davidson.

The dining-room, where the dansante was held, was transformed into a ball room, prettily draped in bunting and flags of the Allies.

Over one hundred and fifty came in to the tea and dance and some of whom were: Mr. and Mrs. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Knight, Lieut. Guy Knight (Montreal), Col. and Mrs. Charles Ackerman, Mrs. A. Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—A lady asked me recently if I could not say a good word for the "informal" evening of the Kitchener Club, which is to come off on Wednesday next at the Oriental. I replied that I most certainly could and for the West End Club and all other clubs of that kind. Knitting socks, caps, mitts and mufflers for the soldiers is no joke, but they go right home to the hearts of the men, no matter what other parts of the anatomy they may be intended for. My first introduction to the work of the Red Cross in France was at Havre, where I saw one hundred and fifty thousand pairs of socks all ready to be sent out. The work of all these organisations is similar and it is vital to the interests of the men. There cannot be too much warn woollen material in Autumn, Winter and Spring here in England and at the front and, if we look at it in another way, what sort of a fix would the soldiers be in if it were not for these organizations? Then think of still another point in that connection. The knitters get reports on the socks, etc., direct from the men and there is sure to be no hitch in the work. It is bound to be satisfactory. Where as regarding things furnished by the Government there is not much good complaining since complaints will serve little useful purpose except to come up in Parliament and furnish food for recriminations. The public outside the personnel of these clubs should attend every entertainment which these clubs get up. The least we can do is to back up gladly and in abundance those who are doing such necessary work without show or the thought of reward other than the comfort of the dear lads overseas. I am only too proud to say a good word you may be sure, Mr. Editor. The struggle grows worse every day and it is the length and increasing horror of it that tests our faith, our constancy and our good works.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

PREPAREDNESS AGAINST DELAYS ON ROAD-SIDE

A Very Useful Self-contained Kit Which Was Recently Put on the Market by One of the Big Canadian Tire Companies Contains All the Articles Necessary to Fix a Damaged Tire.

It is regrettable that many motorists who would not think of taking a trip without their tool kits, will undertake country tours of considerable length without an adequate supply of the articles necessary to fix up punctures and blow-outs in their tires.

It has been said, with justification, that tire trouble usually "comes in bunches." A car may run for several thousand miles without the tires causing a moments delay. Then, when trouble does start, it frequently happens that three or four punctures or blow-outs will occur on the same day. This is more than a mere superstition and is probably due to the fact that in the majority of cases, all four tires on any particular car have covered about the same milage. Consequently wear and tear is liable to produce the inevitable result at about the same time on one tire as it does on another.

So while an inflated tire on a spare rim is an excellent precaution, experience has taught many men that a spare tire is a remedy which will alleviate only one puncture or blow-out. If a second blow-out occurs on the same trip the motorist is, in the words of Frank Tinney, "sunk," unless he has with him the things necessary to repair that gaping hole in his casing. Even a spare tube is useless in the case of a blow-out unless the casing is first repaired.

Undoubtedly this lack of preparedness on the part of many car owners, is due to forgetfulness. A man will with the best intentions in the world, forget to buy the few inexpensive articles which he should always carry in his car as insurance against unnecessary delays and inconvenience from tire mishaps.

Particular interest attaches, therefore, to a self-contained kit, recently put on the market by one of the big Canadian tire companies which contains all the articles necessary to fix up a damaged tire. Outside protection patch, inside protection patch, self-cure tube patches rubber cement, rubberized tape, French talc, and sand paper. It also contains such articles as a pressure gauge and tire putty which, if properly used, materially add to the useful life of a tire.

This tire-saver kit is made of strong, durable khaki-coloured fabric with special pockets in it for every article in the kit. This feature has a double advantage—it makes the kit very convenient in use and an empty pocket (due to one of the articles having been used) is a constant reminder to the owner to replace that article and thus have his kit again complete.

While this tire-saver kit, holds all the articles in a way that makes them convenient to use and protects them against damage through being shaken around in the tool box, the complete kit costs no more than the cost of the articles in it if bought separately.

MAKE THE LOAN A KNOCKOUT FOR THE FOE

LONDON, Feb. 12.—In a letter read at the war loan meeting, Vice-Admiral Sir Reginald Bacon, Commander of the Dover patrol, is quoted as saying:

"If you will try as hard to do your duty ashore by raising a loan as we are doing at sea by sinking submarines and frustrating other evil devices, you will make the loan such a success that it will be a knockout blow to the enemy."

Euphemia Township Man Enters Actions Against Lawyers, Doctor, Bank.

CHATHAM, Feb. 12.—George Aaron Annette of Euphemia Township, who was recently discharged from the asylum at London, where he had been confined for some time as a result of alleged mental derangement, has issued writs against six Kent County men, claiming a total of $13,000 damages, as a result of their part in the legal proceedings which resulted in his being placed in the institution for care.

The defendants, whom he claims were guilty of misrepresentation, unprofessional duplicity and issuing misleading affidavits in invoking the lunacy act on him are W. R. Hickey, K.C., of Bothwell, and Wilson, Pike & Co., barristers, of this city, from whom he claims $3,000; the Merchants Bank of Bothwell for $5,000; Dr. T. K. Holmes of this city for $2,000; W. Moorehouse of Euphemie Township, for swearing to untrue affidavits, $1,000, and A. D. Graham of Bothwell, for similar affidavits, $2,000.

The plaintiff is handling the cases himself.

BRITISH HAVE TAKEN 200 GERMAN SUBMARINES

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 12.—Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, declared in an interview here that the submarine Deutschland has been captured by the British.

"I have positive knowledge," he said, "that the Deutschland is one of eighty-five German submarines in one British port. I know that the British have captured not less than 200 German submarines."

"The Deutschland now lying at Bremen is another submarine with that name painted on it to support the story that the submarine carrier never started on a third trip," Butler said.

"The German submarine plan will not succeed," Butler claimed. "The British patrol and the active submarine arm of the British navy will prove their efficiency to adequately and most effectively deal with the blockade," he added.

Major Hamilton Gault, Home With One Leg Missing

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 12.—With his left leg gone below the knee, dressed in mufti, and bearing the scars of many a battle on his body, Major Hamilton Gault, the originator and promoter of the famous Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, arrived on a transatlantic liner. His fighting days are not finished yet. Although he has lost a limb, he declares that he will join the flying corps as soon as he fully recover, and then return to the front. He is full of optimism over the result of the fighting this spring on the western front. He feels that victory is assured, and he wants to be there in some capacity when the great offensive begins.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

Rev. C. T. Scott, D.D., of the Bridge St. Methodist Church, Belleville, Occupied the Pulpit at Both Services—Special Music for the Occasion—The Evening Sermon.

Reverend C. T. Scott, D.D., of the Bridge Street Methodist Church, Belleville, occupied the pulpit at both services at the George Street Methodist Church yesterday, when the anniversary of the church was observed. At both services very large congregations were present and were deeply impressed by the inspiring sermons. Reverend R. G. Peever, Pastor of George Street Church took charge of the services at the Bridge Street Church, Belleville yesterday.

The music at George Street church yesterday was of a special nature and was greatly appreciated by the congregations both morning and evening. In the morning, the choir rendered in splendid style, Meale's Anthem, "Sing Praise to God" in which Miss Etta Kemp took the solo part most acceptably. "The Gentle Shepherd," (Adams) was sung in pleasing voice by Miss Maysie Armstrong. In the evening Mrs. Renwick contributed two beautiful solos and the male quartette Messrs. Jones, Walton, Parsons and Dartnell rendered an attractive setting of "Oh my Redeemer" (Main.)

EVENING SERMON.

As a text for his evening sermon, which was particularly inspiring and impressing, the Reverend Mr. Scott, chose the 21st verse of the 10th Chap. of St. Mark, which reads:

"Then Jesus beholding, him loved "him, and said unto him, one thing "thou lackest: Go thy way, sell what-"soever thou hast, and give to the "poor and thou shalt have treasure in "heaven: And come, take up the "cross and follow me."

In most of the drawings intended to illustrate this passage of the scripture, said the speaker, the artist pictures this rich young man in gorgeous robes and resplendant raiment. This was not, however, the way in which the speaker chose to think of this young man, but preferred to think of him in modest garments because it was evident that he came to Christ in all humility. He was loveable. He was popular. He was a Magistrate and a Ruler. And yet, he was dissatisfied. He had been brought up to have an ambition to mould a character for himself in which there was no flaw. Because of his virtue, and because up to the present he had travelled the good way, he now saw a better way before him. And so, we often finds that it is not the cynic who is disturbed in soul, but one whose virtues lead them to a vision of higher possibilities. "Thank God," said Dr. Scott, "that you have a disturbing sense of a great need to-night. It is a proof that your soul is reaching toward greatness." The young man was tired of the common place and was yearning for the heroic when Jesus turned and said to him, suddenly and clearly, "Sell what thou hast and give to the poor and come and follow me." The young man turned away sorrowful because he was disappointed in himself. He wanted to measure up to his standard and now that it was put before him he could not bring himself to do so. He had been longing for the things that were highest and best and now he realized that when the test came, he was not equal to it. It had been said that the better is the enemy is the best. That would exemplify in the actions of the rich young man and in that truth, we find the tragedy of a great many lives to-day.

RICH MEN NEEDED.

It wasn't the young man's money that was wrong. It is not a sin to be rich. God needs rich men in every age and rich men who can use their wealth sacredly can be in their day, "the salt of the earth."

But in this instance, the young man's riches made him self centred so that before he could enter into the unselfishness and self sacrifice, which alone could gain for him eternal life, which he coveted, it was necessary that he be dispossessed of them. The same offer came to John Ruskin centuries later when he devoted his great fortune to the uplifting of life in one of the slum districts of London. To Ruskin, it was not only a question of money, but of literary ambition, both of which he gave up to be of assistance to his fellow being in the English metropolis. Perhaps God will say to-night to some young man of great intellect, "Come and follow Me," and sorrowful will be the day if he refuses. But great indeed will be the gift if he will follow Him.

ETERNAL LIFE.

Our Saviour offered this young man besides the prospect of an eternal life, an earthly career. This was a very important part of the opportunity. The choosing of a career is an extremely important decision in any young man's life and what if, at the end of life, he should wake up to find he had taken the wrong course and it was all a great ghastly mistake. The young man was offered a place in the greatest of all careers. What greater opportunity could come to any one. It is offered to us to-day, Christ has made the offer, what more can He do? The question remains, and continuously we must answer it. "Will we accept it?"

GERMANY ISOLATES CARDINAL MERCIER

PARIS, Feb. 12. — A despatch to The Temps from Rome, says:

Vatican circles have been virtually without any news of Cardinal Mercier for some time, and the ecclesiastical circles are beginning to have the impression that the prelate is being forcibly isolated by the German authorities to an extent that might be real captivity.

When a girl sees a handsome young man for the first time she wonders how she can help him get acquainted with her.

GERMAN CONSULAR ATTACHES EASTBOUND ON SPECIAL

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—A special car occupied by German Consular attaches from the Pacific coast arrived in Chicago yesterday. Here they joined the staff of Consul Baron Kurt von Reiswitz, and the entire party left for New York over the Pennsylvania at 12.40. Baron von Reiswitz did not accompany the party. It was said he had gone to Washington on a secret mission, as a result of which he may remain in America in an advisory capacity to the Swiss Consulates, which will look after German commercial interests during the diplomatic breach.

Four Lakefield Children Become Wards of C.A.S.

The four children of Mrs. Mary Ann Rowe, of Lakefield, were this morning made wards of the Children's Aid Society by Magistrate Langley. In age, they range from two to eight years. Mrs. Rowe is the wife of a soldier who was killed in action, and the Society did not move in the interests of the children until the reports received had been thoroughly investigated. It was stated that the action was particularly for the physical welfare of the children. The mother was informed that if she would move to Peterborough her family would be returned to her, but as wards would still be under the care of the Society. One child died a week ago, and a doctor stated that others had been suffering from bronchial troubles throughout the winter. A number of Lakefield citizens gave evidence.

British Steamer Carries A Unique Armament

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—The Associated Press sends out the following: A novel equipment for defense against submarines was disclosed when the British steamer Baycross arrived from Havre. A supposed after-deck house proved to be a steel structure, concealing a four-inch gun revolving on a platform so as to command a wide area astern without exposing the gun or its crew of two men.

The Baycross is one of a fleet of vessels built for the service of the Hudson Bay Line in transporting grain and munitions to France. It is understood that other steamers of the line have been similarly equipped. Officers of the Baycross reported no unusual incident on the voyage.

2.—Don't try to rush matters, be seem over-anxious. It does more harm than good if you call on her every night in the week.

3.—Don't get her a ring she will be ashamed of. Strike an average somewhere between one she would turn in and one that can be seen a block.

4.—Don't dangle other girls in front of your sweetheart just to show her there are others. Cut out the others and concentrate on one.

5.—Don't be a parlor or porch decoration and nothing else. Take her to a theatre, buy her candy, bring her flowers, show you're alive.

6.—Don't marry for money, or on love at first sight, or if there is too much difference in your ages, or if you are in poor health.

7.—Don't forget her mother. If she's the right kind of girl she'll heed her mother's advice and you will need a friend at that court.

Twenty-five persons were arrested in Juarez following the distribution of the handbills.

Her Love-Starved Diary Spread Open in Court

Five reasons why she was unhappy in her married life are set forth by Mrs. Bernard Colle, wife of a Harlem druggist, in a diary filed in the Supreme Court before Justice Giegerich, New York, in a counter suit for divorce. The diary is a handsomely bound volume entitled "Essays on Silence," and forms a continuous record of her married life since early in 1913, when the ceremony was performed. Briefly stated, Mrs. Colle's reasons for being unhappy, as explained in the diary, are:—

1—Her husband said that there was nothing in a kiss and that love meant nonsense.

2—She was dreadfully lonesome and even the beautiful home provided for her could not offset that.

3—She believed she was classed as an experiment by her husband.

4—Only by what she did in the drug store at No. 1,103 Lexington avenue and at home she asserted, would her husband judge her.

5—He told her that he was a settled man, and that is she expected him to act like a boy of twenty-five who had no sense, she was mistaken.

Mrs. Colle admitted that perhaps she had not always been just right in everything. She longed for some pleasant occupation, she wrote, and jotted down a copy of a communication written by her to a woman writer, in which she said:—

"Would you please speak a few words in behalf of the young ladies—for they are young ladies—who at one time made a mistake and must pay back by being insulted every day in the week. Now, I should like to convince a bachelor of thirty-one that among these foolish girls there are some who would make good home-loving and worthy wives. I shall quote my case in a very few words:—

"At the age of sixteen I as left at the mercy of the great world, not having been brought up to become independent—a case of emergency. I became—so it seemed—like a lost ship at sea. I could not pay board and clothe myself at the munificent salary of six dollars per week that was offered me.

"So one of these well spoken mashers was welcomed by me. Now, I am only twenty-one years of age, considered pretty; and oh! how I would love to become a domestic, sensible and a home-loving woman. In this case, the results of my mistake taught me a lesson, never to be forgotten, that once a girl welcomes these mashers she must sink to the lowest depths of degradation or in the end commit suicide."

Mr. Colle, in speaking of this letter deposed to the court that it had been written about a year before his marriage to the writer.

"As a matter of fact," he declares, "it had a powerful effect on me. It touched me deeply."

Mr. Colle is now thirty-six years old. His wife is ten years his junior. According to her story, narrated under oath, she went to an apartment with a man named in her husband's suit and was there when detectives entered.

"But there was nothing wrong," she added. "I might have committed an indiscretion, but a sudden pang of conscience seized me and I can positively state that I did not do wrong. I wanted to teach Mr. Colle how a woman feels when her husband stays at the club all night and comes home at four o'clock in the morning."

The introductory paragraph to the diary written shortly after the marriage, shows that Mrs. Colle was not altogether unprepared for this outcome of her marriage This paragraph read:—

"I have decided to keep a diary so that if ever our marriage should terminate in the divorce court I shall at least have this little boo't to show the nature of the man I married."

By July 7, 1915 Mrs. Colle had formed a pretty definite opinion as to her married state.

She wrote at that time:—"Yes, I'm married—to what? Not a man but a store, for I am continually there, and when he takes an evening off it is only to attend a meeting or go to the club. Either I go out with my little brother of play poker, which I usually do.

"He told me it was a vice to be affectionate, that he detested the clinging vine sort of woman and that a slick, shrewd woman was the kind he admired."

A day later Mrs. Colle penned an admission that perhaps she had been foolishly sentimental, but added:—

"I do so long for love and affection. All my life it has been denied me and I thought when I married I would be happy."

AMERICA TO DEMAND RELEASE OF AMERICAN PRISONERS

Kaiser Is Paying Visit to New Austrian Ruler

Will Demand The Release Of Prisoners

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. — Demands for the release and passporting of American prisoners of the steamer Yarrowdale will be made on Germany, it was said to-day. With the demand will go an explanation that the United States is not seizing German ships and crews, and is interested only in seeing that the ships are not sunk as an obstruction to American harbours. Germany's tactics toward Ambassador Gerard and other Americans has aroused the officials' anger, and official notice that the Yarrowdale prisoners are again detained in Germany has only served to increase this spirit toward Germany.

THE GERMANS REALIZE THAT WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES IS ALMOST INEVITABLE

Submarine Commanders Who Sink Neutral Shipping Will Not Be Punished by Berlin—Enemy Hopes to Tie Up Commerce of Neutrals.

SAFE SIDE WITH NEUTRALS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

The Berlin resident correspondent of the American Associated Press has arrived at Copenhagen, Denmark, and from there sends the important despatch below, detailing, for the first time, the developments of the break between Germany and the United States.

COPENHAGEN, via London, February 13.—Little hope of expectation prevails in Berlin that war with the United States is avoidable, or that a modus vivendi reconciling the policies of the two Governments can be found.

SAFE SIDE WITH NEUTRALS.

There is now a desire on the part of the authorities and a vast bulk of the people to avoid actual hostilities in any way consistent with the general lines of the present submarine policy, but only in such. Accordingly, instructions were given, so the Associated Press has been reliably informed, to submarine commanders before they started on their February mission, to take the safe side when neutral vessels, particularly American, were in question, whenever possible. Many merchantmen when recognized as such, were ordered to be sunk at sight, but neutral merchantmen were to be warned when such action, in their judgment, was consistent with the object of the campaign and the safety of their own ships.

ONLY DEFER THE BREAK.

It was realized, however, after the prompt and resolute stand taken by President Wilson, that these orders could only be palliative, and only defer, not avoid, an ultimate break, and that if President Wilson stood by his announcement that the destruction of American lives or ships would be regarded as an act of hostility the casus belli must come sooner or later—probably sooner on account of the number of Americans on enemy ships and the discretionary nature of the instructions to submarine commanders, who were informed that while the above course toward neutrals was recommended and desired, they would no longer be subjected to punishment for departing from their former procedure of warning, if they found this advisable.

STOP NEUTRAL SAILINGS.

Just what results the German experts expect from the campaign is uncertain, but in conversations in German naval circles the belief was expressed that if it succeeded in keeping the monthly sunk tonnage to a million tons, in addition to have a deterrent effect on three million tons of neutral shipping plying to British ports, the campaign would effect its object and force England to consider peace. This, it was stated, would have to be effected by not more than two-thirds of the available submarines, since, owing to the nature of the work of submarines, the boats must spend at least a third of their time in port refitting and repairing or on their way to and fro from the cruising grounds.

Probably ten or more of the big boats stationed in the Mediterranean will help the Austrian flotillas in closing that sea. The results attained by the remainder in the operations against French and British traffic in the first few days of the new campaign were obviously of a nature to satisfy the navy men, who spoke of the big tonnage figure reported from day to day with evident satisfaction.

LINDSAY, Feb. 10.—Coal that was shipped to the Port Hope Sanitary Manufacturing Co. was transferred to Lindsay and used by the Grand Trunk Railway trains must be kept moving, no matter what inconvenience factories may suffer.

It is reported that until further notice all the coal carried by the two ferries running to Cobourg will be for the sole use of the Grand Trunk. This is not very encouraging to the coal merchants who are expecting shipments by water.

Some of the Guardsmen were in uniform and some played musical instruments, according to reports received by officers at Fort Wayne.

The Michigan soldiers went off duty at the time and it was said at Fort Wayne they probably joined in the parade "for a lark." It is understood that an informal investigation will be made.

CATTLE MARKETS

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 127 cars, with 2,263 cattle, 199 calves, 1,269 hogs, and 228 sheep and lambs.

The extreme cold weather interfered with business to some extent, trading being a little slow for the medium quality cattle. Good choice stuff was all right, with prices steady at last week's best. Two extra choice full loads of steers, over 1,400 lbs. weight, sold at $11.25.

Good butcher cows and bulls were firm, and perhaps a shade higher.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs are quoted by the packers for to-day's tradings at 25c lower than last week's close.

ENGLAND'S HYMN OF CONTEMPT

The souls of our foes are foul with shame,
Their hands with murder red;
May they riot in hell, where the lost souls dwell,
For the sake of our innocent dead.
Our sweet-faced women and lisping babes
Were shambled in foul despite
By the craven foe, who had learned to know
How our Sons of the Sea could fight.
They dare not stay in the windswept bay
To measure the might of our men,
So they butchered babes at the mother's breast
And ran for their homes again.

Kaiser and Junker, Lord and Lout,
What is bred in the bone must surely come out;
Bred from the wolf, ye show the earth
The bloody fangs that were yours at birth;
Beware of the hour when the lion springs,
Ye who stab at the breast where the baby clings.
We waste no hate on a foe so base;
We throw a nation's contempt in your face.
God of the World, at Thy Judgment Bar,
We ask Thee to judge us for what we are—
A sinful breed, full of stubborn pride,
But we call the witnessing world to our side:
We shamble no woman, we butcher no child—
It is Germany's sons that stand defiled.
We waste no hate on a foe so base;
We throw a nation's contempt in their face.
Butchers of babes, your hands are red
With the blood of our beautiful dainty dead.
Our women who sleep by the whispering sea
Damn you through time and eternity,
As long as history lives, your race
Have a world's contempt tossed into its face.

Sons of the Wolf, ye hid your fangs
And lulled a world to sleep;
Now your fangs are bare, ye only dare
To mangle the lambs and the sheep.
The women of Belgium, the daughters of France,
Know well what your honour is worth;
If their men were there ye would not dare
To become the scourge of the earth.
Ye crept through the seas on your hands and knees
To harry our own East Coast;
Our women's blood and the blood of our babes
Is all that your valor can boast.

Kaiser and Junker, Lord and Lout,
What is bred in the bone must surely come out;
Spawned in slaughter, in lust and shame,
Wolves to the bone, though men in name—
Beware the hour when the lion springs,
Ye who stab at the breast where the baby clings.
We waste no hate on a foe so base;
We throw a nation's contempt in your face.
God of all brave and true manly men,
We approach Try Judgment Bar again—
We ask Thee to judge us and hold us clean
Of the foulest crime that the world has seen.
We shamble no women, we butcher no child—
It is Germany's sons that stand defiled.
Britons waste no hate on a foe so base,
We hurl contempt in each coward's face.
Butchers of babes, your hands are red
With the blood of our beautiful, dainty dead.
Our children who sleep by the moaning sea
Damn you through time and eternity.
As long as the earth breeds manly men,
No German can hold up his head again—
Bereft of honour, by God's good grace
The World will spew its contempt in his face.

WEAK, NERVOUS CHILDREN QUICKLY GAIN STRENGTH UNDER FOLLOWING PLAN

Nervousness, just like weakness, is a family predisposition. We inherit tendencies to disease just as we inherit physical resemblances. The strain of study, social duties, work at home — these all tend to make nervous troubles among children. No wonder that St. Vitus Dance, Epilepsy, and constant headaches have become alarmingly common. Pale, nervous, listless young people are met everywhere.

It is nothing short of criminal for parents to neglect signs of weakness in their children. By ignoring the slightest symptom of nervous or mental strain, you may condemn your child to life-long invalidism. If any member of your family complains of headaches, fear of going into dark places, give them that wonderful tonic, "Ferrozone." Strength of body and mind, hardy nerves, ability to study with comfort, all the attributes of health quickly follow the use of Ferrozone. It establishes strength, colour, endurance, vim — does this by filling the whole system with nourishment and tissue-forming materials.

It's because we know the enormous good that Ferrozone will do, because we are sure every child and even grown folks, will be permanently-benefitted, that we urge you to give it a trial. All dealers sell Ferrozone-in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

German Emperor Visits the New Austrian Ruler

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Whether the Kaiser's visit to-day to Vienna for a conference with the Austrian Emperor was not brought about by a desire to stiffen up Germany's ally, was the subject of considerable speculation here to-day.

Amsterdam despatches reporting meagre advices from Vienna merely said that the Kaiser was paying a visit to the new Sovereign of Austro-Hungary. It was pointed out here to-day that the United States has not broken relations with Austro-Hungary, and there have been hints that the American Government is negotiating with Vienna hoping that Austria would not endorse the German policy of unlimited submarinings. British officials think Austria, which has felt the pinch of hunger and of her war losses far more than Germany, has long been wavering.

To treat a cold with weakening physics, alcoholic syrups or drugged pills, may smother the cold but they also reduce the body powers still further and invite more serious sickness.

OUR SERIAL STORY

The Red Paper

By C. HOTCHKISS

With each nerve in his robust body tingling, yet with a calmness for which he never could account, John raised himself and looked about. A single glance showed the young man, whose every sense had suddenly become abnormally acute, that beyond the capsized pivot-chair, the scattered papers, the open drawers, and the misplaced ice-pitcher, there was nothing about the room that indicated any unusual happening.

With a comprehensive glance he took in the picture containing the hidden paper; but, like its fellows, it had been undisturbed. He stepped to the desk. In the centre of the blotting pad lay the paper on which the captain had been writing. The pen lay across it; it, at least, had been overlooked or had not been considered worthy of violent treatment. John Wentworth picked it up and read mechanically and with little understanding:

"My Son: I have determined at once to set down, in their proper order, the events that led to our conversation this evening. I write now as I know I shall not sleep until the matter is off my mind. As for the paper, the meaning of which I will explain to you after you have read this, I wish to impress on you that Grace Merridale will be of age in December of this year, and I have—"

Here the writing abruptly ended, and the captain had evidently carefully put down his pen. The cause of the interruption was not clear, but the surrounding confusion partly explained it. Had the young man lifted the broad pink blotting pad he would have seen the other letter his father had been writing and had concealed just before his son's advent into the library a few hours before; and in that event he might have had his eyes suddenly opened. But for John Wentworth the time was not yet ripe.

As he read the words, the last ever written by his parent who lay dead on the floor, he let the paper fall to the pad with a sudden realization of his own calmness and unreasonable inaction took possession of him, and his passion rose and surged through him with volcanic energy. Having a fine instinct for the requirements of the law, he disturbed nothing; but with a wild glance about him, he sprang to the window, stepped to the balcony outside, and sent his voice into the night:

"Police! Murder! Help!"

Then in an ecstacy of action he tore from the library, and upstairs three steps at a time, to where Thomas, the butler, had his room on the top floor. The faithful old servant nearly fell out of bed at the thunderous summons that roused him but before he could comprehend more than the words: "The captain is murdered in the library!" Wentworth was downstairs again and at the telephone, demanding police headquarters. That done, he so far collapsed as to sink into the leather chair in the library; and when the police finally arrived, being let in by the silent Thomas, they found him staring at his father's body.

Three hours later John Wentworth and Police Inspector Barrow sat together in the closed parlour, a single gas jet in the crystal chandelier barely lighting the great room. Gray dawn was stealing through the windows and still the house seemed full of strange people who passed through the hall and up and down the front stairs. In the mixed light the young man's face had the colour of ashes: he looked years older as he crouched in the depths of a Turkish chair, his white hands folded and nerveless. The official, with another chair drawn close, faced him squarely.

"You have told me you believe your father to have been murdered," remarked the policeman, after a close inspection of the face before him, and with a hard, business-like air that was anything but soothing to the jaded system of the other.

"I told you so; and you can judge the rest from appearances," was the weary answer.

"There is a well-worn adage that appearances are often deceitful," was the prompt return. "Aside from the looks of the room, what makes you think there has been foul play?"

Wentworth unclasped his hands and passed them over his heavy eves as if to clear his vision. "Nothing tangible, in fact," he slowly answered, as if struggling to hold his senses. "I only know my father had an enemy. He told me of it to-night; evidently a bitter enemy. It was the first I was aware of such a thing."

"Any name?"

"I did not ask him for the name."

"Any threats?"

"Not against his life, directly, but against his reputation. My father told me he was being persecuted. You saw the few lines addressed to me; he told me he would reduce all the facts to writing; he evidently went about it at once—and was interrupted by death. His statement to me had been a stunning blow."

"I presume so. And where were you to-night, sir?" The inspector fixed his hard eyes on the young man.

Wentworth met the look with the vacant stare of a sleep-walker. "I have no idea at what time I left the house," he answered. "It must have been near eleven o'clock. I had been to see a friend off on the ten o'clock train. I then came home and talked with the captain. After that I have no clear recollection of where I went, but at one o'clock I was at One Hundred and Tenth Street and Central Park. I had been disturbed—shocked—and must have walked far. At the upper end of the park a patrolman stopped me. I gave him my card. You may verify this without trouble."

Inspector Barrow leaned back in his chair, took a cigar from his pocket and lighted it, puffing slowly. "Well, sir," he said, after a few moments' contemplation of the man before him, "you are rather too played out to talk to-night, but it may be or may not be to your satisfaction that in regard to your father we see no definite sign of foul play."

"No sign of foul play!" exclaimed the other, lifting himself from his state of semi-lethargy.

"No, sir. The doctor who has been examining the remains of Captain Wentworth reports no marks of violence on the body of the deceased—none but a slight scratch on his throat, probably made by himself as he tore away his collar in a struggle for air. You have said he was suffering from a serious heart difficulty, but that remains for the coroner to determine by autopsy; my business deals with present appearances."

"Would he tear open the drawers in his desk in a struggle for air?" asked the young man, now thoroughly aroused. "Think one moment. This house is on the corner; only a tall iron fence separates it from the side street. An athletic man—especially a desperate one—could scale it with little difficulty. The library is in the rear, the windows had been left open, and the balcony was easily accessible from the yard. At night, when the house is closed, the windows are secured by shutters, and heavily barred on account of the exposed position. To-night they were open, as I know.

"Again. Would my father flood himself with water in one spot—you saw the carpet—then go to another part of the room and set down the ice-pitcher? If struggling for air, would he attempt extra exertion? Pull out drawers—scatter papers—carry a heavy pitcher from the stand? This thing happened immediately before I returned; the ice had not yet melted on the carpet. You have several detectives here?"

"Of course."

"Then let them look into it. I am in the dark as to all the facts, but, by Heaven! had I the name of the captain's blackmailer I think I might lay my finger on his murderer."

The inspector's face showed a new and sudden interest. "Blackmailed! For what?"

"I would to God I could tell you. I don't know. I understood that all was to be put in writing."

"And you have not the name of the man?"

"Sir, I have no idea of it nor of his whereabouts. This thing came on me like a clap of thunder."

Wentworth got to his feet as he spoke, clutching the back of the chair to steady himself. The detective eyed him coldly as he, too, got up and moved toward the door. "Well," he returned, "the matter is now up to the coroner. A man may be blackmailed, and die during the process, but not necessarily by the hands of his blackmailer. So far as I am at present concerned the matter is simple. Of course there is a shadow of a doubt about the cause of your father's death; but whether or not it was the result of foul play—of crime—must be decided by the coroner's jury. Nothing has been missed?"

"Nothing that I can determine."

"Then, if a crime has been committed, robbery was not the motive. You see the murder theory is rather forced, young man, and perhaps fortunately for you. Had I held it, I should be obliged to arrest both you and your servant. But what do you know about your butler?"

"About Thomas? Why, I would trust him with everything—as I would have trusted my father. He came to us the year I was born—twenty-nine years ago. He loved my father—as my father loved him. He is more than a servant. As for myself, I hardly think I would contradict your theory, if I was a guilty party."

"That very fact is your best hold, my friend," returned the officer, as he laid his hand on the knob of the door. "This will be all for to-night. I shall leave men in charge of the house until the coroner arrives. Now, if you take my advice you will get yourself outside of a hooker of whiskey, and turn in. You are done up, sir, and no wonder. By to-morrow you will look at matters in a different light."

Wentworth was about to reply when a knock sounded on the panel of the heavy mahogany door. The inspector threw it open and disclosed a young fellow standing in the hall. He was a stocky youth, with a fresh and pleasant face.

"What is it?" sharply demanded the officer.

"I would like to speak to Mr. Wentworth for a moment," was the answer.

"Who are you, sir?"

"I am from the Central Detective Bureau."

"Oh, you are! Well, you had better cork yourself until morning. I don't think Mr. Wentworth can stand anything more. You see his condition."

And it was apparent that the bereaved man had about reached his limit. Excitement, shock and lack of rest had sapped his strength. He tottered and leaned against the wall and might have fallen to the floor only that the watchful Thomas glided noiselessly past the policeman, and, putting his arm around his young master, led him away.

"You are right, Inspector," said the strange detective. "I'll wait until morning—though I would rather see him to-night." He looked after the old servant helping Wentworth upstairs.

"What's the lay, young fellow?" asked the inspector, as the two disappeared above. The other looked the official squarely in the face, and laughed.

"Do you discover any verdancy in either of my optics, sir?" he asked, opening wide his blue eyes. And with that he swung his back to the other, and walked from the house.

CHAPTER III.

A LETTER AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

It was three weeks later.

John Wentworth sat in his apartments in the Van Dyke studios, palette and brushes in hand, but he was not working; instead, e was gazing vacantly at the half-finished painting before him, and abstraction in his eyes showing that his thoughts were far from his surroundings.

The studio itself differed in no way from others in its general character, save; perhaps, in that it was more luxurious than most while it lacked the indefinite note of professionalism. There were numerous rugs on its broad floor, numerous hangings on the walls, the latter being covered with sketches and a number of really fine photographs. Books were strewn about in profusion; a large camera faced a clouded background, and near it were a number of photographic accessories.

In a corner was a rack of fencing-foils, well used, together with boxing gloves, Indian clubs, and the impedimenta of an athlete. There were rug covered divans and easy chairs, and over all an air of careless comfort, which was not dissipated by the hard, cold light which fell from the immense but partly curtained north window.

From this studio opened two smaller rooms; one elaborately fitted as a photographic dark room, the other recently furnished as a bedchamber. For to Wentworth had come the realization of the floating consciousness of impending change which had been him at his last interview with his father. He was now living in his studio.

The next days had been trying ones for the young man, the fact showing on his pale, drawn face. But no weakness was apparent. Under his small mustache the lines of his mouth remained firm, and his broad chin was aggressively strong; only his dark eyes and unusual pallor showed the effects of his trouble. And he was far from being satisfied. To him life had flattened out at least temporarily, and human acumen appeared a thing to be scoffed at. For after a post mortem examination of his father's body, and a further search by the police of every circumstance concerning Captain Wentworth's sudden demise the jury had brought in a verdict of death from heart disease—progressive mitral insufficiency—and not a soul was implicated, even in theory. The heart trouble was indisputable; and though there was no explanation for the state of the library on the night of the captain's death there was nothing definite in the minds of the jury to point to foul play. The general excitement occasioned by the tragedy in high life had run its course and subsided, and the public, possibly disappointed at the lack of sensational features, was awaiting some new tragedy in some new quarter.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Rescue

Story of an American's Adventure in Russia.

By ALAN HINSDALE

Fred Champlin possessed an income of $50,000 a year and was a globe trotter. He was also an amateur sportsman—yachtsman and everything else that affords amusement out of doors.

One winter Champlin was in St. Petersburg (now Petrograd). Russia was then at peace with all of the world except herself. Revolution was brewing. The government knew it was brewing, and the Russian secret police was keeping an eye on all suspected citizens. Revolutions are generally upheavals of the lowest classes. The late Russian movement was participated in by persons of first grade, including the nobles, or at least members of noble families. Champlin was not aware of what was going on—for everything was done secretly—till one night when he attended a ball given at the Winter palace.

The American minister had secured him his invitation and had warned him to exercise the utmost care in avoiding being drawn into a dangerous position toward the government.

The advice was lost on Champlin, who proposed to associate with whom he pleased. Being a free American citizen he demurred at being told by any government who should not be his friend. However, he went to the ball, not dreaming that he would fall into the trap such as he had been warned against.

He was dancing with a girl, the daughter of a general in the Russian army. Her right hand was in his left and held high. He felt something drop into his coat sleeve. The girl brought the dance to a close, at the same time looking meaningly at the sleeve. Lowering his arm, Champlin caught something in his hand. He put it in his coat pocket without looking at it, but as soon as he could do so unobserved he examined it, finding a powder wrapped in a bit of paper, as medicines are put up by druggists.

As Champlin was leaving for his hotel he saw the girl he had danced with passing out. Two men, one on each side, escorted her. They were evidently not guests. The girl gave Champlin a look which he could not understand, but he inferred that it was an appeal for something. He passed out of the palace behind the two men and the girl and saw them enter a carriage. Jumping into his own conveyance, he directed his coachman to follow the one just driving away.

Champlin saw the two men and the girl alight in front of a police station and go inside. There he lost her. He thought of following her in, but feared to compromise her by doing so. It was well he did not, for the powder remained in his coat pocket, and if he had been searched a deadly poison would have been found on him. This he discovered later on.

It was evident to him that this young lady had been suspected. Doubtless spies were watching her when she slipped the powder into his sleeve. His theory was that she had prepared to poison some one during the ball. Whether she had succeeded or failed, she had taken advantage of dancing with Champlin to get rid of the criminating substance.

Champlin had an overpowering desire to learn what had become of the girl. He made inquiries, but learned nothing. Persons may disappear in Russia and never again be heard of. Perhaps their immediate friends or families know where they are, but few inquiries are made, and the responses are not apt to be definite. At the same time, there are breaking hearts.

Champlin believed, notwithstanding the girl had got rid of the evidence against her, that she was doomed. To be suspected in Russia is to be pronounced guilty, especially at a time when the government is in danger.

One morning when Champlin was about to open his bedroom door to go down to breakfast he found a note on the floor which had been slipped between the door and the sill. Opening it, he read:

Pardon my daughter for having used you to save herself. She failed. She was seen to drop the package in your sleeve. You are being watched. Leave Russia, secretly if you can.

There was no address, no signature. Champlin knew the name of the girl he had danced with, and instead of at once leaving Russia he waited until an inquiry had apprised him that she had been sent to Siberia. Then, instead of leaving secretly, he departed openly, arguing that he was doubtless known to the police as an American who had no interest in the revolution and if he tried to get away secretly he would render himself liable to suspicion.

There was something in this transition from the festivities of the Winter palace to the dreadful Kara prison, with its desperate hunger strikes, that affected Champlin deeply. What moved him most was that appealing look Lisa Dmitrievna gave him when being marched away from the hall between two officials. He had supposed it to mean, "If you are questioned do not give me away," but as the episode—rather the tragedy—continued to impress itself upon his soul he could not help feeling that it meant, "For heaven's sake, save me!"

I have said that Fred Champlin was a lover of adventure. So he was. But the idea of a rescue of a woman from the Russian government was so wild, so innately near the impossible, that for a time it never entered his head. When it did it was banished, but to return and keep returning till it occurred to him that he possessed one element of success that was not to be despised, especially in Russia. He had plenty of money, and Russian officials were amenable to bribery. No sooner did the fact present itself to him than he gave himself up to concocting a plan by which he might assist Lisa Dmitrievna to escape from Kara.

A prominent American journalist had some years previously obtained permission from the Russian government to inspect the Kara prison and write a report of the treatment of the prisoners there. It occurred to Champlin that such permission would be of great help to him. Since his efforts were to be entirely dependent upon the use of money he thought he might as well begin at once. But this first move was independent of bribery. He from whom permission must be given was of the imperial blood, and to attempt to bribe him might spoil everything.

Champlin went to England and bought a newspaper. Immediately its columns contained bitter attacks upon the Russian government for the treatment of prisoners at Kara. Champlin saw to it that these articles were largely copied, and he employed persons to send clippings to the czar. It was not long before a protest was sent to his paper by the official charged with the administration of prisons. The editor of the paper wrote that if permission were given a representative to inspect the prisoners of Kara an article would appear in the journal giving a true account of what he saw.

It was a happy day for the American when the desired permit came. He had meanwhile been gathering funds for corrupting prison officials and had all he wanted. Having converted a sufficient amount into Russian money, he started for Siberia.

It is questionable if Champlin would have been able to make even a beginning had he not been favored by fortune. Lisa's father was a trusted officer of the czar. His daughter had not been convicted of assassination or intended assassination. She was in league with revolutionists and had been caught in suspicious actions. These facts enabled the general to obtain for his daughter a transfer to what is called the Free Command, which means that those confined there live in huts instead of prisons and are in so far their own masters.

While Champlin was being shown over the prisons—they had been put in the best possible shape for the inspection—he was keeping an eye open for his purpose. When he learned that Lisa had been transferred to the Free Command his heart beat high with hope. He at once expressed a desire to inspect this portion of the institution and was given permission to do so. On his arrival there Lisa's cabin was pointed out to him, and, going to the door, he knocked. A woman keeper answered the summons, and upon his showing an order to inspect any portion of the institution he was admitted. Lisa was sitting at a window sewing. She looked up at the visitor and recognized him at once, but he did not change countenance himself, and she restrained hers.

"I desire to question this prisoner," he said to the keeper, "she being free to tell me what I wish to know."

The woman read his permit carefully, then went into the other of the two rooms which composed the cabin and shut the door. Champlin, having satisfied himself, or rather, Lisa having assured him, that he was not spied upon, spoke freely in a low tone. Lisa, overwhelmed that he should have come to Kara in her interest, seized his hand and kissed it. But that time should not be lost he proceeded at once to question her with a view to laying a plan for her escape.

His first query was, "Can your keeper be bribed?" Lisa told him that she could if the bribe were large enough. If she permitted Lisa to escape, she remaining, it would go hard with her. She must be paid for that.

Presently Champlin went into the room where the woman was, and when he came out he had left with her 40,000 rubles ($20,000), which she at once buried under the floor of the hut. For this she was to resign her position, stating that she desired to go to her home in Russia.

Leaving the hut, Champlin visited the officer in charge of the entrance to the Kara establishment.

"Colonel," he said, "one of the keepers in the Free Command has resigned her position and desires to return with me to Russia. I fear you may think that I am taking a prisoner instead. Lest you should feel bound to delay me till the matter can be investigated, I leave with you a little present contained in this package."

The colonel took the package into another room, examined it and found a hundred thousand rubles. His eyes stood out of his head, but when he returned to Champlin he merely said: "I will not delay you."

The next day the journalist completed his inspection, and in the morning, just before break of day, he drove out of the prison yard with Lisa's keeper, thickly veiled. As soon as they were out of sight and hearing the woman's veil was thrown off, and Lisa sprang into her preserver's arms.

A few months later Fred Champlin appeared among his friends in America with a Russian wife. But he did not dare tell that he had taken her from the Free Command of the Kara mines. There is no extradition treaty for political prisoners between the United States and Russia. But both Fred and Lisa felt easier at not publishing the fact that she was wanted in Siberia.

ESCAPED FROM HUNS

TWO CANADIAN SOLDIERS HAD EXCITING ADVENTURES.

Pte. Peter Nelson Managed to Elude Teuton Bloodhounds by Throwing Snuff on His Trail—Both Men Tell Stories of Hardships and Brutal Treatment in the Prison Camps.

While the habit of snuff-taking may be open to objection from the point of view of a temperance, social, and moral reform department, it undoubtedly helped Private Peter Nelson, of Vancouver, to elude Teuton bloodhounds, for when he skipped his camp in Germany, and heard the baying of the hounds, he threw pinches of snuff about. This, and the shelter of a friendly wood enabled him to cover up his traces, and within twelve hours he was well across the Dutch boundary. At Rotterdam in the British Consul's office, Nelson found a Montrealer, Sergeant Joseph Turcotte, of the 14th Royal Montreal Battalion. Both men had escaped from Muenster camp, in Westphalia, within two days of each other, and both of them found themselves back on English soil a few days ago. They are in excellent health, and Sergt. Turcotte shows enough avoirdupois to make a Hun exclaim, "See how well we look after our prisoners!" As a matter of fact, both men attribute their keeping well to the parcels of food sent regularly to them by the Canadian Red Cross and by private friends. The Red Cross parcels nearly always reached them, and this seems to have been due to the fact that they were properly packed, and perhaps also because it is an official organization. To have lived on the acorn coffee, war bread, and thin soup provided would have been impossible.

Sergt. Turcotte, who has been with his battalion from the start, lived at 346 Dufresne street, Montreal, and was a locomotive fireman in the employ of the C. P. R. On the 24th December last he was searching for a man in his company who had not come back from patrol duty. He found him lying wounded, close to the German lines, and at this point was himself spotted and taken prisoner. Passing through Lille, the clearing house for prisoners, he was sent to Muenster Camp, where he was in charge of men employed on stable work. In this camp Turcotte made two attempts to escape, as also did Nelson. "In fact," said the latter, "that was the one aim we always had, and it helped us to bear what we had to go through." These attempts were unsuccessful, and the punishment was 21 days in a dark cell, on a diet of bread and water. Peter Nelson was taken prisoner just a year ago, and found himself also at Muenster Camp, though the two only met each other occasionally. After these attempts at escape they were sent to other camps of a rougher type: Turcotte was deported to one in Poland, near Riga, where he said men were fagged and ill-treated in a most brutal manner. As he showed unwillingness to play the bully with the men over whom he was put (being a sergeant) he was sent back to Muenster early this month. Quite undeterred by previous failures, and perhaps thinking of "third time lucky," Turcotte tried again, and on Friday evening, 10th November, he got out, and with him there also escaped a man from the Northumberland Fusiliers. Both men were fortunate in having been taken without being wounded, so that they were naturally agile and fleet-footed. During the next four days Turcotte nursed the darkness and fed upon turnips and anything else that he found in the fields. He was very cautious, because on a previous occasion he had been captured when only six miles from the Dutch frontier. The last lap towards the promised land was done in a swamp, but they got out, and although they recognized that they were now out of Germany, they forged ahead for two miles before they stopped to enquire. The enquiry was simply, "Holland—Deutschland?" And the answer of a farmer, "Holland," reassured them. The good-hearted Hollander gave them breakfast and took them down to the police, and the latter gave them food and shelter until their transfer to the British Consul was arranged.

Peter Nelson of the 29th Battalion, Vancouver, had been sent to another camp not far from Muenster where drainage operations were the staple work. On Sunday evening, November 12, he managed to elude the guards and got into a wood nearby, where he could hear the dogs barking and machine guns working. He threw snuff over his footsteps and made so rapid a journey that next morning at 6.30 he found himself over the frontier, the distance covered being about thirty miles. At one point he almost ran into a sentry, but managed to avoid him without attracting undue notice. Near the boundary there was a canal without a bridge. In civil life Nelson was engaged on survey parties for the British Columbia Government, and had learned to swim. Having, as he believed got into Holland, he enquired of a boy and found his surmise was correct. That supposition was at first suggested by the fact that two or three workmen were cycling to work, and that they were young men. In Germany there would be no young men not in uniform. Two mounted police came along and asked Nelson if he was an escaped prisoner, and within an hour he was before an inspector. This time, however, the role of the police was to liberate rather than jail their man, and further, they gave him the best meal he had had for over a year, together with money and a letter to take him to the Consul at Rotterdam. At this point the two men joined and were shipped over to London.

Children Had Eczema
Doctors Failed To Cure

Two Letters Which Prove the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a Cure for Eczema

Fortunate are the mothers who know the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment, for there is no treatment so suitable for use after the bath to relieve irritation and chafing and to thereby prevent eczema and similar skin diseases.

Mrs. W. L. Barnes, Timmins, Ont. writes: "I want to tell you about the case of my little boy, who had baby eczema when he was three months old. It started on the top of his head, on his forehead and around his ears. The doctors failed to do him any good, so I tried D. Chase's Ointment on the recommendation of a friend, and in a month's time the child was entirely free of this disagreeable skin disease. He is now four years old, and has never had any further trouble from ailments of this kind. I also have great faith in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and believe that it cannot be beaten as a restorative for pale, nervous women."

Mrs. George McNair, River Charles, N.B., writes:— "We use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home, and would not wish for anything better for cuts, burns and bruises. A few years ago a friend of mine, whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advise of a neighbour they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured. I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to suffering friends who I now will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

Billy Sunday's 19 Aids Are Efficient and Well Paid

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.— When Billy Sunday, the evangelist, comes to New York for the three months' campaign which begins next April, he will bring with him one of the ablest and most efficiently organized groups of Gospel workers that has ever been gathered together. Including Mr. Sunday himself, there were nineteen in the evangelist's army in the campaign that has just closed in Boston, and practically all these are sure to take part in the New York campaign.

Family Heads Organization.

At the head of the organization are three members of the Sunday family —the evangelist, his family, and his son. The ability and power of Billy Sunday are remarkable enough in themselves; what is still more remarkable is that this man of great talent should have married the particular woman who could best supplement his own abilities. For "Ma" Sunday is a woman of remarkable executive capacity, remarkable talent in the management of people and affairs. And by the law of averages it is still more remarkable that these two persons of exceptional ability should have a son who seems to be on on the way to becoming an executive genius himself.

George Sunday, the 25-year-old son, who with his family lives near his factor at Winona Lake, Ind., is the Treasurer and business head of the organization. He handles much of the advance work, and has for some time past been spending most of his time in New York in preparation for the campaign here, while Sunday's other advance man, the Rev. James E. Walker, handled the preliminary work for the Buffalo campaign. Another of George Sunday's duties is the chief supervision over seating arrangements. He has the final word on the allotment of groups of seats to delegations from suburban churches, from lodges, from factories, from stores, or from any other organization where the gang instinct is strong enough to be seized on by the Sunday workers and made an asset in the campaign.

The value of this work has been shown again and again, for it is likely to be easier to get a man or woman to go with the crowd of associates and friends than alone; and sometimes whole parties of this sort have "hit the trail" in a body.

George Sunday also handles his father's charities. Sunday receives enormous sums of money in the free-will offering at the end of each campaign. Twice, at Philadelphia and at Boston, he has received more than $50,000 for a campaign of less than three months. Out of this he pays one third of the salaries of his assistants, but this is a comparatively small sum. He owns a modest shingle bungalow at Winona Lake, Indiana; he wears good clothing and drives an automobile, but it is said the motor car and his fur overcoat were gifts. His friends say he gives most of the money that comes in through the free-will offerings to charitable and religious work.

His enemies tell stories of his wealth; but despite the many and influential enemies whom he has made nobody has ever been able to get anything on him. If he has wealth nobody has ever found it. So far as the external evidence available is concerned, he gives most of it away.

Some of the Staff.

Most prominent outside the Sunday family is undoubtedly Homer A. Rodeheaver. "Rody" is usually one of the most popular members of the party. Schoolboys like him tremendously; so do grown men; nor are the ladies backward. Rodeheaver is musical director. He leads the singing, "lining out" the hymns, getting the left half of the house to sing the first line of a stanza, the right half the second line, the choir the third, and the whole congregation the fourth. He can sing himself, in an oily, resonant voice—a good voice, as gospel singers go. And he plays the trombone to lead the choruses with devastating effect. Rodeheaver is a man of immense value. Whatever he gets for his services, he is worth it. A man with his mixing ability and his capacity for molding a crowd into just the right state of mind in preparation for Sunday's arrival would be worth a fortune to a political leader.

Rodeheaver was the son of a Tennessee miner. He worked in the mines, then in a sawmill. He served in the Spanish-American war, worked his way through Ohio Wesleyan University, and has been with Sunday for several years.

The Rev. James E. Walker is the advance representative of the party. When he and George Sunday work together on the preparation for a campaign George handles the business side and Walker the spiritual part of the work. He was pastor of United Presbyterian Churches in Pittsburgh, and Chicago, and came under Sunday's notice while the evangelist was living in the latter city. Walker is married, and lives in Carnegie, Penn., a town chiefly known as the home of "Honus" Wagner, the ball player.

The Rev. Isaac Ward handles the shop work—the noon meetings at factories by which the Sunday party designs to get everybody in an industrial organization in a frame of mind to come to the meetings. Like several of the other members of the party, Mr. Ward performs the act known in theatrical circles as doubling in brass. He can play the organ, the cornet or the trombone, the latter instrument being particularly valuable to an evangelist. He got his start as a worker among labouring men when he was pastor of a Dutch Reformed Church in Jersey City, and worked with dock labourers and workmen in the railroad yards. He now lives in New Brunswick.

George A. Brewster is another of the musical taff. He can do almost anything, and does. He sings well and often and does part of the work of playing the piano for the hymns. Brewster has been a reporter, a vaudeville actor and professor in an Iowa college. He now lives at Joliet, Ill.

WOMEN PLAY MAJOR PARTS

The Rev. Miss Frances Miller, an ordained clergywoman of the Congregational church has been with Sunday for eleven years. She has charge of the work among business women—shop girls, stenographers and clerks, and also does most of the work of arranging the parlor prayer meetings in drawing rooms of the socially prominent which Sunday usually conducts once or twice in every city where he preaches. She lives in Los Angeles.

Mrs. William Asher handles the work among factory girls, nurses, and housemaids, and also supervises the extension work among women in their homes who are unable to get together for meetings. Her husband is an independent evangelist. For several years she was with J. Wilbur Chapman, under whom Sunday learned a good deal of his profession, and while with Chapman she specialized in conducting prayer meetings in saloons. She is another who lives at Winona Lake.

Miss Alice M. Gamlin handles the work among boys and girls. She was with the New York State Sunday School Association for some years, and became connected with the Sunday party during the Philadelphia campaign early in 1915.

Another who joined the party at Philadelphia was Miss Florence Kinney, who was a teacher in a girls' school in Ohio. In the Sunday party she is one of the Bible teachers and handles a considerable part of the work among college students.

Miss Grace Saxe, head of the Bible teachers of the party, was once a court stenographer, and later a writer for a newspaper syndicate. She, too, lives at Winona Lake. Miss Jean B. Lamont, a former Y.M.C.A. Secretary at Evansville, Ind., is another of the Bible teachers who handle the numerous classes organized during a Sunday campaign.

Miss Rose Fetterolf is engaged in the work among young people, particularly high school students. She was a drawing teacher in Pennsylvania before joining the Sunday party. Robert Matthews, a former reporter on a Chicago newspaper, is Mr. Sunday's private secretary, and plays the piano on the side.

EVANGELIST LIVE IN ONE HOUSE.

Besides these regular workers in the party there are a number of auxiliaries who are equally essential to its success. Chief among these is Mrs. Rose M. Foutts, the housekeeper for the Sunday party, of late years has been living together during each campaign in a house hired for the three months; and to look after a group of anywhere from twelve to twenty people who are too busy to be bothered with the details of looking after themselves is perhaps as hard a job as the Sunday organization has to offer. But Mrs. Foutts deserves a separate story all to herself, and she is going to get one.

Joe Spiece builds all of Sunday's tabernacles. He says he found the evangelist when he was preaching in cow sheds. Spiece is not an architect —he was interested in various businesses before he became converted and joined the Sunday party; shut without the technical education he became a practical expert in five hazards and acoustics. He has perfected the sounding board which is used to throw the evangelist's voice to every part of the huge auditorium—a flower-like flat instrument that hangs over the platform with six huge arched petals of fluted wood, carrying the waves of sound with amazing clearness, and all centring on a cup in which high-powered lights throw their illumination straight down on the speaker. Spiece is now in New York superintending the construction of a tabernacle of wood which will seat 23,000 persons with full regard to the requirements of the Building Department and the Bureau of Fire Prevention.

Albert Peterson is the tabernacle custodian. When not custodianing he acts as Sunday's masseur, and plays the piano for the services in a pinch. Indeed, it is the boast of members of the Sunday party that everybody from the janitor up can lead a prayer meeting; sing, talk, or expound the Scriptures.

Fred Buse, who has been with the party for the last two or three campaigns, is the tabernacle Postmaster. It is his duty to sort out the cards signed by the repentant trail-hitters in which they express their religious preference, and keep thm in a set of pigeonholes for the clergymen of the various churches to receive at their convenience. And perhaps another member should be included in the person of Dan, the West India butler, who has been with the party since the Trenton campaign, and has probably earned a permanent post.

The Sunday organization takes July and August off, and after each campaign there is an interval of a week or so in which those who live near enough have a chance to make a hurried visit to their families. When they collect in a new city which is to be the scene of a campaign they find much preliminary work done according to their directions, and frequently after their personal visits and suggestions, and on the basis of this preliminary work the organization pitches in for ten weeks of campaigning, during which most of its members work fourteen of fifteen hours a day.

Was Anaemic FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more. When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

Real art shows in the design of this waist. It is one of those unusual models that may be developed in a practical weave that will proclaim its service general, or in a combination of rich and filmy fabrics that will stamp it a matinee or an afternoon blouse.

This back buttoned model is cut with drop shoulder yokes and has its fulness gathered front and back where the upper edges of the waist join the yokes. This treatment causes the folds of the garment to blouse effectively at the line of a belt—the belt may be silk or satin girdle or a boughten leather belt. The roll collar with side flare is of contrasting goods and the dainty tucker in surplice effect corresponds. In a waist for practical wear the sleeve will be cut full, wrist length and finished with a crown cuff of goods in the collar; in an afternoon blouse, the "angel sleeve," as shown by the smaller view, will be effective. The double row of buttons may be added or not, below the tucker, for decorative purposes.

Linen, cotton poplin and the like are suitable for general wear; crepe and silk, satin and net, crepe de chine and lace and similar combinations may be considered for the matinee waist.

The waist pattern No. 8,113 cuts in sizes 36 to 42 bust. To make in size 36 requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material; ¾ yard of contrasting goods. Or 2 yards all one material.

To obtain the pattern send 2 ... to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery remember that blood forming qualities in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by its use flood the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting results.

LONDON OUT OF COAL.

Dealers Able to Deliver Wood Doing Brisk Business.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 11.—London is faced with the most serious coal situation of the winter. With the mercury below the zero point by several degrees, many of the dealers announced that they had not a pound left in stock nor very hopeful prospects of receiving a supply. It is stated that the railways are unable to haul more than half a normal load because of the cold weather, and the consequent failure of the locomotives to generate steam efficiently, and a storm a few days since at Niagara Falls is said to have aggravated the trouble. Londoners have been advised to conserve the supply in so far as is possible while many are already burning wood where it is procurable. Others are drumming up acquaintances with their rural friends and endeavouring to have cordwood sticks hauled in.

WHAT MAKES YOU THINK

that the obstinate sore from which you are suffering is incurable? Ordinary ointments may have failed, but Zam-Buk, owing to its unique composition, cures cases that have defied all other treatment.

Mrs. R. Terrell, of 163 Dorion St., Montreal, P.Q., says: "For five years I suffered with a sore on my leg, caused by a bruise. At first I did not think it so serious, but gradually it became worse, until it developed into an open sore.

"I suffered intensely, and at last walking became so painful that I was obliged to remain in the house all the time. I tried numerous remedies, the best of which only gave temporary relief. Finally Zam-Buk was recommended to me, and I commenced applying it regularly. There was soon a marked improvement in the condition of the sore. I persevered with the treatment, with the result that in less than two months the sore—although of five years' standing—was completely and permanently cured. I cannot express the relief I feel at being free from suffering, and I shall never again be without Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is equally good for eczema, abscesses, poisoned wounds, ringworm, scalp sores, blood-poisoning, boils and piles, as well as cuts, burns, scalds and all skin injuries. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

SHAVING IS NOT FATAL.

Barbers Nowadays Do Not Use Hammers and Cold Chisels.

In reply to a correspondent who says he yearns to have his flowing beard removed and yet lacks the Spartan firmness of the early martyrs to face the ordeal and makes a pathetic appeal for advice the alfalfa editor of the Emporia Gazette unfeelingly remarks:

"The alfalfa editor can offer no advice or encouragement to such a trembling soul. It seems probable that he has worn his whiskers for many years. It is likely that he hasn't purchased a shave for a quarter of a century and therefore is ignorant of the improvements in the art tonsorial which have been achieved in recent years. It is no longer like going through a slaughter house to an open grave to be shaved by an expert barber. In fact, that operation has been so shorn of its terrors that many eminent citizens consider it a pleasure to visit the barber. It is no longer necessary to strap a patient down in the chair before shaving him; neither is it necessary to administer anaesthetics to his whiskers.

"The man whose only reason for wearing whiskers is the fact that he fears the barber shop will gain little sympathy. If he tries to explain that he cannot shave himself without suffering the agonies of the all fired he will gain less. Such excuses might have had some force long ago, when barbers used hammers and cold chisels, but science has made giant strides in recent years, and the country is full of painless barbers, and a clean shave costs no anguish or inconvenience."

MICROSCOPIC MESSAGES.

How a Single Pigeon Might Carry a Whole Library.

For more than 2,000 years carrier pigeons have been used to carry messages when no other means sufficed, and during the siege of Paris, when 363 birds were sent out from the doomed city, one of the birds performed the almost incredible feat of carrying to the outside world on one trip no less than 40,000 messages averaging twenty words each. This was 800,000 words, or the equivalent of five or six average novels.

This marvel was accomplished by means of microscopic photography, the messages being first printed with ordinary type and then photographed and rephotographed until they had been reduced several hundred diameters. The final photographs were taken on films or pellicles of collodion, each of which, about two inches square, contained 50,000 words. A dozen of these films, rolled up in a quill, weighed but one twenty-eighth of an ounce. The messages could, of course, be read with a microscope without the necessity of rephotographing and enlarging.

Under favorable conditions and for comparatively short distances pigeons have carried as much as three-quarters of an ounce. Using the photo reduction method, it would therefore be possible for a single bird to carry messages equal in words to no fewer than 120 ordinary volumes.—Harper's Weekly.

Plumber.

Mulligan, the contractor, put up a church building. Dunn was building inspector then, and when he saw the church he said, "Pat, it isn't plumb."

That made Mr. Mulligan pretty mad. He climbed right up and began to take measurements. Having squinted down the plumb line in a dozen different places, he was ready to report. There was a ring of triumph in his voice.

"Mr. Dunn," he said, "come and look at it y'rself. Plumb, eh? By th' piper that played before Moses, it's more than plumb!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It Worked.

There are a great many ways devised for avoiding jury duty.

The story is told of a man who was noted in the county because of the badness of his son. Finding that there was no way of escape from serving, he had an obliging friend telegraph him at the courthouse.

The telegram read, "Your son is no better." The judge was so amazed at the ingenuity that he let the man off.—Judge.

ROUND UP TWO "WILD MEN."

Among South Sea Germans Interned in New Zealand.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 10.—Two hairy and scantily clad German imitators of an American college student who used to live a naked and fruit-eating life in the Tahiti group were among a batch of prisoners who were brought to New Zealand lately for internment here. The American founder of the sect—if it can be dignified by that name—was in the University of Pennsylvania when he developed lung trouble. He was advised that his case was hopeless, whereupon he made his way to Tahiti and established an abode on a mountain not far from the capital, Papeetee. Here, at an altitude of 2,000 feet, he lived practically he life of a savage—and thrived.

When the liners to and from the Antipodes stopped at Papeetee — as indeed, they do now—it was his wont to go down to them and distribute pamphlets among the passengers extolling the virtues of the Tahitian climate and referring to himself as a living advertisement of its health-giving properties. While on these excursions, as a concession to decency, he wore a pareo, or waistcloth—and an eyeshade! Like other Pacific Island "wild men"—as for example, the members of the German sun-worshipping sect in the Bismarck Archipelago—his hair and beard were never cut and he was bronzed to the hue of leather.

His two German imitators attracted much comment when they were described by a crowd in Wellington among the prisoners fetched by the boat Moana. They also, it seems, had been running nude in Tahiti before the war, but after being rounded up with other Germans by the French authorities they were obliged to wear a few clothes. Their only garments when they came down the gangplank were a light cotton shirt and a pair of trousers apiece, and the shirts were open to the waist. Heads and feet were bare, and, of course, their hair and beards had not been trimmed for years. Their belongings were contained in a bandanna handkerchief apiece. They were in striking contrast with their compatriots, most of whom wore the white duck and pith helmet common in the tropics.

All the Germans looked well and hearty. The prisoners were placed in the internment camp on Somes Island, in Wellington Harbor. They may be transferred later to the French Island, New Caledonia, or to Australia, for safe keeping. They reached here under a French guard.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust dirt and dandruff.

HUGE SUM FOR WAR.

Bonar Law Will Break the Record on Monday.

LONDON, Feb. 9.— Bonar Law will ask in the House of Commons Monday for £550,000,000, the largest amount asked at any single sitting by any statesman in our financial history. No less than £200,000,000 is needed to carry the war to March 31, the end of the financial year. Britain is therefore spending now in five or six weeks as much as was spent in the year immediately before the war. The second vote of £350,000,000 is needed to give a good beginning to the next financial year.

The average expenditure in 1914-15 of £1,500,000 per day grew to £3,500,000 per day in 1915-16, and will be nearer £6,000,000 than £5,000,000 per day for the middle of 1916-17.

Had Violent Coughing Fits

Looked Like Consumptive

Mrs. Mary Wheten, North Forks, N.S., writes: "Having taken five bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, during the past few weeks, to relieve a chronic cough and general throat trouble, allow me to express my unbounded satisfaction and thanks as to its sterling qualities. A short time ago I became subject to violent coughing fits at night and directly after rising in the morning. I began losing weight, and all my friends cheerfully informed me that I was going into consumption.

"After taking the 'Dr. Wood's' I am pleased to relate that the cough has entirely disappeared and I have since regained the lost weight. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" on the market so see that none of these so-called "pine syrups" are handed out to you when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." It has been on the market for twenty-five years, is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The mill may be unable to grind with the water that has passed, but the hand organ grinds the same old air over and over.

FRESH BRITISH GAINS IN MESOPOTAMIA

The United States May Open Ports to Allied Warships

A RESOLUTION TO OPEN AMERICAN PORTS TO WARSHIPS OF THE ALLIES

Understood That Senator Saulsbury's Measure Has Complete Approval of President Wilson--British Forces on the Mesopotamian Front Have Established a Line Across the Tigris Hemming in the Turks.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 13.—Senator Saulsbury to-day offered a resolution to throw down neutrality bars and throw open all the United States ports to Allied warships. He said this "might enable this Government without a declaration of war, to assist in preventing the violations of rights to the sea by giving assistance to those at present engaged in combatting these violations."

It is understood the Saulsbury resolution has the complete approval of President Wilson.

LONDON, February 13.—Three Americans were landed to-day among the fifteen members of the crew of the steamer Saxonian, sunk by a submarine on February 8th. W. E. Gard, one of the Americans, was injured. The others were Elwood Moore and John Stefani.

NEW YORK, February 13.—International Mercantile Marine Stocks advanced to-day in the face of the tie-up of ships of the American line, traders evidently taking an optimistic view of the British safety lane developments. Marine preferred sold up 1 to 68½, and common advanced ⅜ to 25. The general list showed irregular changes. The Cotton Exchange opened with a gain of more than $1 on a bale for cotton futures. The Espagne of the French Line, which will sail this afternoon, and the White Star liner Cedric, which sailed yesterday, will be convoyed by British warships across the Atlantic, according to reports in shipping circles to-day.

LONDON, February 13.—The official announcement was made to-day that the British forces on the Tigris front have established a line across the Tigris bend west of Kut-El-Amara, completely hemming in the Turks.

NEW YORK, February 13.—The Ascania and Lasconia, Cunard liners, steamed into New York Harbour to-day unexpectedly. Both carried passengers and light cargoes. The Ascania regularly plies between Montreal and Liverpool in the summer. Both vessels were armed.

LONDON, February 13. — The steamer Afric was sunk to-day. The Afric was a steel vessel of 11,999 tons, and one of the biggest so far reported to have fallen victim to the German submarine warfare. She was the property of the White Star Line, and was registered at Liverpool.

It was announced later that several perished in the sinking of the liner by a submarine.

LONDON, February 13.—The British steamer Foreland, 1,900 tons, has been sunk.

Of Course You Desire To Send Comforts To Soldiers--Here's A Way

Buy a Ticket For the Kitchener League Tea and Dance at the Oriental Hotel To-morrow—If You Can't Go That Doesn't Let You Out.

The Valentine tea and dance at the Oriental Hotel to-morrow afternoon and evening directs attention to the League itself rather than to the social event, for the latter is but a means to an end. And that end is the Patriotic work in which the ladies of the Kitchener League have engaged themselves since the outbreak of the war. The steady supply of comforts for the soldiers, and hospital articles, which have been forwarded in bales has been maintained only at the expenditure of a very considerable sum of money and the time and devotion of the workers. In the past the public of Peterborough has generously recognized the patriotic work of the Kitchener League by various and generous donations.

To-day, however, the League's funds are low and must be replenished if the work is to be continued. And the ladies are just as determined as ever to maintain their supply of comforts to the men in France.

They are even anxious about the future of the work, and hence request the public to consider the objects of the Valentine tea and dance to-morrow. The proceeds will be devoted to the future work of the Kitchener League, and the ladies expect the patronage of every person who desires to assist in providing comforts for the men at the front.

Don't depend upon what others may do, but purchase a ticket yourself. There are the social gatherings of the afternoon and evening providing every opportunity for those who may be otherwise engaged during either of these periods. But if you find it impossible to attend buy a ticket anyway, and thus assure the success of the occasion and the continuance of the patriotic contributions of the Kitchener League.

Pipe and Tobacco To Private Spooner

Presented by Fellow Employees of G. T. R. Freight Dept.

An interesting event took place yesterday afternoon in the local G. T. R. freight office, when Pte. Sid Spooner of the 256th Battalion (Railway Construction) was presented by his late fellow workers in the freight department with a handsome pipe and 2 1-2 pounds of tobacco. The presentation was made by Mr. C. McGee, foreman of the freight shed, and an address was read by one of the boys.

Pte. Spooner was taken completely by surprise, but replied in suitable terms. He leaves with the best wishes of his fellow workers and a host of friends in the city.

Dear Sid,— On this occasion, when you are leaving us and are about to enter on your duties in the great conflict in Europe, we wish to show you by a small present the deep friendliness of our feelings for you, and our relations to you. We cannot let you go from us without expressing in some manner our friendship for you, as ever since you have worked amongst us and with us, our relations have been of the most cordial and friendly nature. We have been the best of friends, and as friends we shall watch your career in France with the greatest interest, and as friends we hope to welcome you back when peace is proclaimed. We ask you to accept this small token of our good wishes for you and to wish you God-speed and a safe return.

LEGISLATION FOR THE BENEFIT OF RETURNED SOLDIERS

Ontario Legislature Opens To-day Accommodation at the Ontario Military Hospital Will Be Doubled It Is Intimated

SPEECH FROM THRONE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LEGISLATIVE BUILDINGS, Toronto, Feb. 13.—The opening of the third session of the fourteenth Legislature of Ontario, was attended with the usual military ceremonies. The restrictions in the galleries were partially lifted, and a large audience smiled down upon the Lieutenant-Governor Sir Jno. Hendry, and the newly knighted Premier Sir William Hearst. Dealing with the proposed legislation the speech from the throne said: You will be asked to consider the proposed legislation to provide for the settlement of returned soldiers on the land—to create a fire prevention department—to authorize the construction of a provincial highway—to provide for certain farm loans—the extension of the Hydro-Electric—to provide for votes for soldiers and for other purposes.

It was intimated that the accommodation at the Ontario Military Hospital at Orpington would probably be doubled and other needs of wounded soldiers receive sympathetic consideration. The necessity for increasing production of foodstuffs and provision for farm labour was also touched on.

Was Offered Knighthood

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—Jno. Ross Robertson, proprietor of the Toronto Telegram, confirmed the rumours that he had been offered a knighthood and also senatorship. He declined to say why he did not accept them.

BIG MEETING OF THE 500 CLUB THURSDAY

There will be a big meeting of the 500 Club in connection with the 247th Battalion on Thursday night in the recreation room of the Armouries and a full attendance of members and all wishing to become members is expected. Ladies will be cordially welcomed as members of the Club, and are expected to prove of valuable assistance. Lists of names have been prepared and will be submitted to the members on Thursday night. As an example of the value of the Club it might be mentioned that on Saturday N. F. Porter, 538 Chamberlen street, a class A member of No. 2 Sector, who has himself been fourteen times rejected by the doctors, brought in a recruit, Pte. Robert Martin. All interested are asked not to forget Thursday's meeting.

MOBILIZE FOR HOME DEFENCE SUGGESTION FROM SERVICE BOARD

Large Army Here Would Release a Considerable Number of Men For Overseas Service--New Recruits For the 247th Battalion--One Has Two Brothers Overseas--To-day's Orders and General Military News.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12. —A comprehensive statement covering the work so far done by the National Service Board, outlining the further steps now contemplated with regard to co-ordinating and utilizing the information contained in the man-power inventory taken through the registration cards, and reciting the various recommendations made at the meeting of the National Service Directors here last week, was issued to-night by the Director-General, Mr. R. B. Bennett, M.P. More than 99 per cent. of the two and a half million cards sent out have been filled in and returned. More than 50 per cent. of the answers given to the last two questions have unqualifiedly indicated willingness to serve the State in any necessary war work. The replies are still coming in, and the board has decided to extend the time for receiving returns until March 31 next.

Mobilize Home Defenders.

The board was unanimously of the opinion that, having regard to the changed conditions which have resulted from the breaking off of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, action should be taken by the Dominion Government to mobilize a large army for home defence, and the provisions of the militia act in that behalf should be made effective. In addition to being a precautionary step for the safety of Canada, it would release a considerable number of men for overseas service.

Some thirty resolutions were considered by the board in dealing with all the various phases of the work ahead. The resolutions passed included permission for correlating efforts to secure increased farm help and increased food production; authorizing an occupational survey to determine industrial and employment needs, both present and prospective; the promotion of District National Service Leagues; better distribution and direction of women's work; and the larger utilization of the labour for farm purposes of aliens of every nationality in Canada.

Orderly officer for Tuesday, February 13th, 1917: Lieut. T. W. Quinn.

A. E. Brittain, Lieut.,
Adjutant 247th O.S. Batt., C.E.F.

CORP. THORNTON IS PROMOTED TO SERGT.

Corp. Charles Melville Thornton, 508480, of Peterborough, now training in England, has been promoted to Sergeant, according to information received at the Patriotic Fund Office.

PRIVATE HOPE INJURED.

Pte. Albert Hope, of the Canadian Forrestry Battalion, has been injured in France, according to a letter received by Mrs. Hope, Union street. No details were given except that he met with an accident while at work.

Among the latest recruits for the 247th Battalion are Pte. Geo. Johnston of Cordova Mines and Pte. Gilbert E. Corners, 617 Bethune street. The latter is the third member of his family to join the colours, two other brothers having gone overseas with the 93rd Battalion. He was formerly a Sergeant in the 57th Regiment.

Lieut. Boyce has been attached to the strength of the 247th Battalion, and has been assigned to recruiting duty at Campbellford.

The Kingston Whig says:

"What will be the number of troops at Barriefield military camp during the season of 1917" is a question that is being asked by citizens. One officer in reply to the question replied off hand that there would be well over 5,000 men in training.

To really estimate the number of soldiers which will be under canvas at the camp is very difficult. The names or numbers of the units is a matter of conjecture. Last year the Depot Artillery Brigade was under canvas for the latter part of the season. This will in all probability be the case during all next season. Whether Petawawa will remain an artillery camp is doubtful, as there is a proposition to have the artillery train with the infantry. In that case the Depot Artillery Brigade would be probably 500 or 600 men strong. There are now 413 officers, N. C. O.'s and men in the brigade. This includes the 5th Divisional Ammunition Column.

The units which have been in process of organization since the last camp will not all be in Canada at that time. Already the 207th Battalion at Ottawa has gone, and three more will in all probability be on the ocean by that time. There is left the 247th Battalion of Peterborough, 252nd Battalion of Lindsay, 253rd Queen's University Highlanders and the 254th Battalion of Belleville. These are recruiting steadily and should be well up to strength in the course of a couple of months. In Ottawa there is now the 257th Railway Construction Battalion. The recruits are pouring into this unit. In view of the urgency with which these kinds of units are needed, and the fact that practically no training is necessary, would indicate that his command would go direct to England and not to a training camp for any part of the summer.

The rumors are that more battalions will be authorized shortly. These would probably come to the camp for a time at least.

Queen's Field Ambulance Corps now has a strength of 167. This unit was changed this week to No. 15 Canadian Field Ambulance Corps (Queen's), and as soon as it is organized on this basis it will go overseas. There will undoubtedly be a base left, however, and this base would go to Barriefield Camp.

Another company to go will be the Special Service Company. The strength of this unit is changing constantly, but it hovers around the 300-mark.

Then in Brockville, Kingston and Rockland there are three companies being formed to reinforce units now overseas. These companies have an establishment of 250 and would probably come into camp at about full strength.

CANADIAN SUCCESS IN TRENCH RAIDS

Foes Guns Smashed—Men From Highland Battalion Refuse to Quit When Discovered and Carry Out Operation Successfully

PRISONERS TAKEN

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The following communication was issued to-day by the Canadian War Records Office:

Apart from three carefully planned and well executed raids, nothing of special interest has occurred on the Canadian front during the past week. Hard frosts have prevailed, and though the cold renders the long nights more trying, the absence of mud makes it preferable to wet weather.

There has been no abatement of our artillery activity, and much successful counter-battery work has been carried out in co-operation with the Royal Flying Corps. As a result the enemy's fire has shown a marked decrease during the past few days.

One afternoon an airplane located two German anti-aircraft guns and reported their position to our artillery by wireless. One gun was mounted on a platform and the other located in a pit. Our batteries opened fire, the results of which were observed and controlled by the airplane. On his return the airman reported that both guns were destroyed, the latter by a direct hit on the pit, and the former by a fire which also demolished a house near-by.

Raid by Highlanders.

Full reports have now been received on two of the three raids undertaken during the week. The first was on a small scale, and was carried out by a party numbering thirty, drawn from a battalion of Cameron Highlanders. At 4 a.m. two officers and a Sergeant made a final reconnaissance of the enemy's wire, and in doing so they were discovered and bombed, probably due to the covered ground. As the surprise effect is usually a vital factor in a small raid, the party would have been justified in postponing the attempt. Rather than disappoint the men, however, the enterprise was carried out, and with such skill and dash that one prisoner was captured, several casualties inflicted on the enemy without loss to the raiders. As was to be expected the enemy was found alert and ready, and our men had to fight their way into the German trench. In the trench a sharp bombing duel took place on both flanks, in which the enemy were driven off with loss. Before our party returned they destroyed two dugouts with bombs. According to the prisoner these dugouts each held six men, so that the enemy's casualties probably amounted to twenty, while our own, as already stated, were nil.

Western Men In This.

The other raid covered a frontage of 700 yards, and in this operation well over 150 men from two battalions recruited in Manitoba and Alberta took part. The particular objectives of our troops were the capture of prisoners and the destruction of hostile mine shafts, and they accomplished not only this but a good deal more.

The attack was divided into two assaulting parties who went forward under cover of an immense artillery barrage. On the right a German machine gun got into action before our barrage lifted to the support line wounding the officer in charge and all of the N. C. O's almost immediately. Two scouts then took command of the party, doing splendid work. Several prisoners were taken and two dugouts and a machine gun destroyed.

Took Gun With Them.

The left party found the German trenches were strongly held and lively fighting ensued here. Also an enemy machine gun succeeded in opening fire. It was, however, silenced

Geo. Lockie Gets Judgment For $350 and Costs

Judgment was given this morning by His Honour, Judge Huycke in the case of George Lochie vs the Township of North Monaghan. The plaintiff's claim was for a supply of water for his cattle of which he claimed the defendants had deprived him, by diverting a stream running to the north of his farm, and for damages for the loss sustained; and also for 50 feet of land on a road to the south of his farm of which he claimed the ownership and damage for wrongful possession of the same by the defendant. The plaintiff was non-suited in his claim for the land which gives him leave to bring another action, when more evidence can be obtained as to the location of what is known as the Goodfellow Post. Judgment was given in the plaintiff's favour as to the water with $350 damages and costs of the action, except the cost of surveying the land. The Township is given till the 1st of June 1918 to give the plaintiff a continuous supply of fresh water.

Messrs. D. O'Connell and Joseph Wearing acted for the plaintiff and Messrs. E. A. Peck and F. D. Kerr for the defendants.

Collect Paper and Rags Now For The Playground Needs

Will the ladies interested in the playground movement in our city (and who is not?) kindly remember and be preparing for the collection of rags to be made in the Spring by the "Playgrounds Committee? Keep a paper bag or box in the kitchen or sewing room and see how soon it will be filled. Put in anything clean—cotton, woollen or linen. Keep another receptacle for the scraps of clean paper. Don't rob the incinerator and keep the newspapers for other patriotic purposes, but just see how the "odds and ends" mount up. You will be surprised and delighted to find that your 'bit,' costing you nothing, will be of considerable value in furthering a good work. Old rubbers and scraps of metal also will be acceptable.—Annie E. Mowat, for the Playgrounds Committee of the Local Council of Women.

THE POWER OF SMALL THINGS

In the first ten months of the present fiscal year, the revenue of Canada has increased about fifty million dollars over the figures of the corresponding period of last year, the total for the ten months being 187 millions. To this tremendous total the postal revenue contributed fifteen millions. Think of it: a million and a half a month, $50,000 per day contributed in 1-cent, 2-cent and other small sums for stamps—contributed by seven and a half million of Canadians, to a total of 15 millions in ten months. Here is an object lesson as to what can be accomplished by the accummulation of small savings deposited in Penny Savings bank, in our public schools; an average, say, of 10 per head per year would add 75 millions to the resources of the people, an amount that might otherwise have been wasted in trifles. It pays to save even small amounts. Thus every citizen becomes a capitalist—individually, of course, in a small way—but the total increase in the capital of the country, liquid assets, available for loaning to the government to help in the war, or for tiding the individual over a little deep water, means a tremendous increase of financial potentiality.

SUNDAY COAL DELIVERY.

The mayor of Hamilton on Sunday, February 4th, gave authority for the delivery of coal on Sunday. Though this was an action the Mayor had no authority for, yet he deserves every credit for having taken it. With a supply of coal in the house, many persons have difficulty in this severe weather keeping fairly warm; without fuel it is an impossibility, with the danger of frozen and burst water pipes. Nothing could be more uncomfortable and conducive to the contracting of colds and pneumonia than spending a day in a house without adequate heating. The true Shylock is not only he who exacts his pound of flesh, but he who exacts the letter of the law in regard to the strait observance of the Sabbath, that the Lord of the Sabbath declared "was made for man—not man for the Sabbath." It is easily possible in this and other things to earn the condemnation that our Lord places on the "blind guides that strain at a gnat and swallow a camel."

PURGING POLITICAL LIFE

In a sermon on Sunday morning, a city preacher, dealing with the social service campaign of the churches, declared that from the standpoint of a citizen, he felt that the most dangerous thing in Canadian life was political immorality. We have evidence, in the comparatively little that comes to the surface, as revealed in the courts, and by reports of commissions appointed to investigate political wrong-doing, that there is a great deal of truth in the statement. Partisanship on both sides is interested in extenuating the character and scope of the evil; and it is this attitude that militates against improvement. It is, therefore, satisfactory to note that one head of a provincial government, Premier Martin, of Saskatchewan, has taken the right view, and the right course. The Brown-Elwood Commission made a finding of wrong-doing against several members of the Saskatchewan Legislature—in the form of extortion of money to stay prosecutions and accepting bribes in consideration of votes in the legislature. The Premier, though the members incriminated were members of his own following called upon them to resign, and in one case went so far as to call upon the House to expel one of them, and read out of the Liberal party one member who refused to resign. This example cannot but have a far reaching effect in conducing to a more wholesome public life in Canada, and it would be well followed by other governments.

It may be claimed that the people deal with such persons at the polls; but that is too slow a process. Besides time and an imperfect understanding of the merits of cases weak ens the force of the appeal to the popular conscience; and we find political criminals that have been condemned for political corruption and breach of representative trust, acclaimed as party heroes, and allowed to become candidates for re-election, and with fair chance of election. Partisanship has got this country by the throat with so strong a grasp that it is difficult to shake it off. There is no doubt that the patronage system, that subsidizes partisanship, and makes its exploitation not only individually profitable, but the source of a sort of strength to the party, is responsible for a good deal, if not the bulk of the political immorality that has become so brazen, so manifest, that it calls down denunciation from the pulpit, which, as a rule, does not deal with such matters, except under extreme provocation.

If ever there was a timely time to eliminate political immorality from the public and quasi public life of Canada, it is the present. This is the time to try men's souls; to make sacrifices for the sake of helping win the war. Our soldiers in the trenches, our women at home, the great mass of the people are sacrificing lives, habits, preconceptions, material comfort, and hopes of future achievement in their own interests, to the grim demand of duty. The call for similar sacrifices comes to our public men; to our statesmen, to our political leaders. The late session of Parliament showed that in the matter of the war, party leaders were ready to unite, to cooperate. Sir Wilrid Laurier, as leader of one great party, strained the amenities, put aside narrow partisan considerations in order to facilitate Robert Borden's attendance at the Imperial Conference. Sir Robert acknowledged this courtesy and surrender of party considerations, with a similar disregard of party convections. This is an admirable spirit. It had its birth in the demand of the hour; but it does not go far enough. There might be a wholesale mutual subordination of party interests to successful conduct of the war, to find expression in a National Government, in which the only party interests represented would be the national welfare; a government whose first article, and only article of creed, whose main item of policy should be the union of all parties, all forces, all interests, all ambitions, in cooperation in the great work of bringing to the point of concentration, to effective focus, all the resources of Canada, Tory and Grit; political and moral; material and spiritual; Dominion and Provincial; civic and domestic; in the work of efficiently and successfully grappling with the nation's sole task—winning the war.

We hear amongst the people an almost universal declaration of determination expressed in the motto, "Win the War First." This means the subordination of every other consideration. Why should not "every other consideration" include the surrender of the pursuit of party advantage in so strenuous a way as to lead to political immorality.

THE HOME GARDEN.

Canada must produce more foodstuffs. We have much vacant land about our homes, which if cultivated, would greatly add to the food supply. Very little work is necessary, and the returns more than compensate for the effort. By helping to provide the food for your family you are releasing that much additional for the general good, and reducing the cost of living.—Conservation.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Great prominence is given in the "Daily Review" of the 10th inst. to criticisms relative to the returning home of "Officers" in general, and the 93rd Band in particular, under the heading of "See the Chocolate Hero Comes," and as many insinuations of an unpleasant nature have been made of and to some of our bandsmen, as well as those contained in the 'article' I beg for space in your paper to make some authentic explanation.

The "article" referred to hints at the rapid advancement of some soldiers, it says, either by merit or pull. Well, this certainly does not hit our bandsmen, for, in the band, positions higher than a private are extremely limited, for with the exception of one Sergeant, one Corporal and two Lance Corporals, all are privates, and when we know that the majority of our boys would clear from $2 to $5 per diem in their civil occupations, the charge of graft certainly cannot be laid at our door, at $1.10 per day. Therefore, we are in nearly every case, making daily monetary sacrifices.

The "article" suggests we have been petted and coddled by the citizens ever since our organization. And why shouldn't we be thought much of? We cost the citizens a good deal of money; they watched us grow in numbers with no little interest; they knew we worked hard and put in long hours; much longer than the men in the ranks, in fact, and they noted each time we appeared, we played better than we did before, until ultimately we were classified by "those who know" as a first-class band. Of course they had a right to pet us; in a sense we belonged to them, and by our enthusiasm, hard work, attention to duty and cleanliving we justified our existence as a band, and a recruiting medium for which sole purpose we were organized.

Did we show the white feather, as suggested in the "article"? Here let me state the facts as I know them to be.

We numbered forty when we left Barriefield and we crossed to England with the hope of serving our country in France with our Battalion. We had taken a course in First Aid and Stretcher-Bearer work, and in that capacity looked forward to doing our bit.

During the life of the 93rd in Otterpool we turned out of our canvas homes at 4.30 a.m. to play for thirty minutes, on empty stomache, at Reveille; did our full duty through the day and in lots of cases on until 10 p.m., on Picquet duty, (no easy task) for eight consecutive weeks, whilst our Battalion gradually left us for France, in drafts, in a little while. The remnants of our Battalion, with the Band, were removed to West Sandling; finally all had gone to France, and the Band left behind, "out of work." At Sandling we underwent several medical examinations, and out of the forty men, seventeen were pronounced unfit for service overseas, and six over age.

The "article" gives credit to unfit officers and applauds their attitude in continuing to serve in other positions, and rightly so. Why not give the same credit to those twenty-three bandsmen, too? If you will pardon a personal reference, I will cite my own case. I was told on a certain Tuesday I could never see France unless I had an operation. I wanted to go. My three brothers had gone before me, and the only brother left was waiting to go, and I wanted to go with him. I therefore made my way to Folkstone the next day, and on the following day was operated upon, even paying my own expenses for the trips. Unfortunately, the operation was unsuccessful, and I was discharged from the hospital and recommended for discharge from the service in less than a week later. I was called out and offered my discharge on the spot, but seeing that I was improving as I thought, I begged permission to remain and do what I could, which the Divisional Commander graciously granted. I, therefore, could not go to France, and my only surviving brother went without me. I felt pretty bad about it and do so yet, in spite of the fact that I am the only one left of the five boys of my family.

There are four of our band boys still in England, doing I do not know what, out of the remaining presumably fit. These are four doubtful cases, and as these boys were not permitted to go to France in stretcher-bearing work, they did put away their instruments, and they did take up the rifle for the first time in their military career. The officer who took them in hand, finding them unable to handle the rifle as trained men should, being untrained, whilst on the square, advised that they be put to fatigue work, although they signified their willingness to receive training, and so some were employed, cleaning roads, some cleaning out drains; others in cookhouses, some picking up ends of cigarettes; the writer, as Hut Orderly, whilst a few helped in the 30th Band, and here, let me say, since this was the only work they were permitted to do, they did it cheerfully, and made the best of their very disagreeable environs, until finally, ordered home with 460 other bandsmen, for further duty.

If our band and the music they dispensed was an impetus to recruiting during the organization of the 93rd Battalion and our boys "out of work" could not be used for other duties, was there any reasonable cause why they could not again be successfully employed in their own capacity for similar work? Or does the writer of the "article" insist that we showed the white feather? True music does not bring all the sorely needed recruits to the colors. There is something else needed but had our instruments been sent back by freight, as suggested, would the non-combatant band spoken of have put on the khaki and taken our places, or would they be missing as in the cases of at least two members of the same band who have gone to the "other side"?

In conclusion, with thanks for space in your paper, I add, that whilst officers have the privilege of reverting or refusing to revert, bandsmen have not, but must do as they are told, without question.

Yours, etc.,
THOS. R. BLUNT,
No. 195496.
247th Band, late 93rd Band.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The city might be benefitted if the members of the Council would move cautiously along the lines advanced by Alderman Langford in reference to the providing for the payment of patriotic grants. From a 1917 standpoint it appears all right; yet, if they would consider seriously the reference made by Ald. Langford to the system adopted by the County Council they would probably acquiesce if they were all as well acquainted with the financing ability of the County Council as Ald. Langford.

TAXPAYER.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—An item appeared in your paper last evening that three Irishmen were gathered in for flirting with the contraband of the Ontario Temperance Act. Will you be kind enough to tell me if these three men were born in Ireland or were they simply Canadians? Is it necessary for you to state what their nationality was, or were you only trying to boost the Irishmen?

R. SHEEHY.

Mobilizing The Returned Soldier For Making A Farming Brigade

Among the schemes for taking care of returned soldiers none has received more attention than that of offering this deserving class every possible inducement to go upon the land. The British Columbia government has already taken action in this direction and now it is announced that the Ontario government has also formulated plans along similar lines. So far as this province is concerned, the lands chiefly available for the purpose are those located in the so-called clay belt in New Ontario. All returned soldiers who are willing to go on the land will be given free of cost to them a proper training at the agricultural training depot now being established to which they will be moved. Here, in charge of a competent superintendent, they will help erect the necessary buildings, and do such other work as may be essential to the establishment of a central community. Farms containing not more than 80 acres will be laid out in such a manner as to bring the different farm houses as close together as possible. As soon as a soldier desires to go upon a farm and work for himself an 80-acre lot with a 10-acre clearing will be allotted to him, and he will be supplied with the necessary machinery and tools, and such cattle, pigs, poultry, etc., as competent authority may determine up to the value of $1500. The land is given free of charge, and an advance of $1500 will be made for stock, implements, etc., repayable in 20 years at six per cent. The social side of life at the colony will be provided for, and ample provision will be made to make life enjoyable and comfortable at headquarters. A proper public building, where both religious and secular gatherings may be held, will be provided. A schoolhouse and educational facilities will be provided. Buying and selling will be done upon a co-operative basis, and every assistance possible will be rendered to hasten the day when the soldier may be established upon a prosperous and independent footing.

In the main the plans outlined for Ontario closely follow those which have already been adopted by British Columbia, and they are certainly calculated to offer the soldier, who comes back from the war, every possible opportunity to go upon the land and become independent and self-supporting. They are far ahead of the making of land grants, as has been done in the past, which have no other effect than to tie up large quantities of land for settlement. What kind of response will the returned soldier make to the invitation?—Brantford Expositor.

EXPORTATION IS BLAMED.

Cold-storage Representatives Say That is Why Produce is High.

BRANTFORD, Feb. 11.— The civic High Cost of Living committee yesterday discussed cold-storage. Brantford cold-storage representatives appearing before the committee. They blamed the high cost of dairy produce on exportation, saying they had no butter since last September, and had eggs for only ten days ahead, while the cheese on hand is only enough for their local customers.

Fry's Pure Cocoa

Best since 1728

After play or work in the crisp, wintry air nothing tastes so delicious as a cup of FRY'S Cocoa. Baby knows this. Big folk know it too. Fry's is ALL splendid, body-building nourishment; there is no waste, and it is in such soluble form that the system can immediately assimilate it.

Here is just about the cheapest, most enjoyable and most concentrated food you can buy today, but—

Remember, nothing will do but FRY'S

SOFTENING BUTTER.

It is exasperating to try to spread sandwiches with butter of unmanageable hardness. This difficulty is easily overcome by heating a bowl and turning it over the butter. In a few minutes the butter will be soft throughout.

EXTRAVAGANT WOMEN ARE NEVER ABLE TO MAKE BOTH ENDS MEET

An income may vary in size tremendously, depending on the number and kind of persons making use of it. There may be no actual difference in the figures, but the size of the income varies nevertheless according to the wisdom of the housewife in saving and buying according to the size of the family.

To be more explicit, twenty-five hundred dollars a year may seem insufficient for the ordinary necessities of life to the big Brown family with six children and three adults dependent on it. To the Whites, however, it may seem like a fairly large amount—enabling them to have all that they need, and many of the luxuries besides, but then the Whites have only one baby and themselves to provide for on two hundred and eight dollars and a few odd cents a month.

But it is not always the number in the family which makes the moderate income seem too small. For there are only three in the Black family, and their twenty-five hundred a year all goes in the first eight or nine months. The rest of the time they are in debt. They are always behind in their payments, but Mrs. Black has no idea either of how to buy or how to save, so that a moderate income in her hands soon shrinks to very slim proportions.

MORE COMFORTABLE DAYS.

Housewives, to which class do you belong? Are you a Mrs. Black, a Mrs. White or a Mrs. Brown, where there are too many family ties for the size of their necessary expense. done by careful management and thrifty housekeeping to make that small income seem much larger.

Every woman with a moderate income looks forward to the day she will be more comfortably off, with larger means at her disposal, and no need for constant economy and care. But the only way ever to reach this blissful state is to put by money now.

Women, you cannot realize too deeply the vast importance of saving, or having a bank acount to fall back upon in case of need. There is no reason on earth why a young couple with only one or two small children and an income of two or three thousand a year should not put by from two hundred and fifty to five hundred dollars a year, depending entirely on the size of their necessary expense.

They should put by at least ten per cent. in any case. If it so happens that their expenses are too large to allow ten per cent. for the savings account then something should be done to cut down the expenses.

If your husband is working for some one else you must look ahead to the time when increasing years will make it hard for him to find employment. How many old couples have wept bitter tears of regret at not having put aside enough money in their younger days to care for them in their old age.

That time may seem to you too far off to worry about now, but it will take a long time to save enough to support your old age comfort. Nearer still is the ever present danger of prolonged illness or accident. In case of either a good sized bank account is needed to pay doctor's and nurses' bills, as well as all the extras that pile up.

If your husband is in business for himself so much the more reason why you should and must have money in the bank. Any business is apt to have black periods of weeks and months at a stretch. During these periods there is nothing coming in and the bank account is the family's sole means of sustenance.

Every housewife knows the necessity for putting by, but so few women are willing to economise enough to put money in the bank. For those of you who have only moderate incomes it means doing without some of the expensive luxuries which you might otherwise be able to afford. But really it is worth while if you finish up with a good sized bank account.

Learn how to save. Learn the ins and the outs of real economy. Learn how to buy thriftily and properly, and put by ten per cent. each month in the bank. You will feel rewarded in the end for a few years of providence and thrift.

LOOKING AHEAD AT ADVANCE SPRING STYLES

Straw Hats Begin to Put in an Appearance

Jersey Cloth Still on the Horizon

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The temptation to rush the seasons is very strong at this time of the year when in every window we see displays of straw hats and spring frocks and suits. One must be very strong-minded to refrain from blossoming forth into a spring hat with so many on show, but the weather is forbidding and those of us who are endowed with a sense of the fitness of things will abstain yet a while, guided by our better judgment.

Some of the hats combine straw and fine felt, or straw and satin, others are entirely of straw trimmed with flowers or ribbon, and a great many are of crepe. An almost brimless, rather high-crowned little hat was fashioned entiely of narrow ribbon interlaced giving the impression of straw, at a disance. It was of narrow blue ribbon with a tiny red border on either side. The trimming was a bunch of red cherries placed on the left side of the crown. Another hat with a small upturned brim was of white silk covered entirely with machine stitching worked in a close allover design. Machine stitching is also very popular just now as a decoration for suits and dresses, therefore it is not surprising to find it on hats.

Some New Suits.

Very snappy are the new suits with their hip-length coats. The box coat in the sketch is one of the new models. The pleated pockets and cuffs tell at once that this is a 1917 design, for box coats have never before had such frivolous pockets. Coats of bright colors such as green, rose, marigold, citron or purple accompany white skirts which are either plain, or else spotted or striped with the color of the coat. Some of the skirts are made from bordered material with the border at the lower edge and the top laid in pleats. In some of these, the designs are embroidered instead of printed. The designs are generally large dots or squares worked in two or three striking colors or in a solid color with black or a contrasting shade used to outline the motif.

Jersey, and Still More Jersey.

Jersey keeps at the height of popularity and is now combined with other materials. A suit of citron-colored wool jersey was made with a white pique collar. The collar was, of course, detachable, so that it could be removed and laundered with ease. In another instance, wool jersey was combined with gabardine very pleasingly. The suit was of purple jersey, and tan gabardine fashioned the large collar and revers that went the length of the coat. The cuffs and pocket-laps were also of the tan gabardine.

Irish crochet as a dress trimming has been revived again. The idea was brought from Paris very recently. On a dress of white Georgette there were large pockets of Irish crochet lace, and an edging to match finished the large bertha on the waist.

Dresses of white serge also begin to make their appearance. Some very attractive models are seen, brightened here and there with touches of Oriental embroideries.

A Smooth, Hairless Skin For Every Woman

(The Modern Beauty)

With the aid of a plain delatone paste it is an easy matter to rid the skin of unsightly hairy growths. The paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs not wanted and after 2 or 3 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. When you go to your druggist for delatone, be sure you get the genuine article.

BIG MILLS MAY CLOSE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—Ottawa is facing a most serious coal crisis. The Eddy and Booth paper mills have only enough coal to last until the end of the week, and the prospect of their closing down temporarily is probable.

LUNG TROUBLE

Was never cured by dosing the stomach. The two organs are not connected. If they were, food swallowed would choke you. For lung and bronchial troubles you must breathe the cure; and you can't breathe cough syrups, tonics and syrupy compounds! Peps provide the rational treatment for coughs, colds, bronchitis and lung troubles. Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing.

On the face of it, now, does this not sound more reasonable than drugging the stomach? Try one box of Peps. A trial will cost you only 50c., and the good you will reap—well, health cannot be expressed in money terms. Be sure of the article when ordering from druggist or store. Just four letters

PACIFISTS AT WASHINGTON.

They Want a Popular Referendum on War Declaration.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A special train to-day brought a delegation of the Emergency Peace Federation here from New York, Philadelphia and other eastern cities to solicit members of Congress on behalf of pending measures to provide a popular referendum before declaring war. They arranged a demonstration and meeting for which peace advocates were the speakers.

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Australasia Is Not Forgotten By Greedy Germany

SYDNEY, Jan. 20.—In the fury of the conscription argument, gentlemen connected with the government, to confound their opponents, have made occasional little disclosures concerning the enemy's keen interest in these dominions. The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, the other day declared that documents captured in the post while en route from a German agent to the Fatherland, proved that Germany had done something more that dream of a great German confederation in these southern seas; that already she had decided how Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea and the Pacific Islands were to be linked up under "kultur."

HAD PLANS OF ROAD.

Another prominent conscription speaker, attacking the argument that Germany had not interest in Australia, said: "I have the testimony of a customs officer, who, searching a vessel seized plans of all the Australian roads capable of being used for the movement of big bodies of troops, photographs of strategical places, and marked maps."

But Australians, just now are more interested in removing harmless the enemy within their gates. Since the police presented the I.W.W. in its true light, there has been a round-up of I.W.W. leaders in different parts of the Commonwealth, and they are being kept in prison on some of the many charges to which the real "I.-W.-W.-ism" makes them peculiarly liable.

OUTBREAKS OF FIRE.

There has been only one serious fire in Sydney since the incarceration of the twelve chief I.W.W. men, but there have been suspicious outbreaks and mysterious damage to property elsewhere in Australia, and the police theories relative there to are also the theories of the general public.

There can be nothing more despicable, dangerous and irritating than the methods of these "reformers." For instance, in a mine recently a train of skips, or trucks, was turned loose down an incline, and much damage was done, although, fortunately, no one was hurt. A subsequent inquiry showed clearly that the mishap was no accident. It was "sabotage."

CALL SOLDIERS SCABS.

The State Attorney-General has announced that the records seized at the I.W.W. rooms show that at the beginning of the war, the organization adopted this resolution: "That every member of the I.W.W. who joins the military forces be expelled from the organization, and that the organization brands any member who joins the forces as a "scab" and a traitor to the working class."

The official membership list, added the Attorney-General, contained [illegible] names, and fifty of these were the names of Germans. By the way, the notorious German prisoner who escaped from the camp, and whose tatoo marks were removed by the I.W.W. men while they had him hidden in Sydney has been arrested in Broken Hill. He says he was taken there by Barker, the I.W.W. leader.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

TO STOP THE GAMBLING AT THE FALL FAIRS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—A deputation led by Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.D., representing the Lord's Day Alliance, waited upon Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General to-day, and asked that measures be taken to suppress gambling devices at the fall fairs in Ontario. Consideration was promised.

WAS ENGINEER ON C. P. R. WHEN BUILT THROUGH PETERBORO

The late William Lyon Mackenzie, whose funeral was held in Winnipeg on Friday, February 9th, was a civil engineer of wide experience in railway building. His first work was on the C. P. R. west from Toronto through Galt and Woodstock, and eastward through Peterborough to Smith's Falls. His wife was Miss Isabella Laing, of Springville, Ont., who survives with three children.

Peterboro' Soldier Is In Sudbury

Pte. R. J. Saffrey Has Joined the Forces of the Quaker Oats Company

SUDBURY, Feb. 13.—A recent arrival in Sudbury is R. J. Saffrey, a returned soldier who spent ten months in Flanders. Before the war he worked for the Quaker Oats Co., at Peterborough, where he enlisted with the 39th Battalion, and on his return was sent to Sudbury by the same firm. He was through Ypres, Sanctuary Wood, Zillebeke and St. Eloi, where he lost two fingers and a thumb on his right hand, and received a wound in the abdomen, both from explosive bullets. He received his wounds in a small raid in which ten volunteers participated. This was on the 26th of July and Pte. Saffrey, was in English hospitals until December 2nd, when he sailed for Canada. He has four brothers with the Imperial army, two of whom have been in the fight since the very start. "I would not take $1,000 for my experience," Pte. Saffrey said.

CRAFTON & CO. IS BURNED OUT IN HAMILTON

A Loss of Over $150,000 Stock Fixtures and Building

HAMILTON, Feb. 12. — Fire did damage to the extent of about $150,000 to-night to the Grafton & Company's clothing store, 16 James street north, almost opposite the City Hall. The company carried insurance for about half that amount. The fire was discovered about 8.45 p.m., and had a big start. The flames had broken through the roof, and illuminated the whole block. At first it looked, with the wind blowing a hurricane, that nothing would save the block, which is one of the most valuable in the heart of the city. Colonel J. J. Grafton estimated his loss at about $135,000 to $150,000. Little is left but ice-covered walls. Fixtures, valued at about $10,000 more, and stock at $90,000, are a complete loss. Burning pieces of wood and cinders were carried by the wind over buildings for blocks. Fortunately the roofs were covered with snow and the buildings did not ignite. The fire started in the upper part of the four-story front section of the Grafton building, and its origin is a mystery. The street car service was tied up for two hours by hose lines. The fire was got under control about 11.30.

SESSION WILL BE A SHORT ONE

Sir Wm. Hearst Congratulated upon His Knighthood Honours

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 13. — Although Knighthood honours have fallen upon Sir William H. Hearst, the Premier was at his desk at nine o'clock this morning. As he entered the legislative building a few minutes before nine he wore a warm cloth cap and almost escaped observation amid the throng of civil servants entering the building at the same moment. The Premier commented that he was the third Premier of Ontario to receive Knighthood during their term of office as Prime Minister. The others were Sir Oliver Mowat and Sir James Whitney. Sir George Ross was knighted after he was elevated to the Senate. "Will the session of the Legislature opening to-day be lengthy," asked [illegible] of Sir William. "I do not expect it. It should be a fairly short session." There will be no usually important government legislation. Premier Hearst received many congratulations by telegram upon the new honour conferred upon him and members of the Legislature, irrespective of party, called all forenoon and offered congratulations.

Canadian Success In Trench Raids

by one of our own guns taken into "No Man's Land" to cover the entrance of the party. The skill and courage of a Lance-Corporal in charge of this gun contributed in no small measure to the success of the operation.

The left party remained in the enemy's trenches for a quarter of an hour, during which time they completely cleared it of Germans, and destroyed all important works, finally returning with several prisoners, and a machine gun.

When all the raiders were back in our own lines two officers returned to the German trenches to make sure none of our wounded had been left behind and in addition they brought back two more prisoners.

Bavarians Fight Well.

In this admirable operation twenty-one prisoners and one machine gun were captured, and two machine guns, two mine-throwers, six machine-gun emplacements and twenty-two dugouts were destroyed. More prisoners might have been taken, but speed was essential and our men were instructed not to waste time over Germans who hesitated to surrender or come out of their dug outs.

The German line was held by Bavarians who fought well. Resistance was offered in almost every case and non surrendered voluntarily. In addition to the prisoners taken thirty-one German dead and wounded were seen in the trenches and there is no doubt that our bombs and explosives played havoc with those who were caught in dugouts. The enemy's casualties may be conservatively estimated at 100, while our own losses were only twenty-six. A comparison of those figures is eloquent of the success attained by our men.

Reharse Miniature Battle.

A despatch from William Philip Simms, with the British armies in the field, dated January 22, says:

"Before the Canadians stormed the German lines last Wednesday north of Arras, when during a snowstorm they took 101 prisoners and a number of machine guns and destroyed German trenches, dugouts and munitions, they held a complete rehearsal.

"The British system of tabulating the enemy defences was so complete that the Canadians were provided with a detailed plot of the trenches which it was proposed to raid, including the German names of every trench, crater and dugout.

"Thus a dummy system was arranged behind the Canadian lines, complete to the last dugout mouth, with German sign posts just as in the original. Here the Canadians rehearsed a miniature battle, every man having his own particular job. The rehearsing raiders were even taught such German words as 'Come out or we will blow you up,' or 'Come out; you are safe,' 'Hands up,' 'Surrender,' and so on.

"Asked whether they preferred to attack by night or day, the men replied Day.' Therefore, at daylight on Wednesday they jumped over the parapet and crossed No Man's Land through four inches of snow."

THE PROVINCE PREPARED TO MAKE A GRANT

CONGREGATIONAL AT HOME WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

The congregational "at home" held last night at the George street Methodist church was largely attended and proved a great success. This "at home" which, save for last year when the board considered Red Cross and other war work to be too pressing to leave, has marked each anniversary since the church was finished in 1873, when the Rev. John Black was first pastor.

Rev. R. G. Peever, who was in the chair, spoke of the history of the church, which is the mother church of the district, compromising Peterborough, Otonabee, Monaghan, Cavan, Ops, Emily and Dummer.

Mr. B. Greatrix, pastor of St. James' Methodist church and chairman of the district, brought the kind greetings of St. James' and spoke of the loss the George street church would sustain when Mr. Peever leaves in June to accept a call to London, Ont. He complimented the church on having such an able and splendid pastor.

A short programme was given, Mr. Renwick presiding at the organ, including solos by Mrs. Renwick and Miss Callaghan. The main feature of the evening was an exceedingly interesting address by Rev. P. T. Scott on the "Democracy of Women and Their Work To-day." This was followed by a social hour in which refreshments were served. The evening closed with God Save the King. It is hoped this "at home" may continue to be a regular affair as it helps hold together the members in a bond of good fellowship.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 13.—Local offices of the White Star Line said to-day that the Afric was formerly in passenger service between Liverpool and Australia.

They did not know whether she was now in the Admiralty service, but assumed she had been commandeered like other liners for troop transport service.

Resolutions Urge Assistance In Shipping Coal And Lumber Here

At a special meeting of the Council last night two resolutions were passed urging the Railway and Imperial Munitions Board to take action to relieve the scarcity of coal and lumber that is impeding the work of local factories and may seriously affect the citizens:

Moved by Ald. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Smith: Whereas there is a serious scarcity of coal in the city of Peterborough and the citizens, in their residences, schools, hospitals, and manufacturing industries, including factories in which munitions of war are being made, are on the verge of being absolutely without coal.

And whereas, in residences and public institutions especially, the situation is aggravaid by the severely cold weather;

Be it resolved that this Council apply to and urge the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, the Government of Canada and the Imperial Munitions Board to take any and all action that they can to have the railways move to Peterborough the coal that is and has been and will be on the way to Peterborough, and thus avoid serious suffering by the people and the immediate closing down of the factories of the manufacturers of munitions and others.

And that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, the Premier of Canada and the Chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board.

RE PLANING MILL'S NEEDS

Moved by Ald. Weir, seconded by Ald. Smith:

Whereas several cars of lumber for the manufacture of boxes for munitions wre shipped from [illegible] on the fourth day of January last on the Canadian Pacific Railway in cars Nos. 42216, 44397, 129554, 45816, 57098, and 271664, and on the Grand Trunk Railway in cars Nos. 260044, C. G. R. 18157, P. R. and 67758 S. P.

And whereas none of the said lumber has yet been received and the factory is in the position that it had to close down;

Resolved that the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada, the Canadian Government and the Imperial Munitions Board be requested to take active steps to endeavour to have the said cars forwarded in order that the factory may resume the manufacture of the boxes.—Carried.

"Prosperity" Pleads For The Foundation Principle Of True National Prosperity

To the Editor of The Examiner:—

Dear Sir,—I have read with interest your editorial comment and recent correspondence re Penny Banks in our schools. I have noted also the press report of the last meeting of our School Board, and, judging from that report, there seems to be a portion of the Board which does not even desire information on this subject.

The School Board is no place for "dead timber" on a question of this nature—when our country is calling for the fruits of economy, the foundation of which should have been laid years ago in our public schools.

This curriculum-interference bogey is only shallow evasion; even if there were, to some extent, some interference, better crowd some other less important subject than evade this one that is of more universal benefit and more generally needed by rich or poor than any other subject on the slate.

We have been adding "new blood" to our School Board; perhaps it requires a little more. Certainly a wake-up is in order.. I quote the closing paragraph of your editorial and recommend a daily reading of it by that portion of the Board that "doesn't need information." A short course of this kind might change their viewpoint:—

"The statesman, the school administrator or any other administrator, who looks only to the present, who does not prepare in the broadest way for the future, is blindly groping in the rut of routine and perfunctory performance of illy-apprechated duty."

Yours for the future,

Peterborough, February 18th. PROSPERITY.

MR. HARRY RUSH,

The Perennial chairman of the Central Charity Board, who was re-elected last night. In that position Mr. Rush quietly performs a great deal of charitable work that never reaches the public's ear.

Winter Rheumatism

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is overcharged with acid and impurities, thus setting up inflammation in the muscles and joints. Wet weather or cold weather may start the tortures of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood, and the blood only. Victims of this winter malady have every reason to fear the first dull ache in the limbs and joints, followed by sharp pains through the flesh and muscles; these are the symptoms of poison in the blood which may shortly leave the victim pain racked and helpless.

There is only one way to cure rheumatism and that is through the blood. Liniments, hot applications, and rubbing may give temporary ease, but cannot possibly root the trouble out of the system. That can only be done by the rich, red, new blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. This new blood drives out the poisonous acids and impurities, and the rheumatism disappears. If you are a sufferer from this painful malady begin curing yourself to-day by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and see how soon the pains and stiffness in the joints fade away leaving behind new energy and health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Some people don't know very much, and what they do know they are not altogether sure of.

Home-Coming Sad For This Soldier

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—Pte. D. Goddard, of the 14th Battalion, who arrived at the convalescent hospital, yesterday, lost both legs as a result of shell injuries during the Somme advance on September 8th. He enlisted in Montreal, where before the war he was a laborer. To-day he is in Toronto minus both legs, but still cheerful over the fact that the stumps are long enough for him to have artificial legs provided.

"When I arrived at Montreal I went to see my father and mother, but thy were not at home," said he to a reporter. "I wonder when we can get leave to go home. My grandmother was killed and my grandfather was injured and is now in the hospital at Montreal through a wreck which happened on the C. P. R. four days ago.

"They were burying my grandmother when I came through, and so I could not see any of my people."

TALES FROM THE BIRDMEN

A TALE FROM FRANCE

By Canadian Overseas

It was about "the limit" in mistakes he thought, as he slipped out of a cloud and edged his plane into the teeth of the wind, to talk about airmen as flying men or to say that men had conquered the air.

Here he was barging along against half a gale, his engine spitting with a deafening noise, his eyes and nerves and muscles on the strain; and there quite near him was a bird, a lonely, quiet thing sailing onward. It rose and dipped and swerved, by a momentary rearrangement of the feathers of its tail.

No engine, no wires, no wheels, no bother about landing safely or running short of petrol—that was flying if you like! He set his planes at a sharper angle and began climbing.

The clouds were few and he crossed the enemy's lines at a good height. He was not out for fighting to-day. He was just "looking round," his keen sight having proved exceedingly useful on more than one occasion to the battalion to which he was attached. The Hun planes had been shy lately and he did not anticipate any rivals in the air; but he was reminded of the fact that somebody had seen him and did not like the look of him by a nasty jar of shrapnel exploding beneath.

He rather envied his brother actively engaged in an offensive not far away, who could hit back when the bullets came teasing; it was irritating to be shot at repeatedly and to be able to do nothing but grin and fly.

Like an immense large scale plan the earth spread beneath; carefully he scanned it for any movement, any tell-tale puff of smoke.

People at home, he supposed, as he gazed down upon the ragged trenches, imagined the two armies facing each other along a neat straight line, such as the maps depicted; they would hardly realise the reality, when after an attack the lines become so involved and knotted as a piece of twisted string. Here a salient a few hundred yards, there a space which neither side can claim, farther on the dust heap of a village taken one day, lost the next, until nobody quite knew who held it at at a given moment. Turning, he steered back till he followed the straddling gape of No Man's Land.

It was curious, but as he passed over a scarred and apparently empty triangular piece of ground, he felt a distinct tendency to fall, and it was the ordinary every day sensation due to a lull in the wind and consequent loss of lifting power. It was difficult to describe; more like a vague pull from below which affected him and through him, the machine he controlled. His gauge showed that he had dropped 400 feet—which was not in the least what he intended to do just then.

He let his engine out a little; it droned a semi-tone higher and he regained his previous altitude, wondering at so strange a lapse in machines.

He covered a hundred miles thus, noting observations which might be useful to the "heavies," and then once again turned and flew slowly over the same track. To his annoyance the engine began to give trouble. "It will hold out for another twenty minutes, otherwise I'll have to look for a quaity spot to land on."

His engine was behaving badly and it seemed to be in sympathy with the invisible power that drew him unwillingly towards earth, for as he peered down he recognized the triangular patch he had noticed before. Again, while trying all the tricks he knew to coax the engine back to work, he was conscious of that uncanny attraction and realized that somehow he had to land on that particular spot.

It did not look inviting as a scene for a forced landing, but as he began reluctantly to plane down in a wide spiral he could see no spot that offered a better chance. Keenly watching, he noticed a group of three or four soldiers moving about.

They looked like tiny dolls on an architect's model of an estate and they appeared to be carrying something. Suddenly the engine began firing nicely again and he smiled with satisfaction; another turn or two up and down his course and he might spy work for his friends at the guns and then steer homeward to the smooth field from where he started.

He straightened out once more and sped off like an arrow, and then an amazing thing happened. He lost his nerve. For the first time since he had as a pupil bumped ludicrously around the aerodrome in England and been horribly frightened lest the ancient practice plane should tip over, he felt scared and sick. Until now even in his toughest struggles with aerial powers, when a flight meant a series of balancing tricks with vicious gusts that shook him and twisted him and chopped him into ghastly "holes," he had known only a sense of exhilaration, and even in more deadly manoeuvres against enemy planes when bullets whipped past him and his share of a duel of wits was added to the strain of flight exhaustion had come after the event—but excitement had gripped him at the time.

But now above the exchange of shells, with nothing to worry him except an occasional shrapnel sent up at a venture and quite harmless, terror of the air took hold of him. His hands trembled at the controls; his face grew moist and white and chilled in the rush of wind. He became as one in a nightmare, aware of awful depths and evil influences, of muscles impotent, refusing to respond to urgent messages from the harassed brain. He must do down —— he must go down ;to attempt further flight would spell disaster.

He shut off the purring engine and from the dizzy height looked to earth. There was that mysterious triangular plot of ground still, he felt it pulling him vaguely, and in large spirals he descended, keeping it in the centre. Minutes of horror passed—the ground was near. He selected the most likely spot and made a safe though rough landing. A couple of shells, no doubt intended for him, fell wide and did no damage. He stepped clear and stretched himself, feeling uneasy.

In a few minutes some one came stumbling over the pitted earth—someone who knew him. "Hello, Pilot!" said the soldier, "quite a family gathering. We have just taken your brother away from here, smashed up a bit, but quite lively."

"Where is he," inquired the airman.

"In the dressing station. You can see it from this hillock, about a mile from here." "Can I land there?" "Yes, if you could land here," replied the other." "Well, help me swing her around."

In five minutes he entered the hut and saw his brother lying on a pile of rugs, smiling up at him. "Saw you miles up in the sky old man," he said weakly. "They told me you were scouting this afternoon. S'pose I was a bit off my head for I remember shouting to you to come down." He closed his eyes.

"Mustn't talk any more old chap," said the airman putting his hand gently on his brother's forehead. "I'll stop with you a bit and you'll be alright. I had to come down anyway."

CHERNIAVSKY CONCERT

Sir,—May I, through your columns, express to the large audience that turned out on such a cold evening as last night to hear the celebrated Cherniavsky Trio, my most sincere regret at the great disappointment caused by their non-appearance.

They gave a concert in Montreal on Sunday night and were coming on from there to Peterborough. I received a telegram from them saying the train was very late, but Port Hope was to keep connection for them, and asking me to have a taxi at the G.T.R. station to take them straight to the Conservatory Hall. This, of course, I did, and it was a great disappointment to me to get a long distance call while the audience were assembled to say they failed to get connections at Port Hope for Peterborough.

Their luggage is in Peterborough and they could not possibly make this city in time for the concert; they asked me to express to the audience their profound regret at the mishap.

Every night is fully booked up until they start for their Australian tour, so we shal have to forego the pleasure of hearing these three brilliant artists.

Though I am in no way responsible nor to blame for their failing to arrive, I do feel very keenly having, for he first time in my experience, to break faith with the public, and can only express my warmest thanks to the audience for the kindly and good humoured manner in which they met an awkward situation.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN ALLAN.

DANCING TO WIN THE WAR.

The Marmora Herald says:

"It is becoming more and more evident that the part many in Marmora take in winning the war will depend on the number of dances that can be crowded into the next few months. In order to facilitate matters it might be a good plan for the merchants to close their stores at 6 every night except Saturday. It would be too bad if any who wish to dance for their King and Country should be deprived of the opportunity of doing so."

PETERBORO SOLDIERS SCORE SENSATIONAL VICTORY IN GRAND GAME AT KINGSTON

247th Battalion Team Won By 9 Goals to 8 in Return Fixture With Depot Batteries Winning the Round by 20 to 14—Peterboro' Boys Were Never Behind at Any Stage.

"ARMIE" AGAIN STARRED

In the most exciting battle they have fought this season, the 247th Battalion team beat the Depot Batteries in Kingston last night by 9 goals to 8 after a struggle that was lightning fast from start to finish. The period scores show the hard fought nature of the engagement. At the end of the first the Peterborough soldiers were leading 4 to 3, and at the close of the second the Artillerymen had closed to even terms, the figures reading 5-5. The Petes came back and outscored their rivals 4 to 3 in the final session. The victory sends the 247th into the third round.

It was a grand exhibition of hockey, speedy skating, clever stick-handling and flashes of brilliant combination that kept the crowd on its feet all the way. The Petes were never behind—the best the Gunners could do was to crawl up on equal terms. The score was tied at 2-2, 5-5, 6-6 and 7-7, figures which show the desperate nature of the battle.

As in Peterborough, Bob Armstrong was the hero of the night. The big centre player banged six goals and has never shown more speed or better stick-handling ability than he did last night. He was going all the time, and on top of his great offensive efforts, did grand work in back checking. No player ever worked harder for victory than did the 247th centre ice man last night, and he dominated the play at all times. Clean fast and clever he was in every play, and nobody congratulated him more warmly in the dressing room after the game than did his own team mates. All the Petes did good work, Adams and Evans with their clever stick-handling and checking, Flanagan with his speedy rushes and back-checking, Halpin and Thornton by good defence work and rushing, but it is only justice to say that Armstrong was the star of the night.

Second only to Armstrong, was Burnett, the shifty little centre player of the Battery team, whose stick-handling was a dream. He flitted in on top of the nets like a shadow, and was responsible for most of Kingston's goals. He had something new every time he went in and was good all the way, as were Burke the captain and left wing, and Tubman the big defence man.

Half way through the second period, the Battery introduced their favorite stunt of dropping a man to get back to the six-man style. For a while it looked as if the tactics would win for them. Two goals behind when the six-man style started, they went like wild men and tied up the score before the end of the period. The Petes came back, however, in the last period and outplayed them at their own game.

Some thirty Peterborough rooters accompanied the team to Kingston and they had a great time cheering for the boys in the white and blue sweaters. All the Peterborough Boys in Kingston were on hand too, and the Petes did not lack supporters at any stage.

Referee Bernhardt of Bradford handled the game in his usual efficient style.

The teams lined up as follows:

Kingston		Peterborough
Tobin	Goal	Legros
Tubman	R. Defence	Thornton
Spence	L. Defence	Halpin
Grimes	Rover	Flanagan
Burnett	Centre	Armstrong
McMurty	R. Wing	Adams
Burke	L. Wing	Evans

The sparks were flying from the start with both teams opening up at top speed. It was lightning fast and both outfits had early opportunities which were fruitless. Jack Adams drew a penalty for tripping, and while he was off the Petes broke into the scoring column. Paddy Flanagan got away at top speed, and dashing up the side bored a beauty past Tobin. It was a great play as two men were checking the little rover as he got his shot away.

A minute after Bob Armstrong made it 2 to 0 by a lightning shot. He was checked and fell, but let drive as he dropped to his knees and Tobin had no chance to save.

Harry Thornton was chased for tripping, and while he was off Kingston got their first counter, when Burke worked his way down the side and took Legros measure with a fast one from the boards.

Thornton came back again at this stage. Armstrong apparently scored in a scrimmage and the goal judge raised his hand, but Referee Bernhardt over-ruled the decision. Adams was chased for a trip and again the odd man advantage helped the Artillery men, for Tubman broke away and scored on a pretty individual rush. That evened it up at 2 to 2.

The Petes lost a well earned goal a moment after, when Armstrong drove a fast one into the nets. The Peterborough goal judge missed it, however, and the shot was thrown away. Burnett drew the first Kingston penalty for tripping. Halpin put the Petes in front when he broke away alone and fooled the Artillery defence for a neat counter. Evans was benched for loafing.

Bobby Armstrong sent the 247th stock up when he caught Tobin napping with another speedy shot and the score was 4 to 2. Just before the end of the period Burnett dodged in alone and beat Legros and the session ended with the Peterborough soldiers one goal to the good.

Early in the second chapter, Burnett was chased for tripping. The Petes had several chances when he was off, but failed to find the nets until ten minutes after the period opened, when Armstrong scored from a scrimmage. McMurty was hurt, or supposed to be, and retired for the balance of the game, the 247th dropping Thornton. The six man game seemed to suit the Artillery men and they were dangerous for the balance of the period. They broke inside on a nice piece of combination, and although Evans tripped the puck carrier, Burke secured and scored, while Evans was penalized. They came right back with another and tied the score, when Grimes dashed in and took a pass to beat Legros. The period ended with the figures 5-5.

The opening of the third chapter was sensational. Forty seconds after the face-off, Adams tore down the side and centred to Armstrong, who took the pass neatly as he raced down the middel of the ice and went in on top of Tobin for a pretty goal.

The lead did not last long. From the face-off Burnett dodged through the Peterborough defence and scored in 15 seconds, the quickest goal of the night.

Halpin drew a penalty, and while he was off Adams and Armstrong duplicated their feat, Armstrong taking Adams' pass and scoring neatly. That made it 7 to 6, but Kingston were not through yet, for Burnett grabbed a pass from Burke and whizzed a beauty past Legros, tying it up again.

Adams put the Petes in the lead again when he took the rubber away from Tubman and went in on top of Tobin for a neat goal.

Armstrong increased the gap by fast following up. Flanagan got away for a pretty rush and when he was checked Armstrong came on from behind and shot a lightning one past Tobin.

With four minutes to go Grimes, on a pass from Burnett, scored King ston's last counter. The Petes held them same for the balance of the game.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

"That's the fastest game I have seen this year," remarked Referee Oscar Bernhardt of Bradford, after last night's game at Kingston. "Most of the senior games have been jokes alongside of that battle."

In addition to scoring six goals, which were counted, Bobby Armstrong scored three more which do not appear in the official score. One of these was missed by the Peterborough goal umpire, one by the Kingston official and the third, while counted by the umpire, was over-ruled by Referee Bernhardt.

Jack Adams led Armstrong beautifully, especially in the last period, when the sturdy right wing player centred to Armstrong twice in succession for goals.

Flanagan's goal, which opened the scoring, was a beautiful shot from the side. Two men were checking him at the time, but he managed to get the rubber away and it whizzed by Tobin like a bullet.

The Peterborough fans who travelled to Kin ston were well paid for the trip. They saw the fastest game of hockey they have seen in years, and incidentally did not come back with empty pockets.

The six-man style failed to win for Kingston, although the Artillery men looked dangerous in the second period.

THE WAR IN EUROPE HAS NOTHING ON THE "LADIES" HOCKEY GAMES

Kingston Whig:—Miss Lapensee of Cornwall and Miss Doloro of Westerns came close to having a battle royal after a hockey match in Montreal.

Miss Doloro was checking Miss Lapensee hard all evening, and after bumping the latter into the fence in the second period, Miss Lapensee told her, "to stop that or she would step her," at the same time taking off her gloves.

Miss Doloro told her that she was not afraid of Miss Lapensee, even if the latter came from Cornwall, and it was finally decided that they would meet after the match and settle the matter once and for all.

The Cornwall team, however, was in such a hurry to catch the train that nothing further happened.

Table of Increased Wages During 1916

93,735 Workers Affected by 136 Changes in Wages—Trend Upward

The trend of wages in Canada was almost uniformly upward in 1916, says the Financial Times of Montreal. Out of 136 changes in wages and hours, affecting approximately 93,540 workpeople, reported to the Department of Labour at Ottawa as taking effect during the year, one only showed a decline in the wage scale, for an increase in wages and reduction in hours, two a reduction in hours, while in 129 cases wage increases were indicated.

In 1915 the number of changes reported was 48, and the number of workpeople affected 14,653, as compared with 73 and 23,607 respectively in 1914. For a time after the outbreak of the war the reports of wage changes indicated a downward trend in the wage scale, a condition which continued into 1915. As recovery from the first effects of the war became general fewer wage reductions were reported, the single decrease reported in 1916 occurring in the first quarter.

Steam Railways.

Of the wage changes reported in 1916 the greatest number occurred in steam railway service, and there were also more workpeople affected in this occupation than in any other. The large number of changes in this group is accounted for in some degree by the fact that several of the organizations of railway employes and intended asking the companies for new agreements in 1914, but postponed this action on account of the war until the year 1916, when the sharp advance in the cost of living prompted them to take action. Mining stood second in the number of changes and also in the number of workpeople affected.

Conditions in West.

A number of important changes occurred in the rates of wages in the coal mining districts of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan, Alberta and in both the Crows' Nest Pass and Vancouver Island districts of British Columbia. The changes were all in the nature of increases which were granted on account of the high cost of living. In the other industries and trades changes in wages and hours affecting over 1,000 workpeople were reported in building, metals, textiles, clothing and electric railways and general transport.

The following table summarizes the number of changes and the workpeople affected, according to the trade of industry, during 1916:

Trade or industry	No. of Changes	Workers Affected
Woodworking	1	18
Building	15	2,896
Metal	18	11,912
Printing	10	910
Textile	1	7,000
Lumbering	1	40
Clothing	4	1,413
Food and tobacco	3	445
Steam rail. employes	21	30,323
Street ry. employes	13	3,405
General transport	11	6,373
Civic employees	13	951
Miscellaneous	3	615
Unskilled	4	142
Mining	18	28,272
Total	136	95,735

INTERN APPAM CREW

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 12.—Under guard supplied by the Immigration authorities, Lieut. Wans Berg, commander, and the members of the German prize crew which brought the British liner Appam into this port a year ago, left her this morning for Philadelphia, where they will be placed in detention under the care of the commandant of the navy yard there. The Appam crew will be taken on board the interned German auxiliary cruisers Prinz Eitel Freidrich and Kronprinz Wilhelm. They will not be considered as prisoners, it was said, but merely interned.

AMERICANS ARE ENLISTING

Cross Into Canada to Sign Up for Active Service.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 12.—Recruiting has much improved in this military district during the past week, particularly as a result of the unusual number of young men coming from the other side of the line. Some of these are former Canadians, but they are chiefly young Americans who think this is the best chance offered for getting into the big fight.

BANDITS BAFFLE DETROIT.

DETROIT, Feb. 12.—Two bandits entered the shoe store of Isadore Meisener, 1920 Michigan avenue, at the noon hour, while the proprietor was alone in the place, and beat out his brains with a hammer. They then escaped after robbing the cash register of $150. After several hours' work the police admit they have little hope of capturing the murderers. Meisner leaves a widow and six children.

Germans Will Try To End The Conflict By A Desperate Blow

Orders Have Been Issued by the German Military Authorities Cancelling All Vacations of Army Officers and Men For the Month of February—Germans Counted on Hyphenated Revolt in United States.

SOLDIERS PRETEND CONFIDENCE

NEW YORK, February 14. — Carl W. Ackerman, who came out of Germany with the Gerard party, cables from Berne, Switzerland, as follows:

"Germany's public and officialdom do not believe entrance of America into the war would have the slightest effect on the outcome. As a matter of fact, Field Marshall Von Hindenburg believes with preparations now under way the war will be won by Germany before America could enter—if she does enter.

When Ambassador Gerard and his party left Berlin, orders had been issued by the German military authorities cancelling all vacations of army officers and men for the month of February. The move developed the information that Von Hindenburg was awaiting the opportune moment for the great, final effort of Germany's forces.

SOLDIERS PRETEND CONFIDENCE.

Germany's military leaders believe the moment of Germany's victory is at hand. They hold this victory will be achieved because of the success which will attend the unlimited submarine warfare, and because of the shortage of French munitions and supplies, due to lack of coal in France.

Though the German army and navy is prepared—and anxious—for war with America, German newspapers have been urging Americans to work for peace, and have been beseeching the German Admiralty not to torpedo ships carrying American passengers.

COUNTED ON UNITED STATES REVOLT.

Berlin was astonished, officials and the public alike, when President Wilson broke relations with Germany. That astonishment came because officials had recently been assured by German-Americans in the United States that Wilson would not sever relations for fear of a German-American uprising. The same belief was held by the German public.

When the American Embassy train left Berlin the Imperial Chancellor, Von Bethmann-Hollweg, was admittedly downcast over the situation, and believed America wanted war with Germany. It was noticeable also when Foreign Secretary Zimmerman received the American correspondents shortly before their departure, that he was plainly nervous. He likewise insisted "Wilson wants war," and denied that Germany made any irrevocable promises in the Sussex note.

STORY OF DEVELOPMENTS.

The submarine policy which forced the break between the United States and Germany dates back to November. Writing now from neutral Swiss soil, it is possible for the first time to tell of the developments which led Germany to her decision of relentless sea warfare.

It was in November that Germany's internal affairs were at the greatest crisis of the war. The Socialists warned the Kaiser that unless he moved immediately for peace, Dr. Philip Scheidemann (Socialist leader in the Reichstag) and other Socialist leaders would head a military movement to bring about peace. This move came at a time when the German people were destitute and despondent.

Simultaneously the powerful Conservative land owners, controlling the food supply, and the equallly powerful group of industrial leaders, controlling the munitions manufactures, told the Government the only way to end the war was by unlimited submarine warfare. These interests have always been anti-American. They succeeded in convincing Quartermaster-General Von Ludendorff.

Meanwhile, the National Liberals, who would welcome war with America, won over Foreign Secretary Zimmerman to the submarine policy.

Finally the Kaiser's birthday conference at German great headquarters, January 27, did not include in its conferees such officials as Minister of the Interior von Helfferich, Minister of Colonies Solf, and the Imperial Treasurer, Count von Roedern, known to be opposed to inciting American intervention.

SOCIALISTS BACK CHANCELLOR.

The speech made by Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg in the Reichstag early in December, where he announced peace overtures won over the Socialists to the support of any course the Chancellor might advocate. In the same way the Kaiser's submarine blockade won over the food producers and the group of industrial leaders to a continuance of hostilities.

The Government's peace proposal united the German people. They believe firmly they must fight on in their own defence. Everybody in Germany is working night and day. The answer which the entente powers returned to President Wilson's suggestions, so frightened Turkey that the Ottoman Empire will continue in the war just so long as Germany defends Constantinople.

CENSORSHIP IS STRICT.

During the past three months the German censorship has been most severe. Correspondents have been unable truly to picture conditions in Germany. Only such despatches as were destined to influence American opinion were allowed to "pass."

Berlin cannot understand why America maintains her diplomatic relations with Austro-Hungary after having severed with Germany. Officials pointed out before the Gerard party left the capital that Emperor Karl and the Austrian Foreign Minister were both present at the conference on January 27, the Kaiser's birthday, at which it was decided to open the unlimited submarine war. Moreover, Berliners pointed out, Austro-Hungary, through her Emperor and Foreign Minister, at that time accepted with Germany full responsibility for such warfare.

GERMAN PAPERS DEFIANT.

LONDON, February 14.—"President Wilson wishes to make an attempt to break the German blockade; the American Government must be responsible for what happens," says the Berlin Vossische Zeitung in commenting on the report that two American merchant vessels had left for the blockaded zone, according to the Exchange Telegraph Company's Copenhagen correspondent. The correspondent reports that the announcement of the vessel's departure had caused a pronounced sensation in Berlin.

Government Will Call Out Militia For Home Defence

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—It is understood that the Government has arranged to call out twenty-five thousand militia for home defence.

The moment approaches when under our common impetus the German military power will completely give way.—General Joffre.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Maisonneuve says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is the most immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. O. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

Placing of 109th Battalion Colours

LINDSAY, Feb. 13.—The colours of the 109th Battalion have arrived in town in charge of Col. Ballantyne, the last commanding officer of the battalion before it was broken up for reinforcements.

The colours, which were presented by Lady Eaton, will be placed in the Cambridge Street Methodist church on Sunday afternoon, February 18th and an impressive public service, of which further announcement will be made, is being arranged for the occasion.

In making the above announcement at the Sabbath service, Rev. A. H. Going, the pastor, said that the people of the church feel it a great honour to have the colours left in their charge "till the boys come home."

The Teutonic Ambassador Leaves American Soil

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 14. — Under a heavy guard of 282 United States Secret Service men, 150 deputies of the Customs House neutrality squad and Hoboken police, Count von Bernstorff, departing German Ambassador, and his suite arrived in Hoboken early to-day from Washington.

The party was immediately escorted to the pier of the liner Fredick VIII. and went aboard the ship. Later the liner headed down the bay and the last formal step in the break of diplomatic relations between this country and Germany was complete. The German envoy and German consuls from various parts of the country, together with other Teutonic diplomatic representatives, are now en route back to Berlin. Von Bernstorff was accompanied by one hundred and seventy-five of the German diplomatic corps in the United States.

Some men think they belong to the cream of society. All the more need then that they should be stirred up and well shaken.—H. W. Collingwood.

TEUTON JOURNALIST IS TO BE DEPORTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — This was Count Von Bernstorff's last day in Washington. The former ambassador and Countess Von Bernstorff and the embassy staff left last night for New York, where they take passage on the Danish liner Frederick VIII. for home.

When the Frederick VIII. puts to sea with Von Bernstorff it will bear an unexpected passenger, Dr. Geo. Bartheime, German Washington correspondent of the quasi-official Cologne Gazette. The reason for his passage is founded on the German propaxandist move for a conference to avoid war. The State Department, after careful investigation, determined he inspired Germany to make her proffer. His move so exasperated officials that they arranged that he should have passports back home.

Bartheleme's intimacy with the German embassy and his connection with the Cologne paper made him virtually a German official agent. His dispatch, inspiring the "peace" move was passed by navy wireless censors, somewhat deleted, but apparently without full relaization of its intent.

Germany Has Another Plan.

Flat rejection by the United States of Germany's proposal to discuss international diffrences without first halting the illegal submarine campaign, left one other suggestion of the Berlin Government still pending at the State Department to-day. That was to re-affirm the Prussian-American treaties of 1799 and 1828, relating mainly to the treatment of enemy residents in war times, with a number of new provisions which apparently would constitute almost a new treaty. It seemed quite probable that this proposal, the same as that submitted to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin after he had asked for his passports and which he declined to consider, will be frowned upon also.

Demands for Yarrowdale Men.

Demands for the American prisoners of the Yarrowdale will be made on Germany, it was said to-day. With the demand will go an explanation that the United States is not seizing German ships and crews and is interested only in seeing that the ships are not sunk as obstructions to American harbors.

OUR SERIAL STORY

The Red Paper

By C. HOTCHKISS

Had not the young man's ample fortune been independent of his father's estate, he would have found himself in a serious position at this time, for though the captain's will gave everything without reservation to his son, who was also the sole executor of the estate, investigation soon showed that the old gentleman had but few resources left, the very mansion in which he lived being so heavily mortgaged that there would be little equity left for the heir; and the Wentworth residence, with most of its contents, had been offered for sale only the faithful Thomas remaining as caretaker. What furniture the young man had desired to retain was moved to the studio, together with all the pictures and the bric-a-brac. Several unopened cases stood in the passage but the painting containing the hidden paper was boxed and in John's bedroom.

He had taken it down and packed it with his own hands, but had not attempted to break open the brown paper stretched and pasted over the back; events had moved so swiftly, and his mind had been so engrossed by important matters that he had scarcely thought of the red paper or of the girl to whom it belonged.

As for his father's trusteeship for Grace Merridale, Wentworth had placed the whole matter in the hands of a lawyer who had presumably notified the lady in question and had promised to communicate with John as soon as she was located; the last not a very easy matter as no address could be found more definite than that of Mason County, Texas.

And it was fairly evident that Captain Wentworth's trust had not been onerous since there was no trace of any correspondence between him and his ward, a fact perhaps explained by the smallness of the amount of property involved. In this the red paper was not included, and for some reason unrecognized by himself Wentworth said nothing about the mysterious document to his lawyer. He looked upon the delivery of the paper as aside from legal procedure; to him it was a matter of honour that he should personally place the paper in the hands of the one to whom it belonged. His father had requested it, and that was sufficient for him. Any further interest in the lady was entirely lacking, and it was only for the wish to carry out his dead parent's desire that he cared a fig for her whereabouts.

The young man had not been bored to death by condolences, spoken or written. Men of his temperament do not invite many intimates, and the world is not inclined to grieve over one who does not bid for its lamentations. In this case the bereaved appeared to have armed himself in a hard shell of reserve, and bore his trouble alone, and society considered him cold.

But he was not cold; he was only discriminate. He cared nothing for lip service but he would have given much to have had his one intimate friend—his ol dcollege chum. Tom Harper, with him during his trials. Harper was a rather debonair bachelor of Wentworth's own age, and the two had similar tastes. By profession he was a mining engineer, though of slight practice, and possessor of sufficient wealth, and larger prospects, to kill ordinary ambition. The two men were usually inseparable.

It was Tom Harper for whom Wentworth was now longing and it was not an indication of deplorable weakness in him that he wished to unburden himself to the only man in the world in whom he had perfect confidence. But Harper was on a hunting trip, and could not be located. For himself, Wentworth was amused to business matters; his friend could have helped by his advice, and more than that, by the comfort of his presence. It had been a weary time for the lonely man; the mere shock of his father's death, without the attending circumstances, would have been enough; and the traces of feminity in him, which is in all males worthy of the name of man, cried out for a sympathy that mere companions were incapable of satisfying.

Wentworth, brush in hand, came back from his wool gathering expedition and looked around the well filled but silent room, self-disgust written on his face. Then with an impatient shrug of his broad shoulders, he threw down his palette, speared his brushes into the vase at his side, and gave the easel a kick.

"Damn it!" he exclaimed aloud. "I can't work! I can do nothing! I have no object in life but to exist! I live on the labors of others! I am a cursed social incubus—a man without a motive."

He had barely realized that he was protesting aloud, when a knock sounded at the door, and with the privilege of his position, Thomas entered without ceremony. As regularly as the day came the old man went to the young one.

"Good afternoon, Thomas."

"Good-afternoon, Master John. A letter and a telegram, sir?" He handed out the white and the yellow envelopes, and stood, deferentially, hat in hand.

"Is that all?"

"Yes, sir. Is there anything I can do, sir?"

"No, Thomas. Anything new?"

"A gentleman called last evening, sir. He was surprised to find that——"

"Yes—yes. Go on."

"He inquired your address, sir, and said he would communicate with you at once."

"No name?"

"Yes, sir; Merridale, sir."

"Merridale! A man by the name of Merridale!"

John's eyebrows contracted; the name aroused a host of painful memories.

"Yes, sir. Well-put-up man, sir; about middle age. Was shocked to hear of your father."

"He left no other word?"

"No, sir."

"That will do, Thomas."

The old man bowed and looked about the disordered studio; then moving softly, began putting it to rights.

Without seeming to notice the butler's presence, John opened the telegram, his face clearing as he read:

Just from the woods. Learned of your awful trouble. Be with you day after to-morrow.

Harper.

He laid the telegram aside and tore open the letter. The signature was in a strange masculine hand, but the signature at the bottom of the short message caught his eye. It was the name of the man Thomas had but just told him about. The ran ran thus:

Mr. John Wentworth—

My Very Dear Sir:

I knew your father and loved him, even as David loved him. On my call at your late residence I was inexpressibly shocked to learn of the captain's sudden death. It is not in my nature to volunteer a formal condolence, when condolence to you would be useless, and it is not for that purpose I write. I had been expecting to hear from my old friend on a matter of business, relating to his trust for my niece, and now ask you, his son, to call on me. If you can make it convenient to call on me at an early date I will esteem it a great favor.

I am sir, sincerely yours,
Thaddeus Merridale.

Affixed was an address in West Eighty-fourth Street.

The only unexplainable matter relating to the letter was the fact that young Wentworth was unaware that David Merridale ever had a brother. Surely the captain had never mentioned him as existing, much less as an intimate friend. Yet it was possible that an intimacy on a business basis had jointed them, and that the word "love" was but a concession to the circumstances of the captain's death, and his son's state of mind. That there was or had been a maiden sister living somewhere in Texas, John had heard—but that was all. He knew none of the parties, and they had no interest for him.

But interested or not, the name of Merridale demanded consideration and it took no second thought to decide the young man to accede to the request of the writer of the letter. A friend of his late father could not be neglected, indeed, Wentworth looked forward to meeting the man who had stood so close to his father. His really affectionate nature was stimulated by the prospect.

And in his present unsettled state of mind he welcomed an excuse to quit his useless work; he would go at once, and glad of having an object to determine his movements, inconsequential as that object might be, and relieved by the prospect of Harper's early return, he put on his hat, left Thomas in the Studio, and went out. Taking an elevated train, he rode up-town, and in a short time turned into West Eighty-fourth Street.

That thoroughfare, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues, is a solid block of flats, not of a low order, but far from being classed as high. The asphalt pavements swarmed with noisy children at play, and the canon of brick and brown stone echoed with the cries of hawkers. Wentworth found the building that he was in search of, the cheap ornateness of its vestibule and the scattered remains of tradesman's circulars, on the solid tiled floor impressing him unfavourably. But there was the name of "Merridale," written in lead pencil on a coarse card thrust into the narrow slot above a broken letter box.

As Wentworth pressed the tarnished electric button and waited for the not over-clean glass door to open, he noticed the fact that the first and the second flats were to let and untenanted. The Merridales occupied the third.

In a few moments the latch clicked, the door swung open and the young man walked up the shabby stairs, and through a gloomy hall. He did not have occasion to ring at the third flat. As he reached the top step, the hall door leading to the apartment was opened by a man who took John's proffered card, stepped back into the light to read it, then came forward, both hands outstretched in an effusive welcome.

"My dear sir, I am overjoyed! I did not look for such a prompt reply to my request! Come in, come in."

He led the way to the parlor. It was a meagerly furnished apartment, and John's quick eye caught the painful newness of its contents. Everything was shop-fresh, from the crimson plush sofa and chairs with the marks of the varnish brush on them, to the gaudy but cheap rug which but partly covered the stained pine floor. The papered walls were absolutely barren of pictures, and there were no ornaments on the glossy cabinet mantel of imitation rosewood. The only feature relieving the unattractive and unhomelike interior, was the blue pall of cigar smoke that hung on the very heavy air.

Fifteen years ago a parent in this City placed a ten pay 15 year Endowment Policy (No. 200916) in the Sun Life of Canada, on his son who was then 11 years of age.

On the 1st of February, inst. he was offered any of the following Options:—

First, a fully paid up Policy of $4045.00 payable at death.

Where can a man take $89.30 per year for 10 years and invest it in ANY OTHER WAY and produce an immediate estate of $4045.00 in case of death?

Or he could withdraw $905.55 which you will notice is more than he paid in, ALL TOLD, and still retain a FREE paid up participating policy of $1000.00, payable at death: thus his dollars did two things at the same time,—carried the risk, and gave a FREE POLICY and he saved his money for himself too.

MAYOR SUSPENDS CHIEF.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 12.—Mayor Battle of Thorold has suspended Chief of Police Taylor, pending a meeting of the commission. Trouble arose between Police Magistrate Munro and the Chief at a recent police court liquor case, when the magistrate ordered the return of several bottles to a man named Bradley, charged with having liquor in unlawful place. No conviction was made, and hence the magistrate ordered the bottles to be given back, which the Chief refused to do.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

When Dick Came Home

He Discovers His Mistake.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Dr. Mansfield stood in the doorway and beamed kindly upon the merry dancers who were tripping over the polished floor. It was Ella's birthday, and this dance given by the doctor for his adopted daughter had been talked about in Shropton for many weeks beforehand. Ella herself, tall and fair, with restless blue eyes, that seemed always seeking Dick Allen when he was not beside her, was dancing with Frank Miller. Frank would gladly have married the doctor's pretty daughter, but every one knew that she was only waiting for Dick Allen to make up his mind.

Her roving eyes saw Beth Page smiling up at Dick's downcast face. The two were standing together—Dick so tall and Beth so tiny and so very charming in spite of her cheap, home-made dancing frock, which had cost twenty times less than Ella's rose pink crepe.

Beth was saying something now in her frank, open manner, "You haven't danced once with Ella, and it is her party, Dick."

"I'm going now," he said guiltily. "Save another one for me, Beth."

"You've had your share," she retorted as he moved away.

Ella greeted him with a haughty tilt of her chin, and when he asked her to dance she shook her head. "You are too late, Dick," she said coldly, although her voice was very near to tears.

"Then you will talk with me until some one comes and takes you away?" he urged, for now he was under the magic sway of her beauty.

"I cannot, but I have the supper dance. I saved it for you, Dick," she cried hastily.

"For me? Oh, you have honored me!" he cried contritely. And he was so remorseful that he would not go near Beth until after supper.

Dr. Mansfield, watching his young people, saw Ella's unhappy face and wished in his blundering way that he could help matters along. He liked Dick and would gladly have welcomed him into the family. He wondered why Dick was holding back the important question.

Dick himself was wondering that while he danced the supper dance with Ella and afterward led her into the dining room, where supper was spread at a great round table with many little flanking tables.

The birthday cake was placed before Ella, and when the time came she was to cut it.

"There is a ring in it and a thimble and a coin," she told Dick.

"A ring? What does that signify?" he asked carelessly.

"Oh, a wedding for the lucky finder."

"And the coin?"

"Riches."

"And the thimble?"

"Spinsterhood—alas!" she sighed.

Now Ella was cutting the cake. There was much laughter and gay chatter. Dick noticed that she watched the slices closely as they fell beneath the silver knife.

He saw the ring in its twisted waxed paper plainly imbedded in the cake. Ella saw it too. The silver knife poised, trembled and then went swiftly over to the other side of the loaf and began to cut.

Dick felt dizzy for a moment, and then he was glad that he had seen it in time.

Ella had cheated. She had seen the ring and was saving it for herself. All the while Dick was shocked he was thinking that Beth Page never would have done such a thing. Beth would have taken whatever luck came along and gone blithely on her way.

"What is the matter?" Ella's voice broke through the maid of merriment about him.

"Why — why — nothing!" he stammered.

"Why don't you look happy?" asked Ella. "Don't you see what has happened?"

Dick looked at the bit of waxed paper in one of her hands and the sparkling sapphire ring on her right hand.

"I drew the ring!" she exclaimed.

"You drew the ring," he repeated stupidly.

"And Frank Miller drew the coin. Frank will be rich."

"And the thimble?" he asked, not because he cared, but because he was trying to readjust his thoughts. Ella had cheated, and he had thought he loved her.

Now he felt only contempt for her and pity.

"The thimble," she was saying carelessly. "Oh, Beth Page drew the thimble! Isn't it odd that she should draw the symbol of spinsterhood just when she is going to marry Frank Miller? At least that is what every one says."

The next day Dick went away. A good opening had been waiting for him in a nearby city, and he had delayed accepting it because he had been playing with Love. And now that Love had flouted him he was going away where amid new scenes he might forget. Ella had proved herself a cheat, and Beth was going to marry another man.

When Dick went away from Shropton he did not know that ten years would elapse before he again set eyes on its green loveliness, with the river winding like a silver ribbon through the daisied meadows.

It was summer time when Dick came back to occupy the big house that his Uncle Jeffrey had left to him with a great deal of money. Dick had been very successful and had made much money for himself as well, so he planned many changes in the fine old mansion which during Uncle Jeffrey's hermit-like existence had been greatly neglected. Mrs. Phipps, the housekeeper he had brought from town with him, was having all the carpets and rugs renovated and the lace curtains, which had been laid away in cedar chests and closets, aired and mended.

Once he came upon a group of children playing in his orchard. They scattered at sight of him, and he was sorry, for Dick was fond of children. The littlest one of all, a fair haired laddie of four, he caught and swung high in the air.

"What is your name, young man?" he asked.

"Frankie Miller," lisped the child.

So these were Beth's children! He guessed that from their names, although the name of Miller was common enough in Shropton.

At dinner that night Mrs. Phipps told him that the housecleaning would soon be completed and the entire house ready for occupancy.

"All but the lace curtains, Mr. Allen. Some of them need mending, and I have had a great deal of trouble in finding some one who can do the work properly. But there is a young woman coming tomorrow to help me. She does very fine sewing for the ladies of the village."

"Very well," said Dick, "and when everything is ready, Mrs. Phipps, you should take a few days off to visit your sister. You have been working very hard."

"Thank you, Mr. Allen," said the housekeeper as she withdrew. "You are always so thoughtful and kind."

"I wish I had more people to be kind to," smiled Dick wryly as he finished his dinner. "I'm a lonesome beggar, and no mistake."

The next day he drove his little runabout over to the next town to attend to some business matters, and it was late afternoon when he returned home.

The house was very still when he entered it. He decided that Mrs. Phipps was taking her daily nap, and he had forgotten all about the sewing woman who was to come until he entered the big blue room and saw her sitting there in the sunshine surrounded by billows of filmy laces, while Mrs. Phipps sewed in another window.

"Oh, Mr. Allen!" Mrs. Phipps bustled forward. "Were you looking for me?"

"No. I came in to get some matches," he confessed. "You are getting along famously, I see." He wished that ruddy brown head would turn toward him. He wondered what the face beneath it could be like.

"This is Miss Page, the young lady who is mending the curtains," fluttered Mrs. Phipps at last when she found that Dick would not go.

Now the girl turned and looked up at him with Beth Page's warm, brown eyes and her frank smile.

"I was wondering if it was the Mr. Allen I used to know," she said demurely.

"Miss Page?" he repeated amazedly.

"Why, yes," she replied, blushing.

"You'll think me rude, but I thought you married Frank Miller," he said bluntly.

"Impossible. He married Ella Mansfield."

Dick checked a sharp exclamation and, turning, on his heel, left the room and went into the garden.

His mind was in chaos.

All the beliefs he had harbored for years had proved to be false. But he could trace the falseness back to Ella Mansfield, who on her birthday night had shown herself to be a cheat. Ella had told him that Frank and Beth were engaged, and he had gone away and had not troubled to come back except for brief visits to Uncle Jeffrey, who never knew any of the village gossip. And the children who had played in his orchard were Ella's children and not Beth's. Beth was still unmarried and sewing for her living. She had been in his house mending his curtains—in the house where she should reign as mistress.

Suddenly his pulses leaped. Why not now? It was not too late. It is never too late when the girl one loves is unmarried. He couldn't ask her here in his own house. He must go to her home.

So he went away to the city for a week just because it was tantalizing with Beth so near him, and he bought a wonderful diamond ring.

When he came home again the curtains were all hanging at the windows, and the house looked like home. So he astonished Mrs. Phipps by kissing her atop her gray head and got into his little motorcar and sped away toward Honeysuckle road, where Beth lived with her uncle and aunt.

"Beth, the moon is shining over the river and the whippoorwills are singing. Will you come with me?" was what he said when he met her at the door.

"Dear me, how abrupt you are, sir!" she laughed. "Yes, if you please, kind sir," she added.

And she said exactly the same words when an hour later he asked her a certain question and slipped the ring on her slim third finger.

WOULD USE MEN FOR DISEASE TESTS

EAST LANSING, Mich., Feb. 13.—To substitute criminals in the state prisons, especially life prisoners, for mice and other animals for vivisection and experimental work in contagious diseases, is the plan Professor H. A. Gehring, of the Michigan Agricultural College, disclosed in a lecture here on "Contagious Diseases."

The professor's audience was astounded when he revealed the plan and argued that the prisoners owe a debt to society because of the crimes they committed.

"It is an outrage," said Professor Gehring, "to torture animals which have no way of telling of their pains. Besides, how do we know that diseases act the same on animals as on human beings? The animal can not tell us how his stomach feels or where his pains are. All we can do is to draw conclusions. We should experiment directly on human beings.

"There are hundreds of prisoners who owe a big debt to mankind and who would make splendid subjects for vivisection and experimental work. There is no reason why they should not be made to pay the debt they owe to society by undergoing the torture which is now being administered to harmless animals. The prisoners would be able to tell just how they feel and we would be getting data which would be a great benefit in controlling diseases in future generations.

"Using prisoners for this purpose would be no worse than the present methods of inflicting punishment. I hope in the near future to interest law makers in my plan and I can see no reason why it should not be adopted.

Lad In Scanty Attire, Pursues Slayer To Arrest

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Leaning over a banister on the floor above, when Rocco Bova fatally shot Frank Vitarse in the hallway of a tenement, was Frank Sorocco, ten years old, hatless and coatless. He, like all other tenants of the house, had heard the quarrel and he had gone to the banister to look down when he saw Bova press an automatic pistol to Vitarse's abdomen and he heard two shots.

As the man ran from the house the coatless boy followed him. He ran after him through many blocks, hoping to meet a policeman, and shivering as the freezing wind swept along. At First avenue and Sixtieth street Bova looked back and saw the boy, recognizing him as the lad who had observed the shooting. Bova again drew his pistol and called out that he would kill the boy. Frank jumped behind an ash can and in his refuge was seen by a man driving an automobile along the avenue. He asked the boy what was the matter.

"That man with the gun has just killed a man," the boy cried.

Bova again started to run. The driver took Frank into the automobile and started in pursuit. At the Queensboro Bride Plaza Policeman Au, of the East Sixty-seventh street station, was taken into the automobile and out on the bridge the party overtook Bova. He had the pistol out of his pocket when Au's night-stick felled him.

An hour later, in the Third Branch Detective Bureau, when it was announced that Vitarac had died his wife attacked Bova, and had to be restrained.

Vitarad had no quarrel with Bova. The latter had been calling on another man's wife in the same house. That woman's husband was quarrelling with Bova in the hallway with Vitarac asked them to cease so his children could get to sleep, and he was shot.

The police highly praised Frank Sorocco for following Bova. He was almost frozen when he reached the station with the prisoner, but detectives soon had him warm with lent garments and hot coffee.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Arbutus, B.C., writes: "Seven of our little children had whooping cough, the eighth sister, and we tried almost every remedy for it. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

LAUDS WORK OF MISSIONS.

German Colonial Secretary Says They Aid Colonial Policy.

The natives in the German colonies were called Germany's most valuable capital there by Dr. Wilhelm Solf, the German Colonial Secretary, in an address delivered in Berlin early in January, according to extracts from his speech printed in the London press. As reported by cable at the time, Dr. Solf insisted that Germany would get back all of her colonies after the war.

After speaking of the Allies refusal of Germany's "cordially offered hand of peace," and saying that nobody could now know "when the hour of deliverance will strike for suffering humanity," Dr. Solf expressed the thanks of the German Government to the German missionaries as "the brave pioneers of the Christian faith and German civilization." He then defined as follows the duties of the German missionary:

"I should like to say here what great importance attaches to the missions, not only for the propagation of Christianity in the sense of our Lord and Saviour, but also for our whole practical colonial policy. The conversion of natives from heathen customs and excesses of superstition, and their education for Christianity and Kultur—that is the only way by which native races can be permanently and securely made into useful members of the human community of Kultur.

"The natives are our most valuable capital in the colonies. Anybody who helps them on by the proclamation of the divine message and by the works of Christian charity is serving not only our Lord and Saviour, but also the State idea and the Fatherland."

PIMPLES and BOILS
ALL OVER FACE AND BODY

When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples and boils will break out all over the body, and although they are not dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Miss Sylvia Swanson, Theodore, Sask., writes: "I am letting you know what great value your B.B.B. has been to me. A year ago I started to grow pale and weak, the cause being bad blood. I got so many pimples and boils all over my face and body that I would not let strangers see me, and I used to avoid company. I tried many remedies but all seemed a failure. I read about how good your B.B.B. had been to thousands of people so I got a bottle and after I had finished the second one my pimples and boils had all disappeared. People thought it a miracle how well I looked.

"Your grand old remedy sure has been as good as gold and better, to me".

Burdock Blood bitters has been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

Is a Bright Spot In Military Outlook

LONDON, Feb. 13—The operations of the last week on the Ancre front by General Haig's forces constitute one of the brightest spots in the present military outlook.

The army chiefs attach the greatest importance to the evacuation of Grandcourt by the Germans not merely because it shows unmistakably that the power of the enemy in this region is greatly weakened, but because the capture of such a strategical position will be of vast assistance to the British in their later operations on this front.

Standing on the Ancre and on the edge of the Serre ridge, Grandcourt hitherto withstood all attacks. Its fall now opens the way for a rush on Serre and for the enfilading of the German lines on both sides of the Ancre.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 13.—To soothe the exuberant patriotism of the pupils at the Technical High School here the school authorities have draped an American flag over the portrait of the Kaiser, which hangs in the German study room. The action was taken in response to a petition signed by the pupils. Flags also have been hung in other foreign language study rooms, so that the distinctive coats of arms, flags and pictures which formerly were alone may have appropriate company, but only in the case of the Kaiser's picture was any veiling done.

Weakened By Anaemia
Doctors Gave No Hope

Said She Was Threatened With Consumption, and Gave Her Three Weeks to Live

Anaemia is indicated by thin, watery blood. The gums and eyelids grow pale, there is great weakness and fatigue and digestion fails.

Since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood, it is naturally most suitable as a treatment for anaemia. This letter proves its efficiency in the most severe cases.

Mrs. J. Adams, Port Hope, Ont., writes: "About six years ago I was taken with very weak spells and though I doctored with the family physician and used other medicines for two years, I got very little relief and, in fact, continued to grow weaker. I was so weak I could not wait on myself or raise my hand to my head and decided to go to my daughter in Toronto. When examined by Toronto doctors they pronounced me to be in a dangerous condition, threatened with consumption and other ailments and said I would not live for three weeks. One day I was looking through Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about the cure of anaemia by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I began the use of this treatment at once and am now well on the way back to health, after having used the Nerve Food for six months. I want my friends to know that my cure was effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone and after my discouragement from the use of other treatments, I feel it my duty to let everybody know about this remarkable cure."

As a restorative for persons who are pale, weak and run down there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Gradually and naturally the red corpuscles are increased in the blood, the color is restored to the cheeks and the strength comes back to wasted nerves and muscles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12. — Controller Villineuve is still after Mayor Martin. In addition to an action, which he entered against the mayor a few days ago for $25,000 damages for alleged libel and slander, he is now suing the Chief Magistrate for $10,000 damages for alleged libellous utterances, reported in two of the local French papers, La Patrie and Le Devoir.

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cameron, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—such a cure to be sure. I can heartily recommend this Ointment enough."

SORTING OUT OLD CLOTHING OF "TOMMIES"

But if in some War Office departments we formerly wasted the public money in a shameful manner, it is comforting to know that for others we know effect remarkable economy, says a writer in the London Daily Mail.

I have been privileged by General Headquarters to visit two important Army Ordnance depots in Paris, organized saving is the Alpha and Omega of their entire system — a system which never existed in any previous war.

The chief Ordnance officer, who courteously explained the working of the system and took me through the establishment at Pantin, told me that in March, 1915, when he first tackled the big problem of handling the British Army's cast-off uniforms, he and sixteen men stood on the Quai de Javel in a vast roofless building, which was about to be pulled down, and wondered where they should begin. The Army had already started dumping down the flotsam and jetsam from the front, and the necessity of hustling was evident.

Millions are Saved.

In this dilemma an ex-Lieutenant Governor of Bengal volunteered and joined the colonel a few days later and they set to work. A few weeks afterwards an ex-High Commissioner of Scinde insisted on giving a hand. He was, he said, a much younger man than the Governor of Bengal, and should certainly be employed. He also joined the staff.

All three put their shoulders to the wheel and began the task of sorting out Tommy's old clothes. How well they have done their job is apparent from these figures:

Between April 1, 1915, and January 15, 1916, the saving effected by the Ordannce Depot, Paris, amounted to the handsome sum of £423,889 —say, £45,000 a month—after paying all expenses. A subsequetn balance sheet shows that from January 16 of this year to the end of May the A.O.D. (Army Ordnance Department) made a further profit of £292-

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The same skill in design, similar choice in fabrics and the same nicety of details that mark the coats for women's "superior models" are noticeable in this season's coats for junior girls. As an evidence we illustrate No. 8,096, an exact copy of one seen at an exclusive shop specializing in girls' apparel.

By reason of its deep, wide collar that comes close to being a shoulder cape, its loose panel back, belted sides and straight front it may be classed with the prettiest and smartest of imported models. Without showing any "fussy" feature it is up to date in detail and design and is sure to please any girl and any girl's mother. The sleeve is given a fancy touch in its cuff and may be braid trimmed, or velvet or plush may contribute the full cuff. The collar may be either of self material or fur cloth, unless velvet or plush be chosen.

Bolivia cloth, sibeline, kersey cloth, also wool tweed and wool novelty cloth that is so popular enjoy equal merit. Considering the cost of materials, one will not hesitate to make the coat at home, for to-day's pattern, with illustrated instructions, is simplicity itself.

The coat pattern, No. 8,096, cuts in sizes 8 to 14 years. To make in size 10 requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch material, ¾ yard of 27 inch material for the collar.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

CUTICURA HEALS BURNING SKIN

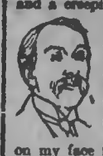
"My trouble commenced with itching and a creeping feeling under the skin, and in a few days pimples would appear always with more or less itching. There was always a burning heat in the skin. The pimples made me have a nasty looking face, and I was ashamed to go out.



"The trouble had been on my face for three months before I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the first application I noticed a change and by the end of three weeks it was all gone." (Signed) John Clark, Box 13, Bright, Ontario, Dec. 11, 1915.

542. During the first fourteen months of its existence the Ordnance Clothing Salvage depot in Paris saved the British ratepayer nearly £650,000, or over £46,000 a month. The saving for 1916 will not be less than one million sterling.

Strictly Business Methods.

How has it been done? By intelligence and energy and the application of strictly business principles.

When the waggon-loads of soiled, bloodstained, and tattered uniforms roll into the railway siding in the yard at Javel they are immediately discharged into the Ordnance warehouse, sorted out, cleaned, disinfected, renovated and repaired by about 140 N.C.O.'s and men of the A.O.D. and 500 women. All bloodstained garments and those too soiled or worn to be serviceable are scrapped and packed off to Dewsbury, where as rags they sometmes fetch as much as £65 a ton. The other things are sent out to cleaning contractors, and when they come back the women take them in hand and deal with them so effectively that they are reissued to the men in the field almost as good as new.

Fur undercoats are subjected to much the same cleaning process as ordinary furs, but very large revolving drums are used. There was no establishment in Paris large enough to do the work, so the A.O.D. decided to do it itself. The fur-cleaning installation at Javel is said to be the biggest in the world.

Last summer the staff cleaned and repaired hundreds of thousands of fur undercoats, leather jerkins, and sheepskin-lined coats for motor-car drivers. Blankets washed and mended ran into millions.

The nature of the economies realised is evident from the fact that riding-breeches cost 24s. 6d. a pair. They can, however, be washed and repaired for 1s. 1d. a pair. A very considerable saving is effected in fur-lined coats also. Nine cleaning drums, with a triple staff, each working eight hours at a stretch, clean and disinfect 9,000 jerkins or 7,000 fur coats in twenty-four hours.

Good French Workers.

The A.O.D. has been very fortunate in the female labor required to do its work. The women are paid 2s. 9d. and those at the sewing machines make 3s. 3d. a day. I heard nothing but good of these "ouvrieres." They are hard-working, conscientious, self-respecting and cheerful. As one officer said, "They do not smoke, they do not drink, and they like their work." They are always neat and clean. The young girls being French-women, are inclined to be coquettish, and as I passed through the workshops I noticed that most of them wore pink, blue and green mantillas on their heads, made out of first-field dressings of sterilized gauze found in Tommys pockets. These keep th dust out of their hair, and they are certainly booming.

Some of them had donner Service jackets with little Union Jacks sewn on them by the previous owners. One daring young woman had attained the grade of sergeant. The stripes were there to prove it. Her neighbour had a British soldier's cap set jauntily on her head.

On a piece of waste ground adjoining the warehouse "demountable" extension sheds (that can be taken to pieces) have just been erected. Light, comfortable, and cheerful, they accommodate about 450 sewing-women. The sheds cost about £4,000 to put up, but the savings of six months' work will more than cover this amount, and when their usefulness is at an end the sheds can be sold, taken down, and erected elsewhere.

Rubber Boot Repairs.

At Pantin, what was formerly a bleak, deserted tramway depot is now a cheery hive of industry devoted to the repair of Army gum-

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

boots, those handy india-rubber seven-leagued boots which make it possible for our soldiers to spend hours in the trenches with water up to their knees without losing their habitual good spirits. When the gum-boots, filthy and wet and covered with mud, began to arrive in May last the question was how to wash, and especially dry, 2,000 boots a day. The best any Paris laundry could do was to dry a boot in four hours. That would not do. The A.O.D. had so successfully grappled with this problem that it dries a boot in ten minutes.

This triumph, beyond the capacity of any firm in Paris, was achieved by a temporary lieutenant of the department, who invented an apparatus by which after the boots are washed, they are stuck on the end of an upright pipe, through which hot air from a radiator is forced into them, absorbing the moisture and drying them at the rate of half a dozen boots an hour. If the boots are "unservicable," the rubber is separated from the leather and used to patch other boots, and the straps and buckles come in handy for refitting those missing elsewhere —the really unservicable boots are sold as old rubber and fetch a good price.

In this depot there are about twenty men of the A. O. D., who do the soling and heeling, and 170 women who do the patching. When sized and paired the gum-boots are packed and despatched as required to the base. From the time it is washed until it is ready to go out the actual cost of labour on a boot is threepence. That does not include the price of material. By the introduction of piecework the output was increased about 50 per cent.

Over 2,000 boots are repaired daily. At its period of greatest activity the Pantin depot was faced with the task of dealing with many thousands of pairs of gum-boots.

So satisfactory are the results obtained by the Pantin staff on rubber work that they are laying down a special washing and drying plant to deal with rubber ground sheets and waterproof capes during next summer by the million.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur it Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

GIRL WHO STOPPED AN ARMY CORPS

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Public homage has been done at the Paris Sorbonne to a brave French girl, of twenty-one Mlle. Marcelle Sommer, who in the early days of the war, just after Charleroi, checked the advance of a German army corps for twenty-four hours.

Outnumbered, the French troops were retiring before the enemy, who were in hot pursuit, when the French crossed a canal swing bridge at Ecluse. Mlle. Sommer followed them, and had the courage to stay and open some sluice gates, making the canal impassable. She did this under heavy enemy fire, and as the result, a German army corps were delayed until the following morning.

Later she saved the lives of sixteen French wounded soldiers. Finally the Germans, who had thrown a temporary bridge over the canal, seized her while she was carrying a French private. She made no attempt to conceal what she had done, and proudly said, "I am an orphan. France is my only mother, and I am quite ready to die for her."

She was sentenced to death, and was before the firing squad, when a French 75 shell opportunately scattered the Germans who were about to shoot her. Rescued by the French troops she had saved, she acted as their guide between the intermingled lines, and was again captured, and was looked up in the church at Frise. A French shell made a breach in the church wall, through which she escaped, the French artillery having thus saved her life a second time.

While the bombardment continued, General Baret, decorated her with the Legion on Honour on Dec. 13, 1914, and subsequently she received the Choix de Guerre.

When the British took over this sector of the Somme front, their commanding general rendered public homage to "the grand French girl," and ordered his men to give her the military salute whenever they saw her.

DARING TEUTONS BRAVE BLOCKADE

Twenty Sailors Interned in Spain Almost Reach Belgium —Bought Small Craft — In Thirty Days They Make Trip to Channel, but are Captured

LONDON, Feb. 12. — Huddled against a concrete pier in Ramsgate harbor lies the Virgen del Socorro, a dilapidated little fishing smack in which 20 Germans escaped from internment in Spain, ran the British blocade and almost reached the Belgian coast. She was brought to this port by a patrol boat, and from her reeking decks clambered 16 German officers, a naval doctor, a law student and two sailors.

The hardships and perils which these daring Teutons experienced during the 30-day voyage from Vigo can be visualized better after an inspection of their tiny craft. She is barely 50 feet long, and a man could leap from rail to rail with little effort. Aft a narrow hatchway leads to a cabin, and between the two rough poles which serve as masts a hatchway opens into the hold. Beneath her decks the reek of decayed fish is overwhelming.

According to their story the Germans were led in their plot to escape by four officers from the Goeben, who were interned at Pamplona, in the north of Spain. Lieut. Carl Koch was one of the prime movers, and it was he who communicated with German Consular agents in Vigo and through them purchased the Virgen del Socorro. Of the plotting to provision and board the little smack little has been learned. The prisoners said, however, that the work of preparation was completed on the night of Oct. 7, the boat having been painted white to disarm suspicion. Early in the morning hours of Oct. 8 the Virgen was towed out of the bay and sailed north-west under the Dutch flag.

SEAMANSHIP SAVES SHIP

The first three days of the voyage passed uneventfully, and the Germans' hopes of success rose accordingly, but on the fourth day a terrific gale arose and for nearly two weeks the vessel was kept from foundering only by the remarkable seamanship of the crew.

During this time their suffering was intense. Only three could stay on deck at a time to steer the craft. Three others could crowd into the smelly hole of the cabin and warm their food over an oil stove. The rest were forced to cramp themselves into the hold, where most of the space was occupied by tin water casks and the tins of food. How fourteen men could endure for any length of time the nauseating stench and the close quarters is almost beyond understanding.

Two of the Germans were injured when the lurching of the vessel pinched them between water barrels. Every one of them became frightfully ill from lack of proper food and from the incessant pitching in giant seas. A system of relief was arranged whereby the men took turns in coming on deck, each taking his share in keeping the vessel on her course.

The storm reached its height when they were off the southern coast of Ireland, tossing about in one of the worst gales of many years, during which hundreds of vessels along the British coast were driven ashore. The gale rose to such fury that the Germans decided to abandon the plan of circling the British Isles and to make for Belgium or Sweden through the Irish channel.

RELIEF ON SHIP'S DISGUISE

Only men made desperate by suffering would have considered running the risks of a trip through the Channel, with its myriad trawlers and patrols, but the Germans relied upon the disguise of their craft and the Dutch flag to get them through in safety. After six dreadful days they had just sighted the Cornwall coast.

All this time the closest watch was kept, the men coming up from their cramped quarters for a breath of pure air only it was certain their craft was not under observation. Eventually the weather cleared, and as the Virgen neared Belgium the leaders of the expedition were so confident of their position that when challenged by a British patrol they ran up the white ensign of Germany and hauled down the Dutch flag which had carried them through precious inspections. That act put an end to their daring exploit. Under the guns of the patrol boat a cable was made fast and they were towed to Ramsgate.

A harbor official, telling of their arrival, said it was a sorry looking body of men who crowded the decks and grinned at their captors. They were ragged and emaciated. Of their stock of food, only a few biscrits, a tin of lard, and a little flour remained. They were more than glad to disembark even on enemy soil.

ATTACK MEAL LIKE WOLVES.

Through a crowd of curious onlookers they were marched to the Sailors' Home on the water front, paying little heed to the attempts of the officers to get their story from them. There was no hint of hostility in the crowds that watched them, in fact the many wounded soldiers who saw them ere wounded soldiers who saw them were marked upon their pluck in withstanding the awful weeks of hardship. In the Sailors' Home they attacked their first meal like ravenous wolves and afterwards talked freely of their experiences.

The twenty adventurers are interned in a camp north of Ramsgate, and it is doubtful if they will make another voyage until the tempests of war have ceased. As for the Virgen del Socorro, her fate is sealed. Her planks will make excellent firewood and her ironwork will find its way to some junk yard.

Children Like It

It is not an easy matter to get a medicine that children like, or to force them to take one they don't like. Most mothers know that a cough medicine, with palatable, sweet taste, contain no drug injurious to the child. The great popularity of is explained by the fact that it contains no opium or narcotic of any kind, and at the same time is so pleasant and agreeable to the taste that children like it. For this reason it is a favorite with the mothers of young children.

SAYS HOT WATER EACH DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast to Wash Out the Poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, awete and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Adriatic Safe Through The Submarine Zone

Other Big Liners Are Now In The Danger Belt

Adriatic With Big Cargo Of Munitions Arrives at Liverpool

French Liner Rochambeau and the Cunarder Carmania Not Yet Reported---Both Carry Munitions and Food Stuffs as Well as Passengers---The Aspagne Sails With 244 Passengers For Bordeaux --- Scandinavian Countries Protest to Germany.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, February 14.—The White Star liner Adriatic which carried forty-four passengers, including one American, arrived in Liverpool Monday morning with "all well" said a cable to local offices to-day. The Adriatic is the largest ship of the line now in service between New York and Liverpool. She arrived approximately on scheduled time. The fact that she carried a large consignment of munitions had caused great anxiety in shipping circles for her safety.

The announcement of the arrival was probably delayed by order of the Admiralty.

The French liner Rochambeau and Cunarder Carmania, which left here February 4, are in the danger zone, or have already arrived and have not yet been reported. The Rochambeau, bound for Bordeauv, carried twenty-two Americans and munitions. The Carmania carried munitions and great supplies of foodstuffs. The Cunard liner Carpahia, carrying no passengers, arrived in New York Bay early to-day unannounced. She left England January 26th.

The French liner Aspagne, carrying two hundred and thirty-four passengers, sixty-five of whom are Americans, sailed for Bordeaux to-day. Most of the Americans are going to France for volunteer ambulance work at the front.

OTTAWA, February 14. — Government officials have departed for Halifax in connection with the safe conduct papers granted to Count Bernstorff, ex-German Ambassador at Washington. The vessel conveying Germany's diplomatic representative will call at Halifax this week.

COPENHAGEN, February 14.—The Danish, Norwegian and Swedish governments have forwarded to the Central Powers identical notes protesting against the barrage of certain sea zones.

HOBOKEN, N.J., February 14. — A harmless crank named Alfred Hopkins, claiming to be "a relative of Prince William of Germany," attempted to rush his way through Count Von Bernstoff's guard as the German Embassy staff was boarding the Frederick VIII. to-day. He was stopped and taken to the police station.

LONDON, February 14.—The British steamers Lambert and Inishower Head have been sunk. The crews except five were safely landed.

WASHINGTON, February 14.—The first direct word from Ambassador Gerard since February 5 reached the State Department to-day in a confidential message sent from Berne. He intimated he would sail for the United States shortly on a Spanish steamer.

NEW YORK, February 14.—Several tons of rubber were taken off the liner Frederick VIII. with Bernstorff aboard before she left the docks to-day. The action was taken by the American officials.

WASHINGTON, February 14.—A Rome despatch reports the American schooner Lyman How was sunk by a submarine. All the crew were landed.

(By Carl W. Ackerman.)

BERNE, via Paris, February 14.—Germany is prepared to send submarines into American waters, especially to the region of the Panama Canal. The possibility of America entering the war has been carefully considered by German officials, but nevertheless they expect to have the Entente at their mercy within six months regardless of American developments.

Chancellor McCrimmon To Speak Sunday

Chancellor A. L. McCrimmon, of Toronto, will address a big recruiting meeting in the interests of the 247th Battalion in the Opera House on Sunday night. Chancellor McCrimmon is well known throughout the Dominion as an orator, and his message on Sunday night should be of great interest. Lieut. A. E. Brittain, of the 247th Battalion, who was at the front with the Princess Pats, will also speak, and Lt.-Col. Ackerman is endeavouring to have Major Harry Hodge, of Campbellford, machine gun officer of the original 2nd Battalion, also visit Peterborough for the occasion.

Improvements in the Store Premises—New Department Added for Ladies' Whitewear, etc.

The interior of the store and showroom of the Toronto Ladies' Tailoring Co. have recently undergone considerable improvement. The sneeing has been remodelled and the show cases changed, so as to secure better accommodation for displaying the goods. New lines are being added to the business, such as ladies' white wear and other furnishings. See their advertisement about Spring Suits, etc., in another column.

Business Rule Reversed in Coal Trade

A peculiar situation has developed in the coal trade—a reversal of the "three-for-ten" and "four-for-a-quarter" principle— giving price preference to small deals and consequently normal price instead of wholesale rates, to larger deals. As will be seen by advertisement, this issue, R. Hicks and Company announce that they will make a reduction of 10 cents in price on every quarter ton or half ton lot of coal ordered, till further notice; but the price will remain the same for ton orders or over. This will tend to restrict large orders and encourage small orders, so that the limited supply may be more equally distributed. This may be bad business, but it is good citizenship and good neighbourliness.

The Speakers' Patriotic League

An important meeting of the Speaker's Patriotic League will be held to-night at the Patriotic Rooms at 8 o'clock. Important business will come before the League and every member is urged to be present.

Mrs. M. E. Read, Bonaccord street, was appointed superintendent of the Children's Shelter by the special committee which was appointed by and met after the Children's Aid Society's meeting yesterday afternoon. Applications had been received from Mrs. Wm. Henry, former superintendent, Mrs. M. E. Read, Mr. S. F. Touchbourne, and Mrs. Robert Carney. It was stated that Mrs. Read had recently been assisting Miss Coulson, whose illness forced her to resign the position which the Society realized she was capably filling.

The appointment takes effect as soon as the change can be made, and Miss Coulson expressed the wish that she might be relieved of her duties as soon as possible. Mrs. Read will have the help of her sixteen-year-old son in the work about the Shelter.

Orders for Wednesday, February 14th, 1917::

1. Duties—

Orderly officer for Wednesday, February 14th, 1917: Lieut. J. F. Strickland.

Sergt. Stanley, who is recruiting in Peterborough for the 256th Railway Construction Battalion, has received word to stop recruiting for this battalion on Saturday, so that Peterborough men who wish to go overseas with this unit have not much time left. Some twenty recruits from Peterborough have joined the 256th and it is hoped to increase the number materially before Saturday. Two recruits taken on the strength this morning were Ptes. Oliver and Blewett, of Smith township, while Pte. W. A. Gunn, of Peterborough, joined yesterday.

Chaplain of 257th.

Rev. Father John R. O'Gorman, parish priest of St. Patrick's church, Cobalt, a cousin of Major J. O'Gorman, Ottawa, has been appointed chaplain of the 257th Railway Construction Battalion, about to leave soon for overseas. His brother Capt. Vincent O'Gorman, who has spent several months in Mesopotamia on active service, will be medical officer of the same unit. Both officers are old residents of Renfrew, and are well known to nearly all the officers of the unit.

LETTER OF THANKS.

Following is a letter of thanks to the employees of the Freight Department, G.T.R.:

Pte. Sid. Spooner of the 256th Battalion, wishes to thank all the employees of the Freight Department of the G.T.R. for the handsome present he has received from them. He greatly appreciates the kind manner in which they have acted towards him, and also wishes to say that he hopes to be able to continue to live up to the good opinion they have formed of him, and upon the fulfillment of his duties overseas, to some day return and take his place amongst them again and work with them upon the same harmonious terms with which he has done before.

PTE. SID. SPOONER.
256th Battalion.

Mrs. McNabb, Water street received a letter from her son, Lieut. J. A. McNabb of the 93rd Battalion, stating that he had been admitted back into hospital again, suffering from a relapse after his operation for appendicitis. Lieut. McNabb's many friends will wish him a speedy recovery. He is at the Howard Home in Brighton England.

Among the Canadian Officers mentioned in the Gazette by Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, was Lieut. Claude H. Rogers of Peterborough, whose work with the Mechanical Transport earned him this distinction. Lieut. Rogers is at present home on a short leave from the front.

Wants To Know About The Nickel

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.— Sam Carter, M.P., South Wellington, thinks there is much information regarding the taxation of Nickel Companies which yet requires revealing. He has given notice that on Friday he will ask in the Legislature for a return showing all statements furnished by the Canada Copper Co., International Nickel Co., Mond Nickel Co. and any other company producing nickel, respecting the taxation under the Mining Act since January 1, 1915. Also all correspondence since Jan. 1, 1915, between the Ontario government officials and these companies.

A good method of cleaning earthen ware jars is to fill them with hot water to which a handful of salt has been added. This will be found to clean them out much more readily than if they were scoured out with water or suds.

Hints About The Tiz-it Theatre

The Tiz-It Theatre is noted for its excellent big programme and the courtesy they show their patrons, also for the best music in the city. We have a four piece orchestra in which know how to play for the pictures, in which our programme consists of nine big reels. Our comedies are extra good and we don't forget to change our programme three times a week.

Our new serial, "The Purple Mask" is one of the best 'because" Grace Cunard and Francis Ford are the two greatest serial stars on earth, and if you miss the fourth episode you will be sorry as it is very good.

"Liberty" is getting better each week, also "Diamond From the Sky" is well worth remembering.

Our price goes with our programme. "Purple Mask" is 5c. and 10c. for matinee, 10 and 15 cents for evening. Also the same prices for Saturday, and the old price for other days.

Now don't forget to come to the Tiz-It Theatre and hear the real "music" that puts life in an old frame.

GOVERNMENT MAY CALL OUT MILITIA

25,000 or 50,000 of Active and Reserve Militia May Be Ordered Out For Home Service.

MANY ARE AVAILABLE

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—The calling out of from 25,000 to 50,000 of the members of the active and reserve militia of Canada for training and for home defence under the provisions of the militia act is, it is understood, now being arranged for by the Department of Militia. The question has been under consideration by the Government for some weeks, in fact ever since the recruiting for the overseas forces began to fall off seriously last summer. The Government has been urged from many directions to adopt the policy now decided upon.

This afternoon Sir Edward Kemp, in a guarded statement issued to the press, said that "reorganization of the militia forces of Canada, the units of which have been greatly depleted through enlistments for overseas service, is under consideration. More definite information regarding this subject will be forthcoming as soon as the plans on which to proceed in connection with this reorganization have been matured."

Many Thousands Available.

There are at present in Canada several hundred thousand members of the active militia and of the reserve militia who have not volunteered for overseas service. There are thousands who could be called out for home training, and who would form a potential army either for home defence or for overseas service should occasion demand drafting from the home army to the overseas army. The National Service registration cards will be utilized to determine just what members of the militia could be spared from their present work to serve in the new home defence army in training.

The new army would also clear the way for the departure overseas as soon as necessary of the fifty thousand or so men of the Expeditionary Force now under arms in Canada. Moreover, the militia army would not necessarily be on duty all the time. A few hours' drill per day will probably be ordered, thus leaving the men time to attend also to their civilian duties.

Official Picture Of Canadian Army

The Empire Theatre Will Present Its First War Picture on February 22nd, 23rd and 24th

TANKS IN ACTION

Great Interest Occasioned by the Government's Latest Release

Dr. F. L. Robinson was in Toronto on Monday, where he saw presented at the Regent Theatre the new official picture of the Canadian Army and immediately secured its presentation at the Empire Theatre on the above dates. Dr. Robinson will stand behind this picture as he says it is a greater war picture than the Battle of the Somme. The films were prepared by the official British Army photographers for the Canadian War Records Office.

Readers of the Examiner and other Canadian papers have noticed recently in London cable despatches enthusiastic accounts of this film. It is the first moving picture of the Canadian army in action, and the advance of the tanks, taken at the battle of Courcelette last September.

"The film is amazingly vivid," cables F. A. McKenzie, in a special despatch to the Toronto Daily Star. "The picture will sweep through Canada like a prairie fire, showing the actuality of war as never before."

This is the film which introduces the tanks—the first picture which has ever shown these monsters in action. British people all over the world have been wild with curiosity to see what manner of creatures they were. This film shows the tanks on their first and overwhelming introduction to the Germans at the Somme, Sept. 15 and 16, in conjunction with the victorious attack of the Canadians.

In England the rush of theatre managers to secure bookings is said to have exceeded that which met the "Battle of the Somme."

Arrangements have been made first to show these pictures simultaneously in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, under newspaper auspices. In Toronto they will be shown under the auspices of The World, in Montreal under those of The Montreal Star, and under those of The Citizen in Ottawa. Similarly throughout Canada they will be shown under the auspices of the leading newspaper in each city and town.

The Canadian War Records Office has released the rights for Canada to Messrs. Jule and Jay J. Allen, of the Famous Players Film Service and the Monarch Film Company, who operate film exchanges throughout Canada from coast to coast and have large theatrical interests in the chief cities of the West. All the official war films issued by the British Government for exhibition in Canada have been distributed through the agency of the Allens' organization. This new picture is the first one produced specially for the Canadian War Record Office. It will be handled in the same way as the British pictures, including "Britain Prepared" (the first of the official series), "British and Canadian Armies in France," "The Battle of the Somme" and "The King's Visit to the Front." The Examiner in lending its auspices to the presentation, believes that this is a picture of greater importance to the Canadian people than any other that has ever been shown. According to the accounts in the British papers when the press was accorded a private view in advance of its public introduction, it is superior in interest and in photography to the 'Battle of the Somme.'

In Canada this wide imperial interest in the doings of the armies of Britain and her dominions will naturally be supplemented by the local and national interest aroused by the fact that these are the first moving pictures of the Canadian army in action. And in addition to these points, there is the fact of this being the first picture of the British 'tanks' ever exhibited. The film shows these land battleships in action and in full detail.

The Examiner with the experience of "The Battle of the Somme" as a bears, feels that the new Canadian war pictures will surpass anything of the kind ever exhibited in this city. Further details as to the arrangements will be announced.

WOMEN MAY GET THE FRANCHISE IN THIS PROVINCE

Government May Give Its Endorsation to the Bill of John W. Johnston Granting the Franchise to Women in Provincial and Municipal Elections

MEMBERS FAVOURABLE

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 14.—The sentiment of the members of the Ontario Legislature seems to be almost unanimous for the passing at this session of the Legislature of a bill granting to women the right to vote at elections to the Legislative Assembly and at municipal elections, judging from statements made by prominent members of the legislature this morning in interviews.

Although the speech from the throne contained no reference to franchise for women, it is not improbable the government may give its endorsation to the bill of John W. Johnson, Conservative, granting the franchise to women with respect to Provincial and Municipal elections. Similar bills are also advanced by two Liberal members, J. C. Elliott, M.P.P. for West Middlesex, and Wm. Macdonald, M.P.P. of North Bruce.

HIGHWAYS AND FARMERS.

The quality of the highways of a country or community represents the quality of the civilisation of that country or community. The Romans made the progress of the extension of their civilsation to conquered countries, smoother and more rapid by beginning with the construction of good roads; and of a quality that has kept some of them in continual use for nearly two thousand years. Of course when the earth is covered with snow and the roads are good, we do not, unless we think a good deal, appreciate the importance of good roads. A farmer sitting by his comfortable fire-side contemplates a trip to town to-morrow with comparative complaisance. All he has to think about is to wrap up well; and make the trip in comparative comfort. But a month or six weeks hence he knows he has to face March or April roads, and is laboriously plough through mud axle-deep on country roads. One would think that such conditions would breed in the average farmer an appreciation of the value of good roads—an appreciation of how much less worry of his horseflesh, wear of vehicles, and loss of time and temper—good roads bring. He needs to have some concrete lesson of his loss and gain as between bad roads and good roads. In a California county a company buys skim milk from the farmers and does the drawing itself. The company pays according to the character of the roads it has to use. On poor roads the company pays the farmer 17 1-2 cents per hundred. To the farmer situated on good roads it pays 20 cents per hundred. Of course the farmer has always been paying the tax in some other form, for every hundred pounds he hauls over bad roads, and he is relieved of it on every hundred pounds he hauls over good roads. But his attention has not been so directly brought to his folly and loss as in the case of the milk.

When the farmer comes to the point of measuring his distance from his market in minutes instead of miles, he will come to realise the direct, the crisp profit of good roads. Good roads in a township will cost each farmer a few cents additional taxes, while the saving in time, wear and tear and comfort and profitable marketing can be measured in dollars.

THE TRUE FOUNDATION.

The Kingston Standard, rabidly Conservative, reprints figures to show that Quebec is slipping from the grip of Laurier—that "These figures indicate that in the past fourteen years Laurierism in Quebec has steadily declined."

Assuming that these conclusions are right, Quebec's allegiance has gone over to Nationalism. From a party point of view this is gratifying to the Standard and its ilk—anything to kill Laurier. That has been the aim of the party managers, and to effect this in Quebec, the Conservative party has used Nationalism. If "Laurierism" has declined in Quebec, has anything better taken its place? From a party point of view, Nationalism may be better than Laurierism; for Sir Robert Borden's chief, if not sole, support in that province consists of Nationalist members. Except from the purely party point of view, is there a change for the better? Laurierism stands for British ideals, imperial ideals. Laurier was the first Canadian statesman to give the Mother Country preferential treatment at our Customs Houses; and Laurier's motto is, as repeatedly declared, the British connection in peace and war—"When Britain is at war Canada is at war," says Laurier. The Nationalists' sentiment is entirely anti-British—we Canadians don't owe anything to the British. "We've had enough of England and the English." "Laurierism" is Canadian, British and Imperial. Nationalism in Quebec, the back bone of Borden's support is Canadian in a petty, parochial way, and anti-British in the main way.

Would anything but blind and pig-headed partisanship find cause for congratulation and satisfaction in the fact, that Nationalist negation of British ideals, is replacing robust British ideals—the keenest sympathy with Britain in the present struggle—and in all imperial aspirations—in Quebec? Sir Robert Borden and his party have fostered anti-British, and therefore anti-Canadian Nationalism, ever since it raised its disloyal head. He has warmed a serpent in his bosom that will sting him to the heart before he shakes it off; unless he acts promptly.

Holding power on any other policy than the right, the loyal, the true, not only presages loss of that power, but threatens the real life and welfare of the country. We are a British nation—bound to be and remain British if we are to become and remain a great nation; bound to a country to which we owe all we have, and are, and are to be. Our foundations are laid deep upon the principles of freedom of the parliamentary institutions, cradled and developed in Britain.

We have no place in our political household for anti-British antagonisms to our welfare, and continuous development of the heritage of British ideals, that has come to us to be worked out in the broad spaces of our half of the continent, won for us by British enterprise, and to be only worthily held by virtue of the British spirit, untainted with domestic treason—whatever name or shape—it assumes; whether it is obscure or harmless, or becomes prominent and dangerous by adoption and encouragement by one of the great parties of the Dominion.

PATRIOTISM AND PRODUCTION.

The patriotism that is worth the letters required to spell it, is not a mere sentiment, an abstract emotion, but a principle of action, that concerns the loyal citizen in his relations to the state, to the community, to his home. All authorities—official and unofficial—agree that one of the greatest needs of the time; that the manner in which we can best serve the state, our national interests, and the interests of the cause represented by this war, is by food production. Germany is doing her most damnable to starve the British Islands—the lion in her path; the one most hated obstacle to the accomplishment of her designs.

Food for the British people is a prime essential; it is the fuel of the fighting fire of our soldiers. Since this war began Canada has to a large extent been Britain's granary and larder, and a mighty help in winning the war. The call is upon us to continue the increase of food products we sent to Britain last year. To do this we must produce more. To produce more for exportation, we must produce more for ourselves.

The appeal to greater production comes from both our Dominion and Provincial Governments. Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, has issued a call to Canadians, which is reproduced upon this page. While his appeal is more directly addressed to the farming part of our population, it will be noticed that it comes also to us city and town dwellers. He says:

"I especially appeal in this critical year, to those in our cities and towns who have not hitherto felt the necessity for directing their energies to food production. Individual efforts, though small and unskilled, will, in the aggregate, mean much. By applying their labour to uncultivated areas near their homes, or by assisting farmers, everybody having health can accomplish something."

And this brings up the question of the cultivation of city garden plots. After the Examiner had made an appeal in this direction, Premier Hearst—post hoc, anyway, if not propter hoc—made a similar appeal, and it was also mentioned in the Speech from the Throne yesterday.

In Toronto, the matter is receiving practical attention. There are fifty societies cooperating in back-yard gardening, with a Thrift committee of the city. Premier, now, Sir William Hearst telephoned the committee expressing how greatly he was pleased with the work of the back yard gardening committee. The Government has been planning a province-wide garden movement and places its official machinery at the service of those who want "pointers."

There is no doubt of the immense help that can be contributed to national production by the home-gardening movement, extensively—and intensively—applied. The results may be individually small, but, as the Minister of Agriculture says, as quoted above, the aggregate will mean much. Every ounce of food that can be produced by home growers leaves so much more to be devoted to export to Great Britain to victual the war.

A couple of years ago The Examiner was active in agitating for home gardens, and the public responded with most excellent individual results, and a very substantial aggregate result. The details of such an enterprise will bear future reference, but the principle must be admitted that the call for home gardening is a call for patriotism through production.

WILL IT FAIL, TOO.

The impossibility of Germany starving Britain out, as she expresses a desire to do, is made manifest by the fact that her submarines are powerless against warships. If she cannot use submarines against warships, how will she be able to use them against merchant vessels convoyed by warships? Not all merchant ships can be convoyed by warships, but if Britain finds herself threatened by starvation she will find means to convoy enough supplies to avert that danger. In this connection The New York Times suggests that if the U. S. navy enters the war there will be ships and to spare for that purpose.—Brantford Expositor.

Appeal to the People of Canada For Greatly Increased Food Production

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—The following appeal, inscribed to "The People of Canada," has been made by Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, for increased production:

"Two years ago in a message to the farmers of Canada special emphasis was laid on the important part food production and distribution would play in his world war. It was pointed out that the drafting of twenty millions of men into European battlefields and the destructive process of war itself must inevitably be followed by diminished production and enhanced cost of food. To-day Roumania, Poland and Belgium are conspicuous and tragic examples of what these things mean. The German food ration is now half the normal requirement, and under the steady pressure of British sea power the Hun is daily tightening his belt. But though the great stress is on the Central powers other nations are feeling the strain. The smaller neutral countries are confronted with food shortage and high prices. Switzerland and Holland, in arms for defence, feed from their own scanty supply thousands of refugees who, homeless and destitute, have fled thither for sanctuary. England, amaced by an ever-increasing submarine warfare, is organizing her agriculture on a new basis, enlisting for her farms the services of women and disabled soldiers, and putting her beautiful and historic parks under the plough. France sows her agriculture on a new basis, even within the sound of the guns, by the heroic and unceasing labour of her old men, women and children.

FOOD SUPPLY A VITAL FACTOR

"Such is the picture of Europe at this hour. Facing the fateful days which lie before us in this third and sternest year of the war, we realize with increasing clearness how vital a factor in the final decision the food supply must be. The Government of this country fully appreciates what the farmers have done during the past two years. In urging them to maintain their efforts, though confronted with more difficult conditions. I do so not because of the high prices which will doubtless hold for nearly all food products, but because of the important and special service which Canadian agriculture can render the Empire at this juncture. All who assist in this work render a great service to the State. I do not say the greatest, for that is done by those who facing death, daily serve their country at the battle front. Thousands of us cannot so serve, but we who are mercifully free from the iron heel of the invaders—we, who know nothing of terrors by sea and the privations on land which others suffer, may well redouble our efforts to supply what they may sorely need.

"I especially appeal in this critical year to those in our cities and towns who hitherto have not felt the necessity for directing their energies to food production. Individual efforts, even though small and unskilled, will in the aggregate mean much. By applying their labour to uncultivated land near their homes, or by assisting farmers, everybody having health can accomplish something. There is need not only for increased supply, but for a wise economy of food. If all labour is not efficient there can at least be patience and forbearance where partial efficiency is accompanied by willingness. There is no place in the State now for either half-hearted service or ill-founded criticism. In the common task which faces the country co-operation should be watchword. The Dominion and Provincial Deparments of Agriculture are already giving, and will continue to give, special attention to the many problems involved. The National Service Board and the municipalities are also devoting their energies to these questions, and I am confident that the various organizations, both of men and women throughout the country, will give wholehearted and active support to a work which at this special time is a high and necessary national service."

Test Case Re Buckhorn Dam Damage Claims

The Examiner has been supplied with the following referring to the claims for damages alleged to have been sustained by the raising of the dam at Buckhorn:

The trial of the Trent Valley Canal claims for damages above the Buckhorn dam on February 26th before the Judge of the Exchequer Court at the Court House, Peterborough, promises to create a great deal of interest. No less than three separate valuators were sent up by the Government into this district in connection with these claims, but no satisfaction having beenforthcoming, the claimants appealed to the Federal member for West Peterborough to take the matter up. He got a fiat enabling the claimants to go into the Exchequer Court and sue the Government of Canada. On the 6th of December, 1915, the Acting Deputy Minister of Justice wrote Mr. Burnham, M.P. as follows:

"I suggest in order to save expense and trouble that you select one of these cases which you think would be a good test case and that we proceed to the trial of that case before any of the others are proceeded with. I do not of course intend that either party shall be bound by the judgment with regard to the other cases but the trial of the case would probably enable us to secure a ruling on the points of law applicable to the others."

Accordingly the case of Mr. Hopwood was selected and on the 28th of Feby. Hopwood v. the King will be proceeded with at the Court House. As will be seen by the above letter of the Department all those interested in this case should be present and if their claims are not immediately afterwards sent into the Government, in case Mr. Hopwood wins his suit, they will undoubtedly be barred, as this claim means the winding up of this long standing dispute one way or the other.

The total amount of claims above Buckhorn would probably aggregate $10,000 to $15,000 and depend upon whether or not in the year 1912 the new dam that was then opened was higher and had fever spillways than the old dam or not. Previous to 1912 all the old damage claims had been paid in connection with the Buckhorn dam, but the erection of this new dam which is stated to have been some eighteen inches higher than the old dam has given rise to a number of new cases. A great deal of testimony will come out. It is said, it is alleged, that not only was there a very high freshet in 1912, but high winds against stream as well, and that these were the cause of the damage. The claimants say that whilst there was an unusually high freshet that the damage would have been much less if it had not been for the height and narrowness of the dam and this is said by them to be the measure of the damages. There will be a large number of witnesses no doubt, as all the claimants are interested. There will be no expense—no law costs to anybody as the member has succeeded in getting the Government to meet the claimants half way in this manner before a duly constituted court so that there will be no talk of political payments for damages and so that if the Government is compelled to pay it will be by a duly constituted court of the land. There is considerable interest in the case and no doubt there will be a large number in attendance.

BRITISH FOOD PERIL LESS THAN DUTCH

HER INDUSTRIES PARALYZED

Can't Get Raw Materials—Only Hope in a Relaxation of the Submarine Blockade.

LONDON, Seb. 9. — Sessions have been taking place of the British Cabinet to study the crisis created by the depredations of enemy submarines. At various times in the war we are told that we have reached the most critical stage, but there is no finality in these crises, and the latest is the worst.

The war may not end, but it will be decided within the next three or four months. This decision will be helped by the Allies piercing the western front, by Russia driving the enemy back, by an advance in Italy, and the holding of the enemy in the Balkans, to say nothing of offensive operations elsewhere.

The military prospects are good, but they are not in themselves decisive. They are overshadowed by the danger of the submarine blockade. In spite of warnings from a few far-sighted men England was not ready for the wholesale sinking at sight of all vessels. Such a barbarous development of sea warfare was not accepted by those who still believed the Germans retained some shred of respect for civilization.

There are several ways of destroying submarines. We are not permitted to know what the submarine casualties are. More merchant ships are being supplied with guns for defense, which compels the submarines to remain immersed and use their torpedoes. As the nights become shorter the activities of the submarines will be less.

Great Britain is blockaded, but she will not be starved and communication with her Allies will not be interrupted. Bread and other food tickets will be introduced unless the people ration themselves on reasonable lines. A shortage is threatened in potatoes, and to meet the scarcity the Ministry of Agriculture has made arrangements for growing early potatoes in Spain, in the Channel Islands, in Cornwall, and also under glass instead of early fruit. The three months' decisive period will be got through without serious deprivations.

England will suffer less from the blockade than the small neutral countries which shut on Germany. They are forbidden to trade with the Allies, the countries in which their commercial interests are greatest. Holland is already paralysed. Her factories are closing down, and trains are stopping for lack of coal. Holland imports a great deal of raw material from England, including kernels and palm oil for margarine. Without these materials her factories must stop. She must also import fertilizers, otherwise agriculture will suffer. Under an agreement Dutch farmers have been selling two-thirds of their produce other than that for home consumption to England, leaving one-third for export to Germany. Now Germany will get it all on her own terms. Unless Holland agrees to trade with Germany in coal in return for food products she will starve.

These little countries like Holland have the option of joining with the United States in severing diplomatic relations with Germany and committing suicide or of being bled to death. Their fate is obvious and inevitable unless Germany relaxes the stringency of the blockade so far as they are concerned. I am told they are hopeful of obtaining concessions, but the enemy's difficulty is to concede anything to these neutrals without conferring some collateral benefit on England.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

OSHAWA TO PLAY HERE NEXT TUESDAY

The dates have been arranged for the third round series between Oshawa and the 247th Battalion in the intermediate series. The Soldiers will go to Oshawa on Friday night, while the return game will be played in Peterborough on Tuesday next, February 20th. Oscar Bernhardt, of Bradford, who officiated satisfactorily in Monday's game at Kingston, will handle the bell in both games. The biggest crowd of the season will see the Oshawa game here next week, while it is likely that many fans will accompany the 247th to Oshawa on Friday night.

Peterboro' City Bowling League

De Laval Beat Business Men.

Last night's game in the Peterborough Bowling League proved to be the most exciting yet played, and also a victory for the De Laval over the Business Men. The Business Men won the first two games, but in the third game something happened which was not looked for and which proved to be the surprise of the season, for, when the curtain was lowered for the last game, the Bus. Men were more than surprised to find the De Laval had won the game. Horse shoes and rabbits' feet bring luck to a lot of people, and it certainly did to the De Laval last night. There will be a lot of rabbits missing from the forests this morning and also horse shoes from the blacksmith's shop. But when all is said and done the De Laval deserve a lot of credit for they rolled a great game at the finish and the Bus. Men give them great credit for the win. When a team that has played like the De Laval have, then to come through and beat the Business Men, they deserve all the praise they get for the win. The last game was won by 9 pins. As it is now the Printers must take all three games from the Left Overs to win the League, so their game will mean a lot to the Bus. Men and will cause great excitement if the Left Overs win one out of the three games it ties the teams up and there will be a play-off, which would be a great game to see. Last night Dawson, for the Bus. Men, was high roller, with a score of 548. He also pulled off the most difficult spare ever seen on these alleys.

Carter and Byers also made great spares. Barrett for the De Laval, rolled a nice game and was high man for his team with 516 pins.

The high score for the silver shield is still held by V. Dawson, with a score of 622 for three consecutive games. As this prize ends this week, the bowlers will have to get busy if they wish to try for the shield.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The 247th Battalion team will practice to-night at 7 o'clock at Brock Street Rink in preparation for Friday night's third round game at Oshawa. The soldier boys came through the Kingston series in good shape, not a man being hurt and all in fine condition for Friday's big battle. The return game will be played in Peterborough at the beginning of next week. The winners of the series will go into the last three in the intermediate race and may in the event of securing the bye go into the finals without playing another game.

The Toronto Telegram says:

As the campaign in the three series of the O.H.A. is nearing the finals, there is much speculation as to who will take the honours this season. It seems a foregone conclusion that Dentals and Riversides will meet in the senior final, and opinion seems to be divided as to which is the best team. Preston and Sarnia are also in the running for the senior honours, but the 'experts' evidently do not think much of them. Preston or Sarnia will meet Dentals in the semi-finals, the champion Riversides having drawn the bye and the right to enter the final. In the intermediate race it is harder to make a selection. The 247th Battalion of Peterborough look to be the choice of the east, with Kitchener the best looking outfit in the west. Of course, Owen Sound's victory over Collingwood makes that aggregation feared, and they may put Kitchener out in the next round. Many are also of the opinion that the Hamilton team is just about good enought to pull in front while the 118th Battalion, of London, are also reported as being a strong seven. In the junior the "experts" seem to think that Kingston will be the new champions and that their hardest opposition will be provided by Aura Lee.

To Go As Units In the Next Division

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Morning Post says: The practice of the Canadian military authorities in England of breaking up units trained together in Canada, which Col. Pelletier, Agent-General for Quebec, stated in an interview published in the Morning Post said had caused some disappointment in the Dominion, has been followed, it is announced authoritatively, not from choice, but from military necessity. The contingents which have been coming from Canada for a long time past have been utilised as reinforcements to fill up gaps caused by casualties in Canadian forces. As the contingents arrive they are, when ready for active service drawn upon to take the place of killed and wounded, and thus keep regiments up to normal strength.

"It was, however, only fair," said a Canadian authority, "to those officers who were pained at the breaking up of units which had been trained under them that they should be assured that this action was in no sense a reflection on their ability or qualifications.

"It was well known that Canadian battalions were recruited, organised, and trained by officers of high standing and military experience, but they would be first to recognise that in exigencies of military situation it was often practically impossible to send units intact on active service, and that when these units were drawn upon only to furnish reinforcements to regiments already in the field, their commanding officers would not be required to proceed to the front with them.

"If and when occasion arose for sending another division forward both men and their officers would be kept together as much as possible on service as they had been in training."

PROPHECY AND THE WAR WILL BE THE TOPIC

The interest taken in the prophetic and Bible study conference held in Peterborough last May, has led to arrangements being made for the holding of a series of public monthly meetings in St. Paul's church, to be addressed by prominent public speakers. The first of these meetings will be held Friday evening, February 16th, in the Sunday School of St. Paul's Church, and will be addressed by Rev. John McNicol, Principal of the Toronto Bible College, who will speak on the subject, "The Signs of the Times."

These meetings will be entirely undenominational in character. It was at first thought that they might be held on Wednesday evenings, but as this might interfere with the Wednesday night prayer meetings, arrangements have been made to hold the meetings on Friday evenings, so that as many as care to from other congregations may be able to attend. In March, it is planned to hold a meeting, which will be addressed by Rev. Mr. Turnbull, pastor of Beverly St. Baptist Church, Toronto, who is to speak on "The God of this Age," or "Satan, his history, methods and destiny."

Of late years so little attention has been given to the study of the scores of great prophecys in the Bible, most people do not seem to realize that they predict the coming of just such a war as is now raging in Europe, the return of the Jews to Jerusalem and other events which present conditions seem to indicate are near fulfilment. This fact gives added interest to the subject the Rev. Mr. McNicol is to speak on this week. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested to attend.

Iron, Steel and Metal Markets

In its summary of the iron, steel, metal and machinery markets for the week, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News, Toronto, makes the following observations:—

Although there has been no further development in the strained relations between the United States and Germany, the possibility of war between these countries and its effect upon Canadian trade is still the main topic of discussion, particularly in manufacturing circles. Whether importations into Canada would be affected to any appreciable extent is a matter of conjecture, yet it is believed in some quarters that the situation would not be greatly changed. The severe weather has helped materially in further restricting the movement of cars on the railways and the situation is more acute than ever. In this district foundries are closing down, owing to shortage of coke and for the same reason furnaces are operating at reduced capacity. This, in turn, is adversely affecting mill operations, resulting in reduced output of steel. In this respect the situation is particularly serious, as the production of munitions is liable to be affected unless conditions improve at an early date. Steel prices continue very firm, advances in tubes, bolts and nuts having been registered during the week, while higher prices on other steel products may be looked for in the near future. On all raw material, the general trend of prices is upward, and this will be reflected in prices of finished goods. Prices of ingot metals have been well maintained, with advances in lead and antimony. The situation in the metal markets, however, will be more or less unsettled until the relations between the United States and Germany are definitely settled one way or another. Scrap prices are firm, with an upward tendency for most metals. Prices of machine tools continue to advance steadily. Business has, however, been quiet, although outlook is favourable.

Shale Will Burn And Forest People May Need No Coal

Discovery of Ex-Mayor Pettypiece May Prove Invaluable.

FOREST, Feb. 14.—Ex-Mayor H. J. Pettypiece may prove to be the greatest benefactor the people of this district have ever known. If a discovery he has just made works out, as there is every indication that it will, the people of Forest and the entire district will be forever independent of the coal barons.

For some days past Mr. Pettypiece has been burning in the furances in his home and printing office a shale which he brought in from Kettle Point. It is saturated with a sort of crude oil and burns well, either by itself or when mixed with coal.

After satisfying himself that the fuel was all right he took the matter up at Ottawa through J. C. Armstrong, M. P., and to-night Dr. M. Y. Williams arrived here from the department of mines to investigate Mr. Pettypiece's discovery. He saw the shale burning and at once suggested that permission be asked from the Government to obtain the fuel for the people of the district. This is necessary, as it is obtainable only on the Indian reserve.

He is delighted to-night with what he has seen, and is going out to-morrow to obtain various samples from different parts of the reserve to make complete tests when he gets back to Ottawa.

"There is an inexhaustible supply of the shale," said Mr. Pettypiece to-night. "I have tried it out in every way and found it most satisfactory."

UNCROWNED KING OF GREEK PEOPLE IS REAL RULER

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Events are so satisfactorily shaping themselves in Greece that further Entente interference to bring about an entire change of government may not be necessary, according to latest advices.

Nothing official has been heard of the rumor emanating from American sources that King Constantine might be deposed and the Duke of Aosta given the throne. Seemingly the Greek people are solving their own problem of divided allegiance, resulting from the establishing of a provisional government at Salonica by Eleutherois Venizelos, by gradual but increasing defection from King Constantine and his pro-German advisors and by turning to Mr. Venizelos as the real, if unseen, hand that rules Greece.

The growing strength of Mr. Venizelo's government is apparent. Already Great Britain and France have appointed ministers to represent them at the provisional government's head quarters, Lord Granville having been made British Minister and Robert de Billy, lately counsellor of the French Embassy at Rome, having been named by the French Government. Mr. Venizelos is expected soon to appoint representatives to Paris, London and Petrograd.

That a large majority of the Greek people has declared for Mr. Venizelos is indicated clearly by the fact that the stream of volunteers for the provisional army from Old Greece where Constantine is supposed to be supreme, is continuous and gaining in strength all the time. Army and navy commanders of the highest rank are included in the recruits to the Venizelist standard.

Up to date all of Macedonia, the Islands of Chios, Crete, Lesbos, Samos, Syra Naxos, Andros, Keos Kythnos, Imbros, Psara, Lemnos, Tenedos and Santori, have joined the provisional government.

Nearly all the organized Greek communities abroad including those in New York and Montreal, have notified the Provisional government of their allegiance to the cause. "The 'unredeemed' Greeks in Turkey and Bulgaria, who were represented at the Congress of Hellenic Communities in Paris at its last meeting, have expressed their lack of confidence in King Constantine.

Other developments indicating the steady flow of sentiment to the Venizelist government presage the early elimination of King Constaine and the gradual increase in the power of the Provincial government until its influence extends over the entire country.

The personal character of Mr. Venizelos is described as unassailable and his private life of the simplest. He eats frugally and neither drinks nor smokes. His whole life is centred in his work. An English tribute says, "He stands forth brightly as a representative of pure Greek patriotism."

In a book entitled 'Venizelos and the war,' just off the press, its author, Crawford Price, gives this biographical review:—

"Eleutherios Venizelos—his prenom is the Greek word for 'free'—was born in the Island of Crete fifty-two years ago, and it may be said that his life has been one persistent struggle for freedom's cause. At the age of twenty-three he had commenced to free Crete from Ottoman rule; in 1910 he freed Greece from the political harpies and corrupt officials who infested its polities and administration; his administration freed Salonica in 1912 and Kavalla in 1913. He longed to free Bulgaria, Thrace and Hellenic Asia Minor. Now he has once more donned the cloak of revolution in order to free Greek Macedonia from the Bulgars and the Greek kingdom from despotism.

Venizelos was intended for a commercial career, but a young man of his ardent temperament found no contentment in the routine of an office, so he became a barrister, and was soon the leader of the Liberal party in the Cretan Assembly. From this epoch really dates the antagonism of the Greek royal family toward him."

Cuba a Mecca For Teutons Of the U.S.

The Trouble Is Spreading — United States May Seek to Keep It Under.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The Tribune yesterday morning said: "Coincident with the revolt in Cuba has come an unusual emigration of Germans to that republic from this city.

The Tribune learned Monday that since the situation between the United States and Germany became critical, from 80 to 100 Germans have left this port, bound for Cuba. What makes this exodus the more mysterious is that many of those who left here first took out their first papers as prospective American citizens.

Officials at Washington have been apprised of the situation and agents in New York are investigating the antecedents of the legion already gone. An extensive revolt in Cuba would cause the use of American troops to restore order under the terms of the Platt amendment.

TORPEDOES FROM AIRPLANE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—America would be free from invasion through the use of the "torpedo plane," Rear-Admiral Fiske, U.S.N., retired, declared in an address at the Pan-American Aeronautical Exposition on Monday night. It is a scheme whereby it is claimed that the regular Whitehead auto torpedo may be launched from an airplane as effectively as from a destroyer.

The "torpedo plane," under favourable conditions, Admiral Fiske said, would make a $20,000 airplane a worthy match for a $20,000,000 battle cruiser. He added that he had received private information from Europe, which has been verified from a wholly different source, that about a year ago a British naval aviator made four flights over the land into the Sea of Marmora in an airplane, under which a Whitehead torpedo was secured, and sank four Turkish vessels.

In conclusion, the Admiral said he had received further information, "which is of absolute reliability," that one of the belligerent countries is taking means to use this plane on a large scale.

APPEAL FOR PRODUCTION.

Minister of Agriculture an Advocate of City Lot Gardening.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—An appeal, inscribed to "The People of Canada," has been made by Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, for increased production. After citing the blight on food production in Europe due to the war it says:

"Facing the fateful days which lie before us in this third, and sternest year of the war, we realize with increasing clearness how vital a factor in the final decision the food supply must be. The Government of this country fully appreciates what the farmers have done during the past two years. In urging them to maintain their efforts, though confronted with more difficult conditions, I do it, not because of the high prices which will doubtless hold for nearly all food products, but because of the important and special service which Canadian agriculture can render the Empire at this juncture. All who assist in this work render a great service to the state. I do not say the greatest, for that is done by those, who facing death, daily serve their country at the battlefront.

"I especially appeal in this critical year to those in our cities and towns who hitherto have not felt the necessity for directing their energies to food production. Individual efforts, even though small and unskilled, will in the aggregate mean much. By applying their labour to uncultivated land near their homes, or by assisting farmers, everybody having health can accomplish something. There is need, not only for an increased supply, but for a wise economy of food. If all labour is not efficient there can at least be patience and forbearance where partial efficiency is accompanied by willingness. There is no place in the state now for either half-hearted service or ill-founded criticism."

ROGERS TO BE AN ISSUE.

Retention of Hon. Robert in Cabinet May Affect Enthusiasm.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Among the first subjects for discussion when Parliament assembles after adjournment will be the Galt-Rogers controversy and the Galt report.

The attack of Mr. Rogers on a judge is a matter for proper consideration by Parliament and the Opposition will insist that the attack be either justified by Mr. Rogers or repudiated by his leader.

The attitude which the Prime Minister takes toward his colleague will have considerable effect upon the attitude which the Opposition will take in connection with extension. That Mr. Rogers has been chosen to accompany Sir Robert on his Imperial mission may be taken as some indication of the stand which Sir Robert intends to take with regard to the Galt findings.

IMPRESSIONS OUTSIDE SALONIKI

(BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS)

This picture of life outside Saloniki I got from a Canadian nurse, who has just recently returned from there.

Those whom fate has placed on the road outside Salonika miss much of the colour and pagant that they had hazily pictured to themselves before hand.

The cosmopolitan life of the town—the French, the Russians, the Italian troops with the glory and colour of their uniforms, the cafes and the crowded streets, is a muddle of endless activity. There are compensations for the dweller in the fresh air on the grassy slopes that run back to the mountains, with Mount Olympus looking down upon him from over the way beyond the blue strip of water.

On the road at his feet the East that is East and the West that is West meet all day long in two endless processions.

First on a rusty bicycle there comes a French soldier, in khaki with a dark blue beret on his head, who salutes with a pleasant grin as he rattles past. Next a dirty-faced gentleman with ferocious grey whiskers and a red sash and a red fez, riding on a donkey, so tiny, that the donkey is almost obscured. A horse follows the donkey, and on his back a French soldier in his picturesque blue grey uniform. At first sight he looks like a rag-time soldier, judging from the easy, slouching manner in which he sits on his horse—nothing of the workman underneath.

The next blue grey man comes bumping and swirling along in a lorry and a great flurry of dust.

Red Cross waggons pass to and fro, usually in charge of a British soldier, very prim and unromantic after the swash-buckling figure of the French cavalryman. But none are more romantic than the four Greek gentlemen in black clothes and bowler hats, their knees squeezed together in an agony of discomfort in a very small and ancient calerioket drawn by a still more ancient horse.

Everyone much prefers the Greeks on foot, they then look like most delicious brigands, for these bandits are clad in a variety of enthralling waistcoats, some dark blue, bound in black braid, some of a red and black check and some purple with pink sleeves. On their legs they have black knicker bockers of an extraordinary bagginess and patchiness, and on their feet sandals swathed in complicated bindings. On their heads are tight black skull caps and turbans and gaudy, many coloured handkerchiefs and occasionally caps, like those of a railway porter, with shiny black peaks.

Some of them are in charge of floats ladened with granite blocks for the making of roads and pulled by curly horned oxen, that thrust out their chins, with an air of patient suffering. Others are to be seen pushing very slowly—two trucks along the rail way line that runs by the roadside. In a sky-blue sentry box, dominating one of the trucks, stands a British sergeant, urging on the gang.

The British soldier declares that he can now get on very well with the Greek as he has picked up something of his language; but as a matter of fact, his vocabulary is very limited and consists of such phrases as "Hidy bros" (that is spelled phonetically), which is the equivalent of "buck up." It is reinforced by gesture and by "Hi Johnie see?" The Greek knowledge of English is confined to "stop" and "finish," which he murmurs in a tone to melt any heart, but that of a sergeant.

Not far off one may see some maltese labourers, they are to be distinguished by their tall grey woollen caps.

All day long these motly crowds flow along the road, and they gradually become less as the sun begins to set. Then the hills all round grow wonderfully and beautifully purple, while little fleecy puffs of cloud float about the sky. And there comes the real beauty of Salonika—the moon flooding the whole stretch of white sandy country from the hills to the sea and silvering the tents. If one walks abroad one may again come upon the Maltese labourers. They have finished their work. Two may be playing a pleasant tinkling tune on mandolin or guitars. No one speaks a word, but they nod on over the sand with silent feet, their figures black in the moonlight.—J.E.H. Canadian Overseas.

Conditions In Local Restaurants

The conditions found in some of the eating houses of the city are such as to merit the disapproval of Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health. The matter was brought to the attention of the Board of Health at a meeting held last evening. "They are not right and there will have to be a change," said Dr. Amys. The M.O.C. reported one case where the occupants of the restaurant sleep in bunks adjacent to the kitchen. Only a curtain separates the two. In another place the only ventilator in the building was plugged up. Dr. Amys was of the opinion that there should be an outside entrance to all such places and that all inside entrances to sleeping quarters, etc., should be closed and sealed up.

Mayor Duffus favoured giving the proprietors a limited time in which to remedy the conditions, after which the Medical Officer of Health would be empowered to act.

Dr. Amys condemned the stalls that are maintained in some of the restaurants. "You go in to eat and in the next stall, there will be a number of young fellows having a little game or cursing and swearing loud enough to raise the hair on your head," observed Dr. Amys.

CEREAL MILL MAY RE-OPEN

LINDSAY, Feb. 14. — There is a possibility of the mills of the Canadian Cereal and Flour Mills Co. Ltd., in Lindsay being reopened. A communication was read from the company at a meeting of the Town Council to the effect that either the mill here or in Tillsonburg would be opened, the company to reopen in the town which would make them the best offer.

Reeve McLean thought that it was a matter that should be gone into seriously, and suggested that a committee of the Town Council interview Mr. J. D. Flavelle on the matter and get his ideas.

"It appears that the company recently sold its mill at London to the Quaker Oats Co. and now will open up one of their mills at present dormant."

Mayor Kylie thought it would be a good idea to write and ask the company to send a man here.

Ald. Chambers—"We can't bonus any concern that will compete with a company already here."

Reeve McLean — "Even so, we should go after this company and see what they want. We don't want to be a one-horse town. I don't think it would hurt Maunder & Son. At any rate we should try and hold this industry here, recreate it and make it a "hive" one again."

On motion the Mayor was advised to communicate with the company with a view to having them reopen their plant in Lindsay.

Social Evening Was A Success

Last evening Mrs. H. Weir and Mrs. D. Lawrence gave a talent party in aid of the Women's Guild of St. Luke's Church, East City. Quite a large number of guests assembled at the Club Room in East City to which sleighs were sent and were driven to the home of Mrs. Weir, where a very enjoyable evening was spent and a goodly sum realized.

FLOGGING FOR BOYS WHO STOLE WATCHES FROM CHERNIKOFF

Two boys who admitted the theft of a watch apiece from Chernikoff, the Russian second-hand store man, appeared before Magistrate Denuble, this morning, who ordered fifteen lashes for each of them, as an early reminder that the way of the transgressor is thorny. One of them told a story, when first questioned, of returning home recently and finding a strange man seated at the family table. He was wearing a mask, and jumped up when the lad entered, and drawing a dagger, made to attack him. With the realism of "Nick Carter" or "Diamond Dick," the boy told how he had grabbed the masked man's wrist. In the scuffle he was cut on the hand. The stranger dropped the weapon and escaped through the back door, dropping the watch on the way. The boy even displayed a cut which he maintained was the knife wound. Of course the tale was but a fiction of his imagination, which had seemingly become impregnated with lurid ideas that are not found in school text books.

Getting After Lindsay Celestials

LINDSAY, Feb. 14.—When the proposed by-law re licensing junk shops was mentioned at the council session, Reeve McLean referred to the Chinese colony in town, the members of which were enjoying all the privileges of citizenship, but paid nothing. He had interviewed them in connection with the Patriotic Fund but they gesticulated in a manner peculiar to their race, and replied to his queries in "pigeon English." A tax should be put on them that would either put them out of business, he said, or compel them to pay a substantial revenue. They entered into competition with local men, who were heavy taxpayers, but paid nothing for the upkeep of the town. It was decidedly unfair.

No Sunday Skating On Lindsay Rink

LINDSAY, Feb. 14.—The young people who have in the past disported themselves on Sunday at the East Ward rink have killed the goose that laid the golden egg.

The rink is situated on the Victoria School grounds, and the youngsters, not being satisfied with skating, broke into the little house used by the skaters, and in which a stove had been placed. Entrance was gained through a window, and they helped themselves to hockey sticks belonging to the pupils and also broke a number of them.

This act of vandalism has prompted the Board of Education to take action, and Chief Short has been notified to prosecute as trespassers parties who play hockey or skate at the rink on Sundays.

TRYING TO CLEAR UP THE SITUATION

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 14.— Buffalo awoke to-day to a full realization of the enormity of the railroad embargo which has begun to paralyze industry here and threatens the lives of its people. At the Chamber of Commerce it was announced that more than 1,000 loaded freight cars are stalled in Gardenville yards alone. There are also 3,000 loaded cars in the Black Rock yards waiting for the Canadian roads to take them across the river. The New York Central to-day put to work 1,000 labourers to help clean up the yards. An effort will also be made to-day to get through the Black Rock yards. At Bridgeburg, Ont., there is a total of 970 loaded cars for Central and Western Ontario points.

Contract For Supply of Ice

The contract for the season's supply of ice for the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital will probably be let to William Brown at a contract price of forty-four dollars. William Brown's tender was the only one submitted to the Board. Last year William Little had the contract at forty-two dollars and fifty cents. Mr. G. H. Duncan, chairman of the Board has been authorized to let the contract.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Bids for textile materials to provide army uniforms for more than 500,000 men were asked to-day by the Schuylkill Arsenal.

The total expenditure is estimated at about $15,000,000.

GAOL WAS EMPTY DURING JANUARY

LINDSAY, Feb. 14.—When Ald. Duck, Chariman of Police, submitted the police report for January, the information was given that not a prisoner occupied the lock-up during the month.

Ald. Chambers suggested that the Council be allowed to sell the lock-up.

Submarine Was Seen With A Supply Vessel

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Two mysterious vessels, one said to have been a submarine, the other having every appearance of being a German raider or submarine supply ship, were sighted in mid-ocean Monday, February 5, by officers and passengers of the American Line steamship Kroonland, which arrived here yesterday from Liverpool. On February 1st, one day out from Liverpool, those on board declared they witnessed the destruction of a Dutch freighter by shell fire from a submarine. The Kroonland then was about eleven miles off the Irish coast and opposite Fastnet light. The crew of the ship sunk took refuge in a life-boat and was towed away by the submarine, it was said.

Sunk by Three Shots.

The Kroonland was within five miles of the Dutch steamer, and her crew and passengers declared they saw the submarine come to the surface, approach the freighter, then sink her by three shots from a deck gun. The Dutch ship went down in about five minutes. Captain Barman of the Kroonland said he was getting ready to go to the rescue of the crew when he saw that the submarine had in tow the one life-boat into which the crew had taken refuge. The submarine, according to Capt. Barman, left the scene at a high speed—"so fast," he added, "that the tariling boat was almost lifted out of the water, and the poor wretches were undoubtedly being thoroughly drenched."

While the Dutch ship was being destroyed nine other ships could be seen closer in shore, but no war vessel was in sight. A British cruiser, however, had been sighted earlier in the day.

It was at 7.55 a.m. on February 5 that officers of the Kroonland sighted several miles off the Kroonland's port bow what they declared was a submarine. All they could see was the conning tower—looking like the funnel of a steamship, partly submerged. The craft approached within a couple of miles, remained in sight for about 15 minutes, then disappeared.

British Cruiser Looms Up.

Two hours later, the officers added, a one-funnel ship painted black or some dark colour appeared. It had two lookouts stationed on the foremast and a derrick rigged forwards he tunnel, with the boom swung out at an angle of about 45 degrees. No signals were given and those set by the Kroonland were unanswered. For some time the mysterious stranger kept a course parallel to the Kroonland, then veered sharply, swung in a circle away from the American liner and disappeared.

The vessel did not answer any description of British or Entente allied ships. Insofar as could be seen she carried no guns, but it was possible, officers asserted, that guns might have been concealed. That night another ship approached the Kroonland, and the officers asserted it probably was a British cruiser.

MR. T. H. G. DENNE IS PRESIDENT

The annual meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association was held yesterday at Messrs. Hall and Hall's office.

Only routine business was transacted.

The following were elected Directors for the ensuing year: Wm. Irwin, H. W. Stock, R. Neill, T. H. G. Denne, E. H. D. Hall, J. D. Collins, Jno. Nugent, S. Henderson, H. Sutherland and Jas. Acton, the last three being from Toronto.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors T. H. G. Denne was elected President, and Wm. Irwin, Vice-President.

As Mr. H. W. Stock's lease of the Juniper Island store has expired, the President and Vice-President were appointed a committee to arrange for the securing of another tenant, as Mr. Stock has decided not to carry on the store any longer.

WOMAN FINED $200 UNDER LICENSE ACT

TOOK BOTTLE OF LIQUOR INTO MOTHER'S BOARDING HOUSE.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 14. — The case under the new temperance act, in which the information was laid by the acting chief of police, and in which the fine goes to the city, was heard by Magistrate Bell here. Mrs. Rose Eyres pleaded guilty to taking a bottle of liquor into a boarding house kept by her mother, and was fined $200, with the option of spending three months in gaol.

John Ellison, arrested two weeks ago for vagrancy, was allowed to go last week when he offered to enlist. He was taken to London under escort, but the military authorities decided that they did not want him, and he was returned to the local police with thanks. He appeared in the court to-day and was given a three months' jail term.

Albert Stover, a North Norwich farmer, was acquitted on a charge of assault preferred against him by a former employee, John Thuhrer. The accused declared that Thuhrer came at him with a pitchfork and that he had struck him in self-defence.

TO DAMAGE OWN SHIPS CUT-AND-DRIED PLAN

LONDON, Feb. 14. —In an address at Wilhelmshaven regarding precautions taken by Germany in view of the possibility of war with the United States, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, a prominent National Liberal member of the Reichstag, made the following statement, according to a Rotterdam despatch to the Evening News.

"Our German blue jackets in the United States will have seen to it that steamers in the American ports shall not be usable by anyone for some time."

Dr. Stresemann also expressed the opinion that the work of the German submarines was encouraging the army for the Spring campaign.

WEIGHED THREE HUNDRED POUNDS

STRATFORD, Feb. 14. — The death occurred in Gad's Hill on Monday of Mr. Thomas O'Donnell, one of the city's oldest residents, after an illness of only two days. The late Mr. O'Donnell had resided in Gad's Hill for practically all his life and was also in the grocery business in this city for over forty years. He drove into the city from Gad's Hill, a distance of 5 miles, on Saturday morning, as had been his habit for so many years, and shortly before noon became ill, and was removed to him home where he died. He weighed over three hundred pounds, and was particularly well known in the city and countryside.

Steal Wood When Supply Ran Out

ARNPRIOR, Feb. 14. — Many people in town are feeling keenly the lack of wood and coal. The limit was reached last week when a certain farmer asked ten dollars for a cord of hard wood.

He could not sell it at that price, and so decided to remain in town over night, leaving his load of wood in a local livery yard.

In the morning he was surprised to find his sleigh empty. Some unknown persons has carried off the wood during the night and a note was left saying, "That was fine wood; bring another load at the same price."

The farmer has placed the matter in the hands of Chief Hunt.

Desert U.S. Regiments To Join Canadians?

NEW YORK, Feb. 14. —An Associated Press despatch from Detroit, Mich., says:

It has been learned that the company commanders of the Thirty-first Regiment, Michigan National Guards, are preparing to bring charges of desertion against members of the company who have enlisted with Canadian Regiments. The Thirty-first Regiment, a Detroit organization, which returned from the border a couple of weeks ago, has been mustered out. It is claimed that some twenty-seven members of the regiment have enlisted in Canada.

PARENTS WANT CHILDREN WHO HAVE BEEN WARDS OF SOCIETY

Home Conditions Have Improved and Children's Aid Society may Permit Return of Children who have Been Applied For—Dr. Amys Resigns

The regular meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held in the Bank of Montreal chambers Tuesday afternoon with the President, Mr. E. A. Peck, in the chair, and the following members present: Joseph Wearing Mayor Duffus, R. H. Parsons, Chief Thompson, Rev. R. B. Grobb, Dr. King, John Edgar, Chief Howard, Adjutant McElheney, C. A. G. Spence, agent, Mesdames Stocker, Howard, McElheney, Hopwood, Montgomery and Gibbs.

The resignation of Dr. Amys as attending physician at the Shelter was received. He had given fourteen years of service without charge to the society and asked to be relieved that some other doctor might share in the work. Chief Howard moved, seconded by Mrs. Stocker, a resolution acknowledging the service Dr. Amys had generously and effectively rendered during the past fourteen years.

Dr. King was appointed as successor to Dr. Amys "at the same salary," and, in accepting the duty, stated that he would give every attention to the children at the Shelter and also follow the precedent of providing free of charge, the medicines required.

Standing Committees.

The secretary, Mr. Joseph Wearing, presented the following report of the special committee to strike the standing committees for the current year:

Legal committee to be composed of Mr. Joseph Wearing (chairman), and Messrs. Gordon, Goodwill and the President, E. A. Peck.

House committee to be composed of the ladies on the Board.

The Purchasing committee to be composed of Chief Howard (chairman) and Mesdames Gibbs, Hopwood, Stocker and Howard.

The Accounts committee to deal with all accounts submitted to the Society to be composed of Rev. F. J. Phelan, (chairman), Adjutant McElheney and Chief Howard.

The Finance committee for the purpose of providing funds to carry on the work of the Society to be composed of the members of the Board, with Adjutant McElheney (chairman) and Messrs. C. H. Pennefather and G. Walter Green, Vice-Chairman.

Visiting committee to consist of two members of the Board for each month and to be nominated from time to time by the Secretary.

The report was adopted on motion of Chief Thompson seconded by Mr. Edgar.

Mr. Spence's Report.

Mr. Spence reported his activities for January as follows:

Applications for children 14, 2 children brought to the Shelter temporarily and returned to their parents, one child made a ward, 8 complaints received and investigated, mileage covered during month 400, interviews at office 44, wards placed in homes 2, police court attendance 5 times. Mr. Spence also reported meetings he had held at Norwood and Havelock, where he gave illustrated lectures on the work of the society as part of the publicity campaign recently inaugurated. This work had been interrupted by the withdrawal of the lantern which had been loaned to the Society. Adjt. McElheney came to the rescue of the society, offering the use of the lantern he had recently bought.

Want Children Back.

Mr. Spence stated that two parents had applied for the restoration of children now under the society's care. One case was that of a Havelock woman, grandmother of a boy who had been taken two years ago and placed in a good home. The records did not show that the boy had been made a ward and an effort was being made to secure his return. Both cases were referred to the Legal committee with power to act, on motion of Chief Thompson, seconded by Mrs. Hopwood.

Superintendent Question.

The announcement in the press that Miss Coulson was resigning the superintendency of the Shelter on account of ill health explained the receipt of applications for the position from Mrs. Wm. Henry, Mrs. M. E. Read, Mr. S. F. Touchbourne, and Mrs. Robert Carney.

A second application requested the return to his parents of a boy who has been a ward of the society for six years. He has become attached to his foster parents and they to him. When he was taken by the society the home conditions were such as made the separation imperative. In the meantime the parents have improved their affairs and they want the boy who is now ten years old, returned to them. Mr. Wearing pointed out that if the boy is taken from his foster parents they will likely demand the society to pay for his maintenance during those six years.

ADDED TO EXECUTIVE

Rev. R. G. Peever was received as a member of the Executive on motion of Chief Howard seconded by Adjt. McElhiney. Mr. Peever has had considerable experience in this charitable work in Ottawa and will be with the Society until he leaves the city next June.

Dr. Amy's name was also added to the Executive.

PURCHASING COMMITTEE

Chief Howard presented the report of the Purchasing Committee showing that $122.15 had been expended during the month. The total also included certain sums from the previous month.

Rev. R. B. Grobb stated that he would bring to the attention of the Ministerial Association the matter of having a minister appointed monthly to visit the Shelter. If this was not done in the past it was because it had not been brought to the attention of the Association.

MANY TEACHERS REFUSE TO AID PENSION FUND

DESCRIBED AS "YOUNG GIRLS" WHO DON'T EXPECT TO SPEND LIVES IN SCHOOL.

TORONTO, Feb. 14. — Premier Hearst received a large deputation of teachers and inspectors of the province with regard to the proposed superannuation bill, the main provisions of which are the establishment of a fund supported by 2 1-2 per cent. of the teachers' salaries and a similar amount from the government. The pension may be claimed after 30 years service and is compulsory after 40. A vote taken by thirteen thousand teachers showed a majority in favor of a thousand, five thousand not casting their ballots.

Premier Hearst pointed out the inconclusive character of the vote, but members of the delegation explained that there were many young girls who did not intend to make teaching a life long profession, and who objected to any of their salary being taken.

The premier promised to have the returned analyzed to determine where the support and the opposition came from.

COLD WEATHER A RETARDING FACTOR IN COAL SHIPMENT

TORONTO, Feb. 14. — "It all depends now upon the weather conditions," said Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Dominion Railway Board, as he went through Toronto late last night on his return from Buffalo, where he had been in conference with United States authorities and railroad officials regarding ways and means to relieve the distress which is being imposed upon the city because of the freight congestion in Buffalo and at the barrier. Sir Henry, continuing, said: "A policy of absolute co-operation has been agreed upon, and will be followed by all concerned in the labour of reducing the congestion." Asked as to definite measures of relief to be adopted, Sir Henry declared that the largest factor in the problem at present was the temperature and that with reasonable weather conditions the plans to be adopted will insure a daily receipt of at least 250 cars of coal a day in the Toronto terminals, "and perhaps a great deal more," he added with assuring emphasis.

General Clamour For Coal.

"Remember that every city in the American Union is clamouring for coal;" added Sir Henry and expressed a belief that the local situation, though serious, had many parallels south of the international boundary. He spoke of a meeting of Buffalo merchants who were heard yesterday by the Public Service Commission of that city in protest against the alleged falling down of the American railroads in the matter of moving coal and freight shipments.

THE GERMAN NATION IS SIMPLY PEACE CRAZY

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—In a cablegram from Berne, Switzerland, to the New York World, a member of Ambassador Gerard's party is quoted as saying, with regard to internal conditions in Germany:

"The whole German people are peace crazy. They want peace now and almost at any price. The rejection of their offer by the entente nearly broke their spirit, but the hopes placed on the new submarine war-fare have revived public optimism.

"Every one, from the Emperor down to the hungry housewife, believes the submarine will break England and cause the entente to collapse. The people are certainly hungry in the larger cities.

"The rupture with the United States occasioned no surprise in Germany, because it was regarded as inevitable. I heard that the Emperor regards the rupture as having been occasioned by a tragic misunderstanding of Germany's standpoint. He has taken it greatly to heart."

Take a Holiday On Ontario Farm

Plans for what is known as the "farm holiday campaign" are being made by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. This is an appeal to the people in the towns and cities to spend any of their spare time on the farms to help in production. The labor question is said to be a serious one for the farmers, and unless they have the cooperation of everybody they will have difficulty in putting in their seeds and reaping their harvests.

HOLIDAY ON FARM.

A special call is being made to the people to take their holidays on the farms and not at the summer resorts.

It has been suggested that towns should organise production and thrift clubs. The department is in a position to place people on farms wherever they desire to go. Application can be made to the district representative officers or to the central department.

HEAR THAT GERMANY FOUND WEAK SPOT IN DUTCH PLAN

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 14, via London.—Five German army corps concentrated on the Holland frontier furnish a fairly convincing explanation, in default of other reasons, for the failure of the Dutch Government to adopt the policy toward Germany recommended by President Wilson on account of the German submarine campaign.

Berlin's Explanation.

That German troops were assembling in fairly large numbers in the vicinity of the Holland border had been the subject of gossip in Berlin military circles for several weeks before Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg's announcement of the new submarine campaign. Their presence there at a time when Germany was talking of peace instead of a policy that would weigh most heavily upon neutral interests was then usually explained as a precautionary measure or even merely characterized as part of a plan for the distribution of strategic reserves for the spring campaign.

Whatever the cause of the concentration a large force of German troops was on the Holland border when Germany's inauguration of submarine war and President Wilson's appeal to neutral nations to join with America in protecting neutral interests against Germany brought to the foreground the question of Holland's possible action in reply to the German campaign.

Their bayonets emphasized the economic and political reasons why Holland is unwilling to follow counsel which it was feared might have drawn the little kingdom into the great European war.

Dutch Defence Bad.

Rumours were heard, too, in neutral quarters in Berlin before the departure of the Associated Press correspondent that a flaw had been discovered in Holland's strategic scheme of defence against Germany which, as is known, involves flooding parts of the country in front of the selected first line of defence. According to these reports it had been discovered that attempts to flood these districts would lay under water a far greater area than had been contemplated and would throw the general scheme of Holland's defence into confusion.

A GRIPPING DRAMA AT THE ROYAL

A Great Newspaper Play, "The Fourth Estate" By the William Fox Film Corporation and Other Features

Among the attractions to be seen in this city, it is safe to say none will prove more delightful to theatre goers to-night than the gripping drama, "The Fourth Estate," filmed in the fashion usual to William Fox features. This is claimed to be one of the greatest newspaper plays ever produced, and has attracted crowded houses in Toronto and other theatres, where the price of admission was 50c. and 75c. At the Royal to-night you can see it for only 10c. Besides, there will be presented another stirring drama, entitled, "Beatrice Fairfax," what many have declared to be better than "The Yellow Menace." Two laughable comedies will also be shown, making an unusually full and attractive bill of fare for the small sum of ten cents. Go to-night and to-morrow.

COAL SCARCITY IS WIDESPREAD

Ontario Cities are In Severe Straits — Schools May Close Unless Supplies Arrive

GUELPH, Feb. 13.—The coal situation in Guelph is extremely serious and unless there is relief of some kind very soon considerable suffering is sure to follow. The local coal dealers have been fairly besieged all day long by citizens and farmers who are completely out of coal, but their wants have had to be denied. What little coal there is has had to be doled out in small lots of from 200 to 500 pounds, and in this way many are satisfied until more cars arrive.

The soft coal situation is equally bad, although several cars for local institutions arrived here yesterday, and are being delivered to-day. The schools are well supplied but several factories will have to close down indefinitely if they cannot get the coal they have ordered. Some of them are already burning wood in order to keep going. The dealers cannot get any satisfaction from the railroad people, the latter simply promising to do all they can to get the coal here. One local dealer had three cars confiscated, nd another one by the railroads on Saturday. All of this coal was promised to local business people for delivery to-day. Another dealer has had six cars of hard coal at Black Rock for four weeks. There is only enough coal here for a couple of days.

Will Call Convention.

Kitchener, Feb. 12.—Messrs. G. M. Debus and D. B. Detweiler, who were appointed by the local Board of Trade to investigate and report on the best solution of the coal situation, are taking steps to call a convention of delegates of representatives from towns and cities in Western Ontario to consider the question It is contended that with united action during the next few months can be avoided.

Owing to the non-arrival of a sufficient supply of hard coal Sunday School was closed to-day. His Honour Judge W. M. Reade to-day advocated the closing of schools and churches until the coal situation is improved. The homes and industries should receive the first consideration he declared.

Reserve Supply Exhausted.

Brantford, Feb. 13.—The coal situation in Brantford still grows more serious, despite the fact that eight cars arrived in the city over the week-end. All reserve supplies are nearly exhausted and to-day one of the schools had to close down, while coal received yesterday will relieve the situation only temporarily. Dealers are greeted daily by women with tears in their eyes begging for coal.

No Hoarding Up.

London, Ont., Feb. 12.—The coal shortage here has reached an acute stage but dealers declare that if the people prudently use whatever supply is allotted to them and refrain from any attempt to hoard up a reserve stock, none need go cold. Meanwhile, however, manufacturers are having trouble securing shipments, while two greenhouses, those of E. W. Whiting and James H. Taylor, are being operated on wood. The former reports a loss of $2,000 from frost, and there is said to be imminent danger of the destruction of the entire stock. Mr. Taylor has sent a gang of men into a wood in London Township to hew down green stock in an endeavour to ward off

Two Peterborough Officers Mentioned In Despatches

Lieut. C. S. Rogers and Lieut.-Col. T. W. H. Young Mentioned For Distinguished Services

A late issue of the Canada Gazette prints an extract from the London (Eng.) Gazette of January 2nd, last, stating that a despatch had been received from General Sir Douglas Haig, (G.C.B., Commander-in-Chief of the British armies in France, by the Secretary of War, London. The Commander-in-Chief states:—

"I have the honour to submit a list of names of those officers, ladies, noncommissioned officers and men, serving, or who have served, under my command, whose distinguished and gallant services and devotion to duty I consider deserving of special mention."

Following is a list, filling quite seven columns of the Gazette. Among those mentioned are two from Peterborough, Lieut. Claude H. Rogers and Lieut.-Col. T. W. H. Young. Long before the institution of that reward for valour in the field, the Victoria Cross, the highest honour and a coveted one, that could be bestowed on the British officer or private was to be mentioned in the despatches. That the many enrolled in the list well deserved the distinction cannot be doubted, and a remarkable thing is that of those specially mentioned are none of the nursing sisters who have done things the most heroic and inspiring on and adjacent to the battlefields of the Somme.

Splendid Record For North American Life

The most successful year the North American Life Assurance Company of Toronto ever had was made in 1916, showing conclusively that life insurance is simply in infancy.

The business written by this most progressive Company amounted to over ten millions of dollars, and as they are not a Company that does much branching, confining their business to Canada and three of the States, namely Illinois, Michigan and Washington, this splendid record shows the field has been well covered. The Company started business in 1891, and has just closed their 26th year. The business in force at the close of the year was $59,600,000. The assets of the company were $16,412,713.47; liabilities fully provided for, $13,786,607.83; net surplus over all liability $2,637,500. Of the total income for 1916, 21 per cent. was sufficient to defray all expenses, charges and contributions to patriotic purposes, the remaining 79 per cent. was paid to policy-holders and beneficiaries, or held to their credit.

Any further information as to plan, etc., will be cheerfully given by their representative, G. A. Benor, 157 Charlotte street. jd

This Simple Rule Soon Strengthens A Delicate Stomach

It really is unnecessary to dose yourself with pepsin pills or artificial digestives or to live on a miserable nursery diet. If you will observe one easy rule you can eat the hearty, nourishing foods that your appetite craves and your body needs. That rule is to take a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia in a half glass of hot water with each meal. Bisurated Magnesia is non-laxative and harmless and possesses medicinal qualities that promptly overcome impaired digestion fermentation, acidity, catarrhal conditions of the stomach, gas, distress after eating and other stomach disorders. As magnesia is prepared in various ways be certain to insist on obtaining it in the Bisurated form, especially recommended for stomach purposes. Sold by all druggists.

Five Peterboro' Soldiers Are Back in Canada

Special to The Examiner.

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 14.— The returned soldiers here to-day include the following from Peterborough: G. Adamson, W. J. Belcher, M. Morrow, E. Robinson and J. Wallace.

Uncle of Local Man Dead

Mr. W. J. Keating, whose death is announced below, was an uncle of Mr. E. W. Keating of this city, and was well known in Peterborough some years ago. An exchange says:

W. J. Keating, who died at his home in Nant-y-Glo on January 21, from a complication of diseases, was 52 years, eight months and 24 days old. He was born in Campbellford, Ontario, Canada, and came to Johnstown just before the Great Flood. Mr. Keating was united in marriage to Annie M. Kelly of Jackson Township, on January 7, 1890, in the Holy Name Catholic Church in Ebensburg, by the Rev. Father Thomas Smith. He is survived by his widow, three sons and a daughter—Charles, married, of Nant-y-Glo, and William, Francis and Beta, at home, and two grandchildren Margaret and Kathleen Keating. Mr. Keating located in Nant-y-Glo 21 years ago. He was well-known throughout the country politically, and was a member of the A. O. H., I. O. H., and L. O. O. M., of which he was Dictator at the time of his death. He was Justice of the Peace for many years. The great esteem in which he was held was shown by the many floral offerings and letters of sympathy which came from Nant-y-Glo, Vintondale, Johnstown, Pittsburg, Altoona, Harrisburg, and other places and by the constant care of Dr. A. H. McAnulty during his sickness.

Mr. Keating was a lifelong member of the Roman Catholic Church. His body was taken to St. Mary's Catholic Church, Nant-y-Glo, where a high mass was held by the Rev. Father O'Connor, and then conveyed over the Southern Cambria Railway to Ebensburg, where interment was made in the Holy Name Cemetery, George J. Ondriezak had charge of the funeral.

PLACED IN CHARGE

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—It is stated here that Colonel Mewborn of Hamilton, now Assistant Adjutant General of No. 2 Military District, has been placed in charge of the proposed militia mobilization in Ontario. The impression among Militia officers here is that the proposed application of the Militia Act will merely require Canada's fifty or more city infantry militia regiments to recruit to war strength (one thousand men) and carry on spring training two or three evenings a week, with possibly Saturday or Sunday afternoons, and two or three weeks' camp in summer.

There are plenty of rifles available now to arm these men.

WEDDING BELLS

PAYNE—BLOOM

The wedding took place at St. John's rectory, on Monday, February 12th of Terence Payne to Irene Marie Bloom of Peterborough. The happy couple will reside here. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Cornish.

SPRING—GREEN.

A small company of intimate friends witnessed the nuptials of Mr. Wm. O. Spring of Peterborough and Miss Elsie Green, one of Tweed's popular young ladies at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Newton on Friday, Feb. 2nd, 1917. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Coon of the Methodist church at 11 o'clock, and after the sumptuous dinner spread by the hostess, the happy couple took the 1.55 train for Toronto on their honeymoon trip, and on their return will reside at 132 Maude street, Peterborough on and after Feb. 14th to welcome their many friends. Mrs. Spring has made for herself a host of friends in and about Tweed, who most ardently wish for her a happy future, and it is very certain that to those friends there will always be a welcome.—Tweed News.

HICKEY—O'BRIEN.

The marriage of Catherine, daughter of Mrs. William O'Brien of Doure to Mr. Henry T. Hickey was solemnized by the Rev. Dean McColl at the Church of the Immaculate Conception this morning at 6.30 o'clock. The bride was attended by Miss Mabel Power, and Mr. F. J. Hickey was best man. After the mass, during which Miss Aileen Sullivan played the wedding march and voluntary, breakfast was served at the home of the bride's cousin, Maria street, Hooper catering. Mr. and Mrs. Hickey left for New York and other points and on their return will reside at the Avonmore Apartments, Fleming Place.

Thousands of Cars Tied Up in the West

CHICAGO, Feb. 14. — Refusal of eastern railroads to accept shipments, owing to the time-up of shipping as the result of Germany's submarine order, is causing an almost unprecedented congestion of loaded freight cars in western terminals, according to officials of various western trunk lines.

Steps were being taken here to-day to relieve the situation by adopting the measures taken by eastern roads. From the operating departments of several of the western roads orders went out to refuse shipments billed to destinations east of Chicago or the Alantic seaboard, unless guarantees of storage facilities were presented.

Kansas City and St. Louis report traffic conditions there are "terrific." Only one road out of St. Louis is giving through bills to the seaboard. Shippers are protesting, but thus far have secured no relief.

In Kansas City shippers describe the situation as the worst in the history of the city. The Santa Fe Railway alone is said to have 1,000 cars tied up in its yards waiting to be delivered to Eastern points. The freight tied up consists mostly of grain, hay, alfalfa, meal and lumber. The Santa Fe probably is the worst hit because of its being the largest line tapping the middle and far-western markets. Other roads entering Kansas City also report great difficulty in getting cars to seaboard destinations.

It is explained that the steamer tie-up is holding goods to the limit of Eastern storage and as a result Eastern roads are unable to unload cars.

That there are more than 10,000 cars tied up in Chicago yards alone was the statement of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy officials.

CARLISLE INDIAN AT FRONT.

CARLISLE, Penn., Feb. 14.—An unusual surprise was in store for a teacher at the Carlisle Indian school when she received a New Year post card stamped "1033198 P. P. C. L. I. Army P. O., London, England." One side bore the words, "God defend the right," with the British Union Jack in the middle.

The other side revealed that the sender was Lieutenant Long-Lance, a Carlisle graduate of 1912. Long-Lance, a full-blooded Indian, was noted at the school for his clean living, his clean habits, and clean speech, and above all else for his politeness. He is a Lieutenant in Princess Pat's Regiment, "Somewhere in Europe."

Lieutenant Long-Lance sent his New Year's greeting in these words:

King remembrances and best wishes for the New Year.

I've just come out of the trenches,
Where we made the Germans dance,
And I'm sending this greeting to let you know
That he is still alive. Yours truly,
Lieutenant Long-Lance.

Alive and fit as can be,
Thought fighting's not all sport.
And manners "Made in Germany"
Aren't quite what you and I were taught.
Sincerely, Lieut. S. C. Longe-Lance,
Princess "Pat's" Regiment, Somewhere in Europe.

It was known that Long-Lance had army ambitions, for after attending Conway Hall, Carlisle, on graduation from the Carlisle Indian School, he entered St. John's Military Academy at Manlius, N.Y. Although appointed to West Point by President Wilson, he did not accept. He is rated at the Carlisle School "as a young man of high ideals and aim in life," and was a former Captain of the cadet battalion.

NO COAL FOR SALE IN GALT

GALT, Feb. 13. — Not a ton of coal for sale in Galt to-night, and with many empty bins the situation is serious. The cold weather is causing considerable suffering and although Mayor Edwards and the dealers made strenuous efforts to get coal to the city, none arrived to-day.

Wood is being burned in some of homes, and in others gas is being installed in the furnaces. Ten cars bought by the city at the mines are on the way, and the Mayor to-day purchased ten more cars at the mines.

The fact that there would have been a serious famine here but for the city going into the business, has started an agitation for the establishment of a municipal coal yard.

A philosopher gains renown by enduring other people's troubles with resignation.

Innocence is like an umbrella. When once it is lost it is useless to advertise for it.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

100 PER CENT BETTER

Hundreds of Dr. Fowlers' patrons tell him, in the popular phrase used by so many as a comparison, that with the "Peblo" lenses he fitted them with, they can see "twice as well" as before. That means that there is a hundred per cent improvement in their vision since they commenced to wear Fowler's glasses.

MORE WORK IN SIGHT FOR LOCAL BOARD OF HEALTH

Resolution Adopted, Consolidating Under One Board Matters Affecting the Health of the City---Will Include the Sanitary Inspector---Meeting Last Night.

That all matters pertaining to public health, including the sanitary inspector, be placed under the direct supervision of the Board of Health, was the keynote of a resolution fathered by Mayor Duffus at a meeting of the Board held last evening. "Such a move would mean more efficiency and more economy," pointed out the Mayor. The suggestion was endorsed by Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, and other members of the Board. It will not be possible to make the change this year, but a resolution to that effect was adopted in order to facilitate a change next year. The consolidation would affect the garbage collection system, the sanitary inspector the licensing of restaurants, laundries, and other places of business, the milk and ice supply and any other matter affecting the health of the community. At present this work is carried on under the combined supervision of the Property Committee of the City Council and the Board of Health.

Mayor Duffus said it was not right, fair or efficient to continue the work under such a system. Peterborough is rapidly assuming substantial proportions, and it was time that some of the work was consolidated and responsibility vested in one Board.

On motion of Mayor Duffus and Mr. James Murty, it was moved and adopted that the Board consider the advisability of vesting in the Board of Health the sole control of all matters concerning sanitation, such as the duties affecting the sanitary inspector's office, food supplies, etc.

The Milk Standard.

Dr. Amys brought up the question of raising the present milk standard from three per cent. to three and two-fifths per cent.; table cream to be twenty per cent., and whipping cream thirty-two per cent. The Board will seek information from the Provincial Department regarding the legal standard.

The matter of having monthly reports of the city's water supply will be taken up with the Utilities Commission. The Board will seek the co-operation of the Commission in this matter.

Miss Hattie Reid, acting matron of the Queen Mary Hospital, will be instructed to collect all accounts from the patients before they leave the hospital. The Board will take action to collect a large number of accounts that are now outstanding.

Accounts Passed.

The following accounts were passed:

Peterborough Hardware Co., 35c; Bell Telephone Co., 70c; G. A. Pringle, $3.93; J. M Fanning, $23.25; Dicksons, $12.20; Thomas Hooper, $5.00; Wm. Madill, $4.74; G. J. Jopling and Sons, $15.70; Wm. Brown, $3.93; Grant and Thorpe, $1.50; Utilities Commission, $15.00; Review Printing Company, $3.12.

AUSTRALIA'S LOAN IS $90,000,000 ALREADY

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Australia's war fervor is shown in the response to the fourth internal war loan floated in the Commonwealth, the preliminary result of which has just been cabled to London. Subscriptions already exceed $90,000,000. The applications number 44,397, of which New South Wales contributes 17,548 and Victoria 15,208. Country applications are still in transit, and greatly increased subscriptions are expected from the wool and wheat moneys which producers will obtain shortly.

The Commonwealth's money answer to Germany now takes the form of total internal subscriptions of $377,000,000. Moreover, Australian banking and other institutions in London subscribed over $36,500,000 to the British war loan.

BRITISH ADVANCE ON THE WESTERN FRONT

German Attacks Were Repulsed

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 15. — Germans made a big effort to drive the Italians back in the Balkans, but failed with heavy losses.

GOOD DIGESTION

To be able to eat what you want and to digest it properly is a priceless blessing. Good digestion is not appreciated until you lose it. Then you cannot afford to experiment, for strong medicines are hard on weak stomachs. If you have indigestion do not be persuaded into believing you can cure yourself by the use of pre-digested foods or so-called stomach tonics. There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every part of the body. It is through the blood that the stomach gets its power to assimilate and digest food and as the blood goes to every part of the body any improvement in its condition not only results in strengthening the stomach, but every organ in the body. Rich, red blood is absolutely necessary to good digestion. If your stomach is weak, and you are troubled with sour risings in the throat, a feeling of pressure about the heart, or nausea after eating, try the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So many dyspepics have been cured by this medicine that every sufferer from stomach trouble should try it. You will soon know the joy of good digestion and enjoy better health in other ways if you give this medicine a fair trial.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through an dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ALSACE IS HAPPY IN FRENCH HANDS

Correspondent Travels From Vosges Peaks Down to the Swiss Frontier--Civil Rule Established---German Law Still Used in the Courts, as People Understand No Other.

END OF BATTLE LINE

PARIS, February 15.—My visit to Alsace was the most important trip to the French front that had been granted to an American correspondent in many months, for it was important equally from a political as well as a military standpoint. I followed the battle lines through reconquered Alsace straight down to the Swiss frontier.

The subject of the "last provinces" is the one nearest to every French heart, but it is not up for wide discussion while she has only a portion of one of them again in her possession. America can be given a better understanding of the present conditions of the country, the name of which is bound to be on every tongue from the instant real peace negotiations are started. As a result of this trip I am persuaded that Alsace should belong to France, and that its return to German rule would be detrimental to the province in every way.

My trip was through country that prior to August, 1914, belonged to the German Empire by the Treaty of Frankfort. France signed that treaty with a knee on her chest and a knife at her throat, for concerning Alsace it read:

"The German Empire will hold possession of this territory forever."

It would have better read:

"Germany will hold possession of this territory so long as she is strong enough to keep it and France weak enough to consent thereto."

For to-day the tricolour again waves over all that portion of Alsace known as the Higher Rhine. I was permitted to talk with all classes of natives, from village Mayors to business men to servants and peasant classes. I stopped in hotels and came and went as I pleased. In one town I was billeted by the army in an Alsatian home. I began to understand the problem confronting the some millions of Alsatians in contrast to that which the warring Empire and Republic have taken so seriously to heart. For France says she will have Alsace back with the accent on the will. Germany makes the same remark. As a neutral observer I feel sorry for the poor Alsatian until his problem is settled for him. There seems no chance that he will ever be permitted to settle it for himself. And if he did have the chance, I am sure that with the two stronger neighbours he would not be able to get very far with it. After all, Alsace never was a Poland; it always belonged to somebody. From ancient times it was a possession of the Holy Roman Empire, and was ceded to France in 1648 by the Treaty of Westphalia. Therefore, so far as I could judge, the simple-minded Alsatians have no ambition toward autonomy.

GERMANIZING THE PROVINCE.

Much has been written concerning the harsh methods always employed in Alsace during the German occupations. That is all true. They resulted from tens of thousands of pure-blooded Teutons being sent into Alsace after 1870 to take the places of an equal number representing French families who left the country rather than live there under German rule. These emigres systematically tried to make Alsace German. German became the language of the schools, the streets became strasses instead of rues, signs over the buildings were printed in German, newspapers were German and the water taps in the bath tubs read kalt and warm instead of froide and chaude.

All the Alsatians I talked with were pro-French, even though some of them spoke French with a German accent as thick as butter. I believed their stories to the last word. I believe them now. I know to the older ones the sight of French chasseurs marching through their streets is the realization of a dream that was almost beyond hope. I also believe that if a vote were taken—that is, an honest uncoerced vote—of all Alsatians there would be a majority in favour of remaining French until some fair decision is reached concerning what is to be done with Alsace. The prevailing feeling among the population of the reconquered territory is fear. But—and here is where I desire to bring out my argument in favour of the French remaining in control—that fear is entirely a fear that Germans will come back. Until the title of ownership is settled all Alsatians, tame and wild, have rather a feeling, with artillery booming over their heads, that they are between the deep sea and the devil, the latter being Germany.

The French soldier in Alsace to-day is just and decent. Without going into the story of the German occupation, the history of this war alone suffices to prove that the French are a humane people, while Germany has too many blots upon her escutcheon for the Alsatians to expect other than the worst if the Teuton flag is ever hoisted across her border again.

The Alsatians are an industrious people, at the same time artistic and very musical. Their church are famous for their glorious organs. While in the lower Rhine country farming is the chief industry, in the upper Rhine or reconquered territory, which is all very mountainous, every little village has its factory, giving employment to a majority of its inhabitants. In all the towns and villages I visited, including Thann, old Thann, Wesserling, St. Amarin and Masmunster, work was going on as usual, despite the fact that the battle lines are so near. Some of these places have more sons serving in the German than the French armies, but I am certain that the voice of the town would nevertheless say:

"Give us France for all time in preference to Germany."

HOW THE FRENCH GOVERN.

France has set up a territorial government throughout the province, under which administration life is really more bearable in many ways than even in Paris. I dined several times on the trip at an officers' mess and there I naturally expected to find good fare, but I was indeed surprised at the menus in the ordinary hotels. At one place dinner included lobster and asparagus. Another ordinary dinner menu began with potage burnois and ran through all the courses to cafe. Indeed, I could not help but reflect on the menus probably forming a strong contrast in that portion of Alsace not yet reconquered and only a few miles away. The territorial Government, indeed, is so efficient that there is absolutely no shortage in commodities and all are sold at absolutely minimum prices. The Government also still administers German law in the courts, inasmuch as that is the only legal procedure the population understands.

To make a comparison with Poland again, there is probably nobody so active in keeping alive the problem of restoring the kingdom of Poland as the Poles who immigrate to America and who wouldn't return to their own country for love or money. Likewise, has it been chiefly French refugees from Alsace in 1870 and their descendants who have taught all Frenchmen to dream of "the revenge." The French are, above all, a peace-loving people, but they are proud people, whose pride ever since the terrible year has been stung to the quick at the mere mention of Alsace-Lorraine. The French refugees from Alsace are different from the Poles. They will go back. France will fold Alsace to its bosom and will make it more enthusiastically French again in the next five years that Germany succeeded in making it German in nearly half a century.

Concerning the military situation in Alsace at present, much could be said, but the censorship permits only certain phases to be mentioned. That portion of the Alsace battleline running through the Vosges Mountains is practically a stationary "holding line." The whole country is too impossible for fighting purposes to ever launch an offensive on any extensive scale. Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, where was some of the bloodiest fighting of two years ago, is an observatory commanding the Rhine Valley, but the neighbouring peaks in French hands would serve just as well, so even it was battled for so fiercely for moral and sentimental rather than practical reasons. The French got it first and lost it several times. But they finally regained its topmost crest and have held it despite German stories to the

Organize Mob To Drive Out Murder Band

West Virginians Warn Suspects After Reign of Terrorism

CLAY, W. Va. — Following organization of the "Clay County Mob," members of which wear costumes similar to those of the Ku Klux Klan, five murders have come to light. A section known as "Booger Hole" was the scene of the murders.

Fearing they might meet the same fate, residents of that section did not comment on the crimes, and as a result they did not come to the attention of the authorities until a few days ago.

Drew Sampson, aged 57, and his son, Howard, aged 21, are being held in connection with the crime wave, and a special grand jury is now investigating.

One of the victims of the murderers was Mrs. Lacy Ann Boggs, who was killed, it is said, because she made a remark that she knew where Henry Hargis was buried. Hargis was on of the victims whose death has long been shrouded in mystery.

Peddler Disappears.

One of the most mysterious cases was that of John Newman, a peddler, who disappeared while on his way from one farm house to another. He has never been heard from, and it is generally assumed that he was murdered.

The only trace of Joseph Clark, another victim, was a trail of blood that led from the schoolhouse, where he was sleeping, to a nearby creek. Search for his body proved fruitless.

The latest victim was Preston Tanner, whose charred body was found in the ruins of his home, which was destroyed by an incendiary fire.

It is said that over a dozen murders have been committed in the Booger Hole section in the last twelve months. The motive of the murders is unknown. Some believe there were two motives—robbery, and a desire to terrorize the country.

Mob Warns Suspects.

Determined to check the crime wave, the "Clay County Mob" has posted threatening notices in various parts of the Booger Hole section, reading as follows:

"We, the citizens of Clay county, seeing that we cannot get justice by law, have organized the "Clay County mob." We have pledged our lives to drive you from our county or kill you. If we cannot catch and hang you, we shal sneak upon and kill you as you have killed Henry Hargis, Lacy Ann Boggs, the old pedller, and Preston Tanner.

"If, before you leave, there is any stealing, killing, or burning, we will get bloodhounds and detectives and run you to the ends of the earth. Bill Sampson, Koooh Sampson, Fred Moore, and Aaron Runyon are hereby notified to leave the state in ten days. Rose Lyons, Bill Moore and Elizabeth Sampson are notified to leave in thirty days.

"CLAY COUNTY MOB."

Highways in the Booger Hole community are patrolled nightly by members of the "mob" on horseback. All persons are required to give an account of themselves before being allowed to proceed.

HOPE OF AVOIDING CLASH WITH GERMANY IS FAST DISAPPEARING

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—To-day all hope is fast waning in official circles that the clash looming between the United States and Germany will be avoided. The Germans' persistance in ruthless submarine destruction of neutrals, as well as belligerent merchantmen is helping to kill the hope for a continuance of peace.

Germany's position, apparently, is to cast all caution to the winds. At least her statesmen are quoted as saying she will not have regard for American or any one else. In addition to this is the fact that the United States' business is fast piling up, tied up by Germany's blockade. The President intends to proceed deliberately and not be stampeded on a single incident his friends say an accumulation of German misdeeds, is rapidly forcing Wilson to ask Congress for the protection of Americans on the seas.

Meanwhile, behind a curtain of secrecy, preparations by the Government are proceeding rapidly. The Council of National Defense is conferring with Secretaries Daniels, Baker, Houston and Lane, and are holding daily sessions from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The remarkable intelligence system has been perfected and has been operated for several days. Most of the work is being done secretly, but it is declared that, should war actually come, the rapidity with which the nation would be able to bring its resources into action, is highly satisfactory to the Government he adds.

OUR SERIAL STORY

The Red Paper

By C. HOTCHKISS

To the visitor it was quite evident that the Merridales (if there were more than one) had uncultured tastes—had but recently moved into the place, and considering the surroundings, were not cursed with an overplusage of this world's wealth.

Beyond the parlour Wentworth had caught sight of an alcove room in which was a disordered bed, several corded trunks, and an uncurtained window opening on a broad shaft. Later he had reason to remember these details.

"You will pardon the bareness and general unpreparedness of these apartments," began his host as he noticed Wentworth's comprehensive glance.

The voice was smooth and well bred the man's accent smacking strongly of the south. "It belongs to a friend," he continued; "I have been here but a day or two and hardly looked for you so soon. I am charmed to make your distinguished acquaintance, sir." The last word was pronounced suh.

"No apology is necessary," returned the other, as he looked at the stocky figure before him, marking the sun-browned complexion, the sun-bleached hair, and large, slightly yellowed teeth. Merridale appeared to be between forty-five and fifty years old; nicotine had stained his small, gray mustache until its color made an excellent match for his teeth and skin, and there was something indefinable about him that checked Wentworth's previous readiness to meet him with enthusiasm.

He did not like the narrowness and furtive glance of his host's light-blue eyes, nor was he prepossessed by his fulsome manner, and too ready laugh when there had been nothing to laugh at. For himself, he never smiled without cause, and then the smile usually became a passport to good will. He waited for Merridale to lead. If this interview should be of a kind that appeared to concern his late father's business interests he would promptly refer the man to his lawyer; something about the place, or about the man who was now puffing violently on a half consumed cigar, or both, made him anxious to finish his call, and get from the house as soon as possible.

And yet he could determine no reason for this feeling, save, perhaps, that Merridale was not of his class. He wondered how his father, whom he knew to have been the soul of prejudice, could have become intimate with a man so utterly lacking in savoir faire.

His host walked to the door leading into the private hall and closed it with considerable violence, even in this slight way showing his lack of gentle breeding. Evidently his smooth voice somewhat belied his character.

"You smoke?" he asked, offering a mate to the heavy cigar between his full lips.

"Thank you—not now," said Wentworth, seating himself on the hard sofa.

"No! Really, I could not live without it!" was Merridale's return, as he drew a chair before his guest, drew it so close that the knees of the two almost touched. "Bad habit, though! Bad for young men, but—let's get right to the point! That's my idea of business, even among friends. Eh? Ain't I right?"

Wentworth made no answer.

"I think, you being a sensible man, I won't have to detain you long," went on Merridale, without appearing to notice his visitor's lack of cordiality, and himself assuming an air of friendly confidence. "We'll jump right into the middle of it with both feet, as we say in Texas. You see, sir," touching Wentworth on the knee with a rather pudgy hand, "I sent for you in the interest of my niece."

Wentworth looked at him with sudden interest. "Grace Merridale?" he asked.

"Exactly! Grace Merridale." This with a pursing of the lips which had ceased to smile and a profound inclination of the head. "The—er—trust of your father has passed, of course! May I ask who holds the papers?"

"My lawyer."

"Doubtless! All of them?"

"All of a legal nature."

"Precisely! Really the amount is small—to small to be seriously considered by Grace, who is well-to-do in the right of her mother. My poor brother was not fortunate."

"I know nothing of the amount, nor of the business in any way," returned Wentworth. He hesitated a moment, and as the other appeared to be agitating he added: "By the way, sir; you say you are David Merridale's brother. I was not aware that David had a brother; certainly my father never mentioned him to me."

The smoking man took a quick glance at the speaker, then he leaned forward and again touched him on the knee. His voice was somewhat lowered as he said:

"Naturally. But David was my half-brother only. His mother, a widow, married her first husband's cousin of the same name. I am the perhaps regrettable result of their union. Then ther was a fairly difference—a difficulty. Your father understood it. Ah, sir, your father was one man in ten thousand!"

He leaned back as he uttered the last words.

Wentworth was not impressed by the platitude, and the oily voice did not please him. The ridiculous inference that any man could be other than one in ten thousand caused him to smile slightly, a relaxation which probably encouraged his host. But the younger man now wished to terminate the interview which seemed to lead to nothing. Somehow he felt uncomfortable in his host's presence.

"But you were speaking of the papers. What of them?" he asked, with the ease of bearing of one who understood himself.

"Ah, yes—the legal documents! I—er—spoke of them merely by the way; they do not interest me, being of small value. But David told me of a certain paper which he wished—which he had, or—er—was about to place in your father's hands to be given to Grace on or about her twenty-first birthday. It was to be quite outside the legal trust, I was led to understand. Does it happen that—er—you have heard of it?"

"Yes," returned Wentworth with an involuntary stiffening of his mental attitude.

"A—er—red paper? A—er—of no value except to her?"

"Yes. Do you know its nature?"

"No. Do you?"

"I do not."

"Strange, is it not?" The man laughed awkwardly, but to the astute young fellow was conveyed the idea that Mr. Merridale was pleased at his ignorance.

"Hardly strange, since I only knew of the paper's existence on the night of my father's death."

"Ah! Well, it was this pa—" He stopped abruptly, for at that moment the room door opened. John looked up.

A lady stood in the doorway — a young lady, dressed for the street. Her figure clad in a tailor made costume was tall and of faultless proportions, and her face was striking—not alone from its beauty, which was great, nor from its freshness, which was palpable enough, but from a certain cold reserve. Whether the latter was natural or assumed, the young man could not guess; but he looked at her as much in surprise at her sudden and unexpected appearance as in admiration.

"I—I—beg your pardon," she faltered, directing her gaze and remark to Mr. Merridale. "I—I—though you were alone. I am going out now."

The words came sweetly though the face was unsmiling, and there was a slight hesitation which was in strong contrast to her confident bearing. Merridale made no attempt to introduce the young man. His brows knitted as if the interruption had annoyed him and disturbed his temper. "I thought you had gone out long since, my dear," he said with smoothness.

Instead of answering, the girl flushed as if startled by the affectionate term; but she flashed a look of utter indifference at the speaker; then with a sweeping glance at the young man on the sofa, a glance filled with an expression of disdain, she retired, and closed the door behind her.

Merridale sat back in his chair and seemed to take a long breath. "My daughter, sir," he said easily, as he relighted his extinguished cigar.

"Your daughter?"

"Yes, my daughter Ethel. Grace's cousin. She has a peculiar nature as you may have observed. I must apologise for her bruskness. She is not at all like me—not at all. It is unfortunate that the girls do not agree. They can bear little from each other."

To this Wentworth vouchsafed nothing. He had heard of women who were angels in appearance but possessed the temper of the devil.

"Now, as I was about to remark," continued the other, with an attempt at lightness of manner, "regarding the paper—the red paper—I can save you heaps of trouble, sir. I am about to return to Texas, and will place it in Grace's hands. Such a paper needs safe transit, and—well with her, I am myself interested in it."

"You told me you were not aware of its nature," returned the young man with an air of surprise.

"Did I? But Grace is aware of it."

"My father informed me that she has no knowledge of it. Moreover, Mr. Merridale, my father made it a point of honour, for some reason that I should give that paper to her myself. I do not count the cost of trouble in fulfilling any wish of his."

"Of course you have this document?"

"Certainly. It is safe in my studio—my apartments. As soon as I get into communication with your niece I will take the proper steps."

Merridale got up from his chair, paced the room twice, then returned and reseated himself.

"But, Mr. Wentworth," he said, with an accession of soft-voiced confidence, "my niece has assigned her interests in that paper to me."

"Then she is at liberty to give it to you with her own hands. I will not."

"You will not?"

"I will not."

"You make that statement as final?"

"As final; yes, sir."

"Then, Mr. Wentworth, permit me to inform you that you are depriving me of my rights." The voice was a trifle harsh, and the hitherto ready smile disappeared. "Time, in this matter is important to me. Can I make it an object to you to alter your mind?"

"You mean that you would bribe me?"

The other laughed harshly, and waved a pudgy hand.

You might be a trifle more euphemistic—but I suppose, between us—as men, you know—we might come to an understanding."

John's heart began to beat violently. "What is your figure?" he inquired calmly, though his nerves had become tense.

"Well, sir, I happen to be aware that you have come somewhat short in your expectations from your father. Let us say, one thousand dollars. That is liberal. You are not responsible to anyone in this; you would not be remiss in any legal requirement."

"In no legal requirement, true; but I shall consider my father's wish even if it necessitates a trip to Texas. The latter would not be unpleasant. It is my honor which is involved."

"Your honor! Why, my dear sir—my dear sir, I have—"

Wentworth's face grew hot. "No, sir," he interrupted. "I anticipate what you would argue! It is useless! You have proposed a transaction which is insulting in itself, which is repugnant, and which I refuse utterly."

The other looked at him steadily then began pacing the floor. His face bore an ugly frown, though his voice was not aggressive.

"Mr. Wentworth," he said, flicking the ash from his cigar, "there is a man—I know him well—who once told me a story relating to your father—a story that would blast his reputation, were it known. May I be plain?"

"The plainer the better, sir," said Wentworth, with that in his voice which should have warned the other.

"Well, it would have placed him in the grip of the law." He stopped, glancing at his seated guest from the corner of his eye as he coolly wet and rewound the loose end of his ragged cigar.

Wentworth felt all the blood in his body rising to his head but he made no movement of surprise as he got a grip on himself and said: "Yes? And the nature of the crime? I have heard something of it but nothing definite."

Merridale did not answer the direct question, but went on with exasperating coolness: "Such a story would not be relished by any man of your caste, sir, though the hungry public would find it entertaining."

"And the nature of it?" repeated Wentworth, leaning forward, and raising his voice.

"You wish it given explicitly?"

"Explicitly."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of glass of water before breakfast each Jad Salts; take one tablespoonful in a morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Poultrymen here and there report increasing receipts of eggs, but the general supply has not yet reached the proportions that affect the retail market. Guaranteed new laids are ranging from 45 cents up but a week hence with the beginning of Lent, there is likely to be a more plentiful supply. Certainly the demand will be higher. Everyone is eagerly looking forward to real reductions in the price, but neither the farmers nor the retail market have held out any material hope up to the present time.

Potatoes are very scarce, and above $3 a bag when retailed. Most of the supplies are being sold in peck and two peck limits until the weather permits new importations. The grocers claim that there is no money in this staple, but will surely admit that their loss in rots is more than covered at 55c and 60c a peck for stocks that they bought at the prices prevailing last fall.

A FLORIDA FROST.

Cabbage are now selling at well over $100 per ton at Toronto, says the Sun. Floridas have been coming through at $3.75 per hamper, which runs from $120 to $125 per ton. The outlook for spring fruits from Florida is very black indeed and the high prices will probably rule until the home grown stuff is on the market. A heavy frost killed all the early tomatoes in many districts, and from 50 to 75 per cent. of the cabbage. One district is said to have had 16 degrees of frost.

WHEAT AND OATS.

Wheat has recovered from its recent break and is now selling from 3c to 5c above last week's low mark, on the streets of Toronto, where new wheat sells at $1.73 to $1.75, and goose, $1.73.

Oats are selling at 2c higher than last week, at 72c per bushel on the street at Toronto. If the government should buy oats in Canada in large quantities it will have an elevating tendency to the market, unless it is kept secret until the buying is done. Ontario oats at lake ports are 1c also higher than last week at 63c to 65c for No. 2 white new; and steady at 62c to 64c for No. 3 white new. Manitoba oats by rail are selling at 71c per bushel for No. 2 C.W.

WOOD AT BIG PRICES.

The price of cord wood has never attained the height it has reached this winter. A load of soft wood that formerly brought little attention, sold this morning for $7, a seemingly ridiculous price, but it indicates the wood situation. Good hardwood is considerably higher.

HOGS, $14.

Hay ranges from $10 to $12, and hogs were 14c at the Matthews-Blackwell factory yesterday.

As a farmer now engaged in the city said yesterday, "the boys on the back forties have not been able to count up their money this year. Some time before ploywing they will have to take a week off to add up their profits."

Their Fathers Are Fighting For Right, Shall They Starve?

Here are two little Belgian refugees, two of thousands upon thousands whose fathers have answered the call of duty and are fighting with their allies for the liberty of peaceful nations. Those fathers did not wait to count the cost or to find out how much help they were going to receive outside their borders. They perhaps believed that great nations, like Britain and France would not stand and see them crushed and that the people of those wealthy and friendly countries would not allow their children and their wives to starve while they were away. But all that they really knew was that they heard the call of duty and rallied to their King.

Of course their faith in the nations who guaranteed their neutrality was not misplaced, unless they had faith in Germany. Great Britain and France did rally to their side and with them are putting an end to the Teuton dream of world conquest, and their children and their wives have not been allowed to starve. The two shown in the picture, healthy and happy enough, are in England at Strethsan. So are many others, and it is comparatively a simple matter to care for them.

But there are left in Belgium more than have been or can be taken to England. What of them? The Belgian Relief committee has answered that question most efficiently. It has fed them ever since they were driven from their homes to shift for themselves. It has been enabled to do this through the response of Canadians, with the people of the Motherland and of the United States to the call of Belgium's need.

The committee's needs grow greater rather than less as long as Germany rules the occupied parts of Belgium, and so long as the need lasts the friends of Freedom-loving Belgium are asked to open their hearts and loosen their purse-strings. Contributions should be sent direct to the Central Belgian Relief committee, 59 St. Peter street, Montreal, or to the branches in each locality.

BASKET SOCIAL AT MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, Feb. 14.—Mr. J. W. Hanbidge was in Peterborough on business Monday.

Mr. F. A. Mahood, of Omemee, representing the New Idea Spreader Company, of Guelph, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Johnston and daughter, Alexandra, were visitors to Port Perry last week.

Miss Emma Frandy, teacher at Goodwood, spent Sunday with her mother.

Mr. Elgin McAllister is visiting his aunt, Mrs. G. W. Sayles.

Was a Success.

The basket social and entertainment held at Trinity Parish Hall, on Thursday evening, Feb. 8, was a decided success. There was a large attendance, and all enjoyed themselves immensely.

Mr. Wm. Porteons, the well-known and popular auctioneer, conducted the sale of baskets and the autograph quilt. The proceeds of the quilt were $65.25, and of the baskets $44.80, or a total of $110.05.

Mr. Jas. Todd is a guest of Mr. Johnston Brown, Sr., at Vasey.

The Missionary Prayer meeting in connection with the Epworth League on Monday last, was a great success, in spite of the severely cold weather. Four of our missionaries were very cleverly impersonated by young men, and the little Chinese girl supported by Mrs. Walsh's S.S. Class, was represented by Miss Eileen Higgs, who sang a native Chinese song. Prayer was offered for each in turn, and the whole service was unique and inspiring.

The many friends of Mr. F. Dawson Fair will be sorry to hear that he is seriously ill at his home in Toronto.

Miss Marjory McAllister, of Napanee, is spending a few days at the home of her aunt, Mrs. G. W. Sayles.

Mr. Edward Heigh, of South Monaghan, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. T. R. Huggins, of South Monaghan, was in town on business Saturday.

Mrs. E. J. Heigh, of South Monaghan, went under an operation at Dr. Turner Hospital, Millbrook, on Monday. She is improving nicely and expects to be able to go home this week.

Rev. and Mrs. W. Wilkes visited friends in Peterborough Friday.

TWENTY SEATS VACANT IN COMMONS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Twenty seats in the House of Commons are now vacant. The death of Gideon Rochon, Conservative M.P. for Terrebonne, creates the latest vacancy. There are seven in Quebec, five in Ontario, three in Nova Scotia, one in New Brunswick, one in Prince Edward Island, two in Manitoba and one in Saskatchewan. Fourteen of the vacant seats were held by Conservatives and six by Liberals.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

GERMAN REGULATIONS FAIL.

Courts Won't Punish Those Who Ignorantly Break Economic Rules.

Reports from Berlin reaching London say that the Federal Council has refused to make effective a bill passed by the Reichstag before Christmas providing for the establishment in all parts of the German Empire of information bureaus to answer any questions as to what is and what is not permitted under the voluminous economic regulations.

It is admitted on all sides that these regulations have reached such proportions that it is no longer possible for German courts to apply the principle that ignorance of the law is no sufficient excuse. The Federal Council has refused to set up the information bureaus, because, in the first place, there is not a sufficient supply of officials, and, in the second place, it is not believed that the officials could answer the questions without long investigations, or even then without reserve. It has, therefore, been decided that as a general rule offenders are not to be convicted if they can show that in error they believed their acts to be harmless.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Rosebury, Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

CALL EXEMPTS TO COLOURS.

Officials of German Trades Union and Socialist Bodies Must Serve.

LONDON, Feb. 14. — A Reuter's despatch from Berne says that the German authorities have suddenly called to the colours all officials of trade unions and Socialist organizations. These officials, who aggregate 10,000 in number, have previously been exempt from military service.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Any one can trace the newest style features in this model—one with especial interest because it may be developed in material that will proclaim it for wear in going the round of household duties or in a weave that will stamp it as belonging to the class of dresses for street wear.

The plain waist in surplice style has its fulness slightly gathered at the lower edge and the fronts faced with contrasting goods. A set-in sleeve may be short, with a roll cuff, of long, trimmed with bands or strips of contrasting goods to mark a cuff. At regulation waistline a three gore gathered skirt is joined to the waist under a straight belt of the goods. The pocket stitched to each front gore is a welcome addition and attractive with an overlap in contrasting note.

For a street dress serge, gabardine, taffeta, satin and similar weaves may be considered, with trimming in opposite color or with braid or embroidery as decoration. For a house dress linen, percale, gingham, chambray, striped galatea and kindred weaves are excellent, with piping and trimming in contrasting note. You will be agreeably surprised at the simplicity of the pattern and the little time it takes to make the dress.

The dress pattern No. 8,183 cuts in sizes 36 to 44 bust. To make in size 36 requires 5¼ yards of 36 inch material and ⅞ yard of contrasting goods.

To obtain the pattern send to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

ALSACE IS HAPPY IN FRENCH HANDS

contrary. I went there, and from a machine gun post cut in the form of a cave in the solid rock I looked down on the German lines only thirty yards away, the German barbed wire running to fifteen yards from where I stood. Occasional cannon shots reverberated through the mountains. Beyond that line was quiet. Farther south toward the Swiss frontier the firing was more intense. There lies the famous trouee or gap of Belfort, dividing the Vosges from the Jura Alps.

There has been much discussion lately of the possibility of a German invasion through Switzerland. Therefore, I went to the Swiss frontier to see what I could see. All I can say is that France is well prepared to meet any army that attempts to cross the Swiss frontier or attack through the Gap of Belfort. An ordinary frontier line between nations consists of stones set in the ground in intervals of about a hundred yards with the initials of each country engraved on opposite sides. At the beginning of the war Switzerland added to her frontier separating France by building as a barricade an ordinary barbed wire fence. There I formed an opinion that it would be a fatal excursion for Germany if she ever crosses the Swiss frontier into France.

WHERE THREE NATIONS MEET.

While in this neighbourhood I decided to work my way along the frontier line to a point where the three frontiers of France, Germany, and Switzerland meet. I sat on the stone that marks that point, with one foot in France and the other in Switzerland, while with my stick I drew figures in the snow lying on the ground that once belonged to Germany. I sat there with impunity because the French have driven the Germans back, but I could see through glasses the actual end of the battle line that comes down unbroken from the North Sea. It was a curiously inadequate finish to the great 500-mile barrier of steel and death. I expected to find something like the Rock of Gibraltar or a lofty, impassable peak. All I saw was a field surrounded by a forest of scrub pines. Through it ran a barbed wire fence—the Swiss frontier. To the left of the fence, on the side nearest to me, was a mass of barbed wire entanglements. On the right of the fence, in Switzerland, seated a little distance back in the field to avoid bullets, a lone Swiss sentry guarded the neutrality of his country and smoked a pipe. It was all very tame, and seemed rather foolish. One side of the fence was war, the other side peace, and a child could have climbed over the fence.

In a few minutes one could stroll down the Swiss side of the field and report the war from Germany. But the credentials attaching a correspondent to the armies of the French Republic, a passport that required proper vise, and a Swiss sentinel smoking his pipe were difficulties quite as insurmountable as the highest mountain peak. So I sat on the frontier stone separating the three nations and thought about Alsace instead, and wondered what fateful part that little territory that gave Ney, Kléber, Lefebre, Kellermann, and Rapp to France is again to play in the history of the world.

German-American Situation Increases in Gravity

TWO MORE SUCCESSFUL CANADIAN RAIDS

GERMANY MULTIPLYING INDIGNITIES TO THE CITIZENS OF UNITED STATES

Wives of American Officials Stripped and Searched at the Boader---Report That American Minister to Belgium Was Forced to Lower the Stars and Stripes Confirmed--American Relief Workers in Belgium Detained.

SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

BERNE, Switzerland, February 15.—Germany is multiplying its indignities to United States citizens.

Ambassador Gerard, vigorously complained to the German Foreign Office that the Germans were searching the wives of American Consuls at the border.

At Warnemunde alone the wives of three prominent officials were lately stripped, bathed and examined internally, because they were suspected of carrying documents. Because the military is supreme, and because it has adopted this general attitude, the Foreign Office is powerless. Ambassador Gerard is forwarding to Washington his emphatic warning that the "Overseas News Agency" is being used by Germany to mould American opinion.

PARIS (French Official Communique), February 15.—Heavy casualties were inflicted on the German forces in French raids on the second line of enemy trenches in the Puisaleine region, the official statemet declared to-day.

BERNE, February 15.—Ambassador Gerard and staff, and fifty other Americans, left last night for Paris.

WASHINGTON, February 15.—Confirmation to-day that Brand Whitlock, the American Minister to Belgium, was forced to lower the Stars and Stripes, and cut off from communication with his government, has materially increased the gravity of the situation between the United States and Germany.

American relief workers in Belgium are also being detained.

NEW YORK, February 15.—To avoid the submarine zone by a northerly route most neutral liners are now making Halifax, Canada, their port of call for inspection by the British Admiralty. Several big ships left here for that port to-day.

WASHINGTON, February 15.—The British sailing ship Ainsdale has been sunk, and her crew, including one American saved, after suffering great hardships.

LONDON, February 15.—To-day's reported Victims of the submarine campaign are: The "Cecelia," British, 3,750 tons, and the "Ferga," British, 308 tons.

PARIS, February 14.—Active operations have once more been resumed in the Macedonian theatre, engagements are recorded at a number of points in the Balkans. The French official report reads:

"On February 12, after a violent bombardment, large German forces attacked Hill 1050 east of Paralovo. They were able to gain a footig at several points in the trenches of the first line after fierce fighting. An Italian counter-attack, launched at night, resulted in the recapture of the greater part of the occupied trenches.

"On February 13 after a preparation by heavy and mountain artillery the Italian counter-attack was resumed under good conditions. Fighting continues.

"On the rest of the front there was only moderate artillery activity.

"The English fleet bombarded Neochari (Macedonia). French aeroplanes bombarded the railway station at Krivolak. A British air squadron exploded a depot of munitions north of Demir-Hissar."

LONDON, February 14.—It has been decided by the Board of Trade to take possession of all coal mines in the United Kingdom for the period of the war in addition to those in South Wales already taken over. The President of the Board of Trade has decided to set up a new department to control the coal mines. The directors of the London and North-Western Railway have placed the services of their general manager, Guy Calthrop, at the disposal of the Board. Mr. Calthrop's official designation will be "Controller of Coal Mines."

KING ENDORSES BATTLE PICTURE

GIVEN PRIVATE VIEW

Sir John Hendrie, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, received a cable message from the King endorsing the Canadian war film to be exhibited at the Empire Theatre on Feb. 22nd, 23rd and 24th. The message from His Majesty came through the official channel via Ottawa, and reads as follows:

"These pictures will help to bring home vividly to all in Canada the nature of the great sacrifice which their fellow-citizens in the empire are making in its cause and in that of honour and justice. I hope that the greatest success will attend the efforts of those who have organized this means of spreading throughout Canada news of the progress of the great war."

His honour has also had a communication from Hon. A. E. Kemp, minister of Canadian militia, strongly recommending these pictures.

The film of "The Canadian Army in Action and the Advance of the Tanks" arrived in the city safely yesterday morning after a perilous voyage through the submarine area, and was at once taken to the Ontario censor for formal approval. In the afternoon the lieutenant-governor and Lady Hendrie, Premier Hearst and Miss Hearst, and members of the cabinet were present at the first private view as guests of Hon. T. W. McGarry, provincial treasurer, in whose department lies the regulation of moving picture theatres. The film was taken to the parliament buildings and projected on the screen by R. C. Newman, head of the appeal board for motion picture films, and his assistant, O. Elliott. Among those present, besides those mentioned, were: Mrs. T. W. McGarry, Hon. G. H. Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson, Dr. R. A. Pyne, Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid, Colonel Fraser, A.D.C., and Charles Matthews, of the appeal board.

Praises Picture.

"The pictures are official and authentic," declared his honour. "They are intensely vivid and interesting. Both Lady Hendrie and myself recognised a personal friend in one of the scenes in the picture of Major Harry Crerar, of Hamilton, of the 4th Battery. Every one should see these pictures. They are Canadian, and they also show the tanks. I thoroughly approve their exhibition and heartily endorse the film." Lady Hendrie was also enthusiastic.

"Some parts are almost too awful perhaps, but every bit of it is interesting, especially to people with sons at the front. I approve of them heartily."

Major Ian Hendrie, son of Sir John and Lady Hendrie, is at the front, but he was not in the battle of Courcelette.

"They are extremely realistic," said Hon. T. W. McGarry, provincial treasurer. "They show in a vivid manner the conditions the boys at the front have to contend with, the mud is particularly noticeable." They may perhaps be a trifle depressing, but they are very fine."

DON'T FORGET THE 500 CLUB MEETING TO-NIGHT

The public is asked not to forget the meeting of the 500 Club to-night in the recreation room of the Armouries. All members of the Club, and all wishing to become members, are urged to be present at this important meeting at which lists will be given out of prospective recruits for the 247th Battalion. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

A BIG DRIVE TO SECURE RECRUITS FOR THE 247TH BATTALION

Members of City Council, Board of Education, Board of Trade and Other Bodies to be Present at Sunday Night's Big Recruiting Rally---Peterboro Boys Killed in Attack on Enemy's Trenches---To-day's Orders and General Military News

Sunday night's recruiting meeting at the Grand Opera House will be featured by the presence on the platform of the members of the City Council, the Board of Education, the Board of Trade, and the Trades and Labour Council. These bodies have been invited by the Speakers' Patriotic League to assist in the recruiting movement, showing by their presence that they are behind the efforts of the 247th Battalion, and all that it represents. Mr. J. A. Aylmer and Mr. Joseph Wearing waited on the Property Committee last night and invited the members of the Council to attend the Sunday night meeting. All the aldermen but two were present, and it was forthwith decided to respond to this invitation.

Sunday night will witness the commencement of a push to accelerate enlistment by securing the assistance not only of the 500 Club, but of all the citizens. It will probably be the commencement if the last united efforts in behalf of the present battalion's aim to secure 500 recruits from the city. After its inception the work of sustaining the movement will be the principal task of the 500 Club and those who should regard themselves as responsible in a large measure for the response Peterborough should make in recruits right now.

The Speakers' Patriotic League met last night and discussed plans for the coming campaign.

It is expected that the Peterborough recruits for the 256th Railway Construction Battalion will leave the city on Monday morning.

Pte Edward McKay, a Havelock boy who enlisted here with the Peterborough squadron of the 8th C. M. R., and who is well known in Peterborough, was in the city yesterday visiting relatives. Pte. McKay only recently arrived home from overseas, having been badly wounded in the knee at the battle of Zillebeke, June 2nd, when so many members of the Mounted Rifles were killed or wounded. He is still lame, requiring the use of a cane when walking, and will have to undergo treatment at the Convalescent Hospital, Kingston. Pte. McKay did not go to England with the main body of the 8th C.M.R., but left in that unit in a draft in July, 1915, going to the 5th C.M.R., with which battalion he fought at the front.

Mr. W. H. Hill has received word that his son, Lieut. Harold F. Hill of the 38th Canadian Battalion, has been promoted to Captain. Captain Hill receives his promotion on the firing line, where he has been fighting with the 4th Canadian Division.

A cable despatch from London, (Eng.) states that Major F. G. Stanbury of St. Thomas, Major K. G. Lech of Peterborough, and Major L. D. Kerr of Manitoba, have returned to Canada to be at the disposal of the Adjutant-General, which means that the services of these officers are to be utilized here, possibly in connection with the proposed calling out of the Militia. Major Lech has already arrived in Canada and will report at Ottawa.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieut.-Colonel C. H. Ackerman, commanding 247th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.:

Lieut., Adjutant.
247th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

Mr. Jas. Hatcher has received the following letter in connection with the death in action of his son, Pte. Harold Hatcher, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:

21st Canadian Bn.,
France, Jan. 19th.

Dear Mr. Hatcher,—I very much regret to inform you that your son was killed in action during an attack on the enemy trenches on the morning of Jan. 17th.

He was a fine lad, and we all mourn his loss. His body was brought back and buried at the military cemetery, service being conducted by Capt. Kidd (our chaplain.) He did his duty nobly and I am sure gave his life cheerfully for our just cause.

Some personal effects I have collected, and they will be sent you in due course through the usual official channels. Please accept my deepest sympathy. He was a fine little chap.

Yours faithfully,
G. S. Bowerbank, Major,
B Co., 21st Bn.

Mrs. Leo. Tobin, 114 Robinson street, East City, received word today that her husband, Pte. Leo. F. Tobin of the 52nd Battalion has been admitted to the 5th Northern General Hospital, Leicester, England, suffering from gastritis. Pte. Tobin left here with the Machine Gun section of the 93rd Battalion and was afterwards transferred to the 52nd. His friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

The following verses were composed by Pte. N. Jones, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, and W. E. Myles, formerly of the 70th Battalion, now in the trenches with the 5th C.M.R.:

"MEMORIES."

Amidst the din and roar of battle,
In a land called 'Sunny France,'
Where the mighty guns they rattle,
And the world all seems a trance,
There stands a soldier, staunch and true,
Fighting for distant loved ones;
And while he tries his bit to do
His mind is filled with memories true.

Memories of a home he had to leave,
Memories of dear ones far away;
Memories of a sigh he had to heave
When he bade a sad good-bye;
Memories of his trustful queen,
Of her smiling eyes and winsome way,
And that loving kiss at the parting scene,
Memories to live for many a day.

Many's the danger he's dared without fear,
Many's the hardship he's faced.
All for the sake of his country so dear,
And 'freedom,' the pride of his race;
But cold as may seem this dastardly war,
And cruel the grief and the pain,
Yet the day will come when they fight no more
And the boys turn to home again.

Then that soldier so brave, will reap his reward
When he sits once again by her side.
And he takes to his heart, his gift from the Lord,
Forever in her to confide.
Yet when he is idle, and loved ones not near,
He thoughtfully looks to the skies;
For he's thinking of times when he dropped many a tear
O'er those haunting, sweet 'memories.'

Mrs. John Birdgenaw, 281 Perry street, has received the following letter in regard to the death of her son, Pte. Frank Birdgenaw, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:

CANADIANS SCORE AGAIN IN THEIR RAIDS

Three Brilliant Attacks by General Haig's Men, Two of Them Conducted by Canadian Troops Who Captured 47 Prisoners and Blew in Four Mine Shafts

PROGRESS IS MADE

Special to The Examiner:

With British Armies in France, Feb. 15.— The past thirty hours have witnessed three British raids. Two of them were conducted by the Canadians, who invented the practice of trench raiding which has spread throughout the British army. These raids, added to steady progress by the British on both sides of the Ancre, are evidence that the coldest weather of war on this front has not stopped the constant worrying pressure which the British seek to exert upon the Germans. Old soldiers say there is nothing quite so valuable as these minor operations for keeping troops in fighting trim, while nothing is so depressing and injurious to the morale as the constant defensive which the Germans have endured all winter opposite the British lines. Haig's policy has been of unceasing bombardment, punctuated by daily raids and minor attacks, resulting in a constant stream of prisoners and inflicting a heavy toll of casualties on the Germans. In their biggest raid the Canadians captured forty seven prisoners of the Eleventh Bavarians, who came into the lines yesterday. The Canadians remained in the German trenches for more than an hour and left them completely wrecked. Their most important work was probably the blowing in of 4 mine shafts by which they sealed in living tombs scores of Germans who were tunnelling toward the British lines. The Germans tried to cut off the Canadians with a double barrage of fire and then attacked, but they only succeeded in inflicting a few casualties.

MR. GEO. METCALFE RECOMMENDED AS SANITARY INSPECTOR

To-morrow and Saturday will be Big Nights

Owing to the Church League taking the rink again to-night there will be no skating at Brock street rink. The ice has been excellent all week, and it looks as if Friday and Saturday would both be big nights. Good bands, good ice and good crowds.

MANY MINORS WILL BE ABLE TO VOTE NOW

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 15.—It is estimated that from seven to twelve thousand youths under the age of twenty-one will be enfranchised in Ontario when the bill foreshadowed by Provincial Treasurer McGarry in the legislature last night comes into effect. Although McGarry's announcement with its "old enough to fight, old enough to vote" sentiment was vociferously cheered in the legislature, it is evident this morning that after sober reflection, many members of both parties are doubting the wisdom of such sweeping extensions of voting privileges. There will likely be a conference between the parties before the measure is passed by the Legislature.

Hydro Engineers To Consider Street Railway Extensions

Street Railway extensions were tentatively considered by Ald. Langford's railway committee last night and it was decided to present certain suggestions to the Hydro-electric engineers who, it was stated, have already investigated the local conditions of traffic, existing and prospective. To enlist the services of the Hydro heads the city must first invite them to consider certain proposed extensions and these were outlined in a motion by Mayor Duffus, seconded by Ald. Worth. One extension proposed is from Charlotte street down the boundary to the Henry Hope factory, another from Jackson Park to the De Laval and Ald. Worth's proposal that an endeavour be made to serve the northern district in the neighborhood of the Normal School. Ald. Smith also put in a word for East City which it was stated is already under consideration.

DEATH SENTENCE IS CHANGED

OTTAWA, Feb. 15. — Giving her the benefit of the doubt the Governor-in-Council has commuted to life imposed on Lena Maloney for killimposed on Lena Maloney for killing her mistress in Minnedosa.

SMITH MAKES GRANT TO THE C. A. SOCIETY

Out of the fifteen municipalities of the County of Peterborough to which Mr. Spence made an appeal for the Children's Aid Society, at the beginning of the year, the Municipality of Smith is the first to respond with a grant of $10.00, a cheque for this amount being received by Mr. Spence to-day from the Treasurer, Mr. J. W. Kelly. Needless to say this action of the Smith Council is greatly appreciated, as the Society's funds are nearly exhausted, and it is hoped that the other townships will follow suit.

FRANCHISE FOR WOMEN IS DISCUSSED

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—The extension of the franchise to women was discussed at a Government Caucus, lasting two hours this forenoon. While the members were almost unanimous in the favour it was stated that until certain difficulties are over come the government will defer declaring itself upon subject.

DRINKING ON THE STREET.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 15.—Zach Shields, a negro, well known to the police, was sent to jail for three months by Magistrate Fraser for a breach of the prohibition law. P. C. Farrell caught Shields drinking out of a flask on Centre street.

THE OUTLOOK.

There are two parties to the war outlook, that of the Entente Allies, and of the Teuton bandits and pirates. For the allies the outlook, though stern in fact, shows a break in the clouds, and, reversing the order of nature, the light will probably break out in the west—on the western front. The allies are gaining in strength of both man power and munitions, especially on the western front. The activity we see in these winter days is the preliminary skirmishing of the big battle that will break when spring really opens with favorable conditions for military operations. Germany by her indecision, by, to use the vulgar metaphor, "biting off more than she could chew," has fatally divided her forces, and herself contributed to giving the allies the benefit of the Napoleonic maxim of war—"divide and defeat." With the overweening vanity that miscalculated on her own powers, and the resistance of the enemy, Germany has to largely used the policy with which she began the war, crushing her way forward by the use of force. She early experienced the fact that this wouldn't do, and didn't do; but that did not prevent her smashing herself in vain against the walls of Verdun. Her Roumanian campaign, while it enables her to steal a temporary and pitifully inadequate food supply, has divided her forces to the point of uselessness. Russia can keep her busy in the East, and she has no adequate forces to meet the menace of the tremendous, and doubtless crucial, drive of the allies on the western front. On land her outlook is hopeless and if not territorially, at least, in a military sense, the Waterloo of Germany is on the site of the old battle field that broke the power of the great French military dictator, a hundred years ago.

On the sea Germany's chances are still darker. Her battle and merchant marine disappeared from the seas, and only under the water has she any power. In our quiet homes we read with horror of the menace and massacre of the submarines; but even in this Germany will be disappointed! Her submarines may send many ships and souls to the bottom of more murder. The world of mid-Britain, will not be attained. It will be another disappointment. Germany thought to force her way across Belgium and France as across a parade ground; she was disappointed, as she has been in every main item of her world domination programme. Her much-vaunted Zeppelin raid scheme to tame Britain, has ludricously failed; it did not yield one iota of military advantage. It only convicted her of more murder. The world of military and naval men forsee the same for her renewed submarine campaign. Though since the war Britian has lost four million tons of shipping, yet by building new ships and otherwise she she has restored three million tons. Though the submarine menace is regarded as serious, Lord Beresford, the veteran sea dog, the most merciless critic of naval inefficiency and unpreparedness, declared in the House of Lords that in six weeks the Admiralty would have the submarine menace in hand, and although, meantime, there may be much destruction of shipping and many horrors, it is morally certain that as far as giving Germany any military advantage, or effectively contributing to staving off defeat, the submarine menace will go into the limbo of the Zeppelin fiasco, to keep company with Germany's many disappointed hopes and futile barbarities, since August 4th, 1914.

KNIGHTHOODS.

The bestowal of a knighthood, or other title of distinction, by the King, is, in the abstract, something to be proud of, especially if there is merit behind the decoration as in the case of Sir Hugh Graham, who has been advanced to the peerage. As a rule a newspaper man is naturally qualified for a knighthood on the score of his high moral qualities. He may not quite be a Bayard, but he is, if not sans peur, at least, sans reproches. If knighthoods, etc., are given in recognition of successful service of the state or community in any capacity they are real marks of distinction, as in the case of Sir Hugh Graham, of Montreal. Starting at the foot of the journalistic ladder, he has built up great newspaper enterprises, whose names have become household words, and have had an important and useful influence upon popular life.

If, as in this case, royal decorations are conferred as recognition of public service, they would have some significance of value. But when conferred, or rather, recommended, for party reasons, there is possibility of honours being conferred for other reasons than merits of service or outstanding ability for usefulness to the state. In consideration of this why should these honours be confined to the party of the government in power, as has been the custom since Confederation? It seems to be a custom that has gained the force of a law.

The same thing obtained or obtains in the matter of the appointment of judges, and even this practice is not always attended with party satisfaction. The Borden Government, on the recommendation of Hon. Robert Rogers, appointed Mr. Justice A. C. Galt, of Winnipeg, a Conservative in politics, a Judge of the Court of King's Bench, an excellent appointment according to party reasoning, and very probably in fact. But when sitting as a commissioner, he found his political sponsor, Mr. Rogers, guilty of improper manipulation of government contracts in the interests of party election funds, the "excellent appointment," according to party reasoning, becomes excellently bad in Mr. Rogers' eyes. So that from point of view and experience, select his point of view and experience, select always a success. It suggests that Sir John A Macdonald's precedent of going out of the party ranks and appointing a Liberal a judge, because he was a good man, might be followed in the matter of recommending Canadians for marks of royal favour. Since the present government came into power there have been knighthoods galore recommended but in no case has a Liberal been among the preferred. Not that Liberals are aching for such honours; but if they are conferred for merit, for public achievement, or public service, surely in the past six years there could have been found some Liberal public men worthy of the honour. We must conclude that such honours are purely partizan in origin and not necessarily a tribute to national worth because it is worth, but, in many cases, a mere recognition of a party label.

CONSERVATIVE DEMAND FOR EFFICIENCY.

The Toronto News, the Kingston Standard, and lesser lights of the rabid Conservative press, declare it is high treason in the nth degree for Liberal journals to criticise the government. But the eyes of the Liberal journals are "not holden" that they shall not see anything beyond party advantage; shall not see where the interests of the country as bound up in the interests of the war, are menaced by ineffective administration of the immense sums we unanimously vote for war purposes. And there are patriotic Conservative journals that place country and its welfare before party, and do not hesitate to speak their minds—not to embarrass the government—but to try to provide that all the money we spend for war purposes shall be spent for the purposes for which it is voted unanimously by both parties. Among others, is the Toronto World, a Conservative journal that has done valiant service for its party, and naturally desires to see its party at its best. The World says:

Absolutely nothing has come out of all the talk about getting recruits to supply the wastage at the front among Canadian troops. The tardiness of the government about taking action; the reluctance to do anything effective or useful; the plaintive wail of the Premier over the fact that $8,000,000 were spent in sending unfit men across the ocean, all indicate an unintelligible inability to appreciate the situation. The government have sat as lazy spiders do at the centre of an ineffective web waiting for stray flies to buzz in. The fatuous resolution to spend $2,600,000 more on rifles which will be of no use at the front, and are certainly not required at home, is on a par with other governmental acts and policies. Any company that can hold up the Government of Canada for $2,600,000 useless expenditure must have strong medicine to operate with. And of what avail are entreaties on the part of the Government for the people to be economical, when the Government itself is slapping money around in this way? No wonder the people ask an efficient government, by whatever name it be called.

With such an example of criticism from a Conservative source, a source which is theoretically assumed to approve a government's course, through thick and thin, much blame cannot be attached to Liberal newspapers whose theoretical function is supposed to be criticism of the government of the day, if they occasionally criticise; it does not seem quite so treasonable to call the government to account for its palpable shortcomings.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE SUN SEEMS NEAR TO THE RISING

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—Is it at last the time for the women of Ontario to buy cymbals, ukuleles and other instruments of music to celebrate the coming of woman suffrage? Is the government, after years of opposition, going to yield to the continuous pressure of the Liberals on the question of woman suffrage, as last session they yielded on the question of prohibition?

Indications point strongly to the success of the Liberal campaign carried on for many years to give women the vote.

At the general election of 1914 the Liberals had woman suffrage as one of the main planks of their platform but at that time, as well as in preceding and succeeding years, as long as the liquor traffic was entrenched, and as long as the government was kindly disposed towards this traffic it could not be expected that the government would grant woman suffrage and year after year they voted down various Opposition proposals dealing with different aspects of the suffrage problem.

This year Mr. J. C. Elliott, Liberal member for West Middlesex, on the very first day of the session, re-introduced his perennial bill to grant the municipal franchise to married women, and Wm. McDonald, Liberal member for North Bruce, again presented his bill to grant the full legislative franchise to women.

It is probably to be expected that Newton Rowell, himself, in his first big speech, on Thursday, will devote attention to the question and review the Liberal policy on the matter, pointing out their long advocacy of the reform.

J. W. Johnson, Conservative member for West Hastings, who has long been a friend of woman suffrage, again has his bills before the House, and there are rumours and indications that the government may adopt them instead of shelving them as in the past.

The Hon. Mr. McPherson expressed himself as favorable in a speech a night or two ago, and Captain Hart, another Conservative member, who used to be firmly opposed to the measure, announces himself a conmeasure, announces himself a con-

If woman suffrage does come this year it will be another outstanding victory for the Liberal party in the House and for their progressive policies.

Words And Terms With Double Meaning

This war has not only produced a lot of terminological inexactitudes, but also a considerable number of terminological incertitudes. The same expression means one thing in the mouth of a Briton or an American and another thing in the mouth of a German or a pro-German. One thing in the mouth of a man of fair intelligence, another thing in the mouth of a stupid man.

Take as a specimen the expression "permanent peace." Mr. W. J. Bryan's Chadbandian definition of peace seems ridiculous to any many of ordinary intelligence. It means simply the cessation of fighting. If two men fight until one kills the other the fighting certainly stops, but it would be absurd to call the result peace. It takes at least two to make a peace as it does to make a quarrel. "Peace be with us! My friend," says Chadband. "Peace be with us! My friends, why with us? Because it cannot be against us, because it must be for us, because it is softening, because it does not make war like the hawk, but comes home unto us like the dove. Therefore, my friends, peace be with us! My human boy, come forward!"

Why, oh why, is there no Chadband Club among all the political clubs on this continent? The membership would not be large, nor would it be influential; but it would serve a useful purpose in that it would enable us to put a hand upon a hypocrite if we happened to want one. The Chadband definition of peace means a peace in which brute force shall be triumphant and all the "human boys" of the world prostrate at its feet. To talk about peace without justice, is to talk about peace where there is no peace, and it is not our idea of peace.

Another phrase which is open to the reproach of terminological incertitude, is the "freedom of the sea." To the Hun the "freedom of the sea" means the freedom of the pirate and the inalienable right of the German to destroy the freedom of the land, to lay the whole human race under tribute to Germany. The strongest military power of the world hitherto is up against the strongest naval power in the world and its modest proposal is that naval power shall be practically abolished or that the trident shall be transferred from a nation that has never abused it, to the nation which commands and is not too particular to use against unarmed ships the murderous, treacherous, cowardly submarine. The world will never accept this definition of the freedom of the sea.

Where are these war-like heros now! Is it because their "pull" didn't make them favourites at Headquarters, where merit counts, they balk, and sulk, and continue to do so even if the ship of Empire sinks and all is lost? They had about two hundred recruits who had agreed to sign up if the Battalion was organized, but unless these promises were backed up with more principle and honour than those made to the Minister of Militia the recruits would abrogate their pledges and remain in mufti.

The Review, being more or less identified with some of the bodies inflicted, naturally feels inclined to whitewash the offenders and endeavours to do so by detracting attention from themselves and directing it to a body of returned soldiers who simply are here in obedience to orders from superiors and have done their duty. The "Chocolate Heroes" have done and are still doing, infinitely more for their King and country, and the cause of recruiting, right here in Peterborough than the armchair "Chocolate Patriots" in the City Council, Board of Trade, etc., who had the 247th Battalion authorized under false pretences. The boys in khaki are doing their duty. Are their accusers and maligners doing their's?

J. BROWN.

Peterborough, Feb. 14, 1917.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I have noticed quite often advertisements and appeals in your paper by the merchants and citizens of Peterborough to patronize home industry. Why send out of town for goods? Keep your money in your home city, etc.

I know a good many of our citizens do buy goods out of town, from Toronto especially.

There have been three different parties brought to my notice who received goods not over a month ago, one party received no less than $108.00 worth of goods, another $60.00, the other $15, and was just sending off $13.00 more for goods such as clothing, hats, overcoats, drug supplies, handware supplies, and even syrup and bacon. I was awfully surprised when I heard what common every day supplies, people will buy out of town, that if they took the trouble to inquire the price of same goods in Peterborough, they would find the merchants could and would make the price right if they bought in the same quantity, and would be glad to do so if the people would state their troubles.

But I cannot blame the citizens altogether for an example has been set by some of our merchants of Peterborough, who bought show cases just lately, they did not take the trouble to think about patronizing home industry, or leaving their money in town, they listened to an outside traveller, run down and knock, the business of a home manufacturer and thus secure his order, and at the same time paying more for their cases than they could get them for in Peterborough. Now these are absolute facts for I have been in different stores just lately and saw new cases shipped in from out of town.

We have in Peterborough, a manufacturer of showcases and store fixtures, a man who has lived in Peterborough for the last 15 years, who has a little plant fully equipped, and I am sure can supply cases, etc., cheaper than any outside firm.

If some of the merchants of Peterborough can be talked into purchasing home manufactured goods out of town by a slick-tongued traveller, they cannot blame a lot of our citizens for purchasing goods out of town also.

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 15, 1917.

To the Editor of The Examiner:—

Dear Sir,—In reading yesterday's paper, I observed two boys were charged with stealing a watch and were prosecuted by Magistrate Dumble, with a punishment of being whipped with cat o' nine tails. I, as a doctor, readily understand if such punishment is administered to these two boys, it would be outrageous, as this is not in the third century, but in the twentieth. This punishment would inflict very large wounds; if not external, it would internal. I, as a stranger in town, only here on a visit, am sorry to say that it is a shame that such a thing should happen in Peterborough.

I would not leave town, but being that I have to attend a funeral it compels me to go, but I will return shortly. I hope and trust that the people in Peterborough will give this matter their esteemed attention and try to prohibit such punishment.

Hoping the public is in favour with me, I am,

Yours respectfully,
DR. WM. W. MANN,
168 Lennox Avenue, New York City

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The writer of that scurrilous article "The Chocolate Hero," in last Saturday's Review, should have been a General. Any man with such an aptitude for strategy is only wasting his time writing editorials for the Review. If the article in question is carefully analyzed it will readily be seen. The whole thing is nothing more than a clumsy ruse to deceive the people, and divert public attention from the "real" to the "imaginary" cause for failure in recruiting. It is not as the Review intimates, due to the return of officers or the band, but rather as His Honour Judge Huycke stated in his eloquent address before a large and appreciative audience in the Grand, a fortnight ago, to the inertia of the City Council, Board of Trade, and others, representative citizens, who made faithful promises to the militia authorities and then, German-like, cast them aside as "scraps of paper" for purely personal reasons, may I say! The writer bewails the fact that officers get their commissions through "pull" or "favoritism," but the "rub" comes in when the "pull" that was being exerted failed to land the chosen favorites in the new battalion that was to be organized. Where are these war-like heros now! Is it because their "pull" didn't make them favourites at Headquarters, where merit counts, they balk, and sulk, and continue to do so even if the ship of Empire sinks and all is lost? They had about two hundred recruits who had agreed to sign up if the Battalion was organized, but unless these promises were backed up with more principle and honour than those made to the Minister of Militia the recruits would abrogate their pledges and remain in mufti.

U. S. CANNED GOODS DEARER.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14. — Recent Florida frosts will cause canned goods to be about a third higher in price this year than in 1916, wholesale grocers informed the Government high cost of living investigators here. With fresh fruits and vegetables, which usually come from that Southern State, out of the market, canned goods will be more in demand, they testified. It was also declared that manufacturers were having difficulty in getting enough tin for cans.

Hon. Andrew Broder never said a truer thing than when he stated that the work of the pioneers in the introduction of pure-bred stock in Ontario has never been appraised at its true value.

MILITARY NEWS

21st Canadian Battalion, France, January 19, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Birdgenaw,—I deeply regret to inform you that your son was killed in action during an attack on the German trenches, on the morning of the 17th inst. He did his duty nobly, poor boy, and paid the great sacrifice, and he has the respect now, of us all. His body was recovered and brought back, and buried at the military cemetery, by a Roman Catholic Chaplain. A letter he wrote to his dear brother in France, the day before enclosing a handkerchief, I believe sent by yourself, I have sent on, and informed him of his brother's death. I am having sent you the personal effects of his, which I trust will reach you in due course. Please accept my deepest sympathy, in which I know all his comrades here join.

Yours very truly,
G. S. Rowerbank, Major,
21st Battalion.

Miss Young, of Peterborough, has received the following verses composed by her brother-in-law at the front:

THE GREAT PUSH.

Picture the fair lands of France,
Which were similar to that of ours;
Look at it now in war time,
Ghastly field of horrors.

Towns and villages are all destroyed,
Peaceful homes rent asunder;
You must confess along with me,
There's been an awful blunder.

Great long lines of trenches,
The covering miles of land;
That once was life's great store house
Given by God's own hand.

These lines are held by soldiers,
Both day and night alike;
Daily awaiting the order,
The order for to strike.

Zero comes and each heart is thumping,
As they face a hail of lead;
Onward they go in the conflict,
With their own life's blood to shed.

The line is, reached that was aimed for,
And "held" with brave British lads;
Who was a credit to King and Country,
Also their mothers and dads.

"Attention!" The roll is being called,
Answer your names and listen;
Hundreds were never answered,
Not counted with the missing.

Once on the scene in the rear,
How ghastly it seems to look;
But God has the names of his sheep,
Known in, the Sacred Book.

All honour to those who have fallen,
For the liberty we hope to gain;
May their memories shine out in history,
Equal to the Lillies' Fame.

British Doctors Solve Problems Brought By War

Royal Army Medical Corps Adopts New System in Surgical Cases

LONDON, Feb. 15. — The war has brought many developments and improvements but none greater than in surgery and sanitation. There has been much sickness especially during the winter arising from wet and cold but there have been none of those epidemics which have characterized other great wars. England is highly pleased with the royal army medical corps which, it is considered, has solved great medical problems of war.

The Somme advance puts the corps to a test the severity of which it is almost impossible to describe. The greatest armies known to history grappled in a continuous and furious struggle for months. The wounds caused by hand grenades and high explosive shells were often of terrible extent.

The battlefield to a depth of five miles was under constant shell fire and transport of the wounded for that distance was, therefore, always under shell fire and transport of the wounded for that distance was, therefore, always under fire, and roads were torn up almost as soon as made.

Most Unfavourable Conditions.

Conditions of infection were extraordinarily unfavourable. Traffic regulation had to overcome the most serious obstacles, since railways, roads, and tracks had to provide for the constant reinforcements; for the frequent passage to and fro of relieving divisions; for food and water for men and horses, and also for ammunition unprecedented in quantity.

At a rough calculation there were 10,000 horses and mules and 5,000 motor lorries on the road constantly for the artillery service alone.

The first thing to be noted on the military side of the R. A. M. C. organization was the close and sympathetic agreement between the R. A. M. C. staff and the strategic and tactical staff. The —— division is going into action on the Somme, taking over area Q and designing to advance and take the village of —— from the enemy. The Col. R. A. M. C. on the divisional staff is at once in close consultation with the chief staff officer (G. S. I.) and with the engineer staff officer.

Estimates Number of Wounded.

It has to be decided what casualties may be expected; what of the existing roads and tracks can be given to the R. A. M. C. and for what hours; what new roads and tracks can be developed for them; what are the most sheltered tracks by which wounded may be brought in from the position when it has been won.

The development of surgical treatment with this war has been as wonderful in its way as the development of artillery tactics. Our surgery now is as conservative as the best school of American dentistry. Amputaitons have decreased greatly and wounds which once would cause death with certainty are successfully treated. The system of this new surgery may be epitomized.

Fight First Infection.

1. Prompt precaution against first infection. Almost every wound received is infected from soil or air. This infectiveness is met by training every soldier in the use of the iodine dressing for instant application to a wound, and providing him with material, by pushing the doctors' posts up so close to the firing line as to insure a more scientific and thorough disinfection as soon afterwards as possible by establishing anti-tetanus inoculation posts in the fighting line (usually they are about on the same line as the field batteries.)

2. Early clearing of wounds of bone fragments, etc.; thorough sifting of cases, with prompt dispatch to the coast of all men who can travel after preliminary surgical treatment. This involves keeping large staffs of operating surgeons at railheads and within the actual area of warfare. It saves thousands of amputations in cases of limbs smashed by shell fragments.

Rely on Nature's Aid.

3. Patient reliance on nature to repair tissue if thoroughly aseptic conditions are insured. Hospital treatment may consist for many weeks of simple cleasing and dressing with salt water. The surgical hospital nowadays puts its chief reliance on four jars; one has simply salt solution, another boric acid solution, another peroxide of hydrogen (sovereign remedy for gangrenous cosditions), another eusol, a new disinfectant liquid evolved during this war and made by dissolving in boiling water equal quantities of boric acid and chloride of lime.

4. Bold surgery to replace losses of tissue by grafting from other bodies, or by the use of suitable artificial material. This comes only after nature has been allowed and encouraged (by aseptic dressings, massage, etc.) to do her utmost in the work of restoration.

With this system cures are affected so marvelous as almost to rival those advertised by venders of patent medicines.

INDIAN CRADLE DEVICE FOR RESCUERS AT FIRES.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 14.—The Indian woman carries her papoose strapped in a basket cradle on her back because she must needs have her hands free for other things. The same idea has been utilized by William De Lude, and Albert H. Steele of Kansas City, in the construction of a saddle to be used by the firemen in rescuing unconscious or helpless persons from a burning building.

MACHINERY DISABLED ON THE "GOLD" LINER

Inspectors Find a Sudden Inrush of Water Would have Sunk the Cecilie

BOSTON, Feb. 15.—Federal inspectors at work in the engine room of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which was taken possession of in civil proceedings by United States Marshal Mitchell, reported that the ship's machinery had been tampered with since it was formally inspected last Friday. Nine valves and all the brass plates on the manifold box indicating the character and position of steam and water pipes had been removed.

While the damage in itself appeared superficial, the Inspector's said, it would have been serious in the event of a sudden inrush of water. With the plates missing, it would have been impossible to determine in time to save the ship what valves to open and what to shut. In place of the plates removed were chalked figures, which were unintelligible to the custodians.

Soon after the first discovery that all was not right with the engines, a member of the crew was found asleep on board, although it had been supposed that all had been taken off. This man was sent to join his shipmates, who are lodged at the immigration station.

The Cecilie's officers and crew were removed by the Marshal on notice being given by attorneys for the National City Bank and Guaranty Trust Company, both of New York, that they would hold him liable for any damage to the ship to the extent of their claims, which aggregate $2,500,000. These damages were claimed when Captain Charles A. Polack, at the beginning of the war put back into Bar Harbor, Me., with $4,000,000 in gold, which was consigned to bankers in London and Paris.

That the officials were greatly interested by the disclosures that the ship's engines had been tampered with was indicated by the frequent reports required from the inspectors during the day. The examination was exhaustive and was considerably hampered because the lighting system of the ship had been put of of commission, and the work had to be carried on by lantern light.

On instruction from Washington today, the men of the crew were held at the immigration station as aliens to await decision by the Department of Labor as to their status. The men had the usual hearing before a special board of inquiry, and a report was forwarded to the department by Commissioner Henry H. Skeffington.

Edward E. Blodgett, an attorney representating the New York banks which have libelled the Cecilie, said that he intended to ask for a mandate with a view of bringing about the sale of the ship. The owners, he asserted, had not taken advantage of the opportunity offered them to appeal from the court decision that the banks were entitled to damages, and he intended to ask for a mandate in view of the high cost of upkeep of the ship in present circumstances. One hundred and twenty policemen have been sworn in as Deputy United States Marshals to guard the Cecilie and the harbor police have also been asked to co-operate with the Federal authorities.

The crews of five German steamers and one Austrian at this port were confined to their vessels on orders received by local customs officials from the Treasury Department. Many members of the crew had left their vessels within the last two days, most of them with personal belongings and others with parts of the steamer equipment. About 400 men are affected. Provision was made for increasing the guards about the vessels to enforce the order.

BEST TO FORGET.

O sweet and pleasant are the joys
That oft times memory brings,
As backward swift she speeds her flight
On silent, pensive wings,
Aye, sweet in sooth it is to turn
For fair her mystic talisman
Can vanished bliss restore.

'Tis good to treasure summer's smile
When blows the wintry blast,
And live again those golden days
Too radiant for to last,
When time has taught the heart this truth
That youth fond hopes are vain,
More brilliant still they all return,
In memory's sprightly train.

The bird's blithe carol on the tree
Music of silvery bells,
Flowers, whose myriad beautious hues
Bedeck the verdant dells,
The roseate colours of the sky,
At flush of dimpling dawn,
When slowly from Sol's beaming orb
Night's curtains are withdrawn.

True friendship, Heaven's own gift the same
In fortune's smile, or frown.
That ever whispered hope's blest lore
To lonely hearts cast down,
Ah, cold indeed, and dull the heart
That feels not these enthrall,
And loves these pictures to review,
Portrayed in memory's halls.

Rare pleasures thus remembrance gives
Surpassing dear, but yet
How'er it be it seems to me
'Twere better sometimes to forget
What profit shall we gain to brood
Over some unkind word or slight,
Wasting life's little fleeting span
In useless worry day and night.

If high browed pride with eye askance
Cold pass us, in fate's adverse day
Unmindful that the Maker just
Has formed us of the self same clay
Though slander's venomed shaft should wreck
Our prospects, and besmirch our fame,
And friends we deemed so staunch and true
Prove false, unworthy of the name.

What if the bygone years were dark,
Embittered by deceit and wrong,
Why let vindictive cherished hate,
The injury to ourselves prolong,
Would be possess our souls in peace,
Free from corroding, lark, and fret,
Celestial wisdom, bids forgive,
And worldly wisdom says forget.

Our own past follies and mistakes,
What boots it to recall,
Weak mortals all, are prone to err
As withered leaves to fall.

Then let us press toward the mark
Unhindered by down draft regret,
For would we win the shining prize
We must all former faults forget.

SAYS HE WAS PRESENT WHEN MAZIE COLBERT WAS KILLED

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.— Captain of Detectives Tate said that he had received a telegram from the police of Montreal that a man named Frederick J. Farrell, 25 years old, serving in the Army Medical Corps, had surrendered himself in that city, declaring he was wanted in connection with the murder of Mazie Colbert, the advertising art model slain in her apartment here December 29. Farrell, according to the telegram, Captain Tate said, declared he was with Bernard W. Lewis, of Pittsburg, Pa., when the girl was killed and assisted Lewis in putting her in bed.

Is Doubtful of Story.

Captain Tate wired the Montreal police for further details. He said he would not send detectives to Canada to examine Farrell unless he was convinced the men had real knowledge of the crime.

Lewis committed suicide in Atlantic City when about to be arrested in connection with the Colbert case. The police, while declaring they believe Lewis killed Miss Colbert, have not formally charged him with the murder.

May Want to be Extradited.

MONTREAL, Feb. 15.—The police acknowledge that Frederick J. Farrell had given himself up here in connection with the killing of Mazie Colbert at Philadelphia.

A careful enquiry is being made into Farrell's whereabouts on the day of the murder to see if he could have been in Philadelphia on December 29. The police think that Farrell may be trying to get himself extradited in order to avoid military service.

Detective Inspector O'Connor, of the police force seems impressed with Farrell's manner of telling his story as that of a sane man. Farrell related to the Inspector in detail how Mazie Colbert was murdered.

It was one morning about Christmas time, he could not remember the exact date, he said, about 10 o'clock when he met Bernard W. Lewis at the corner of 15th and Poplar streets, Philadelphia. Lewis invited him to go with him to the woman's apartments. Soon after their arrival a quarrel took place between the woman and Lewis over money, which had been promised her. Lewis slapped her in the face. She staggered back, then regaining her balance she grabbed a paper cutter from a table and made a movement as if to stab Lewis. Lewis struck her in the face again, and she fell back, her head striking against a radiator. Then she fell to the floor unconscious, with blood streaming from a cut in her head.

By this time Lewis appeared to have gone mad. He caught the girl by the throat, banged her head on the floor, struck her in the face, and choked her. Then when he realized what he had done he was almost distracted. Together the two men lifted the body and placed it on the bed, where it was discovered. They left the house together but separated outside, and Farrell said he did not see Lewis afterward.

Farrell said he had no intention of harming the girl, but on the contrary tried to intervene in the quarrel but his peaceful advances were rejected by both. The girl was dead before he fully realized what had occurred. It was because he was conscience stricken that he gave himself up to the authorities here, he said. He wished to go back to Philadelphia to tell what he knew about the affair.

Farrell said he was born in England but had lived in the United States for some time, and was naturalized there.

An officer from Philadelphia is expected in Montreal to-morrow to question Farrell before any proceedings are begun with a view to his being taken to Philadelphia.

First Estimate For Board Of Works For 1917 Placed At $35,000

The Board of Works appropriations of $35,880 for 1917 considered at a meeting of the Board last night apparently left little room for reduction. After the individual items were discussed, Ald. Duncan moved, seconded by Ald Taylor that the estimate be left at $35,000 until the tax rate is being struck.

Last year's appropriations aggregated, $39,805 and the actual expenditure $29,538,55.

City Engineer Parsons stated that the increase provided mostly for wages. Included, however, was an extra $1,000 for street oiling, $1,800 for repairs to the Hunter Street bridge, snow cleaning $500, C.P.R. foot bridge $600, covering the advanced cost of material and a few minor items.

The 1916 expenditures and itemized appropriations for 1917 were presented by Mr. Parsons as follows.

Ald. Langford suggested that a round figure of $30,000 be placed as the Board's limit.

Ald Worth desired to know how Elm street near Cambridge could be filled in to prevent water lying there, but Mayor Duffus felt the only remedy was surface drainage.

Ald Weir intimated that he and the engineer would visit each ward this spring to inform themselves of the needs of the entire city.

Foe Sub. Smashed By British Vessel

Newport News, Va., Feb. 15. — Members of the crew of the British steamer Oxonian brought into port a story that the Oxonian sank by gunfire an Austrian submarine which attacked her in the Mediterranean on December 28th. They said that some of the men on the submarine were saved by a French patrol boat, but that several were lost.

British naval gunners aboard the Oxonian, the men said, opened upon the submarine after a torpedo launched without warning had passed close to her stern. According to the story the second shot from the Oxonian's 4.7 inch gun mounted aft, struck the submarine squarely in the middle and crumpled her up. The French patrol boat came up in response to S.O.S. calls sent out by the Oxonian, it was said, and the steamer continued on her way.

DEATH OF THOS. Q. DENCH.

Customs Inspector at Windsor, and Father of Mrs. W. R. Morris.

WINDSOR, Feb. 14.— (Special). — Thomas Q. Dench, one of the oldest and most prominent members of the local Customs staff, died here suddenly at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Up to a few days ago Mr. Dench had attended to his duties as usual. He was seventy-two years of age and a native of England. Death was due to hemorrhage of the brain. He was appointed to the Customs staff in 1890, and held the post of inspector to the time of his death. He was a prominent Oddfellow, and for twenty years had been Treasurer of Frontier Lodge, I.O.O.F., Windsor. He was also one of the prominent members of the Sons of England.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Peterborough; Mrs. W. J. Mitchell, New Orleans; and Miss Jessie, at home; and one son, Frank E. Dench, member of the head office staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Toronto.

Kitchener League Tea And Dance Success

St. Valentine's Day will be long remembered as the day of the Kitchener League tea, card party and dance. From eleven in the morning until three, when the tea room opened, the ladies in charge were busy transforming the Oriental dining room into the most fascinating ball room imaginable. Strings of tiny red hearts, huge bouquets of brightly coloured flowers, ferns, palms, cupids—no trouble or expense was spared to make the entertainment one to be long remembered. In the afternoon the band of the 247th Battalion contributed largely to the success. Mrs. Edgar Burnham, Mrs. Hartley and Mrs. Knox were assisted in the tea room by the Misses Lenore Lyall, Laura Soden, Eva Waugh, Stella Lennox, Bennington, Elliott, Wade, Bryans, Purvis, Pearl Burnham, Vera Knox, Harriette May, Toronto, Helen Kearns and Margaret Bauner. The assistants, daintily clad in white dresses, red heart shaped aprons and wearing red bands in their hair, had a busy afternoon tending the hundreds of ladies and gentlemen who came in to tea.

The card rooms in the afternoon and evening were in charge of Mrs. Cleminence, Mrs. Beall, Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Kearns, Mrs. Jas. Bogue, Miss Johns, Miss E. Flynn and Miss Maud Bogue. The winners of the prizes, too pretty cut glass dishes, were Miss Tambly and Mrs. Haslim.

The dancing committee, Mrs. Hartley and Mrs. Emile Bauner, Messrs. Linton, Haslim, Potvin, Bellegham and Hall, spared no trouble in looking after the guests. Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Hartley (Jr.), who were supervisors of the dining room, were assisted by Mesdames Wotten, Petty, Decker, Whitcroft, Curtis, Doupe, Coons, Gedes, Armstrong and McCoy. About one hundred and fifty young people attended the dance and excellent music provided by local talent was enjoyed.

The patrons of the evening present were Lt.-Col. Ackerman, Mr. C. C. Abbott, Mr. W. H. Dunsford, Mr. V. Eastwood, Mr. E. A. Peck and Mr. C. H. Pennefather.

Miss Kimberley, who was treasurer of the afternoon, reported the entertainment to be a huge success. The definite figures, however, can not be ascertained until all the tickets have been brought in.

WITH THE WESTERN ARMY

(By Philip Gibbs)

With the British Armies in the Field, Feb. 15.—Last night our troops moved forward again over that ground north of the Ancre where during a week or so there have been several sharp and successful attacks, and captured another line of trenches with their garrison of about 215 men.

It would be a stupid thing to exaggerate the importance of these small victories and to pretend that they have deep significance as showing the enemies' demoralisation. That would be going faster and farther in imagination than the realities warrant. What is happening is the almost daily seizure of small bits of ground which are not very important by themselves, but reach out to positions enormously valuable to the enemy, and therefore to ourselves, so that when the time comes we shall have these further places in the pincers which are now closing upon them. The attack last night brings us closer to Serre on the southeast, and soon Serre itself on high ground up there will be as Thiepval was, and the garrison of Thiepval, seeing the steel shears working closer, watching the inevitable coming of the inevitable doom. Serre still stands as the buttress of the German line of defence, but it is the buttress of a wall which is gradually crumbling on either side, and the men who crawl down to Serre and lie in the deep dungeons of its dugouts are always under the crash of heavy shell fire, which shakes the earth about them, and hear the drum fire of our barrages preceding the attacks which draw the British lines closer to them.

At a sale of Herefords at Denver, Col., 49 head averaged $1,012.30. The grand champion bull, Panama sold for $5,100. The next highest price was $4,250. The top on females was $2,250.

This Frees Your Skin From Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain and unless the growth is extremely stubborn, a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.

Property Committee Rejects Plan To Divert To Board Of Health All Questions Of Public Health

The Property Committee last night rejected the idea proposed by Mayor Duffus that the appointment and control of a Sanitary Inspector, the supervision of night soil collection, and other duties at present divided between the Property Committee and the Board of Health be transferred entirely to the Board of Health. The Mayor believed the work would be more efficiently handled by one body rather than by the present method of having two bosses for the department of public sanitation.

Three of the five members of the Board were also members of the Council, which body appointed the entire Board. Hence Mayor Duffus said there was no danger of it passing beyond the control of the Council.

Ald. Dobbin seconded the Mayor's motion.

Ald. Langford remarked that there was too much of that kind of release of control now.

Ald. Dobbin—"What do you refer to?"

Ald. Langford replied with an indefinite sweep that there were fads of one kind or other that was getting away from the regular way of doing things.

"What are the fads and what do you mean by the regular way," Mayor Duffus persisted.

Ald. Langford—"Take the difficulty of the nightsoil collection, all that is required is to have the back yards cleaned up in the spring as we used to do, and leave the nightsoil collection as it used to be done and paid for.

At this point reaction was in full tide.

Mayor Duffus—If there were any fads introduced in this work it was done by the Council. That is exactly what we desire to avoid. The Medical Officer of Health should be consulted when such plans are being considered. That is one of his duties just as the City Solicitor is engaged to advise us on legal matters. If this work is transferred to the Board of Health it will come under the attention of the M. O. H., because he attends every meeting. And we can feel assured there will be no fads.

Ald. Dobbin spoke in support of the idea agreeing that the basic principle of two bodies controlling the health department was a good one.

Ald. Smith moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Langford, that no action be taken, and the amendment carried, Chairman Saunders and Ald. Taylor supporting the mover and seconder. Ald. Duncan, Ald. Dobbin and Mayor Duffus voted for the motion.

Mayor Duffus—Well, Mr. Chairman, I hope you will make a howling success of your nightsoil question. Even the chairman of the Board of Health was willing to help you out by taking it over.

Complete Reversion.

Letters were read from other towns detailing their night soil collection systems. They followed the old method the city made a half-hearted effort to get away from.

Mayor Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that Alderman Saunders and Ald. Taylor be a special committee to frame up a by-law for the collection and disposal of nightsoil on the lines of the old system that prevailed here.

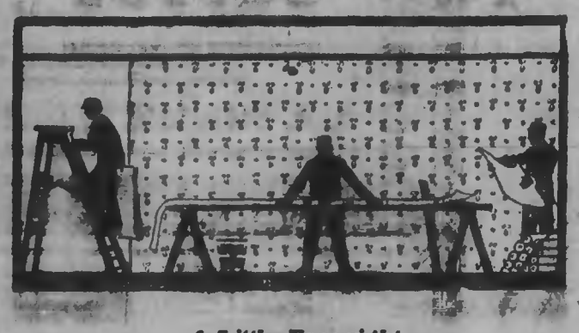
HELPFUL WALL PAPER SUGGESTIONS



A Little Foresight

Will often save you a multitude of inconveniences. For instance, to-day is February 15th. A few days will bring us into March. With March comes paper-hangers with brush and ladder—house is topsy-turvey—everything in a turmoil, and paper man fails to arrive. He must finish elsewhere before visiting you.

To be fore-warned is to be fore-armed—so make haste, purchase to-day from a complete stock, secure your man and avoid the hurry scurry in March.

About The Concern From Which We Buy

To judge quality by quantity would be an error, so when we say the "Robert Graves Co." of New York, for whom we are exclusive agents in Peterborough, are the largest makers of Wall Paper on this continent, it would not necessarily mean their's are the most tastefully coloured and patterned paper to be had but, nevertheless, they are. The Graves high standard of taste and dignity is pleasingly isolated.

For Living Room Library and Hall

You will here find something that has been designed with unusual caution, something that has its exclusive place in the above rooms. You are no doubt unfamiliar with their names, "Ooze Leather" and "Cordova Leather," but they will be familiar before the season is far advanced. We might also mention our wide assortment of blended or clouded papers.

For The Bedroom

You will show unusual interest over the bedroom effects. What women could resist the all-over Chintz designs, with their masses of wee flowers, locked together with pretty green viands? See them and you will be sure to conjure some new pleasing effect for your room. Undoubtedly your picture will be one with some wonderfully delightful chintz arrangement on windows and chintz bedecking dresser, bedspread and clothes' chest. The possibilities of these recent arrivals are indeed pleasing.

POLICE COURT ACTION IF FILES ARE CUT AGAIN

Plainclothesman Will Watch Newspapers in Reading Rooms at the Public Library in Effort to Stamp out Abuse—

A Similar Condition Exists in Peterborough

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—The Public Library Board has decided to take strenuous action to stamp out the practice of patrons of the reading rooms cutting the newspapers on file. At the last meeting of the library Board this matter was discussed at some length and reports from Librarian Sykes indicated that immediate and emphatic action was necessary.

The newspapers are to be watched, probably by a plainclothesman, and it is the intention of the Board to prosecute in Police Court anyone who is caught abusing them in any way.

The papers at the library have been a decided advantage to many in the city, but the practice of cutting them has become so prevalent that it is now a nuisance and the value of the files largely nullified.

This condition has existed in connection with the Peterborough Library for some time and several attempts have been made to catch the offenders.

MOTHERS' CLUB AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Mrs. T. F. Matthews Gave a Most Interesting Talk Yesterday

The regular monthly meeting of the Mothers' Club was held in the Y.M.C.A. parlours on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Meserve, the president, in the chair.

Mrs. T. F. Matthews gave a very interesting talk on Red Cross work, and also a vivid account of her trip to England. She told of her visit to the hospitals, and how brave the wounded were. She also saw the Lord Mayor's procession in which members of the 93rd Band took part. Mrs. Matthews' tald was very much enjoyed, and a vote of thangs was tendered her at the close.

It was decided by the Mothers' Club to take up Red Cross work, and to invite all the circles of the city, and the mothers of the Y.M.C.A boys to work with them.

The meeting closed with prayer.

ENDS LIFE JUST TO SATISFY CURIOSITY

NAVY BUGLER COMMITS SUICIDE TO SEE WHAT HAPPENS AFTER DEATH—COULD NOT "KEEP PACE."

NEWPORT, R.I. Feb. 14—Because he was curious as to where a person goes when he dies Herman Schulze, a bugler in the United States navy, attached to the training station here committed suicide in the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association by sending a bullet through his brain, aiming the revolver directly into his mouth. Schulze had a good record. His next of kin is John M Schulze, father, of No. 404 Fulton street, Jamaica, New York. The following letter was found in his pocket:—

Feb. 6, 1917. To Whom it may Concern: The reason for my taking this step is, I am tired of life, and can't keep the pace. Another reason is that I am curious as to where a person goes when he passes away. Tell Red Neagle he can blow taps over me. Herman Schulze, bugler, U.S.N."

"Red" Neagle was a comrade and also a bugler.

How Boys Can Be Kept On the Farm

A Colorado farm boy has offered these suggestions to parents who want to keep their boys and girls on the farm:

"Get good books, magazines and farm papers for the young people to read.

"Have some kind of a club for them to attend.

"Arrange matters so they can have a party or entertainment once in a while.

"Go with them to church every Sunday.

"Arrange it so they can have one or more picnics every year.

"Teach them to do all kinds of farm work by giving them a small tract of land for themselves and showing them how to raise their crops, and have them help you with your work.

"Give them a horse which they can ride or drive when they haven't anything to do or when they want to go anywhere.

"Teach them to love and be kind to animals.

"After they finish their school, send them to the state agricultural schools.

"Take time to teach them the 'hows and 'whys' of farm work."

Presumptuous as it may seem for a lad to advise his elders as to the best ways of solving one of the hardest problems, there is no small amount of helpful common sense in the ideas of this boy who at home and in school has had a chance to see ways of bettering country living.—Exchange.

Union Jack Club Held Social Evening

The Union Jack Club held a social last evening at the home of Mrs. Gray, 500 Gilchrist street. The lady members of the Club appeared in fancy dress. The maximum bid for the baskets which were auctioned off during the evening was five dollars and fifty cents, while the minimum bid was three dollars. Miss Helen Black was prettily dressed as a tulip, Miss C. Bailey as "Queen of Hearts," Miss Annie Bickersteth as a gypsy queen, Miss Mary Matthews as a Chinese lady, Miss B. Gray as night, while Miss N. McDonnell was draped in the flags of the allies.

The proceeds which amounted to twenty-four dollars will be used to purchase comforts for the boys overseas.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is so expensive, and four ounces is all you need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

THE DEPARTURE OF VON BERNSTORFF

His Picture "Took" While Hundreds Look and Cold Winds Nip—His Wife Kicks at Movie Tricks

NEW YORK, [illegible] the following [illegible] heavy guard of U. S. secret service men, 150 deputies of the customs house neutrality squad and Hoboken police, Count von Bernstorff, departing German Ambassador, and his suite, arrived in Hoboken yesterday from Washington. The party was immediately escorted to the pier of the liner Frederick VIII, and went abroad.

Collector Malone announced the departure of the ship had been deferred two hours, or until 4 o'clock. No explanation was offered. The Frederick VIII. encountered eleventh hour difficulties in obtaining coal, and it was thought this was the reason.

Von Bernstorff was accompanied by 175 members of the German diplomatic corps in the United States. Occupying the pullman coach Manhattan were the Count, Countess von Bernstorff and Prince and Princess von Hadsfeldt.

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS TAKEN.

Switched from the Pennsylvania tracks to the Jersey Central, the train of three cars and a baggage car was taken to Weehawken. There the train was switched to a freight track and taken down the shore of the Hudson River to Hoboken, where it stopped, at 7.30 at Thirteenth and Hudson streets, three blocks from the pier. Nineteen city blocks between the railroad yard at Weehawken and the end of the journey here were picketed with police guards.

Swarming up to the train, reporters and photographers waited while Prince Hadsfeldt emerged from the car and was closely followed by Count von Bernstorff. The cameras began to click.

"Take off your hats," a photographer yelled unceremoniously to the departing envoy. Bernstorff removed his hat, but it still wasn't satisfactory. "Put it on," yelled another. And the Count did.

SO HE OVER-RULED THE COUNTESS

"Count," he said, "I didn't get you. Would you take off your hat again?"

Bernstorff smiled and obligingly removed the hat again, in spite of objections from his wife, while the movie film made its historical record. "You'll take cold," Countess Bernstorff objected, and solicitously she turned up the collar of his coat.

Reporters clamoured for an interview, but the Ambassador, still smiling, waved them away. "I have nothing to say," he said. "It was all said yesterday. I am under orders."

Prince Hadsfeldt was the first member of the party to start for the liner. He entered one of the thirty waiting limousines and was whisked away to the Scandinavian-American pier.

Arriving at the pier, the party passed through the gate of a stockade that had been built around the pier 150 feet outside the landing. No one was allowed to pass this barrier except members of the diplomatic corps and persons vouched for by Bernstorff.

WILL CARRY SIX HUNDRED

The Frederick VIII. will carry a number of Consular officers from different part of the country, who have availed themselves of this opportunity to get safely home. Among the latter are: Wilhelm Benick of the Cincinnati Consulate, Dr. Karl L. Duiesberg of the San Francisco Consulate, and Dr. Paul Ron of the New Orleans Consulate. Another interesting passenger is Wolf von Igel, who was arrested in connection with alleged plots to blow up the Welland Canal and who was permitted to leave the country although under $20,000 bail on pending indictments.

The Frederick VIII. will carry one of the largest cargoes and passenger lists in her history, thus putting another notch in the record of Capt. Thomsen, who has crossed the Atlantic 425 times and is plastered with decorations.

The Frederick VIII. will sail from port with more guarantees of safety than any ship in months. The allied Governments having given Bernstorff safe conduct and the route to be taken being out of the mine zone, the liner is assured of clear passage.

In view of this, applications for passage fairly swamped the steamship offices. First and second-class cabins were thrown together, 215 persons booking passage for these cabins. In addition about 250 made third class reservations. The official German party numbers 154, making a total of more than 600 aboard.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Suffered From Severe Headaches

FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. I. N. Petershen, Dnieper, Man writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am and always will be grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches."

B.B.B. is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE CHILD IN ME.

By May Riley Smith.

She follows me about my House of Life
(This happy little ghost of my dead youth!)
She has no part in Time's relentless strife,
She keeps her old simplicity and truth
And laughs at grim mortality—
This deathless child that stays with me—
This happy little ghost of my dead youth!

My House of Life is weather-stained with years—
(O Child in Me, I wonder why you stay?)
Its windows are bedimmed with rain of tears—
Its walls have lots their rose — its thatch is gray—
One after one its guests depart—
So dull a host is my old heart—
O Child in Me, I wonder why you stay!

For jealous age, whose face I would forget,
Pulls the bright flower you give me from my hair
And powders it with snow—and yet—and yet
I love your dancing feet and jocund air
And have no taste for caps of lace
To tie about my faded face:
I love to wear your flower in my hair!

O Child in Me, leave not my House of Clay
Until we pass together through its door!
When lights are out, and Life has gone away,
And we depart to come again no more
We comrades, who have travelled far
Will hail the twilight and the star,
And gladly pass together through the Door!

A BRITISH CRUISER IS OFF TAMPICO READY TO PROTECT FUEL SUPPLY OF THE NAVY

Evidence of Prussian Influence on Mexican Policies Said at Washington to Have Prompted Precautionary Measure —Carranza, However, is Not in Physical Control of Fields, Owing to Domination There of Independent Rebel Chief.

COST MEXICO $15,000 A DAY

WASHINGTON, D.C., February 16.—Alive to the vital necessity of protecting the fuel supply for her navy, Great Britain already has a cruiser patrolling the coast of Tampico, Mexico, according to private advices which have reached this city from that port. In circles which usually are closely in touch with Latin-American affairs, it was stated that the British had forseen the present critical situation in Mexico months ago and had prepared to land marines and later troops, if necessary, to protect the wells of the Aguila Company, a British concern which supplies the British navy with oil fuel.

In administration circles growing concern with regard to the Mexican situation is shown. The menace in Carranza's note to neutrals, indicative of Prussian influence endeavouring to shape Mexican policies, is appreciated at its full value. That the Germans in Mexico can strike their most telling blow at the Allies through cutting off the British fuel oil supply is well understood by Entente diplomatists here, and it is understood that steps already have been taken toward a working agreement by which either the British will be allowed to land troops or in the event of war between the United States and Germany American forces will be used for the protection of the Tampico district.

Persons in touch with the situation in the Tampico field said Germans there were closely watched by agents of the oil companies and that every effort was made to protect the oil fields from damage. Oil men say that the dynamiting of one well would mean the draining of an extensive district, as was the case with the famous Dos Bocas well, of the Aguila Company, which caught fire, ran wild and ruined a district measured in square miles.

Possibility for harm through Prussian influence with Carranza is minimized by the fact that the First Chief is in physcial control of virtually none of the oil fields. His troops hold Tampico, the capital of the oil district and a shipping point for light draught vessels; and presumably hold also Tuxpam, an Aguila and Standard Oil shipping point, although rebel troops are known to be within a few miles of each town.

The remainder of the oil fields is under the domination of General Manuel Pelaez, an independent leader. His control extends not only over the oil district in Northern Vera Cruz, but his outposts are reported to be within eight or ten hours' horseback ride of Mexico City.

Pelaez is reported to be owner of extensive holdings in the oil districts. Reports from Mexico state that he levies tribute, as do other revolutionary leaders, for the maintenance of his forces, but that in return he really gives the promised protection for property. Ruthless destruction has not marked the progress of his forces, as has been the case with most independent rebel bands.

MAKING IT PLAIN

A common mistake which some people continue to make is to accept from a druggist an "extract" of cod livers thinking they will get the benefits of an emulsion of cod liver oil.

The difference is very great. An "emulsion" contains real cod liver oil, which has had the hearty endorsement of the medical profession for many years, while an "extract" is a product which contains no oil and is highly alcoholic.

Scott's Emulsion is the standard emulsion of the world. It guarantees the highest grade of real cod liver oil, skilfully blended with glycerine and hypophosphites, and is endorsed by good physicians everywhere.

Cattle Markets.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 86 cars, with 442 cattle, 107 calves, 1,858 hogs, and 191 sheep and lambs.

The lower cattle prices this week are due in a large measure to the fact that there is practically a railroad embargo on beef shipments. The abattoirs are loaded up with beef which they cannot ship out. Cars of beef leave the abattoir plants and after that are lost sight of, while the abattoir people are deluged with complaints from all over as to the non-arrival of expected deliveries in the country. Trade at the cattle market has, therefore, been slower, and prices, except for the very choicest fresh cattle, have declined from 25c. to 40c. since a week or ten days ago.

OUR SERIAL STORY

The Red Paper

By C. HOTCHKISS

"Well, sir, it is nothing less than the greatest of crimes coupled with the meanest. I mean murder and robbery—if you insist upon having the truth."

If Wentworth had been struck in the face by the man before him he could hardly have been more stunned. Murder! His father charged with murder! The idea was too preposterous. And robbery! Captain Wentworth, the soul of honor, a thief! The young man stared at Merridale, less stirred by the charge than by the temerity of the person who had made it. He now saw, or thought he saw, the character of the person who had traduced the memory of his dead parent. He suddenly hated the fellow, but he was too well poised to break into a tirade of denunciation. He got a firm hold on himself and rose to his feet.

"And you, sir; do you really believe it?" he asked, speaking with dangerous calmness.

"That is neither here nor there," said Merridale, with the air of a man who sees and is ready to push what he thinks is an advantage. "But I assure you, sir, that once I am in possession of that paper the man in question would be forever silent."

"What is his name? Where can he be found?"

The Southerner's face lighted. "I will not tell you his whereabouts, Mr. Wentworth; that would be too much like crowding the mourners; but if you wish to come to terms with me I am willing to tell you his name. It is Welch. Did you ever hear of him?"

"No. And to through him you would attempt to blackmail me even as he blackmailed my father."

"You are speaking rather too plainly; but I will say that in the event of your refusal to give up the paper I will no longer hold him to silence as I have been doing. The thing is useless to you—you could not even read it—and now that the captain is dead Welch alone has the key."

Wentworth's blood was boiling with anger. It was all that he could do to keep his hands from the new grinning man who faced him and who seemed to be unaware of his own lack of skill in playing his hand.

"You now say Welch alone has the key. But a few moments sonce you told me that Grace Merridale was aware of the contents of that paper."

"I told you nothing of the kind," retorted Merridale, his face flushing darkly as he realised his break."

"I say you did. You have trapped yourself."

"You are a liar, sir. I did not."

That was the climax. Wentworth forgot himself. The policy he had formed of drawing this man on until he could learn something definite was lost sight of at the epithet, and in his sudden whirl of passion. He took a step towards Merridale. "You are a villain!" he shouted, "mated with another villain!" and with that he shot out his right fist.

It did not take Merridale entirely off his guard. He had quickly lifted his arm to protect himself and the blow caught his hand as it reached the level of his chin. Wentworth's fist fell there but its force was deadened by the fat fingers of the other. The fellow staggered back under the blow of the impact, caught his legs in a chair, and rolled to the floor.

For a moment he was dazed; then he got to his feet with an oath; but, as John advanced, he ran to the door, and into the hall, bringing the door to behind him with a slam. There was a sound of a clicking lock, the meaning of which Wentworth was too excited to realize; then all was quiet.

The thoroughly angered young man stood waiting for Merridale's return, but as the minutes slipped by he went to the door only to discover that it was locked from the outside, and was firm. It was not a heavy door, as doors go, but it was sufficient to bar his way from the house. He sat down and tried to calm himself, a thing he finally succeeded in doing, for unthought of by him time flew along, and he suffered no interruption. He did not consider the possible consequences of his assault, nor could he, try as he might, trace backward the sequence of events till he came to their source.

He was entirely satisfied that his host was no better than Welch and he was now doubly sure that, come what might, neither would have the red paper unless it passed through the hands of Grace Meridale. To this he pledged his honor anew. As for Welch—he would now make it his business to find him, and find exactly of what his father was accused. He knew that the captain has commenced his career on the sea, and it was possible that in the wilder days of his youth he might have been guilty of something which for blackmailing purposes, had been construed into major crimes.

But it could have been neither murder nor robbery! The thing was impossible! And yet as the young man sat alone he was fearful of what might be uncovered, and this, too, with no lack of loyalty to the memory of his dead parent.

His train of thought was long and deep. When he roused himself, he became aware that the daylight was on the wane—that it had already become dusk—that he was alone, and had been undisturbed for something like two hours. He got up with a start, and looked from the window. The street was still filled with shouting children, and the lights were beginning to twinkle from the house opposite. He saw at once that to attempt to attract outside attention would not only be difficult but that its success would result in gathering a mob.

He again walked to the door. It was still fast. For a time he tried to pick the lock with his knife, but soon saw that nothing short of smashing it would free him. Then a thought struck him. Perhaps Merridale had succumbed to the force of his blow and was lying helpless somewhere. He hammered and kicked on the panels, but without effect; the two flats below, he now remembered, were not occupied.

It had by this grown to be deep gloom in the room, and the feeling he was a prisoner rendered him desperate. He took one turn about the apartment to steady his thoughts, then picking up the heaviest chair he swung it aloft and brought it down on the door close to the knob.

Under the force of the blow the chair went to pieces in his grasp, and the panel flew to splinters. Reaching his hand through the ragged opening the young man felt the key in the lock and turned it. The door swung open. Only the darkness of the private hall met his gaze. Striking a match he moved along the hall until he found a gas bracket, which he lighted; then he explored the flat, illuminating each room until the place was ablaze with light. But his hope, or fear, of finding the man he had struck was groundless; save for himself, the flat was empty. He was as much a prisoner as ever.

A slight examination showed him that the door leading to the outer hall was fastened from the outside, or locked, and the key taken away; he also noticed that the panels were stout and heavy, and moreover, the private hall at that point was so narrow as to preclude the possibilty of swinging a chair with any effect.

Without proper tools he could not get out; he must look for some other mode of obtaining his liberty.

He thought of the fire-escape. On looking from the window of what was intended for the dining room, now a bare, unfurnished apartment, he saw that egress to the iron ladder was through the kitchen window, and he then found that the kitchen was being used as a storeroom only, it being piled ceiling high with furniture, trunks and packing cases. It presented a mass which would have taken two strong men a couple of hours to remove. It was now fairly plain to the young man that the flat was being used for sleeping purposes only unless, indeed, it was but a trap; escape by the fire-escape was impossible.

Suddenly a thought struck him—a thought that sent a wave of fever through his veins. Had Merridale deliberately locked him in that he might go to the studio and ransack it for the paper? Such a man might be equal to such an act.

Wentworth's sudden emotion did not rise from any fear for the loss of the paper; it was too well hidden for that, but the possibility of so high-handed a proceeding made him desperately anxious to get out of the flat; indeed, the matter was imperative; he was a prisoner, an unlawful prisoner, and any course that freed him would be justified. He next thought of sliding down the dumb-waiter rope, but a glance into the narrow black hole dissuaded him, not only from its repellent aspect, but because he realized he could not escape that way—the waiter being at the bottom, would itself block the entrance to the basement.

As he drew back from the dumb-waiter shaft his mind reverted to the corded trunks and the air well by the alcove window. Hurrying into the room he examined the ropes to determine their strength, and was surprised to find that he had never seen the like of such lines, nor was he aware that he was wasting his time in questioning the strength of a regular Texas lariat. He saw that if one was not sufficient, two would more than hold his one hundred and sixty-seven pounds. He would go the air well if they were long enough.

He looked from the window. It was now fairly dark outside, but sufficient light came from the sky to show the small, paved court and the cellar windows some thirty odd feet below. That distance would be a mere bagatelle for him.

With nervous haste he unknotted the lines from the two trunks, fastened the ends together, tied the doubled cord to the leg of the bed which he pushed close to the window, and then threw out the coil. The line reached to within eight or ten feet of the pavement.

He ran to the room which had undoubtedly been occupied by a young lady; he had seen some towels there. Save for a bed, bureau, a chair, and an open trunk, the little room was bare.

There was a delicate perfume on the air, a perfume suggesting femminity; the odor was a strange one, though even then it impressed him.

Taking the towels, he went round and extinguished all the gas in the flat, returning to the alcove.

Stripping off his coat, he threw it to the court below; then winding the towels around his hands, he took a firm grasp on the double lines and swung himself from the window.

CHAPTER IV.
TOM HARPER.

The windows of the adjoining flats were at the extreme end of the air-shaft, and no one saw the young man, as for a moment or two he hung swinging in space. Getting a grip on the line with his legs, he loosened his hold and let himself slide slowly, but not so slowly but that he felt the heat of the friction and he knew the towels were being eaten away. By the time his legs felt the end of the line the burning of his hands became unbearable, and he let go his grasp, falling some ten feet, yet alighting with less of a shock than he anticipated.

He leaned against the wall to catch his breath after his exertion, then put on his coat and looked at the window in front of which he had fallen. It was a dingy unwashed sash, and there was no light behind it; he knew, however, that it must open into the cellar and without ado he kicked it in.

Sapper Hartley.

SAPPER A. HARTLEY, OF THE A. COMPANY, CANADIAN ENGINEERS, whose home address is 808, TRAFALGAR-STREET, LONDON, ONTARIO, is one of many who have written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. He says:—"As a constant user of Dr. Cassell's Tablets I would like to add my testimony to their value. I used them when I was in the South African War, and, finding the benefit of them there, have taken them since whenever I felt run-down. I always recommend them, for I know they do all that is claimed for them. In my opinion they are the best tonic anyone can take for loss of appetite, poorness of the blood, or general weakness of the system. We have had a lot of hard training here, and some time ago I began to feel the strain, but I got some Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and the boys are surprised at what a difference they made in me. I mean to have some with me always on active service."

Dr. Cassell's Tablets put new life and vigour into weak, overstrained people. They nourish the nerves, enrich the blood, strengthen the general system, and create that snap and fitness which make life a joy. Take a course of them, and health and vital energy will soon be yours.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

LANDING A DANGLER

By SADIE OLCOTT

"Bess, how long are you going to keep Ben Husted dangling about you? I think it is a girl's duty either to accept a suitor or send him away."

"Aunt Martha, it's not I who am keeping Ben dangling; it's Ben who is keeping me dangling."

"In that case I haven't any sympathy for you. A girl who can't bring a man to the point deserves to remain an old maid."

"What can I do?"

"What can you do? There are hundreds of things you can do. The only thing you can't do and win is to let Ben presume that any time he makes up his mind he wants you he can get you. There are many reasons why a young man assumes that he doesn't wish to marry and very few that induce him to take a wife. He's not likely to look to the loneliness of old age without wife or children. He's having a good time in his youth spending all his money on himself, and it looks to him like halving his blessings and doubling his cares to wed."

"What course would you propose to me, Aunt Martha?"

"Man is a selfish creature, and you must attack him through his selfishness. First create a desire to possess you, then let him understand that he is liable to lose you. Give him certain privileges, but not too many. Don't sit on one end of the sofa while he sits on the other. Remember always that he is the fly, you the spider."

"Never mind that. How shall I bring him to the point?"

"By means of a rival."

"But I know no one that I can use for that purpose."

"I do."

"Whom?"

"Myself."

The girl laughed.

"What is hidden is more terrifying than what is revealed. If you used a man openly quite likely Ben would be smart enough to see that he was a fool. Use a concealed lover. I will be that imaginary youth who is pleading with you to change his misery into happiness. When you see Ben again appear to have something on your mind. If he offers to caress you put him away, but gently, as though you were in doubt as to whether you wish his caresses or not. Keep this up till he has gone, and if he expects a parting kiss don't respond."

"Then what?"

"Leave that to me."

Bess that same evening played the part her aunt had laid down for her and sent her lover away puzzled. He did not call again for a week, and Bess was perturbed. But her aunt braced her up and when the dangler came again told her to go to her room. Aunt Martha went down to receive the caller and announced that her niece was quite indisposed and "must give up the pleasure of seeing Mr. Husted this evening." He manifested an abnormal curiosity as to the cause of the indisposition, whereupon Aunt Martha said that her niece was in a state of mental indecision upon an important question that had arisen and required an early answer.

"Is that the answer?" asked the young man looking hard at a letter the good lady held in her hand, the superscription on which Mr. Husted recognized as Bess' handwriting. Aunt Martha looked down at the letter, of which she was apparently not conscious, looked confused and stammered something about the missive not being a final answer. As yet her niece had not reached a decision.

"Has any old friend turned up recently?" asked Ben.

"Old friend!" exclaimed Aunt Martha. "What put that into your head?" The question was asked in a tone and manner to indicate that the guess had hit the mark. Then the lady began to talk about the weather, and Mr. Husted made irrelevant replies.

"Can't I see Bess for just a few moments?" he asked presently, breaking away from the weather.

"I don't think so," replied Aunt Martha, "but I will see. The truth is she's going away tomorrow and is very busy packing."

Leaving Mr. Husted pacing the floor, Aunt Martha pretended to go up to her niece's room. Instead she went to her own room, where she remained ten minutes—they were very long minutes to the waiting lover—then went down to him and told him that her niece had disrobed for the night and was ever so sorry that she would be unable to see him again till her return, which was uncertain.

"Would you mind carrying a message to her?" asked the perturbed Ben.

"I'll take it to her with pleasure."

Ben took an old letter from his pocket, tore off a blank piece and wrote on it:

"What does this mean? Can it be that you have gone back on your promise?"

Folding it, he handed it to Aunt Martha, who took it to her niece and told her to write on it:

"What promise?"

The reply was, "To be my wife."

"You see, my dear," said Aunt Martha, "how easy it is to win a man—if he can be won at all, and I believe any man can be won if you go about it in the right way."

This ended the campaign, for there were no more notes. Ben answered the last one in person, and, of course, the rest of it doesn't come into the story.

Was Completely Laid Up With Severe Case of Piles

Sworn Statement From a Man Who Has Unbounded Confidence in Dr. Chase's Ointment

There is no longer any debate as to the best treatment for itching, bleeding or protruding piles But since about one person in every four suffers more or less from this annoying ailment it is necessary to keep on telling the people about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Wm. Shaw, Island Brook, Que., writes: "I am writing this to let you know the benefit that I have derived from your Ointment. I have suffered more or less for years with protruding piles and last winter I got so bad I was completely laid up with them. I went to our local storekeeper and asked him if he had anything that was good for piles and he recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box and took it home and used it according to the directions and for over one year I have not been troubled with piles. I had tried other remedies before but they only gave me temporary relief and that one box of your Ointment did more for me than all the others, as I have not been troubled since last winter. I consider it to be the best remedy for piles I have ever used and shall always carry a box with me, although I don't think I will need it for piles. We have used it for other purposes in the family, such as burns, and cuts and scratches, etc., and my wife says it is one of the best remedies for such purposes we have ever had in the house. Although you only charge sixty cents a box for it it is well worth $5.00 a box for anyone who is afflicted with piles. Now you can use this letter if you wish or refer anyone to me who wants to know about it for piles. I might say that in my business I am known all over the English portion of Quebec, and am having this statement sworn to before a Justice of the Peace."

Mending Hints.

Should you happen to tear your kid gloves when out, as frequently happens, go into the nearest drug store and purchase a roll of adhesive tape. Cut off a piece sufficiently large to cover the damaged place. Draw the torn edges carefully together and apply the piece of tape to the spot on the wrong side of the glove, pressing down firmly. But it is advisable when you have an opportunity to remove the patch, draw the tear together with a needle and thread and replace the tape. The place will never be noticed and this paster will last indefinitely.

When basting waists or fitted linings do it with a machine, using a long stitch. It is much quicker than hand sewing and will not rip when trying on the garment. It can be pulled out quite as easily. Shirring and gathering can be done more evenly on the machine than by hand. Loosen the tension and put on a long stitch. Sew along the line for gathering. When finished pull the upper thread and the gathers are even.

Worth Knowing.

Another fad is to embroider three eyelets at the top of each stocking. Through these eyelets ribbons attached in the short garters of the corset are passed. The ribbons are tied in pert bows and the wearer is spared the anxiety of constantly wondering whether the hooks of her garter are tearing her stocking.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine loosen the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortread, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

One of the important things that has happened in the last few years in the increase of sense in dressing infants and children. Time was when they were swathed in flannels, bandages and stiff materials that caught the dirt, and other evils that hindered many from reaching maturity were folds about the feet, around the neck and a hood over the head. To-day the children have a niche to themselves in the world of dress and we find them healthy and comfortable.

Any woman with a child to dress will be interested in the little frock pictured. The waist is cut on plain lines, made with front closing and is finished at the neck with a cape collar of contrasting goods. A one piece gathered skirt allows freedom of movement necessary for the happiness of a lively child. Long or short sleeves may be chosen, and while the pockets may be omitted they really look as if they belong to the dress.

Gingham, linen, galatea or the lightweight woollen goods in checked pattern and trimmed with buttons will give a pretty little frock. Just now the shops are showing an assortment of spring and summer goods that will arouse any one's enthusiasm. The "eye value" of the dress should prompt you to copy the model.

The dress pattern No. 8,189 cuts in sizes 2 to 8 years. To make in size 4 requires 1⅞ yards of 36 inch material and ½ yard of 18 inch contrasting goods.

To obtain the pattern send ... to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

A British Cruiser Is Off Tampico Ready to Protect

Reports brought from the Tampico district state that Pelaez was forced into rebel operations as a matter of self-interest to protect his own holdings and that he personally is as much opposed to wanton destruction of wells as any holder of oil leases in the district. Persons acquainted with him say that as long as he remains in control the danger of a campaign of destruction in the Tampico district will be minimized.

$15,000 A DAY COST OF MEXICAN EMBARGO.

If General Carranza enforced his proposal to neutral nations to stop the shipment of supplies to the belligerent nations he would take approximately $15,000 gold a day from the treasury of the provisional government. This is derived from the export duty on oil alone, according to leading Latin-Americans and others here who are familiar with the situation. It was also said that the revenue from the oil fields was practically all the gold which now flows into the Mexican treasury.

The question asked on all sides was, "Would a Mexican leader deplete his treasury to the point of exhaustion for such a cause as is outlined by General Carranza in his communication to neutral nations?" and the answer was emphatically negative.

The consensus was that the First Chief's note was the opening gun in the German campaign to embarrass the United States in Mexico, not only by depleting the revenue of American owned wells but by attempting to embroil America with Great Britain and other neutrals who get their oil supply from Mexico in a dispute over the provisions of the Monroe Doctrine.

AIMED AT BRITISH OIL.

It was admitted on all sides that the move was aimed primarily at the British oil supply, but the belief was expressed that this could not be stopped.

The American interests are for the most part near Tampico. Wells owned by the Pierce Oil Corporation and other American concerns are of great value. One well alone on the Tanesi River had a flow of 260,000 barrels a day. The oil averages in value $1 a barrel. Americans managed these properties until President Wilson's warning last summer that Americans would better leave Mexico. Then because Germans were available and received the best treatment of all neutrals from Mexican officials most of the concerns took German managers.

Those familiar with the oil fields said that with a little dynamite they could be destroyed for all time.

Military experts have estimated that because the fields near Tampico are scattered and because of the nature of the country 20,000 men would be needed to protect them. Armed motor boats and automobile batteries would be needed in large numbers. However, it was admitted these fields could be destroyed with but little difficulty and probably before an armed American force could be sent there to protect them.

The most noticeable thing in Tampico last summer was the presence of between 150 and 200 German army reservists. They stopped in the only German club in Mexico City. Their presence was noticeable because the thermometer was ranging between 120 and 130 Fahrenheit each day and there were millions of flies and mosquitoes and little food. Americans and others asked themselves why the Germans did not leave for pleasanter climes, and the generally accepted answer was that they were there to damage the oil supply if possible.

General Mafarrate's Blunder.

General Nafarrate was the Carranza commander at Tampico last summer, and he issued a manifesto that the oil companies must pay to the government in food and supplies one-fourth of the value of the oil exported. Exportations ceased at once. A few days later General Nafarrate was summoned by General Carranza to Mexico City, where he was relieved of his command.

The provisional President relieved the Tampico commandant because the order which resulted in stopping exportations of oil cut too much gold out of the Mexican Treasury — gold which General Carranza needed and was said to be using for his daily official needs.

This incident is interesting in view of the proposals of Carranza to take action which would mean stopping the export of oil from these fields. It was this and similar instances which led the Latin American colony to believe that the General already had funds in hand or had excellent assurances that the funds thus deducted from his income would be supplied elsewhere, presumably by the Berlin government.

"I cannot believe that a man of Carranza's character would willingly give up the revenue derived from the oil fields by the Mexican government for humanity's sake, as his note puts it," said a Latin American who lives in Tampico. "The government gets six cents gold on every barrel of oil shipped.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

Come From the Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer with pains and headaches and whose face is pale and their blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of life by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheeks and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of all Stomach Trouble, said to be Due to Acidity

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bicarated magnesia, which, by neutralizing the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralize the acid and the stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity, sour stomach or heartburn should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from their druggist, and take a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes, if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most efficacious in all cases.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

WOMEN OF BRITTANY.

Working as Labourers and Mechanics to Support the Home.

"I shall never forget my visit to a farm in Brittany run by women," says a Danish woman. "I arrived there in the midst of harvest time. There were very few men, merely a few old ones to whom were given the easiest jobs. Women mowed the grain. No mowing machines, self-binders or combined harvesters for them, not even horses to bring the crop into the barns. Every heavy golden sheaf was carried home on the shoulders of women or children.

"I have met a young wife, still in her teens, whose husband fought in the inferno of Verdun, the chatelaine of a beautiful chateau and bearer of a name famous in the history of France, working in the fields at the side of her servant girl harvesting the grain of her broad acres. In the chief town of Morbihan I have seen women mechanics of all kinds from blacksmiths to bricklayers. I watched one of these latter carrying on her well poised head a load of mortar, watched her building a wall with the hand of an expert, using her trowel with inimitable grace."

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be indubed to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimetary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaitation. We must remember that inthan outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

GERMANY IS PREPARING TO STRIKE A GIGANTIC BLOW IN THE SPRING

Entire Civilian Population is Being Mobilized--The Sufferings of the German People Are Increasing But They Do Not Influence Field Marshall Von Hindenburg Who is Striving For a Military Victory in 1917---One Million German Women Commanded by Women Officers Will Replace Men Needed For the Firing Line---Civilian Mobilization Reaches Into the Public Schools.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Carl W. Ackerman—With Ambassador Gerard.)

PARIS, February 16. — Germany is under-nourished. The food and economic conditions throughout the country are steadily growing worse. There is endless graft in the food distribution plan. The Empire's transportation problems are increasing, but Field Marshall Von Hindenburg's plans go forward just the same. The Hindenburg idea is coldly calculated on the German army alone. Under his plans the whole nation is concentrating to strengthen the army. A million women, commanded by women officers, are projected to form a vast industrial organization working for the Fatherland and replacing men needed for the army. Therefore Germany's efforts in 1917 may be expected to exceed any heretofor made. They will be the nation's final attempt. The whole Empire is at work for this year's struggle.

DELUGED WITH REQUESTS FOR FOOD.

The Americans who left Berlin with Ambassador Gerard were deluged with thousands of requests for food from their supplies. One German physician asked an American family to give him his pay for medical services in food not in money. The police are powerless to stop most of this graft because it is influential Germans who are the greatest offenders, but the graft does not stop with influential citizens. Friends of magistrates get extra cards. Food cards are stolen. Field Marshall Von Hindenburg does not consider the transportation difficulties of the people. He believes in a military victory, and he is hoping to achieve that victory this year, before it is necessary again to face the Socialists and other peace advocates. The mobilization of women workers is but one step. Women's activities will take them right up to the firing lines. Every man able to bear arms must aid in striking at the enemy when the crisis arrives.

SCHOOL CHILDREN ARE BEING USED.

Certain women directors would be sent to headquarters on the various fronts to direct their auxiliary forces in co-operation with the military commanders. Already the civilian mobilization has reached into the public schools. Students of high schools are drilling to take the places of firemen and street cleaners, while farmers have pledged their sons and daughters for work.

Serious Food Riots Occur in Holland

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

THE HAGUE, February 16.—Serious food riots in which the crowds were only dispersed after repeated charges by the police and Hussars hurriedly called upon for reinforcement, occurred here last night. The food situation was regarded to-day as having reached an acute stage in Holland. Primarily the shortage in food has been due to the fact that Holland of all neutrals is most affected by blockades which the belligerent nations of Europe have established about her.

AMERICANS WARNED TO LEAVE AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, February 16. — Americans throughout Austria have been quietly warned by their fellow countrymen to leave Austria-Hungary at once. In official circles a break between Austria and the United States is expected any time.

BRITISH SHIPS SUNK TO-DAY.

LONDON, February 16.—The following British ships are announced to have been sunk to-day: "Longacre," 2,777 tons; "Greenland," 1,753 tons; "Percy Roy," 110 tons; and a trawler.

AMERICAN LINER IS RETURNING.

NEW YORK, February 16.—The American line steamship "Philadelphia," unarmed, is to-day on her way to New York from Liverpool. She left Wednesday morning. The Philadelphia has aboard sixty-one first-class passengers, sixty-six second, and one hundred and ten steerage.

WENT DOWN WITH FLAG FLYING.

ROME, February 16.—The American schoner "Lyman M. Law" went down after the bombs of an Austrian submarine were exploded in her hold, while flying the American flag. Captain McDonough said to-day his crew took to the boats on instructions and very soon afterward the Austrians blew up the ship.

RATIONS REDUCED ONE-HALF.

LONDON, February 16.—Germany has reduced by one-half, the rations set aside for the civilian population in Belgium.

BERLIN CLAIMS AN ADVANCE.

BERLIN, February 16.—Four enemy lines on a width of 2,600 metres and a depth of half a mile, were stormed and taken by the German forces around Hill 185 in the Champagne district, the official statement said to-day. The German forces took 836 prisoners and twenty machine guns.

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS REVERED.

COPENHAGEN, February 16.—The Berliner Tageblatt to-day declared that negotiations between Austria and America over the submarine warfare have been broken off, according to Berlin advices.

LT.-COL. ACKERMAN APPEALS TO LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Commanding Officer of 247th Battalion Asks For Assistance of That Organization in Filling Up the Ranks of the Peterboro' Battalion

OBSTACLES TO RECRUITING

"Are the men who have not enlisted and can enlist physical cowards, or is it selfishness that holds them?" was the vexed question before the Council of Women yesterday afternoon, following an urgent appeal by Lt.-Col. Ackerman for the active support of women in recruiting.

The meeting opened as usual with silent prayer. Mrs. Harstone was in the chair in the absence of the President, Mrs. F. C. Neal.

Play Grounds.

Mrs. Mowat, convenor of the play grounds committee, read her report, showing the need of swimming facilities. In 1916 two play grounds were opened; one at the Central and the other at King Edward School. The second, which is in the more congested section of the city, proved a great success, there being a daily attendance, save for circus day, of over 150 children. On the days the children were taken to swimming places crowds came. The boys were taken to the Y.M.C.A. and the girls to the river. The great attendance proved the need of a bathing place.

The sale of carnations on Mothers' Day netted $200, which was given to the play grounds fund, $210 was netted from the sale of rags, and $400 was raised by the committee to carry on the scheme. The idea of going ahead with the scheme for swimming baths was endorsed by Mrs. Harstone, who explained for the good of this generation, should be supported, notwithstanding war calls. The children must be looked after as well as their fathers who are fighting. Mrs. Mowat urged the saving of all rags, but silk.

Col. Ackerman.

Col. Ackerman called attention to the apparent lull in recruiting. His object in addressing the Council of Women was to interest the women in the campaign, which will be carried on by the Five Hundred Club, which, on Sunday, will launch a good, old-time recruiting campaign. He will go to every club and organisation in Peterborough, of which eighty per cent. are already engaged in war work. Without the help of these societies in recruiting there can be no great success. This year there is more work to do and harder efforts are needed. The papers assist, the banners on the street are always before us, but like other things, the people have got "fed up" on the present methods. Some have promised to help, but leave it to others to go.

Obstacles in Recruiting.

The great obstacles in recruiting are the criticisms by people who feel that Peterborough has done its bit, and sent enough. Those in the trenches for over two and a half years don't say they've done enough or feel it, either. This argument is generally advanced in defence or relatives and friends who are shirking. Again the manner in which military organizations are handled is criticised, but while suggestions or remedies are being offered the war is going ahead more bitterly to-day than before.

"Now, the question is," said Col. Ackerman, "with many, how can we approach eligibles without humiliating them?" A personal canvass just now would be more effective than that which is being carried on at present. The Five Hundred Club hand the name of an eligible, of which there are 387 with no excuse, to five different people, each of whom will approach the man and either secure him as a recruit or embarass him into moving out of town. Col. Ackerman lately attended a dance, in which there were over 150 apparently eligibles enjoying the music and all that goes with a dance while their brothers dodged bullets and stood knee-high in mud. A "non-com." asked permission for five minutes to speak, and was refused. "This is a startling illustration of the need of a personal and Sixteen Peterborough recruits for the 256th Railway Construction Battalion will leave Peterborough on Monday for Toronto, whence they will leave for an Eastern point in a few days. Arrangements have been made to have the first draft receive a fitting send-off. They will leave on the 11:40 G. T. R. train, and will be paraded to the station by the Band of the 247th. This is the first body of troops to leave Peterborough for some time.

Two new Coe Hill recruits were added to the strength of the 247th Battalion yesterday in the person of Pte. Richard Gunter and Wm. Crosby.

Mrs. D. J. Perry, Simcoe street, has received word that her husband Capt. D. J. Perry, of the Canadian Forestry Battalion, is suffering from severe bruises and scalp wounds as a result of an accident. The message came from Dr. Morton of the C.A.M.C.

Accounts May Not Be Transferred

Board of Education, the Utilities Commission and the City Trust Commission May Ignore the Dictum of the Council

The transfer of the city's bank account from the Bank of Montreal to the Bank of Toronto finds little favour in municipal circles or the public. "Don't swap horses while crossing the stream," is an old adage which one prominent citizen used in expressing his opinion of the proposed change. The "stream" in this case is represented by abnormal conditions, an uncertain money market, and many other financial pitfalls into which a municipality is prone to fall. There is much speculation as to the attitude that will be taken by the Board of Education, the Utilities Commission and the City Trust Commission. Whether all three municipal bodies will transfer their accounts remains to be seen. The dictum of the City Council does not include any of the three, and it is a matter of choice whether or not they move over with the city. The two commissions and the School Board are first-class accounts, and without them the city's account would not be such a desirable asset. The city's account is usually represented by an overdraft until the middle of the year when the taxes begin to come in.

Children Started Fire While Alone In Their Home

"Mister our house is on fire, will you come in and put it out."

Such was the tearful request of a sobbing child to Police Constables Blade and Deannard yesterday afternoon as they were driving along Stewart street.

P. C. Deannard immediately rushed into the house which was filling with smoke, and upstairs found an incipient blaze in a clothes closet. The three children had evidently been left alone, and looking for something in the closet, lighted the match, which fell to the floor and caught fire to a mattress that was stored there. The children had the presence of mind to immediately seek assistance, and P. C. Deannard quickly extinguished the fire by carrying water from the bathroom. He then called up the Fire Department to make sure that everything was left in a safe condition.

The presence of the policemen on Stewart street, by the way, is explained that they are on the night beats this week and were airing their respective families, or parts of them. It was an inviting day yesterday, and more than the policemen responded to the very welcome invitation of the weather man. P. C. Blade produced a double-seated "carry-all," and, with his two little girls, gathered in P. C. Deannard and his twins. It was quite a display the policemen with justifiable pride presented in their "promenade en voiture," and P. C. Deannard had three other husky youngsters at home for whom there was no room in the sleigh.

"The Signs of the Times"

Subject of Address by Rev. J. McNichol in St. Paul's Church To-night

The first of the series of monthly lectures dealing with the signs of the times and Bible prophesies will be delivered this evening in St. Paul's church by Rev. J. McNichol, Principal of the Toronto Bible College. The meetings are undenominational in character and are open to the public.

There are numerous indications that many of the great prophesies of the scriptures are being fulfilled in the world events of to-day. Those acquainted with these prophesies are naturally following with keen interest the trend of world events. To-night's meeting will be the opening one of the series and the subject will be "The Signs of the Times."

Next month the speaker will be Rev. Mr. Turnbull of the Beverley Street Baptist Church, Toronto and in April the speaker will be the Rev. F. W. Hollinrake, pastor of the Barton Street Methodist Church, Hamilton, Ont. Those who attend to-night are sure to hear something of deep interst.

FREDERICK VIII IS NEARING HALIFAX

Special to The Examiner:

HALIFAX, Feb. 16.—The liner Frederick VIII., bearing Count Von Bernstorff, the dismissed German Ambassador, and his party from the United States, was reported sighted off Halifax Harbour shortly before noon to-day and will anchor in Bedford Basin to-night.

A tarnt pan should be washed out with boiling water and soda and be allowed to boil for a while on the fire before being rinsed.

PRESIDENT WANTS Black its COUNTRY WITH H.

Is Moving Deliberately So That When He Goes Before Congress He Can Feel That the Whole United States Backs His Action ---Relief in Tension

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 16.—In contrast with the general pessimism officially manifested over the German-American situation yesterday, there was some relief in the tension to-day, as a result of Germany's belated release of seventy-two American Yarrowdale prisoners and her revocation of her order ousting American relief workers in Belgium. Aggravating incidents continue to accumulate, but the President, his advisers say, will hold to his avowed purpose of moving deliberately in every step he takes. When he goes before Congress to ask authority to protect American lives and property, a move believed inevitable, and a matter of not many days, the President wants to feel that the entire country will back his action.

WASHINGTON, February 16.—A despatch received from Berlin last night says:—

"The American seamen who were brought prisoners to Germany on board the British steamer Yarrowdale have been liberated."

A peremptory demand for their release had been prepared by the State Department this afternoon and was to have been forwarded without delay. Their liberation disposes of the most pressing of the questions which arose immediately after the severance of relations between the two countries. There virtually is no hope here, however, that the hour of more serious trouble with Germany can be postponed much longer.

Many responsible officials of the Administration have come to the conclusion that unless there is a prompt and decided change in the general attitude of Germany toward the interests of the United States, the appearance of President Wilson before Congress to ask authority to afford protection to American lives and property is only a matter of days.

ALL DOUBTS GONE.

Any doubt as to the ruthless character of the new submarine campaign and its violation of neutral rights long since has disappeared, and the situation is made more and more grave daily by aggravating incidents.

Even if the President delays going to Congress longer than it is believed in most quarters he will, the present session comes to an end in less than three weeks and it is regarded as inevitable that he will deliver another address on German-American relations before Congress adjourns.

From an economic standpoint serious results from the new submarine campaign were becoming more apparent yesterday. Representatives of a large group of railroads met here and decided on plans for placing an embargo on eastbound freight destined for exportation unless shipping facilities were assured.

Efforts of persons and organizations working to maintain peace are going forward with unabated vigor. Their attitude is causing little concern among officials, who say the President has no intention of making any move except on the basis of facts which will satisfy all reasonable and patriotic Americans.

Hydrant Blown Out of Position South End Was Without Water

A peculiar accident to the hydrant near the corner of Chamberlen street and Park street yesterday afternoon cut off the water from the south-west end of the city, including the Henry Hope factory. It was blown up out of its jacket into which it screws, and was immediately followed by a flood of water that poured out over the street. Superintendent Ross Dobbin had a staff of men working until ten o'clock last night and at 1.30 this afternoon the break was completely repaired. A new connection will be immediately put in, thus safeguarding against the results of any possible trouble at that point. That particular hydrant has given more or less trouble for six years or more, but the present repairs promise permanency of effect.

LINERS WILL BE EXAMINED IN THE CANADIAN PORT

Examiner Special

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—A small army of Customs, Postal and other officials have left for Halifax to attend to the work of examining Atlantic liners. Official notice has been received that Halifax instead of Falmouth is to be the British examining port of all Atlantic liners which will now call, and Halifax will become a busy and important port. Among the first ships to be examined will be the Danish liner which carried Count Von Bernstorff and his suite.

PROHIBITION IN UNITED STATES

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Determined that the Government shall have its decks cleared of the liquor traffic should it be forced into war, National prohibitionists to-day redoubled their efforts in the Congress to force a vote on the Webb-Sheppard measure.

RUNNING FIGHT WITH SUBMARINE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—A story of a running fight with a German submarine, in which she drove away the U boat with her stern gun, was brought here to-day by the French line freighter, the Honduras, which was attacked twenty miles from Brest on her last trip homeward. The submarine fired twenty-eight shells, but without serious damage.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

The people of Canada are being drawn upon extensively in two ways; one without knowing, or at least, realizing it, through the painless and imperceptible operation of voting money by the half billion in Parliament and the other in a way they feel and appreciate through voluntary contribution to Patriotic Funds to provide for the needs of the families of soldiers who have done their bit or are doing their bit. The needs of the coming year will amount to thirteen and a half million dollars, for the support or help of seventy thousand families, an average per family of about $185. The enthusiasm for the patriotic fund as an expression of popular interest in the families of our fighting forces, is evidenced by the splendid contributions of Toronto and Montreal, reaching into the millions, and of numerous smaller places all over Canada. One element in this enthusiasm is the belief of the public in the fact of the economical and effective administration of the fund. The cost of administering and collecting subscriptions is virtually covered by the interest on the money deposited to the credit of the fund, so that every cent of the money contributed goes directly to the fulfilment of the intended purposes, more perhaps than can be said of the money voted by Parliament.

FOR THE PLAYGROUNDS.

The appeal of the ladies interested in the playgrounds movement, is one that should be heeded for more reasons than one. The object of making money in the interest of supervised play for the young, by the collection and utilization of waste in the form of scraps of paper, rags, etc., is in itself an excellent inducement. It is an important medium of education in habits of thrift and demonstration of the folly of waste, which marks all the activities of this country's governments and individuals. We have been guilty of criminal waste in the exploitation of our lumber resources, and in dealing with all our resources, even in our domestic operations. There is almost infinite waste all round. The saving and storing of waste rags, papers, etc., will, in the language of the appeal, show how "odds and ends" mount up. This domestic process will serve to impress upon the minds of the children of the household, the value of small things—when they see that hundreds of dollars are realized by the spring collection of what is commonly regarded as waste, and is otherwise indeed waste of valuable material that, properly utilized, stands for so much money. And the lesson will be further impressed when the children come to reap in the well equipped and orderly public play grounds, the harvest of waste—the conveniences provided by the utilization of what, but for a little thought, would have been waste in the literal sense.

THE COAL SITUATION.

When the Examiner a few days ago counselled "taking the bull by the horns," in the matter of coal congestion—going to the freight yards where the congestion existed at the border—to see the situation at first hand, in order to take effective measures of getting things moving, it was a fine coincidence that led Sir Henry Drayton, Chairman of the Railway Commission, to take the same idea to heart, and journey to the border—Fort Erie and Buffalo and see things for himself.

He did this and we begin to have the tangle untwisted. A despatch from Buffalo states that it is expected that the coal congestion will be relieved this week. There are other indications that the embargo will be lifted and that we shall soon have a reasonable supply of fuel.

With the feeling of spring in the air, the relief is less keen for house-be a relief, for cold days and put the furnace fo... out of commission, a great industries permit many factories to close down or work capacity to resume full operations. Toronto University can resume business and the numerous inconveniences and annoyances will be practically at an end.

To what extent the resumption of fairly normal traffic will affect prices is only a matter of conjecture and hope that the possibility of coal arrival, will not be attended with proportional prohibitory conditions in the form of high prices. And it is hoped that in the event of high prices continuing, the public will not saddle all the blame upon the local dealers. It is certain that conditions beyond their control and, heretofore, beyond the control of the authorities, who had the responsibility, as well as the power, of dealing with the situation, have had a chief share in advancing prices.

The Ottawa Evening Journal regards this winter's crisis as a "sharp lesson." It thinks that what has happened this year, causing widespread inconvenience and distress, is an annual possibility. It suggests empowering the Chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, to compel the railways concentrate effort upon supplying the country with coal as a first and essential duty. This proposal is feasible, since the Chairman has, it is hoped, been able by the exercise of his normal authority, been able to do something to relieve the present situation.

But the proposal to make coal transport the first duty of a railway is, after all, only surface treatment. A good deal depends upon the people themselves; upon their helping themselves and not depending altogether upon the action of commissioners or of the railways.

The lesson of this coal trouble is the lesson that is vital to every national and personal interest—the lesson of preparedness.

As a people we live too much from hand-to-mouth, something that is avoidable with reasonable prudence and foresight. There are many households where this coal crisis has no terrors; where a supply of coal has been laid in sufficient to last out the cold weather.

It may be said that everybody is not in a position to do this. That may be true; but why are they not in a position? Because they do not look ahead; because they do not provide for a cold winter that we always have with us. They do not do this because they do not save, do not economically manage their means.

By a little current sacrifice, by foregoing expenses, unnecessary except to gratify tastes for luxuries or pleasures, nearly everybody—barring sickness or other trouble — could save enough money to provide for laying in the winter's coal supply.

But most people do not save, simply because they have not been taught how to save—have not been schooled and have not schooled themselves to save, as they would have been if we had had Penny Bank operating in our schools the past thirty or so years, training up a generation of thrifty citizens who would have learned the value of money and the benefits of living within income; of providing for the future, of looking ahead.

We have one citizen in Peterborough who has three monthly instalments of next year's taxes on his little property put aside; and when the tax bill comes in he will have, by monthly additions to his special fund, the cash to meet it like a man. His income is small, but he lives within it.

In like manner the principle of thrift and saving could be applied to everything and everybody in the country, to governments, general and local, to business men, to individual citizens. Looking ahead and providing for the future is the indispensable condition of success in statesmanship, in business, in private life.

With these principles applied we need have less dread of coal tie-ups, there need be, under normal conditions, no coal famine, or little or no forced buying at high prices, because with the foreseeing, the coal cellar and the larder would be substantially supplied.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

If the United States Congress adopts a daylight saving measure, as now seems likely, Canada will be practically compelled to follow the same course, for our connections with our cousins across the border are now so intimate as to make it very desirable that we should have the same working hours. The measure proposes to make it arbitrary to set the clock ahead one hour over the entire country during the months of long daylight. This has proved of inestimable benefit in Europe, and it would be equally beneficial on this continent. In some parts of Canada daylight saving has been tried and has proved more or less of a failure. This, however, has been because the movement in each instance was a purely local one, adopted by municipalities. To be successful, such a measure must prevail over the whole of Canada, and if we can work with Uncle Sam, as it now seems there will be an opportunity of doing, so much the better.—Montreal Herald.

How Britain Bravely Rises To Every Call Of The War Situation

LONDON, Feb. 2.—To the pre-war visitor, one of the best known and most lively of London's many parks will present a quaint appearance — St. James' Park with its slight undulations lies between Buckingham Palace and the Horse Guards' Parade and skirts one of the loveliest avenues in the world—the Mall—which stretches from the Admiralty Arch at Trafalgar Square to Buckingham Palace at the far end of the park. Overlooking the Mall and the park are Marlborough House, the residence of Queen Alexandra, St. James' Palace, Stafford House and now between the tall column to George the Fourth and the Arch, on the balconies at the back of fashionable Carleton Terrace may be seen the hospital beds with their bright red blankets, comfortable chairs and the bamboo shelters of Lady Ridley's hospital for patients requiring out-of-door treatment.

Almost ever since the war broke out the Admiralty have had large hutment offices on the high slope of the park near the Mall.

The lakes where one was wont to feed the beautiful water fowl have been drained, and on their concrete beds have arisen, as it were night, two great ugly hutment administrative buildings.

The water fowl have to content themselves with a small sheet of water and one sees them standing sadly on the banks as if they wondered what uppheaval had taken place in the world.

* * * *

Nationalizing the industries of a country—if one may judge by the numbers of buildings taken, and the vast army of clerks required—must be a very costly business. When one thinks of the numbers of Government Administrative buildings in London before the war, and looks about at the scores of great hotels and buildings which have been commandeered, and adds to these the great acreage of hutments and temporary buildings, one is amazed at the solid wealth which must be behind a nation which can send millions of her men out of her industries and out of the country to fight, and still carry on and finance all the different branches of manufacturies and commerce.

It is an interesting study of the British character to read the hundreds of newspaper articles and letters written to the press giving the experiences of women workers in great industries and of old men well advanced in years who have come forward to fill in the gaps made by enlistments.

Scores of comfortable middle-class homes have been broken up entirely and the remnant of the family will probably never again know either comfort or happiness, but among these people are some of the most determined advocates of "a victory peace."

"I was talking a few days ago to one of the lady organizing secretaries of "the women and land" movement. She told me that among the women who needed no training for the dairy farms were ladies who had been teachers of piano or good musicians.

Their muscles being well developed in the hands and arms, they were able to milk as many cows as a trained farm hand. Strangely enough, the women of good birth and education are in the majority among the volunteers for farm work. Many of them have come from big country houses and have been accustomed to riding and golf, are accustomed to animals and love a life in the open.—Mrs. D. McAllister Fitzsimmons in Montreal Herald.

TOO FEW LOCOMOTIVES AND TOO MUCH STOCK TICKER.

What is the great cause of Canada's railway ills?

Too few locomotives.

What is the cause of the locomotive famine?

Too much bank and too much stock ticker.

A railway manager in Canada is the slave of the banks and the stock market.

If operating costs stay down the price of the railway stock stays up.

If operating costs go up the price of the railway stock goes down.

If the price of the railway stock goes down the railway manager's salary goes down or disappears altogether.

Keep both eyes on the stock ticker is the lesson that the banking and financial interests of Canada have taught to the railway managers of Canada.—Toronto Telegram.

WHEN YOU HAVE A COLD

It is quite true that many persons do not consider a cold a serious matter, but, on the other hand, there are many per ons who are too easily scared by the common ailment. There are some things which should be tried at home to see if some relief cannot be gained. Frequently a cold is developed because of the system's need for a rest, therefore, it is obvious that rest will do much to drive the uncomfortable condition away. The next important step in the campaign is to keep the system cleaned out. Drinking plenty of water and breathing in inches of pure, fresh air are also essential. Since colds are contagious, one cannot be too careful. In place of handkerchiefs one should use squares of soft muslin or cheesecloth which can be burnt after being used.

STRIFE IN GREEK CONVENT.

The political strife in Greece has found an echo in the colony of monks on Mount Athos, according to a report printed in the Novoe Vremya of Petrograd, and sumarised in the Berner Bund of Jan. 12th.

It appears that the religious services in the Vatopedi cloister have been disturbed because some of the monks desired to pray for King Constantine, while another group insisted upon asking divine aid for Venizelos. An assistant of M. Manuaski, the Greek Minister of Public Instruction, is said to have gone to Mount Athos to try to reconcile the monks' differences.

Canadian Films Here Next Week

Peterboro' Will Soon Have Opportunity of Seeing Our Men in Action

SUCCESS IN LONDON

Pictures Were Shown There and Acclaimed as Most Vivid Yet Taken

The recent cabled announcements that the Candian Courcelette films have been released in England is followed now by the announcement of their release in Canada. The films are being presented this week simultaneously in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa and later throughout the Dominion by Messrs. Jule and J. J. Allen of the Famous Players Film Service, Limited, the Monarch Film Company and other well known theatrical enterprises under the auspices of the leading newspapers of the country from coast to coast. This was the plan followed in the case of "Britain Prepared" which was the first of the series of official war films produced by direction of the British Government, showing the progress of stages of Britain's share in the struggle. It was the plan followed in the second chapter of the story, "The British and Canadian Armies in France," the film that showed Kitchener's new army in the field ready for business, and it was the plan followed in presenting "The Battle of the Somme," the wonderful pictures which showed the army actually in action. This film was described as "the greatest moving picture in the world," and it made new records for attendance everywhere it was shown.

Beter Than Somme Pictures.

The new Canadian film is said to be a greater piece of war photography than the Somme pictures taken in July. Its exposures were made in September last by the same fearless operator of the topical committee's staff who made the Somme pictures, and who works sometimes under fire in positions of greater risk than those of the soldiers themselves. The film deals principally with the action at Courcelette, Sept. 15th last, when the Canadians made their victorious advance in conjunction with the first appearance of the now celebrated "battleships on land," which the soldiers have dubbed "the tanks."

A Canadian Associated Press cable, referring to these pictures as the most vivid war pictures yet secured, reads: "The Canadian war memorials fund stands to benefit appreciably through the sale of the latest moving pictures of Canadian soldiers at the front, taken for Sir Max Aitken's staff. These will be shown in Canada almost immediately, and are claimed to be the first movies of Canadians actually taken in France.

"They comprise depictions of almost all the most vivid phases of what the men of the maple leaf achieve and endure. Canadians are seen fixing bayonets, nonchalantly "chewing" meanwhile or taking last puffs at cigarettes, then scrambling up resolutely over the top and racing at the German lines. Big guns belch their terrible missiles in the Somme direction. The wonderful tanks go forward, crawling over rock, stone, ditch and shell fissures, seemingly with the ease of a lawn mower over a tennis court.

"Some pictures are almost poignant to realism, notably the burial of a Canadian officers, and Germans lying still where they were covered by a rain of explosive."

This is the first war picture to be shown in the Empire Theatre, and the management, after seeing its presentation in Toronto, claim it the best war picture yet shown.

WHEN THE SEAS WERE FREE.

The seas were free enough before 1914. During upward of a century Britannia ruled the waves, but she also carted and policed them, and the benefits of her trusteeship were shared by all nations. A sea power has always been an enlightened power; its selfishness has been an enlightened selfishness. It is not the fault of Britain that the seas are no longer free.—Chicago Tribune.

GERMAN PRAISES BRITAIN

Tribute to the manner in which the Overseas Dominions of Great Britain have rallied to the support of the mother country in the world war is paid by Dr. Hans Delbrück, Professor of Modern History at the University of Berlin, in an article in a recent issue of Preussische Jahrbucher, of which he is editor. The London Daily Chronicle prints the following exerpts from Professor Delbruck's review:

"England is not only England, but the centre of gravity of a world-empire stretched over all continents. There can be no doubt that this war has given splendid testimony to the construction of this empire. The great Dominions—Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa—are almost independent, and are subject to no compulsion from the mother country. Even the Boer Republics have been supplied with a full and free constitution after a difficult and sanguinary war. This magnanimity has justified itself marvelously. All the daughter lands and even the Boer lands are fighting for England of their own free will.

"They are, however, laying burdens on themselves which will be heavily felt after the war, burdens which will force the question "Are the interests of all so identical that the international policy of the empire can be safely entrusted to a majority of the London Parliament?" And not only the Canadians and Australians have fought for England but also numerous Indian regiments. For a long time the Indians have been demanding consideration for their special interests, also autonomous government. They demand the right of free emigration to South Africa and Australia. The same right is demanded by Japan, and Australia clings all the more to England from fear of Japan."

Professor Delbruck proceeds to point out that in his opinion the rule and prestige of England in distant continents owing to victories gained by former generations. It is his opinion that the failures in Mespotamia and the Dardanelles have greatly shaken this prestige in Asia and Africa. Th nerve-centre of British world-empire is Egypt and the Suez Canal, and the writer looks forward with hope to the time when Turkey will emerge from the war a State strengthened and full of future possibilities and regain its lost power on the Nile.

"This will be all the easier," says Dr. Delbruck, "should Turkey build railways which would connect distant provinces and permit the entire military power of the empire to be swiftly concentrated in Palestine and the Sinai Peninsula.

"Should the Suez Canal be lost the bonds which unite the different parts of the world-empire will be slackened. And what probability, anyhow, is there that the central government in London will not totter? There are the Irish question, military service, electoral problems, questions of finance and economics which will split up the old parties and prevent the ship of State from steering a steady course."

CHARLES M. BOWMAN WILL ADDRESS THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

Liberal Whip Disclaims German Ancestry—States That If He Is Ever Required to Fight He Will Stay at the Front Until the War Is Over

REPLY TO COL. CURRIE

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 16.—Chas. M. Bowman, M.P., Liberal whip, will rise to a question of privilege in the Legislature to-day and reply to the statements made by Col. John Currie, M. P., in the West Simcoe bye-election that Bowman had German ancestry. Bowman will go into the genological history of his family for the past two hundred years, showing that they originally came from Switzerland to Holland, and immigrated to Pennsylvania, and his great grand-parents later came to Canada as United Empire Loyalists. Bowman says if the time ever arrives when a Canadian forty-five years of age is required to fight for the Empire, he will be there and will stay on the firing line until the war is over and not return and have the people inquire the reason why he came back.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Among the Conservative "government" leaders this morning it was intimated that the difficulty in the way of passing the woman's suffrage measure would probably be removed by giving municipal assessors till June the first to return the rolls. It is thought that this means that the women's suffrage bill before the House will be endorsed by the Government and passed within a few weeks.

Attempt To Relieve Freight Congestion Retarded By Snow

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BUFFALO, Feb. 16.—With another heavy layer of snow added to-day to the already frost encrusted railroad yards, efforts to relieve the freight congestion here were greatly retadded. Railroads were endeavouring to rush across the river a vast supply of raw material, coal and merchandise of all kinds for Canada's was stimulated industries.

North Monaghan Pays $912 To British Red Cross Fund

The regular monthly session of North Monaghan Council was held on Monday evening at May's school house, Reeve Rye and Councillors Henry, Dobbin and Williams being present.

On motion of Messrs. Henry and Dobbin, Mr. Sanderson, the assessor, was given authority to search the title of property on plan No. 40 and other names where necessary in making his returns for the back taxes to the County Clerk, the charges in connection with the same to be paid by the township, and returned against the property.

Fred L. Campbell applied for assistance to erect a wire fire fence on the quarter line near lot 6, con 13.

Mr. W. H. Moore, chairman of the City Trust, replied to the Council's communication granting permission as requested to use City Trust property near the Henry Hope Co. factory.

On motion of Messrs. Williams and Henry the communication of Mr. Campbell was received and will be dealt with at the next regular meeting.

By-law 738 was passed, appointing Mr. Felix Brownscombe auditor.

By-law 739 was passed appointing Mr. Bert Sanderson assessor for 1917.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Williams, that the township treasurer pay to the British Red Cross the sum authorized by By-law 735 for the sum of $912.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that Mr. Williams be paid for the dump ground for the last 8 months of 1916, the sum of $33.20 in full of account.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

W. H. Bradburn, war tax stamps	$ 2.00
Municipal World, treasurer's cash book	10.45
Jos. Madill, 48 loads of gravel	7.20

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Dobbin that the Clerk advertise for tenders for a dump ground for North Monaghan also that he prepare a by-law for the same.

The meeting then adjourned.

Boys Whipped By Police Only at the Request of Parents

The report that two boys who had been guilty of stealing two watches had received a flogging at the police station has apparently caused a misconception of the procedure, judging from a letter in yesterday's issue. It should be understood that the Magistrate did not authorise the whipping, nor has he ever done so, for the reason that he hasn't the authority. But he might have committed these boys to a reformatory. They are both fifteen years old, at an impressionable age, and evidently Magistrate Dumble desired to give them another chance instead of sending them now to a house of correction. Hence he suggested to the parents that a whipping (by the parents) might sufficiently impress the boys with the seriousness of their offense and keep them in the path from which they should never have departed. Thus, the whipping of the youngsters is entirely at the option of the parents. But that the nature of the offence may be emphasized, parents often request the police to apply the punishment, which usually consists of fifteen. or less, blows of a strap or "cat" administered by one of the policemen. Were the boys sent to the reformatory they would be thrown in with youths who might perhaps be further advanced in wrongdoing than themselves and their reformation would be a doubtful probability. Some parents have requested the police to administer the whipping for the reason that they mistrusted themselves and feared to go too far, whereas they realized that the constable who naturally loathed the work would be inclined to lenity. These whippings are applied where many a mother has effectively used a shingle or her slipper.

This explanation should relieve any citizen of the fear that the whipping referred to was unduly severe, or that the court took it upon itself to determine the nature and extent of the treatment. The boys fared lighter, perhaps, than if they had been left to their parents.

Mr. Frank T. Shutt, chemist at the Central Experimental Farm, stated some years ago that manure loses half of its weight by holding in a pile for a year and that green manure is worth as much pound for pound, as rotted manure. And the statement still holds good.

Not a Milk Vendor But A Cheese Maker

Mr. George Metcalfe whose appointment as Sanitary Inspector was recommended by the Property Committee on Wednesday night, is not a milk vendor as stated by the Examiner but has for the ten or twelve years been a cheese and butter maker with training at the Ontario Agricultural College.

The Mainstay of France

(BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS)

France has confidence in the peasants and her peasants have confidence in France. The three essentials of victory are men, munitions, and money. The last is only a means of estimating and mobilising wealth, and the foundation of the wealth of France is agriculture.

To maintain the volume of agricultural production while nine-tenths of the agriculturists of military age were mobilised, was nearly an impossible task. But the impossible has been achieved through the energy and devotion of those remaining. Also various administrative services which have co-operated with one another have given a great deal of assistance.

The peasant population of France is bearing a double share of the burden of the war. Not that the other classes are shirking, for every individual in France is doing something for his country apart from his own personal sphere. But the growing importance of the munition question has caused the withdrawal of thousands of workmen to the factories. The wives, children and aged fathers carry on in the fields with inadequate labour resources, a work which is equally necessary for victory, while profits continue to diminish with the increasing cost of things. But they have confidence in the future and a wise administration has done its best to lessen their difficulties and add to the efficiency of thir efforts to till the soil they love so well.

Mechanical cultivation is rapidly spreading. Where the farms are too small for individuals to buy tractors the ministry of agriculture encourages the formation of co-operative societies for their collective purchase and use, and it grants by way of subsidy, one-third of the cost of the outfit purchased.

Prisoners of war have been placed at the disposal of the rural communes, whose mayors distribute them among the different farmers who require their services. The principle that everything must be subordinatd to the general interest, has been applied in every department of the national life, and has been accepted as a matter of course by the people.

The soldiers unload railway trucks or thresh corn, and the Minister of War does not have to beg pardon from an irate trade union deputation.

Committees comprising all that is left of the more intelligent and enterprising farmers have been instituted in each rural commune, to direct its whole agricultual policy. The Ministry of Agriculture is anxious for the immediate future of French agriculture; it is precisely because it has realized at once the difficulties and the enormous importance of its task, and because it has hitherto been active, intelligent and successful in combatting these difficulties.

TEACHERS' TRAINING EXAMINATION

The following names in order of merit, passed the Teacher's Training Course examination, in Old Testament Work, in connection with George street Methodist Sunday School:

Mrs. A. F. Bookout, Mr. Bruce A. Hamilton, Miss Sarah J. Miller, Miss Jennie L. Bedford, Mr. Morley E. Smith, Miss Lottie Middleton, Miss Marion Virtue, Miss Isabelle McBride, Mr. Chas. D. Lathrope.

It reflects great credit on Mr. Ingall, the teacher of this class, when seven out of this number took over 80 per cent., and all succeeded in passing.

LT.-COL. ACKERMAN APPEALS TO, ETC.

thorough canvass. It is pretty hard where a family has sent all, to see another sitting back and sending none. We hope to put the list of eligibles before the public through the Five Hundred Club and within a short time have them all equipped and in training, or at least bring the necessity home to seventy per cent. of them."

Red Cross Work.

Col. Ackerman paid a great tribute to the Red Cross work which has been done in the past six weeks. Over $4,500.00 worth of material has in that time been shipped, but that is no excuse for the ladies to sit down and say "we've done enough."

During the next week every society in town will be visited, with an object of securing their sympathy, and the Band will parade the streets.

Mrs. Mowat asked if women were expected to ask "Why are you not in khaki?"

Col. Ackerman's answer was distinctly in the affirmative. The Five Hundred Club will facilitate matters if the men are rude and get some one else to ask them.

Mrs. Mowat asked if the men were too cowardly to enlist would they be of any use at the front, but Mrs. Stevenson answered, it was not cowardice, but pure selfishness that kept them back, for if they were physical cowards they could never have withstood the recruiting campaigns.

Canadian Toys.

The question of Canadian toys was dealt with. Canada does not produce enough toys at present to fill the demands.

The quesion of a tea to raise funds was left unsettled, and put into the hands of the Committee to look into.

Franchise.

Dr. Jessie Birnie made an appeal for help in circulating the suffrage petition which has met with approval by Mr. Gillespie and Premier Hearst. The teachers have already got the names of several.

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY TO THOMAS O. DENCH

Veteran Customs Officer Had Been at Windsor For 45 Years—Mrs. W. R. Morris, of Peterboro' is a Daughter

WINDSOR, Feb. 16.—Thomas O. Dench, aged 72, of the local customs staff, died suddenly from hemorrhage of the brain. He was born in England and came to Windsor 45 years ago with the Grand Trunk. In 1890, because of his intimate knowledge of the workings of intricate customs requirements in connection with the railroad business, he was appointed to the customs staff and held the post of inspector up to the time of his death.

In fraternal societies Mr. Dench was widely known, particularly in Oddfellow circles. He served several terms as one of the grand officers of the Grand Lodge, and for twenty years had been treasurer of Frontier Lodge, I.O.O.F., Windsor. He was also one of the prominent members of the Sons of England. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Peterborough; Mrs W. J. Mitchell, New Orleans, and Miss Jessie at home, and one son Frank E. Dench, member of the head office staff of Canadian Bank of Commerce at Toronto.

Fertilizers gave an increase in potatoes from 122 to 162 bushels per acre at Guelph.

LAST LETTERS OF MAJOR J. S. LEWIS

No scout is complete without a sand-bag to pull over his head in his peregrinations through No Man's Land. Most of the men on Night Patrol work in the same interesting locality also wear them. It makes the finest kind of "assimilation covering," and it takes a very particularly alert German sentinel to "pick up" a head swathed in muddy jute from any of the tens of thousands of lumps of clay which line the lips of the myriad of shell-holes in and out of which our men do their advanced reconnaissance work. Every steel helmet has its sand-bag covering for the same reason and four rifles out of every five you see in the trenches are loosely swathed in the same invaluable material.

For home use, the bags are as ubiquitous and necessarys. A four foot roof of sand-bags on top of old rails and scraps of sheet-iron is accredited very fair protection against everything except the German's "heavy stuff." I don't know whether it is or not, but as long as you think it is, you sleep much more peacefully. At least half our dugouts here are only dug about three feet in the ground, the rest of the wall being built up of sand-bags with earth heaped around them. They usually fall in after prolonged wet weather but so far we have flitted so rapidly from billet to billet that none of those we built have fallen in on us except when aided and abetted by the enemy's shells, and even then the consequences have not been serious. What has happened to the fellows who took them over from us, I cannot know, but I have my suspicions.

AN IDEAL SUMMER BED.

The ideal bed is made by nailing sand-bags to a rough frame of timbers and then piling other sand-bags on as a mattress. The great difficulty in achieving this ideal is to obtain the sand-bags, the authorities not regarding this as a legitimate excuse for indenting for them. Another difficulty arises through the way in which the sand-bags which are the foundation, tear away from the timber when you are least expecting it. No human device, however, is perfect. As bed-covering, sand-bags are not as soothing as linen sheets nor as comporting as clean blankets, but they are better than wet overcoats and much better than nothing at all. As bed-socks they fill a useful place in the scheme of trench-existence and as improvised cloaks to keep off part of the rain during a run round the trenches there is much to be said in their favour. I suppose half our men, when the mud is deep and thick and not too liquid, simply slip sand-bags on over their boots and puttees and slosh around in them. It is amazing how much of the mud stays outside the bag.

SAND-BAGS AS FLAVOURING.

Of course, all our provisions come up to the front in sand-bags, a fact easily discernible after tasting the provisions. An attempt is always made, and usually with success, to keep the different kinds of food segregated, but they all acquire the distinctive sand-bag flavour, which is far from being unpleasant after you become accustomed to it. When it is necessary to halt on the trip and place the provisions on the ground, the sand-bags keep out quite an appreciable amount of mud and no little moisture. You can strain the tea-leaves out of boiling tea with a piece of sand-bag and this is frequently done in our best trench circles. It may not help the tea but it doesn't hurt it much and some of the men's messes insist on it. A sand-bag makes an elastic kit-bag, light, easy to carry and easy to get rid of when you no longer need it.

There are a hundred other uses to which we put sand-bags every day of our lives out here without thinking about them or being grateful. When the war is over, let us hope that someone will start a movement, or raise a monument, or write a poem, or do something to immortalize the Soldier's Best Friend—the Sand-Bag. Yours, J.S.L.

Dear Mary:

I owe you an apology. I had so many guests at my St. Valentine's party that that evening I could not show you all through my house and let you see the new furnishings, blankets and comforters Frank gave me.

This is to ask you to come over real soon and let me show you my new things one by one and tell you what they cost. Then you won't quit coaxing Tom until he buys you what you want.

Now's the time to go at him while Zacks' big furniture sale is on. I told him how pleased Frank was to be able to to arrange terms of payment. With love—HELEN

HOW THE GERMANS RULE IN POLAND

First Uncensored Story of Life in the Captured Territory Under Their Occupation

The death rate in Vilna has increased to more than four times the normal figure since the Germans occupied the city in September, 1915, according to a prominent Jewish resident of that city who has arrived in New York after remaining for months under the German occupation. This man, whose identity, for obvious reasons, cannot be disclosed, left Vilna in November through the efforts of the American Jewish Relief Committee, and after a nine days' railroad trip reached Rotterdam, whence he sailed for this country. The German authorities made every effort to discourage him, telling him that the British were in the habit of taking all Russian subjects off steamers leaving European ports for America and sending them back to Russia, but as he was above military age he was finally allowed to depart.

There were thirty Russian Jews in the party which left Vilna, and though they had paid second-class fare they were shut up in a boxcar, and kept locked in during the entire nine days' journey across the Continent via Koenigsberg and Berlin. After reaching Rotterdam they had no further trouble; the correspondent's informant was not molested by the British naval authorities, and he finally succeeded in reaching New York with the first authentic story of conditions in Russian Poland under the German occupation.

The Jewish population of Vilna, which is nearly half of the whole, was celebrating Yom Kippur in the synagogues when the Germans marched in, and the services were not molested. But immediately on their arrival the Germans went to the City Hall, where the municipal authorities had remained, and proceeded to confiscate all the money they found there. This was only the beginning of the requisitioning of much of the movable property to be found in Vilna.

PEOPLE'S FOOD CONFISCATED.

The first requisition was for sleeping outfits for the soldiers. Every householder was compelled to furnish a bed, with pillows and bed clothing, for every window in his house. Then every family was ordered to furnish a statement of the amount of food and flour which it had on hand. The strictest assurances were given that this was for information only and that the food would not be confiscated; but it was confiscated without pay only five days later, and from that time on the civil population has been compelled to buy back the food from the German owners.

Cards calling for half a pound of bread were issued at first at the price of 11 kopeks, but after the charge was raised to 16—a little more than 5 cents. But the supply of bread has never been adequate. The bakeries are open at 6 o'clock in the morning and the lines of housewives begin to gather sometimes as early as 2 o'clock. Not infrequently a woman will take her stand in line at 2 or half past and wait till 10 o'clock, only to find when her turn comes that the bread is all exhausted. Each household is allowed two pounds of meat twice a week, but must pay 2 rubles (64 cents) a pound, including the bones. Eggs cost 25 kopeks each and must be purchased sub rosa. The narrator knew of a man who secretly bought a goose last fall and was compelled to pay 45 rubles for it. There is no sugar left at all; the only sweetening obtainable is saccharin.

All horses and carriages were seized as soon as the Germans marched in; the automobiles had already been commandeered for the Russian Army. Nearly half the population fled before the oncoming of the Germans, leaving their houses vacant; and all the furniture—chairs, tables, beds, pianos—and everything in these houses have been shipped away to Berlin. All the furniture stores have been looted, too. Among the families which stayed there has been comparatively little confiscation of property, after the initial requisition of beds and bedding, except for copper. Every pot and kettle and samovar has been seized, and many of the ornaments in the churches; and all leather in any form has been likewise taken.

EVEN SOLDIERS SHORT OF FOOD.

Even the German soldiers, said the informant, are beginning to be pinched for food, while among the civil population the shortage has caused a tremendous leap in the death rate. Children are of course particular sufferers and the tokens of starvation are evident among them on every hand. Yet the German officers continue to have almost everything they want except beer, which is not obtainable. In the beginning the officers were quartered on the population and paid nothing for their lodging, but some months after the first occupation of the town a club was opened at which most of them now live.

The search for money is conducted with great vigor, and whenever the authorities of the invading army find that any coin is in the possession of civilians they take it away and give German paper in exchange.

The industrial and commercial life of the community has been entirely suppressed. There is a German theatre, and newspapers continue to appear in German, Polish, and Yiddish, but that is the extent of the city life. The wine shops have been closed and the population keeps very much behind closed doors. Civilians are forbidden to be abroad after 10 o'clock at night, and the violation of this ordinance by only a minutes or two is punishable by a fine of 30 marks and a jail sentence of five days. And the appearance of men, at least, on the street in the daytime is infrequent, for they know that at any moment there is need of labour for military objects either in the immediate neighbourhood of Vilna or, indeed, anywhere in Poland, the passing civilians are liable to seizure and compulsory labour.

There was at one time an apparent attempt made to reopen the commercial life of the town by allowing the importation of manufactured articles from other parts of Poland, but this was only a device for collecting the goods more conveniently, for as soon as sufficient stocks had been assembled in Vilna they were all confiscated and sent away to Berlin. Yet in spite of this complete stoppage of the city's commercial life an assessment of 2,400,000 marks was laid on it last summer.

DEEDS OF VIOLENCE BY SOLDIERS.

Actual deeds of violence against the population have been comparatively infrequent. There have been a few cases of attacks on women, but not many. The narrator of the story knew of a man named Sharkoff who was a little slow in answering the ringing of his doorbell by a patrol of troops, and who was promptly bayoneted when he did appear. On the day after the occupation two girls who were selling kvass at the railroad station asked for payment from some German soldiers who had taken large quantities of the drink, and the Germans promptly shot them. This, however, was attributed to the lawlessness of individual soldiers and was not a symptom of the attitude of the authorities, though the narrator had not

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,— Will you kindly allow me a space in your valuable paper to call attention to the irregularity of the early morning street cars. I am a resident of Auburn and have been a regular patron of the street cars for a number of years. It is no unusual thing to get late for work one or two mornings a week through the cars not being punctual, which I think is quite unnecessary. I think this is hardly fair treatment to the working man, that the cars and all the employees of the service depend on to keep them running. Hoping this will meet the eye of some one that can rectify the fault, I remain,

EARLY RISER.

To the editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—May I beg space in your valuable paper, to state what I consider an injustice, re night soil. The man came this morning at 10 a.m., to empty ours, and because I have a roomer, he wanted to charge eighty cents. I refused to pay. He then said, pay 50 cents. I said I was willing to pay the right charge. He said I will get another house you own taken off you and get you put up for a $20.00 fine; besides many other insulting things.

Are men employed by this city allowed to insult people in their own house? Have we no protection? If not, what are we coming to?

Thanking you in anticipation.

HAULAGE CONSIDERABLE.

If Mild Weather Continues, Coal Situation Will Much Improve.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 17. — At the Grand Trunk offices here, officials announced that considerable quantities of coal are going through here. Lehigh Valley locomotives are being used, drawing full trains of coal right through from Buffalo to Toronto. Three trains went through yesterday. At Bridgeburg, the D. U. and W. engines are bringing coal trains over the river and taking them to Toronto.

"We could use a lot more locomotives, however," said one official. "So far, the Wabash has not had to borrow any locomotives from American lines, though they are in excellent shape regarding power and otherwise, except for the tie-up on the Detroit River."

The situation in this city is very bad. Two cars of coal were dropped off here this morning, but it was very quickly snapped up.

The railroad men see a big improvement coming in the coal situation, especially if the present mild weather continues.

INFORMATION ON CROPS.

Department of Agriculture to Establish a Bureau at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—In connection with the campaign for maximum crop production, the Department of Agriculture has established an information bureau. It is felt that for greatest success it will be necessary to supplement and follow up the campaign by affording some means whereby the department may remain in closest touch possible with the producer, so that when difficulty arises its resources may be promptly placed at his disposal.

Three Games In A Row For Mark Street In Church League

Mark Street, 5.
Trinity, 3.

George Street, 10.
Knox, 1.

League Standing.

	Won.	Lost.	T.P.
George Street	4	1	1
Mark Street	3	2	1
Trinity - St. Andrews	3	2	1
Knox	0	5	1

The Church League games at Brock Street Rink, last night, were featured by the third successive victory for the Blue Shirted lads from Mark Street, who are now tied for second place in the League standing. The championship hinges on next week's games. If George Street beats the Trinity-St. Andrew's team, the boys from the big Methodist Church will be champions. If they lose, however, and East City wins from Knox, which seems almost certain, the George Street, Trinity-St. Andrew's, and Mark Street teams will be tied for the honours with 4 wins and 2 losses to their credit.

Mark Street won their third game in a row when they tucked away Trinity-St. Andrew's, last night. The boys from across the river won by 5 to 3, and always had the edge although the checking was hard and close all the way, and the losers gave them a hard argument. Trinity-St. Andrew's scored the first goal, but Mark Street tied it up in short order and then took the lead when a long shot from Gillespie got away from Pigeon. It was 2 to 1 at the end of the first period.

Bobby Armstrong of the 247th, handled the bell satisfactorily.

The second game was easy for George Street. The League leaders were never in trouble and won handily by ten goals to one from Knox, the largest score in the League this season.

Next Thursday's games should be the best of the series.

BOWLING NEWS

If two bits had of been put into a box for every blow made during the game last night at the Water street alleys between the Grocers and the Canadian General Electric there would have been enough coin to have taken a bowling team in the Peterborough League to Grand Rapids for the big tournament. The pins were either sick or tired of being knocked over, for they refused to fall last night; nevertheless the game was closely contested, for the C.G.E. succeeded in taking 2 games out of the 3 from the Grocers. Jardine for the C.G.E. was high man of the night, with a score of 526, Gillespie for the Grocers next with 481. Hard spares were pulled off by Somerville and Bishop of the C. G.E. and Heard of the Grocers.

To-night's game between the Printers and the Left Overs will cause great excitement on all sides. Both teams have had a good work-out and are in great shape for the battle this evening. A large crowd ought to be on hand for this game is the end of the league. Beside the game to-night Mr. Solomon has secured the right of getting the score in the game between Peterborough and Oshawa. This will be given out at the Alleys every 10 minutes, as everybody is keen on the hockey game. There would be no better place to spend the night than at the Alleys, where a good league will be seen and also to hear how our boys are making out at Oshawa. Scores:

PRO. HOCKEY FAILS TO MAKE GOOD IN SPOKANE

SPOKANE, Feb. 15—No more hockey games will be played in Spokane this season, T. S. Lane, President of the Spokane Arena Company and holder of the Spokane franchise in the Pacific Coast Hockey Association, announced yesterday. The three home games remaining on Spokane's schedule will be transferred to the cities of the opposing teams, one game going to Seattle on Feb. 20 and the others to Vancouver on Feb. 27 and March 2. The poor attendance at Spokane was the reason given for the transfer.

Kitchener Winners Over Owen Sound

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 15—The cleanest hockey seen here in years was pulled off to-night when Owen Sound and Kitchener came together in the third round of the O.H.A. intermediate series, the visitors winning by a score of 4 to 3.

The play was well balanced with the visitors showing just a little more confidence in their team work and skating.

The first period resulted in a two to nothing score for the visitors. In the second round Kitchener scored another goal, while the locals tied the score by securing three. With the opening of the third both teams settled down to a hard game. The visitors scoring another goal. Instead of playing a defensive game for the balance of the time the Kitcheners tried hard to add to their score but Young's defence in the nets was stonewall, and the game finished 4 to 3 in favour of the Kitchener players.

The local team was weakened by the absence of Hicks his substitute Fleming, not being up to the calibre of the other members of the Owen Sound men.

Sergt. Steve Vair, of Barrie, was the paragon of the wide wake fairness and had the large crowd which filled the rink with him all the way. The penalties were reduced to a minimum, one Kitchener player getting two minutes on the fence. The teams.

In all £5,727 went to the entertainment tax and £1,466 to charity. The Midland exceeded the Lancashire in their December receipts, as Midland clubs played home-and-home games on Christmas and Boxing Day.

WHAT IS MR. CROTHERS DOING?

Has the Hon. Mr. Crothers, Minister of Labour, done anything at all to reduce the cost of living, since he was endowed by the Government some months ago with such far-reaching powers to enable him to do so? We have neither heard nor read of anything whatever being done by him that has had the slightest effect on the cost of living. We are loth to condemn him on that account, for it seems hard to believe that a minister solemnly endowed with such powers as were given him by Order-in-Council would allow those powers to remain a dead letter. We therefore invite any of our readers who happen to know anything that he has done to deal with the high cost of living to send in an account of it for publication, so that the public and especially the labour men in whose behalf Mr. Crothers is supposed to work, may not come to regard with contempt both the powers conferred on Mr. Crothers and the department over which he presides. It is hard to believe that when the Government went to the trouble to pass a special Order-in-Council dealing with the high cost of living they did that more to fool the public than to relieve it.—Montreal Herald.

HOW THE GERMANS ROLE IN POLAND

heard that the soldiers were punished. But the striking of civilians by soldiers is frequent and seems to be unrestrained.

Forced labour began two weeks after the entry of the Germans, and has become more and more frequent, until last summer almost all the able-bodied men up to 70 years of age were employed on some sort of auxiliary labour for the German armies. Many able-bodied men have been deported to Germany, and practically all who have been at work have been compelled to labour in some way against the Russian armies.

The situation in Vilna is complicated; nearly half the population is Jewish and there is a strong Lithuanian element. From the beginning the Germans tried to make the most of this by playing off the Poles and Lithuanians against each other. They rather supported the Poles and held up the promise of a Polish kingdom to rally the nationalist forces to their side; but the Lithuanian aspirations for autonomy were also encouraged, and when occasionally bitter quarrels broke out that almost led to bloodshed between the two nationalities, the Germans expressed great satisfaction and declared, "This is our work."

JEWS PRAY FOR RUSSIANS' RETURN.

It is the Jews who have suffered most from the German occupation, according to the Jewish narrator of the story. There is no comparison between the Russian treatment of the Jews and that which we have received at the hands of the Germans," he said.

"The German authorities subject us to constant inquisitions; the German soldiers strike and beat our people on the streets. When Brusiloff broke through the Austrian lines in the south in June, and there was for a long time apparent readiness on the part of the Germans to evacuate the city at a moment's notice, all the rabbis directed their congregations to pray for the speedy return of the Russians."

On the second day of the German occupation, while long lines of German artillery were passing through the streets, a shell jolted out of a caisson and exploded in the street. Crowds of the population were lining the curb, watching the progress of the invading army, and a Jewish boy was killed by fragments of the shell. His mother burst into tears, whereupon a German officer said jestingly, "That would never have happened under the Russians, for they have no shells. We can afford to drop them in the streets."

There was in Vilna a Jewish cemetery 200 years old, which had become the centre of many traditions, and was deeply venerated by the whole community. The Germans turned a number of broken-down horses into it to pasture among the graves. The Russians had always respected it. There was a Jewish old men's home where the average number of deaths in time of peace was ten or twelve a month. When the Germans commandeered the food in the city and began to dole it out to the population the reduced nourishment began to tell on the old men and the death rate leaped to ten a week. When this happened the leaders of the Jewish community begged the German Commandant to allot a somewhat larger portion of bread to the home. "What's the use?" was his response. "They're only old men; they'll die soon anyway. Much better give them poison."

The feeling against the Jews seems to have two principal bases—the belief that they are acting as spies for the Russians and the firm conviction that most of them have stores of money which they will not give up. A party of 1,200 Jews were taken away to work outside of Vilna, at the end of last summer, being paid thirty pfennig—a little over seven cents per day. When Yom Kippur arrived 200 of them refused to work on the religious festival, and they were severely beaten by the German soldiers.

The Jewish community in Vilna is supposed to receive 100,000 marks a month from American co-religionists, but of this 13,000, according to the informant, is seized by the German commandant. The rest is allotted to the Jews to buy food. But they have to buy it from the Germans, who have charge of the whole food supply; and an example of the prices fixed by the Germans is that a salt herring which cost about one cent in time of peace is now priced at 1 2-3 marks, about forty cents.

"Dr. Magnes knows all about these," said the informant.

GERMAN RESERVES DECREPIT.

The German armies which occupied Vilna in September, 1915, were composed of young and stalwart men. But in April of last year these troops were transferred to more active fronts, and their places were taken by reservists, who looked as if they had come from a home for invalids. They were old men, some of them with white beards; many bowlegged, some hunchbacked, some even who were blind in one eye. Of late the shortage of food is so great that the Germans have put up a plant outside of Vilna, where they are said to be trying to make some sort of safe food out of horses that drop dead from overwork. There are many cases of suicide among the German soldiers, some even among the officers, and usually these are due to sad and depressing letters from home. The German soldiers were proud enough when they first swept into the city toward the end of the great offensive of 1915, but with the dragging by of many months this feeling has evaporated.

The quarrels between Lithuanians and Poles are paralleled by bitter wranglings between German and Austrian soldiers, which have been particularly intensified since the Austrian collapse before Brusiloff last June. German officers have declared that if the Austrians again give up so readily the Germans will stand behind ready to shoot them down, and this naturally does not soothe the pride of the Austrians.

Twice last year—during an offensive on the northern part of the front in March, and again in the summer, when Brusiloff's early successes seemed to indicate that the whole eastern line might have to fall back—the Germans picked up their archives and prepared to evacuate on a moment's notice. Among all classes of the population and even among the German soldiers, according to the belief of the civil population, there is a firm conviction that some time the Russian armies will break through and sweep the Germans out of the city. Meanwhile Vilna waits, and starves.

FARMERS 74 YEARS OLD

Tells How Vinol Made Him Strong

The following letter from farmer Lester adds another link to the great chain of evidence which proves that there is nothing equal to Vinol to create strength for feeble, weak, run-down conditions and after sickness.

Vestal Centre, N. Y.—"I am a farmer, 74 years of age and got into a weak, run-down condition as a result of the grippe. Our druggist suggested Vinol to build me up and I noticed an improvement soon after taking it, and it has restored my strength so I can now do a good day's work. My wife has also taken Vinol for a run-down condition with splendid results." H. W. Lester.

The reason Vinol is so efficient in building up strength for weakened, feeble, old people is because it contains beef and cod liver peptones iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the most successful tonics known.

We wish every person in Peterborough who is suffering from a weakened, run-down, devitalized condition would try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit.

McDermid and Jury, and E. L. Payne, druggists, Peterborough; also at the best druggist in all Ontario towns.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

HESITATION DOES NOT PAY

Some people hesitate to have their eyesight tested, because they are practically convinced they need glasses, but are afraid of appearances. That kind of hesitancy does not pay. Eyes that need help are surely worth helping. They get worse if the strain goes on, and Dr. Fowler's extremely neat gold mounts and beautifully transparent "Peblo" lenses, rather add to than detract from the appearance.

DEVICE FOR PACKAGES UPON THE KITCHEN DOOR

The problem which arises when the delivery boy finds no one at the address to which he is to deliver a package has been solved by constructing a kitchen door with which has been combined a sort of cupboard.

SOLVE FUEL PROBLEM.

One Task Which Has Been Set Before Research Council.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—The advisory council on industrial and scientific research, which is meeting in Ottawa at present, will take up the question of fuel production among other matters. It is proposed to hold investigation into the use of lignite, and its adaptability as fuel by chemical processes, as well as the development of electricity for heating purposes.

NEW YORK VISITORS SLEEP IN PARLOURS

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—With nearly 900 hotels and twice that number of boarding houses, New York continues unable to house the great army of transients that daily pour in for business or pleasure. It has reached the stage where hotel parlours are being rented as bedrooms, and unless the rush abates, tents may be put on the roofs. Of twenty hotels canvassed yesterday, only one had rooms ready for immediate occupancy; the others, filled up since last October, were turning people away.

POLICE COURT CASE WAS DISMISSED

A police court case heard this morning unfolded the story of a lively scrap that took place in the cellar of a local grocery store on Wednesday between the grocer's wife and an elderly delivery man. Magistrate Dumble dismissed the case.

Not the least interesting feature of the case was the fact that the woman had hit the delivery man on the forehead with a hammer, leaving a blood stain which had been carefully preserved from water in the meantime.

Ten cows in thirty days will make approximately ten tons of manure, thirty per cent. liquid, and seventy per cent. solid. If three fourths of the liquid is allowed to run off, forty pounds of nitrogen and fifty-four pounds of potash are wasted. The losses from the remainder, if exposed to the weather for three months, are approximately thirty-four pounds of nitrogen, eight of phosphoric acid and twenty of potash.—American Agriculturist.

GUARD ON A FIFTY-MILE FRONT FIRE ON SUSPECTS—MILITIAMAN KILLED.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Feb. 16.—Pte. Hugh Taylor of the 10th Regiment, a resident of Albany, was shot and killed while in the line of duty on the New York aqueduct, three miles south of Bontecou tunnel. He was engaged in guard duty with a squad investigating the appearance of suspicious lights along the aqueduct when a rifle in the hands of a fellow guardsman was discharged accidentally according to Capt. Kidder.

The guard was in a turmoil all night, with one alarm after another trying the nerves of the patrol along the whole sector under their care. Rifles were spitting at intervals, although it was said the only three suspects thus far seen in that region had been chased away under fire in the early hours of the morning.

The 50-mile 'front' from Browns Station to Newburgh is being patrolled more closely than at any time since the arrival of the militiamen. Officers expressed the belief that actual attempts to tamper with the aqueduct upon which New York City depends for its water supply, had been made in at least two places.

MEXICAN PRESS PRAISES CARRANZA PEACE NOTE

Say Neutrals Should Support His Initiative and Stop Sending Arms, Munitions and Staples to the Belligerents as the Only Means of Ending the War

MEXICO CITY, via Galveston, Texas, February 17. — All the local newspapers praise General Carranza for sending his note to American and European neutral countries urging them to take steps to stop the war or at least to restrict it. The newspapers say there is no reason why the neutral Powers should not support the Carranza initiative and stop sending arms, munitions and staples to belligerents, as this is the only means of ending the armed struggle.

Although absolute silence is observed in the Department of Foreign Relations regarding the note sent by General Carranza to neutral countries asking their co-operation toward terminating the war, in official circles it is known that Mexico will take no immediate step until replies have been received from the governments of these countries. In case the proposition is accepted, it is likely that Mexico will act in harmony with other neutral nations, and if the belligerents do not refuse the good offices tendered to end the conflict there will be no recourse to other measures. As General Carranza is en route to Guadalajara, it is impossible to interview him.

Diplomatists of the belligerent countries here are silent regarding the result of the note.

Preparations have been completed for the reception of Mr. Henry P. Fletcher, new American Ambassador. The government intends to welcome the American diplomatist in a manner never heretofore accorded to a foreign representative. By this courtesy the de facto government wishes to express its friendship for the American people. Mr. Fletcher entered Mexican territory Wednesday afternoon, continuing his trip toward Mexico City. The formal reception of the new Ambassador will take place about the middle of the coming week, when General Carranza returns from his trip to Guadalajara.

Wheat Markets Slightly Easier

Wheat markets were very erratic yesterday, showing substantial gains at one stage, but going off again later, closing weak, and 1c to 1 1-4c below Thursday's close. CATTLE MARKETS.

There has been a decided easing up in the demand for cattle during the week, as a result of which the market became very much demoralized. Cattle arriving early in the week, bought at high prices in the country, based on the high prices which have lately prevailed on the market, found a slow demand awaiting them, and the bidding generally at a little lower than had been looked for.

Rather than sell at the lower bids shipper and drovers in many instances decided to hold the cattle over for the later markets. In the meantime the railroad situation as it affected shipments of meats from the abattoirs, became still more acute, and the packers found themselves with plenty of beef on hand, which could not for the present be shipped. In the meantime also the cattle held over were "filling up" and buyers were less inclined to bid than before, except at declines. The total result was an average decline of from 25 to 40 cents on the week for stale green cattle. Fat butcher cows and bulls proved an exception, prices holding steady to firm, and even a little higher all week.

Stockers and feeders were in steady demand at good prices.

Sheep and lambs held steady and firm.

Hogs remained easier towards the latter end of the week but closed steady at $14.40 fed and watered.

LIVE STOCK RECEIPTS.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts this week: 440 cars, with 4,294 cattle, 546 calves, 9681 hogs, 742 sheep and lambs, and 1,545 horses.

City Cattle Market—58 cars, with 730 cattle, 197 sheep, 615 hogs, 41 calves and 107 horses.

President's Wife Breaks Precedent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Another presidential precedent is scheduled to be broken on March 5, when President Wilson takes the oath of office.

Mrs. Wilson will be seated in the stand at the Capital within the arm's reach of her husband—the first time in history an executive's wife has occupied a place in the stand.

Eight years ago Mrs. Taft startled Washington when she rode down Pennsylvania ave., with President Taft after Roosevelt had gone to the train.

ONE-ARMED MEN AIDED

New invention uses Magnets to Assist Maimed Workers.

BERLIN, Feb. 17—After countless experiments, a drawing table or board has been invented which, by means of a magnet to hold T-square and triangles tight, can be utilized by one-armed men. It had been feared that many soldiers who were architects before the war, and who have ither lost one arm or its use, would have to go into some other calling after the conflict. The new invention opens up great possibilities for them after all.

The new table is so arranged that an electric current can be turned on with the foot which will catch and hold perfectly tight by means of tiny magnets any object that may lie on top of the table. The one-armed draftsman has only to adjust his implements exactly to his liking, press a lever with his foot, and then take a pencil or pen and work with it.

The use of the magnets has even been varied so that only a small portion of the top of the table is magnetized at once, requiring only a minimum amount of current. The new invention, which was evolved in the turbine shops of the General Electric Co., can be operated from an ordinary electric light connection or, if desired, through batteries.

Liners Ready To Sail If Halifax Is a Search Port Will Relieve Congestion

Halifax Pilots Are Already Arriving at American Ports to Be Ready to Handle Ships—New Plans Please the Shipping Interests Greatly.

RYNDAM WILL LIKELY MAKE ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, February 17.—The Associated Press says: Steamships flying the flags of neutral countries, which have been detained here since the new German submarine policy was announced, probably will resume their regular sailings if plans to substitute Halifax for Kirkwall as a port of call for examination can be arranged with the British authorities. It became known that negotiations to this end are virtually complete.

RYNDAM TO TRY AGAIN.

That the British regarded the change with favour was indicated by the announcement that the Holland-American line steamship Ryndam would sail for Rotterdam, via Halifax, and that passengers were being booked for the possible sailing early next week of the steamship Noordam, via the same route. The Ryndam returned here Wednesday after having proceeded to within a short distance of the new German submarine zone and then turned back.

The Swedish Line agents also announce that the passenger ship Stockholm, now more than a week overdue in sailing, would depart to-morrow for Gothenburg via Halifax, as will the freight steamer Carlsholm. Other lines of Scandinavian countries were said to have filed cabled messages to their home offices asking for orders. Among these lines are the Scandinavian American, which has the Hellig Olav in port, and the Norwegian-American, with several freighters loaded and ready to depart.

Arrangements have been so far perfected, it was said, that Halifax pilots, who work under British Admiralty orders, have been ordered to this port to board the Stockholm and the Carlsholm. It also was learned that a Halifax pilot arrived here and went aboard the Frederick VII, the Admiralty orders requiring all ships other than those of the Entente Allies to enter Halifax at night only.

GOES AS A FREIGHTER

The passengers who were originally booked on the Ryndam will not be aboard when the ship sails it was officially announced. The Ryndam will go strictly as a freighter, carrying 8,000 tons of grain consigned to and owned by the Netherlands government. The passengers now being booked for the Noordam have been told they will be given 24 hours' notice of sailing.

At the British Consulate here it was said no word of arrangements whereby neutral ships could call at Halifax instead of Kirkwall has been received, but it was added that the negotiations would be handled direct between neutral governments interested and Great Britain. Announcement of sailings was held to be sufficient indication that the British Admiralty had raised no objections to the plan. From Halifax the vessels for Holland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark can take a direct course that will carry them far to the north of the British Isles and clear of the war zone indicated in the recent German declaration.

RELIEVES CONGESTION.

Word that the ships would sail and intimation that others would follow within a short time, was received with satisfaction by steamship agents handling cargoes for neutral countries of Europe. Not only will it relieve congestion of shipping in American ports, but it was explained that the merchandise for these countries, consisting largely of grain and foodstuffs, is badly needed.

It also was said that under similar arrangements cargoes of foodstuffs intended for the Belgian Relief Commission may go through without further delay. If the arrangements are perfected more than a dozen ships now in New York, Baltimore, and Newport News, which have been tied up from one to two weeks, will be able to depart.

At the office of the American Line it was said that no answer had as yet been received from the Navy Department to the request for guns with which to arm the St. Louis, St. Paul, Kroonland, and New York, now tied up at their piers.

MAKE IT GREAT CENTRE.

The formal statement making Halifax the port of examination for vessels bound for Europe, has been expected for some time, and its importance is thoroughly realized. The order will make the great Nova Scotian harbour one of the most important shipping centres in the world.

Halifax harbour, which is open all the year round, is about six miles long by one mile in width, and has excellent anchorage everywhere. To the north a narrow passage connects it with Bedford Basin, which is six miles long by four miles wide and deep enough for the largest men of war.

Inferior in natural strength to Quebec alone, the city and its approaches have been fortified till it has become the strongest position in Canada and one of the strongest in the British Empire.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A FREE PRESCRIPTION YOU CAN HAVE FILLED AND USED AT HOME.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through to principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind and could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and the expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes from two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and the inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists, and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro by Warne Drug Co.

Eighty Thousand Persons Perish

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Times cable says eighty thousand persons have perished in Palestine as result of crimes committed by the Turks.

Farmers Complain of Scarcity of Labour

COBOURG, Feb. 17.—In discussing the labour situation with Hamilton Township farmers, one is met invariably with the statement: "We will just have to put in what land we can work ourselves and let the rest go. There is no use of trying to secure help; there are no men to be had." Farmers contend that most of the labouring men who have not yet enlisted are now working at munitions, where they are earning big money, much mroe than the agriculturists, it is contended, can afford to pay. On a number of 200-acre farms there is but one man to put in the crop, while one farmer for every one hundred acres is said to be altogether too small an average. An example that has just occurred will show what the farmers are up against. A Hamilton Township agriculturist, who felt that help was a necessity, went to Toronto recently to look for farm labourers. He hired two, one for himself and one for a neighbour, and thought himself very lucky. He paid their fare from the city down here. The men worked for a few days and then one morning it was found that both had disappeared during the night, and that was the last heard of them.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON.

The blood must be filtered, otherwise the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid, the kidneys fail and are poisoned. If the kidneys fail to work properly, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will get both these filtering organs working right, and also secure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Mainprize says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives when they rob you, system of the very root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

The Rev. Chas. H. Spurgeon's keen wit was always based on sterling common sense. One day he remarked to one of his sons:

"Can you tell me the reason why the lions didn't eat Daniel?"

"No, sir. Why was it?"

"Because the most of him was backbone and the rest was grit."— Tid-Bits.

At a recent fair in the west of Ireland, in which pigs were very dear, a buyer noted for his sharp tongue, eyeing a very small specimen for which an enormous price was asked, remarked:

"Are these guinea pigs?"

"Faith and they're not," said another would-be purchaser; "but they're two-guinea pigs."—Farm and Home.

OUR SERIAL STORY

The Red Paper

By C. HOTCHKISS

The crashing of glass evidently disturbed someone above, for a voice called out; but without answering Wentworth crawled through the jagged hole he had made and found himself free, for the door to the street was directly before him. In a moment he was out of it, and in ten minutes more was on an elevated train.

As he reviewed the events of the afternoon, and his mind was completely taken up by them, he realized that though he had come out of an awkward situation as a victor, he should not let the matter rest. Not only was he determined to find Welch and clear away the mystery hanging over his late father's good name, but he made up his mind that Thaddeus Merridale should be made to suffer for the outrage put upon him; indeed he must see the man again if only for the purpose of tracing Welch.

But, like a wise physician who puts his own case into the hands of a brother professional, Wentworth determined not to take further steps until he had the advice of Harper, whom he knew he would soon see. That astute individual, though somewhat lazy when acting in his own behalf, was keen enough when acting for another, was intensely practical, logical and cool headed, and his counsel would be wise. Wentworth knew that the police might be appealed to in this matter; but as he had as yet suffered nothing beyond inconvenience, and as the arrest of Merridale for unlawfully detaining him in a locked room might at the same time open the flood gate of scandal, he put aside the idea.

That the man who had attempted to bribe and then blackmail him, would proceed further in his efforts to obtain the red paper, the young man could not conceive. He considered that Merridale had received a lesson he would not soon forget, and it was put a question of time before he would read him another. In this he was both wrong and right.

When he arrived in front of the Van Dyke he found Thomas walking up and down the pavement in the dusk. As the old man saw his master he gave a sigh of relief, and the expression of trouble went from his face.

"I was getting to be afraid that something wrong had happened to you, sir. I did not want to leave until you returned, Master John," said the faithful servitor.

"I hope nothing serious, Master John—nothing connected with what I have done, I acted for what I thought was the best, sir."

"What do you mean? Has anyone been here to see me?"

"Yes, sir; two gentlemen, sir; the one who called at the house last night and another with him, sir—a foreign-looking chap. They showed me your order, sir, but I could not help them."

"Order! What order?"

"The note you wrote, sir, about a certain red paper. I know nothing of it, Master John, and so told them. They wanted to search the place, sir—said it was important—that you sent them for it and were waiting."

"And did you let them, Thomas?"

"No, sir. I met them in the hall just after I had locked the door. The young foreign fellow threatened me, sir, but they went away later."

Wentworth whistled softly. "And that was all?" he asked, as the evident desperation of Merridale was set forth in plain lines.

STURDY CHILDREN

Oxo Cubes mean health, strength and irrepressible vitality to the little folk, and an immense saving of time and trouble for mothers and nurses.

Oxo Cubes are also a splendid safeguard against the little ailments which give mothers such anxiety. A daily cup of Oxo during the long dark winter months will ward off many a chill, and lessen the danger of being exposed to damp, inclement weather.

An Oxo Cube in a cup of hot milk is a nourishing and easily-digested diet. For delicate and anæmic children it is invaluable.

"Yes, sir, but they offered me ten dollars to let them in. It looked too irregular to let them in. It looked too ugly at that—especially the older man—and I thought they might try and get the key from me by force for the hall was empty and the elevator had stopped running, so I came down to the street. Later they came down after me and stood on the corner talking—then they walked off."

"How long ago was this?"

"They've been gone about an hour, sir—perhaps more."

"You did right, Thomas," said the young man, flaming with anger. "I gave no order. That man—! Never mind. You may go now; I'll attend to these fellows! One was a foreigner, you say?"

"Yes, sir. Slight man, sir; very dark and long hair, small mustache and goatee. The two talked together in a foreign language; Spanish, I think, it was, sir."

"Very good, Thomas. You did your duty thoroughly. Here—take this—and good night."

He thrust a bill into the hand of the old man and left him.

"I wonder who the devil the foreigner is, and what he has to do with this muss," mused Wentworth, as he climbed the stairs to his studio. "This matter is getting beyond me," he muttered, as he let himself into the studio. "I wish Harper were here now."

When he had put himself in order, he went out and had his dinner, his mind completely obsessed by the red paper around which so much appeared to revolve. He considered it high time that he learned something definite about the mysterious document in which his father had taken so great an interest and for which Thaddeus Merridale was willing to commit a crime. What was it that could have so influenced a man like his father, aroused the desperation of two strangers, and now was a threat to himself? He resolved to find out at once.

His dinner finished, he hurried back to his room, locking and bolting the door, then fished the boxed picture from beneath the bed, pried off the cover of the case, and lifted out the painting. Under the blade of his knife the stretched paper backing gave way with the resonant sound of tightened parchment, and as Wentworth folded back the flap he saw a long blue envelope on which was written:

GRACE MERRIDALE,
To be delivered to her on her twenty-first birthday.
December 17th,
19—.

The writing was in Captain Wentworth's hand—his hand had placed it in this hiding place, and he had spoken of the document as a curse.

With a reverent touch the young man took out the envelope. It was unsealed. From it he drew a single sheet of white paper—white on one side, folded twice to fit the envelope. He opened it.

Here at last was the enigma.

Indeed his father had been right; he could make absolutely nothing of it, and his first thought was of the impossibility of men getting into a passion over such a thing. It was a sheet of exactly eight by ten inches, and to the young man's eye was covered with only a fine but irregular network of lines done with a fine pen dipped in red ink. The surface of the paper was entirely covered, save for a slight edging of white, and the only thing that broke the bewildering maze was a faint bluish cloud, without form or outline, darker in some areas than in others, as though the paper had been soiled.

Wentworth took up a focusing glass and carefully went over every inch of the document — if a document it could be called — but even under increase of power he could make nothing of it, save that the blue smudge became more definite in outline, although it was still without meaning.

Viewed from a distance of three feet, the smudge was not discernible at all, and the fine red lines merged together so that to all appearances, it was a mere piece of plain carmine colored paper, somewhat soiled, and worthy of the trash basket. Thinking its secret might be solved by looking through it Wentworth held it up to the strong argand burner, but the paper was almost absolutely opague.

And yet, he was perfectly sure that before him lay something of great value. He grew feverish and smoked cigarette after cigarette as he looked over what he had considerde would be a simple problem; but he could come to no satisfactory conclusion regarding its nature. He thought bitterly that if his father had lived a day longer, he would have known the secret; but now the only thing remaining was to fulfil his father's wish and deliver the meaningless paper to the young lady in question as soon as he could come by her whereabouts.

"And a valuable asset it is likely to prove to her!" he murmured scornfully; "for, according to my father, she knows no more of its meaning than I do. Why in the devil does Merridale go to such a length to get it? With a pen, a bottle of carmine ink and a couple of hours of patience I could duplicate the thing in appearance! But there is evidently more in it than meets the eye, and—and to the devil with it! It's getting on my nerves! Merridale shall not have it, priceless or worthless, and the whereabouts of the man Welch hits my interest harder than this does I wish I had my hands on him! Curse the thing. I'm going out!"

He returned the paper to the painting, but the painting in its box and and shoved it under his bed; then he left the studio and went over to the Great White Way in time to meet the multitudes streaming from the theaters. In the teeming crowds, the young man was as lonesome as if in the desert and in a spirit of self-disgust he returned to the rooms, now having shaken off the bother of the mysterious paper but not the dissatisfaction that made him chafe at an existing order of things which seemed to place him beyond the pale of productive work.

His one idea was to find Welch, and with a natural impatience to begin the search he chafed under the restraint of circumstances. After walking the floor for an hour he went to bed and slept the sleep of the young, the healthy and the clean of conscience.

When, the next morning, in his dressing gown and mule slippers he shuffled from his bedroom into the broad light of the studio, he saw a man lying on the divan, sound asleep. After the events of the day before the sight caused him a shock and he was about to tackle the recumbent figure, when the sleeper turned over and exposed his identity. It was Tom Harper.

Wentworth's cry roused him and the next moment the two had gripped each others' hands. There was no demonstration of excessive joy, but there was a consciousness which went deeper. For a minute or two they did not speak. Finally, Harper broke the silence:

"I did not expect to get in here until to-morrow, Jack! Arrived at the Grand Central at four this morning, and had been unable to get a sleeper. Left my kit at the express office and came right here to have a nap—you know the governor and how crotchety he is about being disturbed before his regular hours. I let myself in with the key that you gave me and had the start of my life when I saw you in bed. I did not know that you were living here—and you looked so blissfully happy that I thought it a sin to wake you. I—I—have nothing to say—that you haven't felt. I would like the details when you feel you can give them."

THE GAIN OF SUNDAY REST.

Of course we do not mean that man will not produce more in a week by working seven days than by working six days. But we very much doubt whether, at the end of the year he will generally produce more by working six days in a week. The natural difference between Campania and Spitzbergen is trifling when compared with the difference between a country inhabited by men full of bodily and mental vigor and a country inhabited by men sunk in bodily and mental decreptitude. Therefore it is that we are not poorer but richer, because we have through many ages rested from our labours one day in seven. The day is not lost. While industry is suspended, while the plow lies in the furrow, while the exchange is silent, while no smoke ascends from the factory, a process is going on quite as important to the wealth of the nation as is the work which is performed on more busy days. Man—the machine of machines—the machine compared with which all the contrivances of the Watts and Arkwrights are worthless—is repairing and winding up, so that he returns to his labours on Monday with clearer intellect and livelier spirits, with renewed corporeal vigor.

* * *

It is more pleasant to be invited to take a higher seat than to be deprived of it. It is more pleasant to be king of a cottage than a servant of a palace. It is better to be a good five cent piece than a bogus quarter; in other words, it is better to hold ourselves at what we are honestly worth. The world is full of people who never know or learn anything, because they think they know enough to begin with. Thousands are teaching when they ought to be taught; thousands believe themselves wise when their ignorance is lamentable; thousands believe themselves clothed in gold when they are only thinly plated and the copper shows in many places. The wisest are comparatively ignorant and thousands of men who have grand ideas of their own abilities will some day wake up to the realization that they have been labouring under a large-sized delusion.

* * *

Young men, the first question your employers ask themselves when business becomes slack and it is thought necessary to economize in the matter of salaries is, "Who can best be spared?" The barnacles, the shirks, the make-shifts, somebody's proteges, somebody's nephews, and especially somebody's good-for-nothing, young men, please remember that these are not the ones who are called for when responsible positions are to be filled. Would you like to gauge your own future for a position of prominence? Would you like to know the probabilities of your getting such a position? Inquire within! What are you doing to make yourself valuable in the position you now occupy? If you are doing with your might what your hands find to do, the chances are two to one that you soon become so valuable in that position that you cannot be spared from it, and then, singular to relate, will be the very time when you will be sought out for promotion for a better place.

* * *

Don't be a grumbler. Some people contrive to get hold of the prickly side of everything; to run up against the sharp corners, and find out all the disagreeable things. Half the strength spent in growling would often set things right. You may as well make up your mind, to begin with, that no one ever found the world as he would like it; but you are to take your share of the troubles, and bear them bravely. You will be very sure to have troubles laid upon you that belong to other people, unless you are a shirk yourself, but don't grumble. If the work needs doing, and you can do it, never mind about the other person who ought to have done it and didn't. Those workers who fill up the gaps and smooth away the rough spots, and finish up the job others leave undone, they are the true peacemakers, and worth a whole lot of growlers.

* * *

Home should be made the most interesting and best loved spot on earth, not merely four square walls of wood and brick; it should be the fountain of civilization, the very word should touch every fibre of the soul, and strike every chord of the human heart with its angelic fingers, a place where that is centralized on the higher and better things of life, bringing forth in the highways and byways an influence that will be felt by all with whom it comes in contact. It should be a place where the heart is, a place where our feet may leave but not our hearts, a place where angels unfold their wings, the place we love best, because it is the place where mother is. Man can build the house and roof it in a resistance against the storms and elements; but the man with all his genius and artisan science cannot make the home; that ever has and ever will be the task of woman. It is she alone that can bring to it warmth and beauty Here she reigns supreme.

A SPLENDID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is, perhaps, no one thing that shows the gaming of our youth so much as the horrible tendency of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 25 or 30. However young our face may appear, our figures "give us away".

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orilene in capsule form, and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orilene taken at meal-time gives you all the benefit of the food you eat, and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissue from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no flabbiness is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00 by money order or registered letter. Goods will be sent in plain wrapper. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Canada.

Facts Concerning Epilepsy: (By Dr. Wm. Held, 7th installment.) It is natural that such results should have given rise to the fond hope of being able to use the same serum in the treatment of epileptics, but we were soon face to face with the fact that the serum when used in the human subject proved locally and systematically so irritating that its employment became impractical. It was necessary to weaken, attenuate or do something that would render the serum not only beneficial but also absolutely harmless. It was tedious labour, injecting one aminal after another, changing concentrations of solutions, drawing spinal fluid from patients and making various combination, and naturally was very discouraging when the finally produced serum, in the absence of alli rritating characteristic, was found to have no curative value.

The description of manipulations, which followed this state of affairs appeals only to the trained miud of the laboratory physician for which reason it is omitted. The fundamental principle which led to success was the fact that the specific and responsible ferment was extracted from the serum. The anti-epileptic serum so produced combines absolute harmlessness with proven efficiency to supplant the objectionable bromides and other drugs, so long and so disastrously used by epileptics. Under the seru mtreatment the mental faculties of epileptics cleared with noticeable promptness as one of the first symptoms of the treatment; it seemed as if a cloud which formerly enveloped the patient, had been lifted.

The steadily increasing evidence of the serums efficiency is a heart-cheering message. He who now speaks of the prognosis of epilepsy can no longer pronounce the horrible disease incurable with the same ring of positiveness which formerly characterized its announcement. The present generation witnesses the production of a specific anti-epileptic, the long looked for remedy rising from the laboratory of present day workers. Epileptics of the present generation will be able to receive treatment with the same chance of success as is now obtained by the modern treatment of Syphilis; and the coming generation will not be in position to realize the great boon placed at its command, they will be less keenly affected, for they will not have as is the case now, harbored epileptics for prolonged periods. They will not have known the pangs imparted by the knowledge that some day death will compel them to leave their epileptic in the care of strangers, in the care of an unsympathetic world; they will not have travelled from one end of the country to the other in vain search of relief; they will all in all accept recovery from epilepsy as a matter of course without having experienced the heartaches of those who now care for epileptics. It is only by such comparison that the supreme importance of present day achievement along epilepsy research can in a measure be realized.

When you are told that a serum has been discovered that will effect epilepsy more beneficially than any other form of treatment and that there are now former patients who after years of affliction and after having had from many attacks daily to several weekly and monthly, that such patients have actually been free from attacks for months and years following the serum treatment, while others have been enabled to leave the asylum and return to normal and useful occupations, that they have regained their normal faculties and that none of the serum patients has received a natom of suppressive drugs you may wonder why, when there are 175,000 epileptics in this country, why thousands of these epileptics do not rush in to avoid themselves of the treatment which has in every respect proven capable to accomplish more good thanany other method thus far known. The reason for this is that we have always some people who delight in throwing stumbling blocks into the road of progress. True the efforts of all adversaries to a real meritorious innovation cannot prevail forever, but for a while they impede progress. In scanning the pages of history you invariably meet instances where every new discovery was met by antagonism of the discoverers' contemporaries, but which were later generally accepted.

All such difficulties with which the road of progress is beset, have not distracted from the efficiency of their remedy nor from the credit which is now universally given these scientists. So we stand to-day on the threshhold which leads to the only logical and practical treatment for epilepsy, the only because it is like no other, based upon the specific cause of the disease. At no time before this has the real cause of epilepsy been so thoroughly understood as now and never before have we been able to direct treatment to the cause of the disease with as much benefit and absence of harm and never are the event of the anti-epileptic serum have so many epileptics successfully been terated."

WM. HELD, M.D.

This remarkable series of papers on epilepsy is practically a simplified review of a paper which I heard him read before the society for Medical Research. His offer to treat free of expense 100 patients for the Home Health Club was made at that time. The only stipulation required being the privilege to make a full report of each case to the society so that the results may be verified by personal investigations.

GIRLS UNSAFE IN WINNIPEG

Judge Curan of Winnipeg, is authority for the statement that nine times out of ten a young girl in domestic work in Winnipeg, will go wrong morally. This may be one reason for the scarcity of domestics in that city, and why the girls avoid the position.

Judge Curran's statement led to considerable comment from the feminine portion of the community, who regard this statement as a sweeping one and rather detrimental to the householders under whose surveillance these girls are.

"Considering that wages in Winnipeg among private domestics are comparatively high I consider that statement extremely exaggerated. If there is any class in danger it is the waitresses in the hotels and the restaurants, whose wages are less," said Mrs. A. A. Perry, president of the Women's Civic League.

Mrs. Luther Holling, president of the Political Educational League, said —"Considering that crime in general has diminished 60 per cent. in this city, I should want the facts proven before accepting Judge Curran's statement."

Cream of Pea Soup.

One can or one pint cooked fresh peas, one quart of milk, one tablespoonful of corn starch, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful grated onion, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper and one egg. Scald the milk and thicken with the corn starch, which has been moistened with a little milk. In the meantime rub the peas through a sieve and add the pulp and seasonings to the milk. Cook ten minutes, stirring occasionally. Separate the egg, beating yolk and white separately; combine and pour the hot soup slowly on to them. Serve at once.

BEANS EN CASSEROLE.

Select butter beans. Wash the beans and soak them for twelve hours and then cook then in enough water to cover well. Bring to boiling point, and then simmer gently until soft and the water is absorbed. Slice about half the quantity of boiled carrot and a quarter the quantity of raw onion. Fry the onion in a casserole, add the carrot and butter beans, stir about, and add salt and pepper and a little butter, and serve alone or with meat.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The girl who has been in good standing in her class since the school term began is justified in feeling that she has earned a little more than the holiday vacation,, and very likely she will expect more than a new hair ribbon. The illustration offers a suggestion for a big girl or a little one—it is a dress design that is in very good taste.

Because the trimming idea was carefully thought out, there may be buttons in plenty, braid and fringe to add to the splendor of the frock, and yet it will win recognition for its artful simplicity. The plain waist is cut full, without any fitted effect, and has front closing. It is finished at the neck with a pretty revered collar of contrasting goods that is braid bound and outlined with silk fringe. The sleeves in long or short length should have cuffs to match.

The gathered skirt is joined to the waist under a separate belt of the fashionable narrow width, or the joining may be corded, if preferred. A double row of buttons to yoke depth and braid and fringe at the lower edge are used to advantage.

For a small girl one may choose linen, gingham, cotton poplin and the like, without the fringe trimming. For a bigger girl serge, duvetyn, velveteen, corduroy, satin, &c., are favored fabrics. The dress pattern, No. 8,069, cuts in sizes 6 to 12. To make in size 8 required 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material, ⅝ yard 20 inch goods for collar, 3½ yards braid and 4¾ yards fringe.

To obtain the pattern send 10c. to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

GIGANTIC SOLAR STORMS.

Largest Sun Spots in Many Years Now Visible.

New York, Feb. 17.—From several sources reports reached this city of two sun spots of an unusually large size observed on the sun's surface. These were in confirmation of the report of Capt. White, of the Southern Pacific steamship El Monte, who arrived here yesterday from New Orleans and said he had observed daily since Feb. 8 two large spots on the sun covering one-third of its surface.

A despatch from Sydney, Australia, stated that the public was watching "the most gigantic solar storms of recent year. Two sun spots are plainly visible to the naked eye, and there are twenty others which look, when reflected under the helioscope, like a splash of ink, with pale, wavy outer lines."

For the last four days sun spots have been observed at the Naval Observatory at Washington. The maximum dimension of the largest one was estimated at 125,000 miles across. In 1861 one spot on the sun was 140,000 miles across, but they are rarely as large as that.

Scientists say that the appearance of sun spots generally precedes magnetic disturbances in the earth's atmosphere. Most scientists deny that they have anything to do with the weather.

Why Best for Babies?

"Granny" Chamberlain

"I am often asked why Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is best for babies. Well, there are several reasons:

First: It is perfectly harmless and can be given with every confidence to the youngest or most delicate child.

Secondly: It contains no alcohol, opium, chloroform, morphine or any other narcotic.

Thirdly: Children like it, and no persuasion is needed to get them to take it.

For the above reasons alone it is impossible to get a better medicine for babies than

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

But aside from its safety it relieves coughs and colds, is the best remedy known for croup, and when given as soon as the croupy cough appears it will even prevent the attack."

Yours for Health.—Granny Chamberlain

SHAKESPEAREAN FESTIVALS

The Bard of Avon Honored by Our Ancestors.

A brief account of jubilees or festivals at Stratford-on-Avon in early times may be of interest. The first of which there is any record took place in 1769, organized by David Garrick, and for this occasion an octagonal amphitheatre, capable of holding over 1,000 persons, was erected near the River Avon. It lasted for three days, and opened with Dr. Arne's oratoria, "Judith," given under his direction in the church. The band comprised the whole of Drury Lane orchestra. Garrick wrote a little comedy, entitled "Garrick's Vagary," which was published at London in 1769. The opening scene takes place in the Bedford Coffee House. Nettle, Fanciful, and Lurcher, three playhouse frequenters, are engaged in conversation. Nettle asks: "What necessity was there for an oratoria?" to which Fanciful replies: "Because, I suppose, performance would be allowed in the church." Lurcher asks: "Well, then, if absolutely necessary, why was a choice made of 'Judith?'" Nettle remarks: "Aye, that is what I should like to know." Fanciful then explains that as there is no oratorio called "William," and as Shakespeare had no sons, approximation was made by complimenting the poet through his daughter Judith!

On the second day portions of Garrick's Ode, set to music by Arne, were performed. The recitative parts were spoken by Garrick.

In 1827 a festival was given by the Shakespearean club. It consisted largely of processions, bands playing in the streets. The only music mentioned is first a setting for voices, by Charles Dignum of the epitaph supposed to have been written by Shakespeare. Dignum died about a month before the festival. A second musical event was a grand miscellaneous concert, which, says a local chronicler, "was attended by 200 persons of the highest respectability."

There was a third festival in 1836 under the auspices of the new Royal Shakespearean Club. An ode was performed, written by Isaac Cowan, and set to music by his nephew, the well-known Charles Salomon, then only 16 years of age. He lived until June, 1901. A member of the club wrote an account of a grand miscellaneous concert at which the young composer took part in a Hummel pianoforte trio. The program included two overtures—Mozart's "Magic Flute" and Beethoven's "Prometheus." The writer winds up his notice by saying that "this rational and elegant entertainment ended with "God Save the King."

A performance was given of Massinger's "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," and for the fourth and last day Shakespeare's "Richard III." was announced.—Musical Record.

Italians Vary Greatly.

Province by province Italy manifests a varying charm, and the people differ as widely as their surroundings. The hot blooded southerner observes a different standard of morals and hygienne, fires to anger or interest more quickly and is generally less dependable and industrious than his northern brother.

Both are gifted with the black eyes and hair and the swarthy complexion as a race that is a general characteristic of the Latin peoples. But the Italian is, broadly speaking, like his country, endowed with a physical beauty and charm beyond that of most of his fellows.

In the north, however, there are exceptions—fair-haired and reddish men and women, who seem strangely out of place among their dark neighbors. Cool, temperate exotics they are among the higher colored growths that somehow seem so tropical, with their sultry smiles and fathomless, mysterious eyes, in which forever broods the shadow of the purple mountains that always and everywhere dominate at Italy, even to the delightful Carabinieri, Rural Guards, those Napoleonic looking officials who parade always solemnly in pairs, hangers at their sides, cockades in their black beavers, the majesty of the law in every line and footstep.

MADE DARING VOYAGE

A STORY FROM GOLDEN AGE OF LAKE SHIPPING.

The Sea Gull Sailed From Toronto to Port Natal in Cape Colony, South Africa, and Back, Making the Round Trip in a Little Over Thirteen Months.

"THE SIXTIES" are looked upon by many vesselmen as the golden age of lake shipping, says The Mail and Empire. In those good old days of lake shipping, they will tell you, every little lake port owned its own fleet of sailing vessels, and lots of money was made in the carrying trade. They will describe for you many different vessels, once the pride of the lakes, and among those you will hear of the brig Sea Gull. The Sea Gull is remembered, not on account of her size, beauty, or speed, for in none of these was she remarkable, but because of a voyage she made 45 years ago down the St. Lawrence and southeastward over the broad Atlantic, across the line, to Port Natal, in Cape Colony, South Africa, a voyage never attempted before nor since by any lake vessel.

The Sea Gull was built in Oakville, Ont., in 1864, by John Simpson, who, with his brother, built a great many of the once famous Oakville schooners, some of which are still afloat. The vessel was owned by Frank Jackman, sr., of Toronto. When she was christened she was a fore-and-aft centreboard schooner of 201 tons register. Her dimensions were: Length over all, 105 feet; extreme beam, 24 feet; draught, when loaded, 10 feet; when light, 4 feet 6 inches. She had the peculiarity of most Oakville vessels—her masts had quite a "spread." The raking mainmast was stepped rather far aft, and the foremast pretty well forward. She cost her owner $15,000. In those days there was a brisk trade between Toronto and Oswego, lumber and grain being carried down the lake, and coal on the return trip. The Sea Gull was engaged in this trade for the first season.

In the spring of 1865, Mr. Davids, of Toronto, chartered the Sea Gull to take out a consignment of lumber, buggies, and sundries to a man named Lysle, at Port Natal, South Africa. Alterations were made in her rig, to fit her better for her long voyage, and she was changed from a schooner to a brigantine, this rig being considered handier for use on salt water. She carried fifteen different pieces of canvas, there being six square sails on her foremast. Her crew amounted to ten men all told. There were four men and two boys before the mast.

She left for Port Natal in June, 1865, and, after a three months' voyage without mishap, she reached her destination. She crossed "the bar" at Port Natal under canvas, without the assistance of a tug, something quite unusual. She excited considerable comment in that port by the length of her voyage and by the fact that she was the smallest vessel which, up to that time, had entered the harbor, and the only Great Lake trader which had ever made the voyage.

The Sea Gull started on her return trip in January, 1866, her destination being Boston. Her cargo consisted of sugar, molasses, pepper, arrowroot, ivory, and some 37 passengers, also two monkeys, which some of the older citizens might remember afterwards being on the steamer Bouquet, running to the Island. She arrived in Boston after a voyage of 98 days. Here she discharged her cargo and loaded flour for St. Johns, Newfoundland. She sailed from that port in ballast for Sydney, Cape Breton, and there received a cargo of coal for Montreal. She came up light from Montreal to Kingston, and there got a cargo of cordwood for Toronto.

On her way back to Boston she called at St. Helena for fresh water, where the crew and passengers visited the grave of Napoleon.

In July, 1866, she arrived in Toronto, after a voyage of 13 months. She was placed on exhibition at Yonge street wharf, and great crowds flocked to see her. The voyage had been a very fortunate one, none of the crew were lost, the vessel suffered no damage, and there were no mishaps whatever. Frank Jackman, sr., was captain, and his nephew, James Jackman, mate. Captain May, a salt water sailor, acted as navigator. James Jackman, now of Toronto, is the only surviving member of the crew.

About $19,000 was paid for the trip, and after all bills were paid, there was $13,000 profit. A sample of South African rum was brought back and kept on tap in the captain's cabin. Verily a little of it went a long way—thousands of miles—and old mariners declare it was strong enough to knock a man down.

The late Captain Henry Jackman, brother of Captain Frank, took another lake vessel, the Jessie Drummond, to Hamburg, Germany, with a cargo of timber in the same year, and had with him as mate his nephew, Charles Cook, now of Toronto, who is the only survivor of the crew. They had a very successful trip, the one misfortune being the loss of Robert Moon, of Port Union, who was one of the crew.

It will perhaps be of interest to our readers to know that on the return of Captain Frank Jackman to Toronto the Board of Trade of the city presented him with a gold watch, which is now in the possession of his son, Frank Jackman, of Toronto. When Captain Frank Jackman, of the Sea Gull, was presented with the gold watch, he in turn gave to his brother-in-law, James McKnight, of Wingham, Ont., the watch previously used by him, which watch at the present time is owned by his grandson, James McKnight, son of Henry McKnight, of Teeterville. This watch is nearly one hundred years old.

Beaded effects will lead among dress trimmings for spring.

WHISTLER AND MOORE.

Two Versions of the Famous Caning Incident at Drury Lane.

It was in his capacity as editor of the Hawk that the late Augustus Moore, a journalist and playwright of no little notoriety, enacted an unrehearsed comedy with Whistler that created no end of a sensation at the time. It happened in the vestibule of Drury Lane on the first night of the production of "A Million of Money." Whistler, it appeared, had been annoyed at sundry references to himself in the Hawk and, coming up to Gus Moore, who was calmly smoking a cigarette, struck him across the face with a cane. A struggle followed, and, although opinions varied as to the actual course of the conflict, there was no doubt about Whistler having ultimately to pick himself up from the floor.

Each of the protagonists afterward gave his version of the incident. "I started out," said Whistler, "to cane this fellow with as little emotion as I would prepare to kill a rat. I did cane him to the satisfaction of my many friends and his many enemies, and that was the end of it." "I am sorry," wrote Mr. Moore for his part, "but I have had to slap Mr. Whistler. My Irish blood got the better of me, and before I knew it the shriveled up little monkey was knocked over and kicking about on the floor."

The notion, however, that he was knocked down was characterized by Whistler as "a barefaced falsehood." He contended that Mr. Moore never touched him. "I am sure," he added, "I don't know why, for he is a much bigger man than I. My idea is that he was thoroughly cowed by the moral force of my attack. I had to turn him around in order to get at him. Then I cut him again and again as hard as I could, hissing out 'Hawk!' with each stroke. Oh, you can take my word for it, everything was done in the cleanest and most correct fashion possible. I always like to do things cleanly."—New York Tribune.

Spanish Railways

Spanish railway companies have under consideration the advisability of changing the gauge of their lines to the uniform European gauge of 4.69 feet. Should the change be made, it is urged by those in favor of it, Spain would become a centre for the trans-shipment of vast quantities of European merchandise for Africa and America, and of African and American merchandise for European markets. Under present conditions all merchandise must be unloaded and reloaded at the Spanish frontier. Spanish merchandise, it is also pointed out, could be sent direct to the heart of Europe, which would greatly facilitate the export of mineral products, the weight of which makes transshipment difficult. Furthermore, products like fruit, vegetables, etc., grown in Spain, would be saved from exposure and delay. The principal obstacle in the way of the change is the great expense. One project, involving double tracking of many existing lines, would cost, it is estimated, $54,000,000, and take ten years before completion.

Whistler's White Lock.

As long as the name of James McNeill Whistler lives among those who saw him it will recall the famous white lock which stood out so conspicuously from the mass of his black hair. It was, as he used to say himself, "well placed" and was always treated from the harmonious point of view to develop its greatest effect in his appearance. One day when Dorothy Menpes, daughter of the well known English artist Mortimer Menpes, was a baby and was asleep on her pillow Whistler went to see her. A white feather had by chance settled on her head and lay in a spot exactly corresponding with the white lock on his own head. "That child is going to develop into something great," he exclaimed, "for, see, she begins with a feather, just like me!"

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

It's All In The Tie Space

The reason why one man has to pull and jerk his tie into place while the other slides his around easily is due entirely to the tie space provided in the collar.

Very few makes of collars have enough tie space—especially in the larger sizes.

The design of W. G. & R. collars is such that every man, whether he wears size 14 or 17, secures ample and uniform tie space.

W. G. & R. collars are the "slide-easy" kind—a boon to mankind.

Come, try them you fellows who have been wearing the other kind. Life is too short to be unhappy.

H. T. MILLARD'S UP-TO-DATE BICYCLE AND MACHINE SHOP

Expert Service in Steam and Electric Vulcanizing, Welding and All Kinds of Difficult Mechanical Repairs

That a small and rather unpretentious bicycle shop on Hunter St. possesses a rather unique history, dating back much farther than the average citizen might naturally imagine, and of more than passing interest, are the facts recently unearthed by a visiting newspaper man.

The half-tone reproduction from an old photograph shown below was taken about 30 years ago and is a picture of Best & Metheral's bicycle shop as it appeared at that time. The old-fashioned bicycles standing outside of the shop speak for themselves, also the old board sidewalk in front of the store will be noted in contrast to the modern cement walks so long in use now that few remember the time when board walks were in vogue.

Best & Metheral started in business about the year 1890 as a machine repair shop, and later invented an oil engine and a greatly improved steam boiler and engine for small boats.

The above is a reproduction from an old photograph of the premises of Best and Metherall, which Mr. Millard remodelled into his present stand.

About the year 1895 the "safety" low frame bicycle came into use and a year or so later pneumatic bicycle tires (the improvement that made the bicycle so popular) were invented. In 1895 Best and Metheral started to manufacture bicycle frames and continued in this line until the big slump in the bicycle business in 1899, brought about partly by over-production and partly by tire trouble, as tires in the early days of the bicycle were costly and difficult to repair, a great number of the large manufacturers failed, and their backs came under the hammer. Bicycles were sold for less than manufacturers' cost.

Best & Metheral were the first, and in fact the only firm in Peterborough who ever really manufactured bicycles, not merely buying them made up and affixing their name plate. It is interesting to note that there are still in use in Peterborough a number of these bicycles made so long ago, but so substantially and well built that they are still giving good service.

As far back as 1898 they installed a power driven air pump and an air tank to accommodate their bicycle customers with "compressed air free," being the first in Canada, and probably the first bicycle shop in the world to thus accommodate the public.

In 1903, Mr. Metheral, having dissolved partnership some years previously, sold the business to the present owner, H. T. Millard.

Mr. Millard, in addition to an extensive bicycle and auto tire sales business and a modern up-to-date repair shop, vulcanizes auto tires, being the first in town to install steam and electric vulcanizers for this work.

EXPERT REPAIR WORK.

Machine shop repair work has always been a strong feature of the business, and this had become so well-known that considerable time was lost persuading customers to take away broken castings and articles that were past being profitably repaired. To overcome this difficulty an oxy-acetylene cutting and welding outfit was installed, and Mr. Millard took a course of study in the art of oxy-acetylene welding and now, instead of sending away work he is busy trying to convince the public that the impossible can at last be done.

The powerful flame from the cutting torch of this modern invention burns at a temperature of 5,600 degrees, and will cut off a great steel girder in a few minutes, that by the old method of a sledge and cold chisel would have taken two men hours of hard labor to sever. The Quaker Oats Co. are taking advantage of this appliance in removing the debris of the late fire.

The welding torch used in connection with the apparatus is still more wonderful and of more practical interest to the general public. By its use teeth may be built on large gear wheels often without removing the wheel from the machine to which it is attached, or other parts repaired at a less cost than dismantling the machine would entail.

Anything from a pair of scissors to a locomotive can be repaired, melted together and in some cases made stronger than when new, at a fraction of the cost of replacing the broken part; and in these days when all metal products have become so costly and many things are impossible to get, even from the manufacturers, the possibility of having repairs rapidly and cheaply done in town should prove a real boon to the people of Peterborough, not to mention the patriotic reason that every article repaired instead of being replaced gives some mechanic so much more time to turn out munitions to win the war.

NEVER HAD A HAT UPON HIS HEAD UNTIL HE WAS 18.

WHEELING, W. Va. — Joe Bleifus, aged 18, is now wearing a hat for the first time in his life. For 18 years he went without a head covering, but when he became old enough to "run around with the girls" he decided to adopt the headpiece in order to be like other boys. Bleifus is extraordinarily strong and never wears an overcoat.

SOCIETY ACQUITS BEES OF THE CRIME OF INJURING FRUIT.

ROME. — An agricultural society in Italy has carried out a thorough investigation of the alleged injury of fruit by bees and has completely exonerated the latter. Bees are unable to perforate the skin of fruit, and it is only incidentally that they suck the juices of fruits injured by other natural causes.

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless, when She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to other cells of the human body. But feeble, wasted nerve cells may be restored, and herein lies hope.

In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system before some form of helplessness results.

Nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis are the natural results of neglecting to keep the nerves in healthful condition. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you suspect there is something wrong, will soon restore vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developments.

Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and found it hard to get my work done at all, but, having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold, and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several, and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used there would be much less sickness."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures in nature's way by nourishing the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and vigour. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

Following up our subject: Then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven, verse 30, the Son of Man himself, as it follows, they shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds. At his first coming he was set for a sign that should be spoken against. Luke 2, 34, but at his second coming, a sign that should be admired, and scoffers who tauntingly said, Where is the promise of his coming, shall be ashamed. All tribes and kindreds of the earth shall mourn. The greater part shall tremble at his approach, while the saints will lift their heads with joy for their redemption draweth nigh. They shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven. He will come with power and great glory. His first coming was in great weakness and humility. II Cor. 13, 4. His second coming will be agreeable to the dignity of his person and the purposes of his coming. The angels shall be attendants upon Christ at his second coming, verse 31. They are called his angels, which proves him to be God, and Lord of the angels; they shall wait upon him. Their ministrations will be ushered in with a great sound of a trumpet, to awaken and alarm a sleeping world. I Cor. 15, 52; I Thess. 4, 16. They shall gather together the elect from the four winds. This is the foundation of the saints' eternal happiness, that they are God's elect; the gifts of love to eternity follow the thoughts of love to eternity, and the Lord Jesus knows them that are his. The angels shall be employed to bring them together as Christ's servants, and as the elects' friends: they are scattered abroad; there are some in all places, and in all nations, but when the great gathering day comes there shall not be one of them missing. Distance of place shall keep none out of heaven. Our Lord answers verse 32, 35, the former part of the Apostles' question concerning the time when these events should take place. Their approach would as certainly be determined by the signs he had mentioned as the approach of summer by the budding of the fig tree. Our Saviour seems to distinguish the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, from that of his second appearance; the former, verse 34; the latter, verse 36, of which he there shows the suddenness. Our Lord declares that to whatever trials the Jewish nation might be subjected to, it should never pass away, or dissolve as a distinct people, until all things which he had been predicting were fulfilled. His prophecy reaches to the very day of final judgment, therefore he here in verse 34, remarkably foretells that Judah, whether unbelieving or believing shall never cease to exist as a distinct nation, as long as this world shall endure. Christ's declaration, verse 35, that though the heavens and the earth pass away, his word shall not pass away strongly intimates the general disregard and unbelief of man. In few things is our practical unbelief more evident than in the great disregard of his coming in all our calculations. Men of the world altogether put this out of consideration. They scheme and plan from generation to generation here, but their plans have no reference to the great approaching event, which shall control every human scheme and set aside forever all that God forbids, and introduce another era for the human race.

There is a certain day and hour fixed for the Judgment to come; it is called the day o fthe Lord, because so unalterably fixed no man knows it—not the wisest by their sagacity, not the best by any divine discovery. We all know that there shall be such a day, but no one knows when it shall be, not even the angels. This is one of the secrets which belong to the Lord our God. The uncertainty of Christ's coming is to those who are watchful a saviour of life unto life, but to those who are careless it is a saviour of death unto death, and makes them more careless. Verses 37, 41. It will be a surprising day as was the deluge to the old world, although notice had been given of it from the time of Enoch; yet when it comes it will be unlooked for by most. The latter days which are nearest that day will produce scoffers that say, Where is the promise of his coming? II Peter 3, 3, 4. When the flood came on the old world they were entirely occupied with worldly matters, eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the flood came and took them all away. They simply refused to believe the teaching of Noah, who preached to them for 120 years. They were so eager in the pursuit of pleasure and had no time to consider that they were on the brink of eternity, and were all swept away. What words can more impressively describe the suddenness of Christ's coming; men will be at their daily avocations, buying and selling on the market, and on change; women will be attending to their domestic duties, etc. Suddenly a light eclipsing by its brightness the sun at noonday, will change all things, for the Lord of Glory appears. Hence the only readiness (being one with Christ) in union with his person, regenerated by his spirit, washed in his blood, clothed in his righteousness, strong in faith and hope, looking for his coming. Christ is here represented as coming to the final judgment; from verse 31 to 46, we have a most sublime description of the last judgment. There are some passages in it that are parabolical, but there is no similitude carried through the discourse. It is rather to be called a delineation of the final judgment, than a parable. It is as it were an explanation of the proceeding. Christ spake it openly in the character of the Sovereign Judge. He shall come not only in the glory of the Father but in his own glory as a Mediator. The judgment of the great day will be a general judgment; all must appear before Christ's tribunal, all of every age of the world, from the beginning to the end of time; from every place on earth, from the remotest parts of the universe.

There will only be two classes there—saints and sinners, the good and the bad. Then they will be separated and all shall have to give an account.

The process of judgment concerning the saints will be first despatched, for they shall sit with Christ in the judgment of the wicked. He that was the shepherd which speaks with care and tenderness to his own is also the King who speaks with power and authority, wherewith he will pronounce the sentence to the righteous. He says: Come ye blessed of the Father, and inherit the kingdom prepared for you—and to those on the left hand into outer darkness. The sanhedrim into outer darkness. The sanhedrim placed those to be acquitted on the right and those to be condemned on the left.

The fullest account of Christ's coming is given to us by our Lord himself in the three parables in this chapter. That of the Ten Virgins shows us the needs of having our loins girded, our lights burning, and of our being like those who wait for their lord. That of the Talents shows us how responsible we are for the use of everything that we posses to that Divine Master who has entrusted all to us. That of the Goats and Sheep shows us our King and Saviour coming to his glory with all his holy angels, and acknowledging before the assembled nations all who have proved their faith in him.

Well may the Christian's heart and eye be fixed upon this unspeakable, momentous event as the glorious object of his hopes. Well may he be preparing for that day. (Bickersteth's Notes.)

Yours Sincerely,
James Sutherland.

Gallant Canadian Chaplains.

Canadian chaplains have won a place for themselves on the Somme. Two have already been decorated and several others have been recommended. Field ambulance officers pay great tribute to these men of all denominations for valuable help given in attending wounded in the rush that inevitably follows an attack. One of the most remarkable stories of devotion yet is that a wounded officer tells of Canon Scott. He says: "One of his sons was the first officer killed in leading an attack on the Regina trench. Waves of Canadians swept over where he fell. The fortunes of war caused us to retire and in the meantime young Scott's body was buried with the others. Later on the Canadians captured Regina trench again, this time to hold it. Canon Scott's duties took him into this front line, and night after night, assisted by his faithful batman, he refused the help of officers who were overwhelmed with their own work under shell fire and dug among the hastily made graves searching for his son's remains. Finally he found young Scott, and with fatherly tenderness carried him back to a quiet resting place behind the lines. There with his own hands he erected a cross and offered up a prayer to the God of battles. Brave father and brave son were united again for a brief moment."

THE VALUE OF WASTE.

Red Cross Society Finds Large Source of Income.

To make $9,030.93 out of things that otherwise would have been thrown away, to make $9,030.93 out of nothing, practically, is what the Toronto branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has done up to date in its Waste Department, under the chairmanship of Mr. F. A. Mulholland. From November 15th to November 30th the net results of the waste campaign were $711.96 and in the month since Mrs. G. R. Boker has begun to canvass the city in the interests of this department the proceeds, Mr. Mulholland says, have jumped up between six and seven hundred dollars. Mrs. Baker has a corps of volunteer canvassers. These canvassers call at the homes and ask the housewives to save all their waste, for which the Red Cross cars will call at regular intervals. The response they have met with is splendid, and over 4,000 promises have already been made for the coming month.

Mr. Mulholland declares that the work done by the eight girls who drive the Red Cross motors is even more patriotic than that done by the munitions workers. Their hours are 7.30 a.m. to 5 p.m., rain or shine, and they always come in smiling. Two other motors are driven by boys.

There is no end to the variety of things collected, and apparently no end to the possibilities of sale. Rags, papers, kitchen utensils, lawn mowers, baby carriages, golf clubs, tennis raquets—these are only a few of the things the Red Cross receives and readily turns into cash to add to the comfort of the boys who have been wounded in fighting our battles overseas.

Colds or Cough SHOULD NEVER BE NEGLECTED

If They Are, Some Serious Lung Trouble Are Sure To Follow

A cold or cough, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise that you get rid of it before it becomes settled. For this purpose we know of nothing to equal Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and has always given universal satisfaction.

Mr. Erwell Bolton, Wilton, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was caught in a storm and had to stay in a barn all night. I caught a severe cold which several medicines failed to cure. I went to some of the best doctors but these failed to do me any good. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles and they gave me instant relief."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and bearing the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 25c and 50c.

A beautiful complexion is a handsome woman's chief glory and the envy of her less fortunate rivals. Yet a soft, clear skin—glowing with health—is only the natural result of pure Blood.

"I was troubled for a considerable time with a very unpleasant, disfiguring Rash, which covered my face and for which I used applications and remedies without relief. Capture Dye Trade.

Many a struggling company has been set on its legs by the war, but there is perhaps no more remarkable instance than that of Levinstein, Limited, the dye and color manufacturers of Blackley, Manchester, says The London Chronicle. The company was formed in 1895, with a capital of £90,000.

Not by any stretch of imagination could the company's pre-war record be called successful. The disappearance of German competition, however, brought about a great change, and for the year ended June 30, 1915, the company made a net profit, after meeting all charges, including £21,700 for depreciation and wiping out the goodwill and patent items in the balance-sheet, of £80,300. Fourteen and a half years' arrears of preference dividend were discharged, and 30 per cent. was paid on the ordinary share capital.

There has been delay over the issue of the accounts for 1915-1916 owing to difficulties with the authorities over the amount of excess profits tax payable by the company. But the profits are believed to have been prodigious. Already, ordinary shareholders have received 30 per cent. in dividend in respect of the 1915-16 operations, and a further distribution is evidently expected when the accounts make their appearance, for the £10 ordinary shares, which at the outbreak of war stood at a very low figure, and, indeed, were practically unsaleable, are now quoted in Manchester at £75 apiece!

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Sword of Damocles

By ALAN HINSDALE

I was sleeping uneasily. First I dreamed that I was looking down from a great height and was dizzy. Then I was conscious of tossing about half awake in bed. Next I was wandering, but where I knew not.

"Begone! What do you mean by coming here at this time?"

The words and a sudden light flashed in my eyes awakened me. I was standing in my pajamas in the room of the sister of my chum, Allan Twombly, whose guest I was.

I had walked in my sleep before, but my somnambulistic adventures, from one of which I had barely escaped with my life, troubled me, and I was so sensitive about them that I kept them to myself.

And here was the most unfortunate of all of them. Better that I had been awakened tilting over the peak of a roof high in the air than in this fashion, which, unless understood, would cover me with disgrace. And, to make matters worse, instead of then and there giving the cause of my intrusion I slunk out of the room without a word.

Returning to my chamber, I threw myself on my bed and moaned. This breach of hospitality, this apparently dishonorable act, must be revealed in the morning. I pictured myself dismissed from the house by Allan, his friendly bearing toward me turned to anger. His sister, Gwendolin, whose room I had entered in the middle of the night, I did not expect to meet. She would doubtless avoid me as she would a serpent.

Give as an excuse that I was a somnambulist? Who would believe such a statement. Nor could I prove it. No one except myself knew that I had walked in my sleep. Once I had awakened to find myself standing before a mirror crying. That was several years before this, when I was a boy. Again I had suddenly found myself at dawn sitting on a gutter, my legs dangling over, forty feet from the ground. I was near a dormer window and managed to get back through it to my room. But neither of these exploits I had mentioned to any one. The only person I had cared to tell was my mother, and I feared that if she knew I was executing such acrobatic performances it would worry her terribly.

If there is one thing a young man is ignorant of, it is a young woman. A good woman is the last person in the world to charge a man with insulting her. If I had explained to Gwen why I entered her room she would have believed me. There was no danger of her telling how, hearing a sound, she had turned on an electric light and exposed me standing in the middle of the room. Had I been ten years older I would have known this, for there was no nobler girl living than Gwen Twombly, and she would naturally have shrunk from punishing me and bringing me and her brother into antagonism, to say nothing of the rest of the family.

But as I lay tossing on my bed I presumed that the morning would bring disgrace for me. Should I leave before any of the family had arisen or stand and take my medicine? Of the two courses I chose the latter as more suited to my nature. Knowing that I was innocent of a guilty intention, I could bear the lashing in store for me, whereas if I slunk away like a cur I could never face any of the family again.

When I went downstairs in the morning I knew not just where the blow would fall. The cheery "Good morning, old man!" of Allan stung me, for I knew that my episode of the night before had not yet been revealed to him. Then came a greeting from his father, his mother and the others. They had not yet been informed that they were entertaining a villain unawares.

When we sat down at the table Gwen was not present.

"Where's Gwen?" asked the father.

"I think she has overslept," replied her mother.

Both the question and the reply were like sticking a knife between my ribs. It was evident that Gwen was going to let me get away without giving me a lashing, and if she intended to tell on me would not do so before I had gone. Thank heaven, this would spare me the scene I had anticipated. Besides, there was a hope that she would keep the secret, though it was not to be expected that I would dare enter the Twombly home again.

Shortly before we rose from the breakfast table Gwen came in.

"Good morning, papa. Good morning, mamma. Good morning, Mr. Williams. Good morning, Al." Her good morning to Mr. Williams, who was and is myself, was as cheery and even more kindly than to any of the rest.

Oh, that they could all be extinguished that I might fall at her feet and worship her!

One by one the others left the table, finally leaving me and Gwen alone.

"Why have you not slain me?" I asked.

"Because you are perfectly innocent of wrong."

"Why do you infer that?"

"You started from sleep when I turned on the light."

I told her how I had awakened before a mirror and later sitting on a gutter. Her look of terror at the latter revelation was a revelation to me, and when she saw that I had been made aware of her interest in me she blushed.

Gypsy Queens.

On occasions America treats its gypsy monarchs with full regal pomp. Matilda Stanley was accorded an almost royal funeral in 1878 at Dayton, O., where, ten years later, another queen was crowned with all proper ceremonial. In England, too, gypsy queens have received all due honor. Esther Faa Blythe, who died in 1883, had many members of the aristocracy on her visiting list, and she, too, had a regular coronation. But, on the whole, the gypsy has not had a very good time in England. An act of 1592, for example, made it a felony without benefit of clergy to be merely seen for a month in the society of gypsies, while for actually being a gypsy no punishment was too severe.—London Standard.

Canada must 'Carry On'

If Belgium's Children Are To Be Saved - -

To punish the violation of Belgium and free its land from the Huns has been one of the strongest rallying cries of British and Canadians throughout this war. For it our men have fought hard and long, and, stronger and more determined now than ever, they are "Carrying on" to the finish.

When the soldiers first went out to fight the despoilers of Belgium, we who could not go undertook to help feed the starving women and children who were victims of German savagery. Are WE carrying on as the soldiers are doing? Or has our enthusiasm cooled—our sympathy died out—our help lessened or ceased?

Certainly the Belgians' need of help has not lessened, but rather increased! Three million women, children and old men are depending for food—for life itself—on the Belgian Relief Commission. The Commission in turn depends on us Canadians for a substantial share of the necessary food, or the money with which to buy it. If we fall short in our contributions, thousands of Belgian kiddies must go painfully, if not fatally, short in their food supply Already an alarming number of them, weakened by scanty rations, are falling victims to tuberculosis.

There would be little merit in restoring Belgium to a nation whose motherhood and youth we had allowed to be decimated and weakened by hunger and resulting disease Let us at home carry on the relief work as unselfishly, as steadfastly and as successfully as our soldier boys are carrying on the fighting! If YOU have not been helping, now is the time to give a hand and do your bit.

CARRYING PIG IRON.

The Way Scientific Study Increased Results and Wages.

No work seems more simple, more unlikely to be subject to scientific study, than the art of carrying pig iron. This, however, has been subjected to the most careful scientific study. Men at Bethlehem, Pa., were loading pig iron on cars at the rate of about twelve tons a day. Certain pig handlers were given extra wages for doing this work under special direction. An attempt was made to ascertain the relation between the amount of horsepower which each man exerted and the fatigue which he incurred. Long continued experiment furnished a vast amount of information, but apparently no law. Finally F. W. Taylor, who was conducting the experiments, handed the data over to an associate who was apt at mathematical problems. Very soon he reported that he had discovered the law—that fatigue varied in proportion to a certain relation between the amount of load and the period of rest—for example, a man carrying a ninety-two pound pig had, in order to avoid fatigue, to be at rest 58 per cent of the time. The discovery of this law involved a great amount of data, including certain physiological facts concerning the poisonous effects of waste tissue upon the blood and difficult mathematic formulæ, including the plotting of curves. As a result the pig handlers were directed exactly how to lift and carry their loads and when to rest, and the amount of pig iron handled by each man every day increased from twelve and a half tons to forty-seven. Of course the men received a great advance in wages.—Ernest Hamlin Abbott in Outlook.

Not to Be Deceived.

"Have you studied the plays of Sophocles?" asked the serious young woman.

"Quit jokin'," replied Mr. Lowbrow. "I know everybody in both leagues. There ain't any such player."—Washington Star.

A STREET RAILWAY SERVICE TO EAST CITY

Extensions to the Present Street Car Service are Being Considered by The Government, under whose Supervision, the System is Operated A New Bridge over Hunter Street would Pave the Way for a Street Car Line to East City. A few Statistics concerning the Operation of the Plant.

NOW that the purchase of the Peterborough Radial Railway has become a vital issue with the City Council, it would not be inopportune to consider a few outstanding facts concerning the system as it exists to-day. The street railway is now the property of the Provincial Government. It was included in the purchase of the Seymour power interests which was made some months ago by the Government at a cost of over eight million dollars. At present the street railway is producing an annual revenue of between five and six thousand dollars a year. The local interests of the Seymour Power Company included the electric lighting and power system, the street railway and the gas plant. Other interests of the company were located in Lindsay, Port Hope, Campbellford and other nearby towns. The entire list of assets of the company were taken over by the Government. Some time ago this city secured by arbitration the street lighting system of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, and a couple of weeks ago the Utilities Commission of the city was authorized to purchase from the Government the Otonabee distribution system at a cost of a little over seven thousand dollars. This leaves the Government still in possession of two local utilities, namely, the gas plant and the street railway.

Revenue Producing Power Could Be Increased

Some days ago a deputation representing the City Council waited upon the Ontario Hydro Power Commission in Toronto with a view of obtaining information relative to the purchase of the street railway from the Government. The deputation was informed that the street railway and the gas plant could be secured at an approximate purchase price of four hundred thousand dollars. At present the gas plant is not revenue-producing, but the two utilities operated together will produce a fair revenue. Sir Adam Beck was of the opinion that this is not a good time for the city to enter upon such an ambitious project owing to the condition of the market, but if the city was determined to undertake the work the Government would render some assistance and help the city to finance the scheme. Since that occasion a committee of the whole Council held a meeting and decided to secure further information concerning the two plants. To increase the earning power of the gas plant will require an outlay of at least ten thousand dollars, according to the information in the hands of the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario. The revenue-producing power of the street railway could be increased by extending the present lines to East City and other parts of the municipality not now covered by the system.

Figures Concerning The Operation Of The System

The following figures concerning the operation of the street railway, prior to the change of ownership, are contained in a report made to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. The number of passengers carried during one year exceed one million. For the year ending June 30th, 1915, the number of passengers carried per mile of main railway track operated was 183,720. The number of car miles run was 429,098. About fifty persons are employed in connection with the operation of the railway. The amount of passenger earnings per mile of road during the year mentioned was $7,359.02. The average rate of speed of passenger cars per hour was ten miles. The equipment of the street railway is represented by ten box passenger cars, two open passenger cars, six trailer cars, one snow plough, and two snow sweepers, also a tower waggon. The length of railway line is about six and a half miles. The railway is operated in the City and the Township of North Monaghan. The weight of steel rail per yard ranges from fifty-six to eighty pounds. About two thousand ties are used in the construction of one mile of track. During the year referred to, the gross earnings from operation amounted to $40,879.85. The operating expenses were $36,358.22, and the gross income above operating expenses $13,830.83. Included in this are the park receipts, amounting to $309.20. The advertising in the street cars brings in a revenue of $440.00. These are a few general figures concerning the operation of the street railway, and serve to show in a measure the kind of undertaking the city will have to deal with, should they decide to purchase the system.

A Better Time For The East Ward

In event of the City purchasing the street railway system the operation of the plant will be vested in the Utilities Commission, which now controls the water, electric lighting and power system of the City. Whether or not the street railway is purchased by the City, the matter of extensions will have to be dealt with at an early date. It is understood that the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario is willing to make reasonable extensions to the present system, and it may be that with the erection of a new bridge over Hunter Street, East City will fall heir to a street car service. Such a luxury has been denied East City for many years. A belt line could be run over the Hunter Street bridge around the thickly populated sections of the East Ward and return by way of Smith Street. An extension is also badly needed in the West Ward, by way of McDonnel Street from George Street West. There is also a thickly-populated section in the vicinity of the Normal School that has long been overlooked. Many are inclined to the opinion that a mistake was made when the former owners of the street railway failed to lay a double track on George Street. A four or five-minute delay at the C.P.R. and G.T.R. crossings will tie up the entire system under the present system of single track operation. A car that is delayed at either of these crossings will delay cars at transfer points for a corresponding period. This could have been remedied by a double track on George and Charlotte Streets. Further developments in connection with proposed extensions will likely take place some time during the next two or three months.

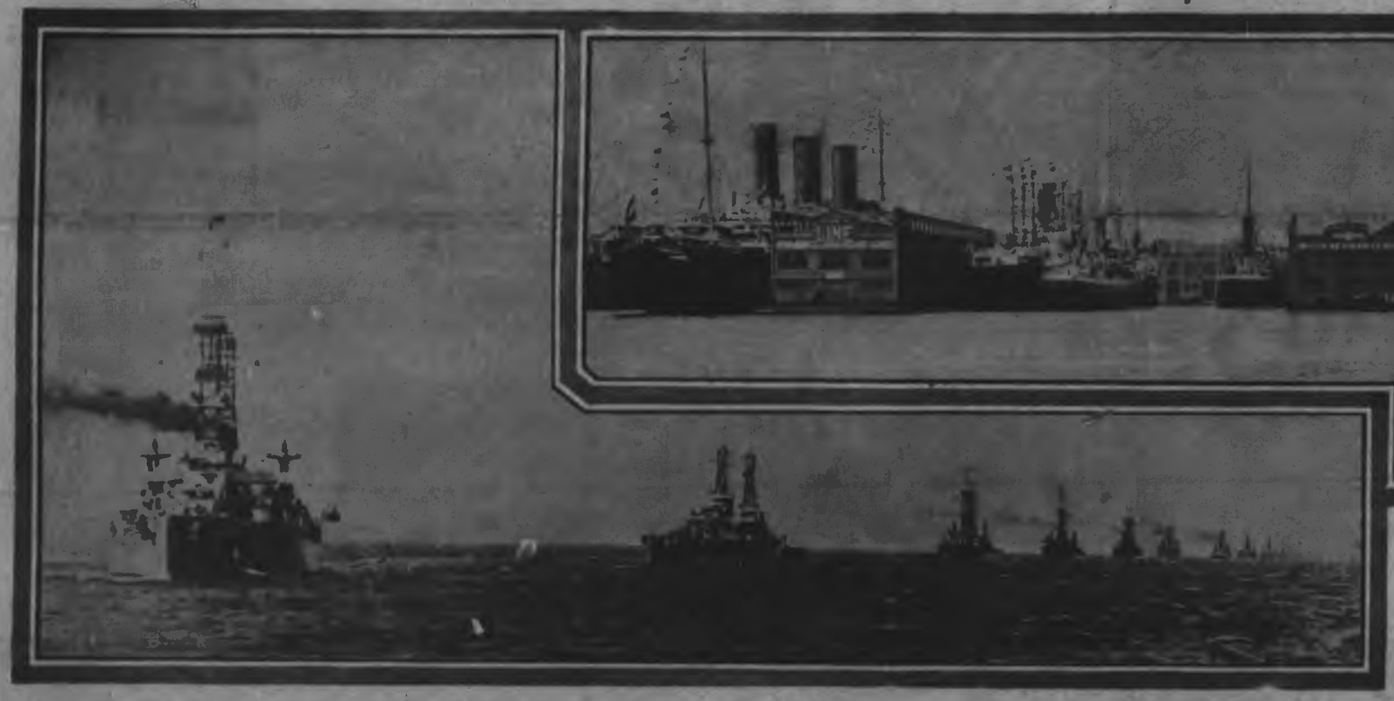
"Puncture-proof" Tires - America's Sea Power - Russian Headquarters on Fire

Newly invented periscope to save countless lives of soldiers in trenches. Dutch soldier firing rifle using the "Eradus" periscope. This device was designed by J. H. Eradus, a Dutch inventor, and is named in his honor. It is attached to the butt of the rifle and enables the soldier in the trench to aim and fire accurately without danger of death from the enemy's bullets. It is in use in the Dutch Army and should revolutionise sniping along the battle-fronts.

Germans equip war autos with new all-spring wheels. The Germans have equipped automobiles in service of the Army with the all-spring wheel. This may be due to the shortage of rubber in Germany or other reasons not allowed to be stated by the censor. Although clumsy and ugly they certainly have the advantage of being puncture-proof.



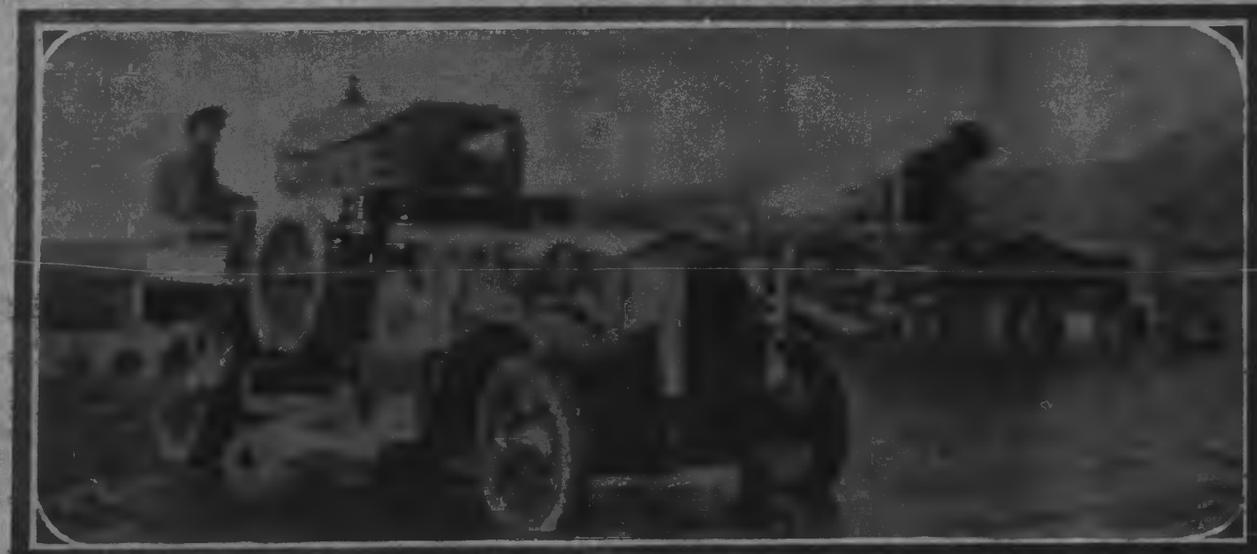
Latest photograph of U.S. fleet in formation at sea. This photograph was made from the deck of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania on January 23rd, 1917 (place censored). The following ships are in the photograph: New York, Delaware, Oklahoma, Texas, Florida, Utah, Wyoming, Nevada, South Carolina, Michigan and Connecticut. These are some of Uncle Sam's mightiest sea fighters and should United States be precipitated into war these floating forts of steel would protect American coasts.

Germany's great ocean vessels at New York are carefully watched by neutrality squad. Ocean going German liners docked at piers at Hoboken, N.J. Orders were received by the Collector of the Port of New York Malone, not to permit any vessel, neutral or belligerent to pass out to sea. Even tug-boats were included in the order. Several small craft passed quarantine early in the evening before the order was recieved and they were commanded to put back. The purpose of the order was not made public. The Collector made several trips along the Hudson River and the Sound in a fast launch.

Russian Headquarters in Poland goes up in smoke when Germans get range. Russian Field Headquarters in Poland after the Germans determined the correct range. This is an actual war photograph showing plenty of action. The Germans, after getting the range, poured their big explosive shells into the headquarters camp and set the place afire. The soldiers are shown packing up preparing for a hurried evacuation.

With one pounders mounted on all the city's great bridges and Naval Militiamen guarding the spans, New York put on a warlike appearance. The automobilist who motored across the bridges was held up by a blue uniformed Naval Militiaman who insisted on searching each vehicle for explosives.

"Thousands of Square Miles Picturized on Less Than a Square Yard"

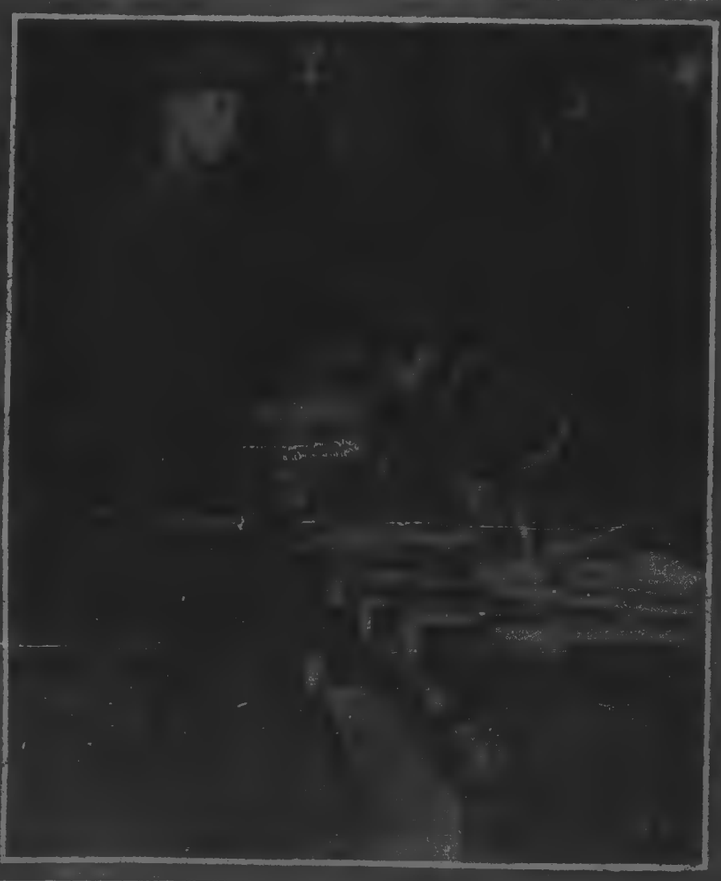


There is excellent work for a live "Good Road Commission" all over Europe, in fact a driver has to possess a vivid imagination before he can pilot his vehicle in some spots because there is no highway to be seen, he has to imagine where it is likely to be. Here are shown British Armoured Cars in the Caucasus, and a Russian Transport wagon.

A flooded communication trench on the Western front. The men in this area have great difficulties to contend with in the form of rain and mud. The men are carrying their gas-masks in cases slung round their shoulders and wear trench-waders to keep their feet and legs dry.

Three officers outside their billets in a little French village are discussing the details of a raid on the Germans. Needless to say it was successful.

A French long-range gun in its underground emplacement in an entrenched position within the Marne district. Only a direct frontal hit can damage this gun.



An Indo-Chinaman working at a lathe in a munition factory in Central France. Our ally has followed up this method of manning her factories and has attained a very unique position in this way. Her workers come from all parts—Tonquin, Cochin and Saigon in Indo-China.

The French have always led the world in the creation of beautiful and artistic things and that gift has ample opportunity to develop even in the battlefields. The top picture shows a soldier making violins out of shell-cases and the lower one shows two soldiers fashioning flower vases from the same material.

A French letter box on the Lorraine front. The soldier to the left is taking a last look at his newly written letter to his wife, while the fellow on the right is supposed to be feeding the regiment's mascots. The birds are buzzards, a species of the hawk family, and are very tame.

Shells and More Shells - War-Time Aspects - Germany's Legacy to Uncle Sam (?)

"La Reine de Nos Offensives" is the French style for the giant French gun seen in the background of the illustration—a French 40-centimetre, or 16-inch gun. The "Queen's suite" is the picturesque description for the double line of vehicles which form the "train" of the piece. The double row of motor vehicles are shown parked at either side of the avenue where the firing position has been selected.

King George V. and party of officials inspecting a British munitions factory where acres of shells are stored, awaiting transportation to the front. These are believed to be the first views allowed to reach this country showing the British reserve ammunition, recently described in despatches.

Interned German liners under constant guard. From left to right: The Prince Joachim, Prince Eitel Friedrich, Konig Wilhelm II., Hamburg, and the Allemannia lying off 135th Street and North River, N.Y.C. Note the Allemannia coaling up. A constant vigil is being kept by the Neutrality Squad and the police to see that none of the ships attempt to make a run for sea.

French troops in Egypt transporting heavy artillery across the desert. Transporting a big piece of artillery. Remarkably thick wooden wheels are used on account of the soft conditions of the ground.

Jack Tars in Cuba, who may soon be called upon to "do their bit," in the event of America going to war with Germany.

Frank Hartman and "huskies" that left Winnipeg and are now racing for St. Paul. Frank Hartman, of Le Pas, and Team No. 2, his line-up of "huskies" that are racing to St. Paul in the great Winnipeg to St. Paul Derby. The distance is 522 miles, and is over the old mail route.

International Situation Grows More Difficult For United States

A Break With Austria is Imminent and the Economic Situation as a Result of the Virtual Blockade of American Ports By Sub. Degree Makes Some Action Imperative---Heavy Artillery Fighting in Champagne Where the French Have Made Gains.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 17.—(By Robert J. Bender) — After two weeks of broken relations with Germany, President Wilson finds the international situation increasingly difficult. A break with Austria seems impending in view of persistent reports that all negotiations tending to dissuade Austria from following the U-boat course of Germany have failed. Officials are convinced tha tthe economic situation in the United States as a result of the virtual blockade of American ports by the German U-boat decree, makes some action imperative. In spite of the developments of the last two weeks, however, there is no belligerent step immediately in sight. Furthermore as an additional thorn in the sight of this Government, Germany boldly announces she will sink any American merchantman that is armed without the usual formalities of warning, search, or other courtesy.

PARIS, February 17.—The War Office statement tells of heavy artillery fighting in Champagne; also successful attacks by the French infantry in the neighbourhood of Ammersweiler, gaining considerable advantage for the Allies.

HALIFAX, N.S., February 17.—How thorough will be Britain's inspection of the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII., bearing Count Von Bernstorff back home, was indicated to-day in the semi-official announcement that it may be a week or more before the lined is "passed." A hugh staff of naval, customs and imigration officials with interpreters, women assistants and translators, swarmed aboard the Frederick VIII to-day beginning their work shortly after daynight. Their task includes minute examination of baggage and of the persons of the Bernstorff party, women being designated for the task of searching the women passengers.

PARIS, February 17.—Jos. Grew, Secretary to the American Embassy in Berlin, and recently in charge during Ambassador Gerard's absence in the United States, was to-day ordered to Vienna to assist American Ambassador Penfield it is thought in guiding Americans out of Austria when relations are broken off with the United States.

LONDON, February 17.—Naval aeroplanes made a successful attack on the Bruges Harbour and the Aerodrome at Chistelles, Belgium, yesterday, the Admiralty anonunced to-day.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, February 17.—The cold which has held the western front bound for nearly a month is gradually moderating, and it is easy to sense all along the battle line an unmistakable quickening which tells of the approach of spring and foreshadows the coming to gripe of the greatest armies yet assembled in the world war. In anticipation of eventualities the Germans have removed the civilian populations from their cities and towns in proximity to their line, but no such precaution has been felt necessary behind the Allied front.

Never silent the British guns are beginning to roar more and more steadily. Last night they bombed with particular violence in the sector of the Somme. The chorus of guns rises and falls like great peals of thunder, and there are flashes in the darkened sky like the play of lightning along the horizon. New groups of divisions have been recently identified along the German lines, bearing out reports of great troop movements now going on in Germany. British officials, however, say that this concentration is not as formidable as it appears at first sight. The artillery will play the heaviest part in the coming smash, and the Allies are fully prepared.

LONDON, February 17.—Estimates to-day of the total contributions to the "Victory" loan range from three and one-half billion dollars to five billions, and some even say it will go as high as six billions. Evidencing the public spirit the managers of the loan campaign declared to-day that a very large majority of the subscriptions pledged had been paid in full. In many instances this withdrawal of huge sums pledged to the Government presented serious problem to banks, but elaborate precautions were taken to prevent any fluctuation in the money market on this account.

OTTAWA, February 17. — "Effective means have been taken by the Government to insure the supply of newsprint to newspapers of the Dominion of Canada," says an official statement to-day.

LONDON, February 17.—Three persons were killed to-day when a submarine sank the British steamship Queenswood, 2,701 tons.

COLD WAVE IS COMING

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—Winnipeg was hit with a regular old-time blizzard last night with about six inches of snow. The temperature has dropped from twelve above, yesterday, to twenty below this morning. Observatory officials here say the blizzard will probably strike Ontario Saturday night or Sunday, with considerably lower temperature.

EASY FOR PEOPLE SAFE AT HOME TO MAKE CRITICISMS

Capt. J. H. Burnham Explains Some Matters in Connection with 93rd Batt. and what Happened to the Peterboro' Unit in the Old Country.

AN INTERESTING LETTER

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,— Some comment having been made in Peterborough upon the return of the 93rd Battalion Band, etc., I might be allowed to give a short history of the Battalion which would serve to set at rest much of the comment of those who, with all the best intentions in the world no doubt, are nevertheless not going to the front themselves. It must be borne in mind that having your wife's relations or your sons or your nephews at the front is not the same as for a man to go himself. He may have a little reflected glory, but not enough to do any shouting upon, and it might also be fairly stated that those men and women who say that they would have gone if they had been younger or been men can give up a vast deal more than they are giving up and thus come somewhere near to doing what those at the front are doing. Many a man at the front has expressed his envy of the dear ones at home who are having a hard time of it knitting socks, giving a few dollars for patriotic purposes and running no risk either of poverty or death. Sometimes it is said that the men at the front are well paid. Most of them are receiving less than they ever received before and since the price of necessaries has increased by 40 p.c. since the beginning of the war and their rate of pay has not changed it might be well for the dear ones at home to make up to them their difference in price, which would mean in the neighbourhood of $150,000 a year for Peterborough alone. When this sum is made up and when the taxes which those at the front will have to pay when they return for the privilege of fighting are also provided for by the dear ones at home and when they have given up all but the bare necessaries of life for themselves and their children as the men at the front have done, it will be time for people who are not at the front to make comment, but it is hardly fair to do so before.

Now let us take a look for a moment at what happened to the 93rd.

(1) The handling of 1,000 men from their starting at Peterborough until they reached the firing line was a most difficult and arduous work and reflected the highest credit upon the officers, non-commissioned officers, band and men of that Battalion.

(2) They had all been promised to go to the front as a unit and were all ready to go to the front and willing—nay, delighted— but because it was said that the casualties amongst the men at the front had been greater than expected it was necessary that reinforcements be sent over immediately and those best trained went first and so the Battalion had to be broken up.

(3) The band was enlisted for playing purposes to play while others trained and it was not trained. It had to practise even while others trained, and when its services were no longer required it applied to go back to Canada, which was quite natural. At the last moment orders came to dismember it and send it hither and thither as privates, etc., but the Bandmaster appealed to the Colonel and the Colonel appealed to me, and I wired the

BIG MEETING AT THE GRAND TO-MORROW

To-morrow night's recruiting rally in the Grand Opera House promises to be one of the biggest ever held in Peterborough. Members of the City Council, Board of Trade, and other bodies, will be present to lend their support to the campaign. The speakers will be Chancellor McCrimmon, of McMaster University, Major Harry Hodge, M.C., of Campbellford, and Lieut. A. E. Brittain, Adjutant of the 247th Battalion. Chancellor McCrimmon is well-known throughout Canada, as an orator, and his address will be well worth listening to, while Major Hodge and Lieut. Brittain have both been at the front and know the conditions thoroughly. The Grand should be crowded.

PTE. RALPHSON OF 93rd BATTALION IS KILLED AT THE FRONT

Another Member of the Peterboro' Unit Gives Life For the Empire's Cause---Sixteen Peterborough Recruits For the 256th Railway Construction Battalion Leave City on Monday---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Word has been received of the death of another member of the 93rd Battalion in the person of Pte. John S. Ralphson. Rev. Jas. Price, rector of St. George's Church, of which Pte. U. S. SITUATION CAUSES RISE IN TIDE OF OPTIMISM

Britain Believes that America Reluctant as She May be Will be Forced by German Policy to Intervene in the War

THE POLITICAL SITUATION

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, Feb. 17. — Good tactics, as well as good manners, compel the English press to adopt an attitude of reserve that amounts almost to complete reticence, in regard to the trying situation that now exists between Germany and America, in consequence of the extended submarine warfare; but it is unavoidable that everywhere admirers believe he carries to an extreme the fact that the tide of optimism has risen higher because of the probability that America, reluctant as she may be, will be forced to intervene in the war. It is partly this reinvigorated optimism which has caused the semi-panic caused by the announcement that neutral ships would be sunk without warning in certain zones, to steadily diminish, though of course the anger at the wholesale and cruel murder on the seas which Germany proposes to increase, continues. This anger adds daily to the grim determination of the British people to continue the war to a successful end, regardless of hardship and suffering.

TONE IS CHANGED.

The tone of the House of Commons has been entirely changed by the creation of a regular opposition. The irresponsible "sniper" has disappeared. There are indications, however, among a small section of the extreme Radicals, that trouble will be made if opportunity is given; but Mr. Asquith's dignified and patriotic attitude, his watchful helpful, but not factitious opposition to the ministry, are subduing these scattering tendencies. Thus though the criticism of those who have the conduct of affairs is more than usually frequent, it is also of a much more responsible character. It looks far more formidable in the published reports than it really is.

There are two weak points in Lloyd-George's position. One of these is his constant absence from the House of Commons, which even his warmest admirers believes he carries to an extreme. The other, far more formidable, is the situation in Ireland. The Roscommon election forced on all sides the immediate consideration of the whole Irish situation. All men now see that matters are rapidly drifting towards a choice—which must be made. There are only two possible alternatives: the first is the immediate granting of home rule; the second an inevitable strengthening of the rebellious sentiment in Ireland which will force that country to fight for its individual life by a conatitutional movement. If this second alternative is allowed to prevail, then we may have a militarist government in Ireland, and perhaps some disturbances that will cause the loss of the forty years of work there, from Gladstone and Parnell, and down to Redmond, bringing about another cycle of dreary, devasting, perhaps useless, struggling. It is possible now to have home rule by skilful management of

NEARLY 7000 ARTICLES

The results of the Red Cross Society's special sewing campaign should be exceedingly gratifying to all those who are interested in the work. January third, on the supply table, there were huge piles of uncut material, piles which reached fairly to the ceiling and which, to the incredulous, seemed an almost inexhaustible supply. From day to day and week to week, to the incessant humming of sewing machines, the continual clicking of scissors and the constant plying of needles, these piles steadily diminished, while the quantity of well-made garments and articles perceptibly increased, until by February 13th, the last day of the campaign, the supply table was empty and really wonderful consignments of garments—each one labelled, "Peterborough Red Cross," had been shipped or were ready for packing. Those turned out from the Red Cross workrooms, were augmented from week to week by the following auxiliaries, which in their own societies made up the materials, sent to them from the Red Cross rooms, viz.:

St. Paul's Red Cross Auxiliary.
St. Andrews Red Cross Auxiliary.
St. Peter's Patriotic Society at T.A. S. rooms.
The Murray street Red Cross Auxiliary.
Trinity Methodist Red Cross Auxiliary.
St. John's C.W.A.
South End Red Cross Auxiliary.
Berean Bible Class of Knox church.
Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E.
Buckhorny Patriotic Society.
Lakehurst Red Cross Auxiliary and Fairmount Red Cross Auxiliary.

The sum total of the shipments, consisting of 99 cases, was valued at $4,500.

But who can estimate in figures, the real worth of this work. Surely the cheer, the moral stimulus, the comfort that these things will bring to the hearts of the men overseas, apart even from the additional physical comfort that they will assure, would make the extra effort worth while, for who can realize what it means to the lads who are fighting for us, to know that those at home, are not only thinking of them but also working for them.

And yet for practical purposes, figures speak louder than words, and sentiment, and it is, in truth, a splendid report that is here presented by the convenor of the Packing committee:

From January 3rd to February 15th, there were shipped:

196 dressing gowns.
367 day shirts.
623 pairs pyjamas.
949 pairs of socks.
51 bed jackets.
300 sheets.
564 pillow cases.
2,699 towels.
868 many-tailed bandages.

The whole valued at $4,500.

Flora H. Davidson,
Convenor.

The cordial thanks of the Society is extended to all those who, in answer to the appeal for workers, and there was a splendid response, gave of their time and energy and in any way contributed to the success of the work. The Society wishes, too, in a very special way to thank those auxiliaries, societies and persons, who so generously contributed not only their work but also provided their

NORMAL SCHOOL AT HOME WAS MOST ENJOYABLE

The Normal School students held a large and enjoyable "At Home" last night in the Assembly Hall of the school. A good programme was rendered, including a chorus by 30 girls, a violin solo by Dr. Park, and the Highland Fling by Miss Jean Johnson. Mr. Asa Huycke played the accompaniments. During the evening, while the promenade was going on, dainty refreshments were served, Hooper catering. Over three hundred attended, all of whom pronounced the evening to be a great success.

Citizens who have had a foreword of the increase have been putting in supplies at the prevailing prices of 25 and 35 cents.

"MADAM, YOUR VOTE AND INFLUENCE."

This seems likely to be a form of appeal that before long — probably at the next general election—will be blushingly employed by the political candidates. There seems to be every probability that at the present session of the Ontario Legislature woman suffrage in this province will become law. The effect of the petticoated propaganda recently conducted seems to have had an exciting effect, and members are fairly falling ovr each other in their eagerness to please the ladies. On the very first day of the session one member re-introduced his perennial bill to give the municipal franchise to married women; another "went him one better," and launched his bill to extend the full legislative franchise to women, and another, by the way a Conservative and government supporter, introduced bills to the same effect. Hon. W. D. McPherson, the new Provincial Secretary, spoke a day or two ago in favour of women suffrage, and another Conservative member, formerly opposed, confesses himself a convert. With members of the House of different politics besetting the govrnment on either flank, and the women massed in frontal attack, the government is likely to surrender at discretion. A government caucus held yesterday, lasting two hours, showed the anxious attention given the women suffrage question, and while the members of the government side were almost unanimous, it was felt that certain difficulties are to be overcome before the govrnmnt will commit itself on the subject. It is probable, however, that as in the case of the prohibition question, the Government will yield to popular opinion and the sentiment of the members of the House. Naturally the Government feared that the woman vote, in the matter of temperance measures, would antagonize governmnt interests, as associated with the liquor traffic. But now that the prohibition question is virtually settled, and has ceased to be an issue in politics, the government will have no excuse or interst in opposing votes for women. The government knows that the majority of its supporters are in favour of woman suffrage—the Opposition has always been favourable—and it can feel reasonably sure that public opinion is behind the great reform, so that the Government will probably adopt the measure introduced by Mr. Johnston of Belleville, a government supporter. We may, therefore, expect to see woman's woman's suffrag chronize with the golden jubilee of Confederation as one of the greatest forward accomplishments of the last half century in Canada. Bringing it into force, on July 1st, 1917, would be, even in this jubilee year, one of the crowning features of the semi-centenary of a united Canada.

MUCH MORE THAN A FAD.

There is no justification for either educational authority or unthinking journalism to regard the development of the spirit of saving and thrift, represented by the Penny Bank as a fad. It is a subject of the utmost national importance, and contains the germ of ability to meet the national demand, by the Minister of Finance, who calls upon us all to save and serve to lend to the government—"for the next war loan."

Penny Banks are endorsed by the Ontario Minister of Education. In an official circular, issued by the Ontario Department of Education, he says:

"The Minister desires to express his appreciation of the devotion shown by the teachers in those schools where the Penny Bank has been in successful operation. He also wishes to point out that it is not enough merely to establish the system in a school. There must be loyal co-operation and persistent sympathy upon the part of the teachers; otherwise some few may take the opportunity to exercise a natural thriftiness, but the bank will fail in its effort to encourage thrift among the unthrifty. Thrift needs to be encouraged as steadily and persistently as good manners, or any other desirable habit."

This endorsation indicates that there are a few progressive schools in the province, that begin at the beginning to develop the habits of thrift the Minister refers to. We have before us an official statement of Mr. Mackenzie, manager of Penny Banks. It shows that there are in Ontario thirty-six schools that have adopted the Penny Bank system of education. The average of the deposits made by these schools is 22 cents per pupil per month. The total deposits in all the Penny Banks in Canada, thirty-seven in number in 1916, was $24,712; the monthly deposits range from six and ten cents per pupil per month to 68 cents per pupil, the monthly average for the pupils of Swansea school, York County. If thirty-seven schools saved a total of nearly $25,000 last year, what would have been the total if all the thousands of schools in the country had contributed proportionately? The Penny Bank deposits, instead of standing now at $335,000, would amount to millions.

It is the duty of school administrators to take up and deal with this question, not only as an important element in child education, but as a medium for the discharge of a patriotic duty. This idea made so strong an appeal to Toronto's prominent citizens, that a deputation headed by Mr. Hamilton Cassels, K.C., waited upon the Board of Education, two or three days ago, asking leave to distribute a circular among the pupils, setting forth the need of thrift as a patriotic duty. This matter seems to be of so much importance in this connection that space is given to the press report of the circumstances. The Globe's report says:

The Board of Education last night passed a resolution, moved by Trustree C. A. B. Brown, heartily endorsing the work of the Penny Bank in the schools, and strongly urging all teachers to take an active interest in its promotion as an agency of patriotic thrift among the children. A deputation of directors of the Penny Bank, headed by Mr. Hamilton Cassels, K. C., waited upon the board with a request for permission to distribute a circular among the pupils setting for the need for thrift as a patriotic duty. It was stated that the government has now a loan of $335,000 from the Penny Bank, all of which has been deposited by the children. This money is being used for war supplies, and the children are urged to deposit every cent they can spare and endeavour to raise the loan to one million dollars. The board approved of the appointment of Inspector Cowley as a director of the Penny Bank.

Here is a call for the Penny Bank depositors to raise their loan, at present, of $300,000, to a million. This could easily be done, and would have already been done, if the Penny Bank were or had been introduced into all the schools of Canada. The report for the year now before us shows that the average deposit per pupil in all the schools was 22 cents per month. That is $2.64 per pupil per year. At this rate the approximately half million school children in Canada would deposit the relatively large amount of one million three hundred thousand dollars in a single year.

Is not this a gold mine worth working? Remark the possibilities for national service. The government pays interest at three per cent. on all deposits over one dollar, the government has the use of the money for patriotic purposes, and the amount of deposits stands to the credit of the child or his family.

If a child, beginning at five years, makes Penny Bank deposits till he leaves school at fourteen or sixteen, he may have a total of $50 to $100 to his credit. When he gets into business training and finds that the smattering of a score of subjects he has necessesarily skimmed over at school, does not make him fit for making his own living, he has money enough to give him a course at a Business College to clerically fit him for business.

But, apart from that he would have had the most essential part of training for business success—he would have had formed the habit of thrift and saving—been taught their value as an indispensable condition of success in life. J. J. Hill, the Canadian multi-millionaire, who knew what contributed to his success in life, said that the man who had not learned to save was and would be a failure.

A school child who has been taught thrift and saving through the Penny Bank in the school, is equipped with two things—one small thing, principal, and one great thing, principle—principal, in the form of his savings in the government's safe hands, and the principle of success, saving and thrift. If we spend thousands to educate our children to make their way in life, and neglect the essential of teaching saving and thrift, we neglect the only thing that can make the other part of their education practically effective.

SOUVENIRS OF NURSE CAVELL

Mr. J. C. Gamey of Peterboro was Associated in the Nursing Work in Belgium

The origin of the nursing system under Nurse Cavelle would be of interest to many, especially coming first hand from one who was with the first detachment of nurses sent to Brussels with Nurse Cavelle. Mrs. J. C. Gamey, Aylmer street, wife of Sergt. Major Gamey of the 247th Battalion.

Until four years ago, nursing in Belgium was undertaken by the lower classes of women, known as the "garde malade." These women knew little or nothing of the finer points of the profession. Cancerous cases were taken from a bed and an invalid suffering from, perhaps, pneumonia, replaced them with, sometimes, not a change of sheets. The filthiest diseases were nursed or cared for besides cases of the simplest nature.

Some years ago the Institute du Docteur was opened under the celebrated Dr. De Page, and it was then Nurse Cavelle became interested in the crude methods of nursing in Belgium. She interested the nurses of England, and urged that a body should be sent over to raise the standard and nurses must be trained. It was with this body Mrs. Gamey, a graduate of the Wooler Hampton enlisted.

She found the situation to be as urgent as Nurse Cavelle illustrated it, but the difficulties greater than she had anticipated. It was uphill work in every way. The Church was down on the coming of outsiders. The King and Queen of Belgium could not display any interest or lend help—everything seemed against the little band of English gentlewomen striving to show that nursing was not a lower walk in life than servants. Miss Cavell's work seemed hopeless, but she kept a cheerful spirit and was beloved by those with whom she came in contact. Slowly the better classes were awakening to the fact that nursing was a profession when the war with Germany broke out, and Miss Cavell's life-work wrecked for the time being at least.

Mrs. Gamey has many interesting souvenirs of Nurse Cavell, personal letters, letters of introduction from her to others and photos of the staff at the Cavell Nursing Home, in which she nursed, taken at the Home, Rue de Culture, Brussels, Belgium, which stood opposite the Institute de Docteur de Page.

SIX WEEKS' CAMPAIGN WAS GREAT SUCCESS own wool and materials and who by their donations, helped so materially to increase the shipments, viz.:

The Ashburnham Patriotic League, 18 pairs pyjamas and 18 bed jackets.

The Lily Lake Red Cross Auxiliary, 21 pairs socks and hospital supplies.

The Lakehurst Red Cross Auxiliary, 18 pairs pyjamas, 22 pairs socks, 1 night shirt, 2 1-2 dozen pillow cases, 1 dozen personal property bags, 9 towels and some scrap books.

St. Paul's Red Cross Auxiliary, 150 pairs of socks.

Young's Point Red Cross Society, 25 pairs of socks.

Mrs. Alex. J. Robertson 16 pairs of socks.

57th Chapter of I.O.D.E. for 126 pairs of socks to be sent to the Canadian War Contingent Association.

It is also with sincere appreciation that the Red Cross Society acknowledges the invaluable assistance of the following, who by their help and generosity made the campaign of work possible, viz.:

Turner Bros., who cut out all the pyjamas.

Mr. Toolman, who cut out the grey flannel shirts.

Alexander & Miller, for lending an electric iron.

Thompson-Davis Co. for carrying insurance on the work to the value of $2500.

The Singer Sewing Machine Co., who gave the use of nine machines for six weeks.

In view of the large shipments which have been made from week to week, it is a source of satisfaction to the local Society to know that their boxes now go direct to England via St. John, New Brunswick, and that the convenor of the Packing committee is regularly notified of the date of shipping and the name of the steamship, as the following letters indicate. One dated January 13th from the Canadian Red Cross Office, St. John, acknowelding a shipment of 17 cases and stating that these had been forwarded on the S. S. Arracan, contained the following:

"In reference to your shipments. It is quite satisfactory to us for you to ship weekly or monthly, as we are receiving goods by rail every day. Personally, I think it preferable to make shipments weekly, that is providing the same is convenient to you. This enables us to keep our Red Cross supplies moving all the time and prevents congestion, which is an important feature at the present time owing to the scarcity of ocean tonnage."

Another of January 16th states:

"At the present time owing to the exceptionally heavy traffic and congestion on the different railroads, shipments are taking a longer time to reach us than under ordinary conditions. We have found it most satisfactory to the different branches that instead of acknowledging receipt of goods the day on which they arrive, to advise the arrival and also the forwarding of these goods to London, giving the steamer's name. This does not cause any great delay in the senders receiving acknowledgment of their goods, as cases never remain in our warehouse more than three or four days before being forwarded overseas."

A letter dated London, England, from Colonel C. A. Hodgetts, Canadian Red Cross Commissioner Overseas, reads in part as follows:

"I beg to inform you that I have been advised of the arrival in this country of Red Cross supplies, shipped by you to me, as follows: 13 packages by Steamship "Telemachus." These will be distributed to the various depots and advanced depots of the Society in England and France."

It will, no doubt, be with general and intense interest that the acknowledgment of the same arrival of these last consignments will be awaited.

PETITION TO BE CIRCULATED

At a meeting held yesterday in the teachers' room of the Public Library, supervisors were chosen to attend to the circulation of the suffragette petition which will be presented next week. The city will be divided into wards, each supervisor working with three or four in a ward.

AL. H. WILSON,
Singing Comedian, Who Visits Peterborough For the First Time Saturday Next.

Al H. Wilson, the singing dialect comedian who occupies an enviable position among the well known artists of the stage, will present Herbert Hall Winslow's new Irish song-play, "My Killarney Rose" at the Grand Opera House on Saturday next, Feb. 24.

It never did require much of an effort to enjoy Al H. Wilson, for he is a comedian of the type who does not have to resort to buffoonery to create laughter and in this new style of endeavour he represents the worth and dignity of the Irish race and makes of the witty and fun loving son of Erin a person to be proud of. It offers him a greater field for his laugh-provoking methods—which are always high class and free from any offence. In the role of Tom Carey, whose adventures are many in the play, Mr. Wilson reveals a new character, and that he deserves the honours he receives, is evidenced by the manner of portrayal. His songs, too, breathe the atmosphere of the Emerald Isle, and he sings them with a new charm that cannot fail to add to his already lyrical reputation, "My Killarney Rose," "The Love I Give to You," "Where the Shamrock Grows," "Mary Houlihan," and "The Yodel that Stole My Girl Away."

The scale of prices will be $1.00, 75c., 50c. reserved, and 25c. for the gallery.

THE NEW FORD CAR

The Sooner You Buy Your Ford the Less It Will Cost You

Take Time by the Forelock

THE RUSH has commenced. The greatest season in Ford history has swung open. From now on the problem will be, how to get Ford cars. And the reasons are real—

1. Not only is the 1917 Ford the same Economical — Efficient — Powerful — Dependable Car that has been satisfying millions of users the world over;

2. But its new Streamline Body — Sloping Hood—Cowl Dash—Crown Fenders and Refined Artistic Design have won for it the patronage of the most critical motorists.

3. Its marvellous performance holds the multitude—its Perfected Body Design has won over the last few remaining critics.

4. If you are trying to get along without a Ford, or with a half worn-out or inferior machine, it will be money in your pocket to get your Ford NOW.

5. Then, every day you use it, it will be paying for itself out of the savings it will make you.

6. When it comes to a choice of Motor Cars, Ford Superiority is now UNIVERSALLY recognized. Those who "know" buy the Ford to begin with. Those who don't "know" replace their other cars with a Ford later. Thousands of users do that every year.

7. Take Time by the Forelock. The sooner you buy the sooner your Ford will begin to pay for itself.

Act Quickly---Make Sure of Getting Your Ford

THE probability of an acute shortage of Ford Cars this Spring calls for prompt business-like action.

You may not need your Car for weeks yet. Delay in placing your order would mean disappointment and inconvenience. Possibly many weeks of waiting.

Our large Central Garage in Peterborough serves every section of this district. Here, capable, courteous experts help you choose your model. Garage open every evening.

A large staff of trained, experienced mechanics is always at your service. Service cars are ready to answer your call, no matter what part of the City or County you are in.

The Duffus policy of thorough service stands behind every car sold. It is a super-guarantee behind your Ford.

Besides our big Central Garage at Peterborough, we have branch garages at Norwood and Millbrook. These have been opened up in those sections for the convenience of the districts adjacent thereto, where the same Ford service and Ford satisfaction will be accorded buyers as in Peterborough.

What Could a Ford Do For You?

IT would be one of the best business investments you ever made, considered from a standpoint of a labour-saving device—making possible the accomplishment of more work in less time.

It would be one of the finest, healthiest, most delightful investments in pleasure you ever made.

One man, a manager of a bank, travelled 6,600 miles in his Ford, and his total expense for repairs was twenty-five cents paid for a bolt.

Not to own a Ford is a disadvantage any time. Almost every day we hear from Ford owners, who are so pleased with their cars that they don't see how they ever got along without them. Obey the Ford impulse.

Another good point about the Ford Car is the "Exchange" policy, by which a Ford owner can have a new car every year for almost what it cost him to maintain a larger car.

This is a feature that has commended itself to hundreds of Ford owners, and should not be overlooked by prospective buyers.

Service, Supplies and Accessories

THE Duffus Garage in Peterborough carries a $7,000 stock of repair parts, and is in a position to supply any part of a Ford car on a moment's notice and at right prices. Repair work is executed thoroughly.

This service from the city has been augmented by the opening of a garage at Norwood and one at Millbrook, each thoroughly equipped so that calls for repairs covering a wide area receive the same response as would a similar call to the Peterborough garage. There is also a Paint Shop where even the oldest car will be treated and turned over to the owner looking much the same as a new one.

Each of the three garages is equipped with storage tanks for a compressed air service, and Bowser storage system for gasoline and oil for the convenience of the motoring public. Only the highest grade oils, gasoline and greases are kept.

In the case of a tire not being found satisfactory, the best possible adjustment will be made between the purchaser and the manufacturer. Michelin, Goodyear, Dominion Nobby Thread, Maltese Cross, Gooderich, Kelly-Springfield, and Firestone Tires are carried in stock.

Lloyd-George working in conjunction with the Irish leaders, but only on condition that Ireland give the movement fair play by considering proposals in the light of good, practical sense, and not allowing them to be distorted by the refracting rays of just resentment because of executions, or by fictitious and insane advisers.

EVERYTHING IS QUIET.

Everything for the moment is quiet and smooth on the surface of British politics. Lloyd-George is so strong, the determination to carry the war on to a successful issue; the feeling that there is a new vigour in the conduct of the war; above all the extraordinary hold which the daring little Welshman has over the imagination of the masses—all these things produce this momentary calm. One of the funny things said by a Tory Minister—once a very resolute opponent of Mr. Lloyd-George—when he was forming his Cabinet, was that in the opinion of this Tory he might have done without them all—Tories and Liberals of the former Cabinet—he was so strong in the Nation. I am sure that this strength was as much of a surprise to Lloyd-George himself as to others. I know him well, and I am convinced that he has a great deal less self esteem than people give him credit for; he is far less hard and ruthless than people think; just as he is much shyer and more sensitive than people think.

Therefore he did not expect to have found his task so easy; and honestly I feel confident that he did not want to oust Mr. Asquith if any chance were given to him of not doing so. It is curious that up to a few days before the final break-up, everybody in the Cabinet had the same idea that Asquith ought to be kept at all costs; there was the universal feeling that he was indispensable, and mainly because he and he alone could maintain the national unity. It was, the men outside the Cabinet and mainly the group led by Sir Edward Carson, that had made up their minds that Asquith must go; and it was they who forced the very unwilling hand of Mr. Bonar Law, who also was a strong Asquithian. The other factor which produced the ousting of Mr. Asquith, was the group of fervid Asquithians, and equally fervent anti-Lloyd-Georgites. Without these two groups Asquith and Lloyd-George might have worked together till the end of the war.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN.

For the moment, as I have said, the surface is quite calm; and it may remain so for some time. It is even calmer now than it was a few weeks ago. Immediately after the break up feeling was very bitter; first, because the expectation which was held very firmly that Mr. Asquith was bound to come back because all other Premiers were impossible, was disappointed; and secondly, because the dethronement of Mr. Asquith was attributed to a personal intrigue conducted by Mr. Lloyd George. That latter feeling may exist still; I don't think it is justified, for the movement against Asquith, as I have indicated, did not come from Lloyd George but from Bonar Law, under pressure from his own side. It is a curious contradiction in Lloyd George's character, that while no man can stand big anxieties and big charges with greater equanimity; he is extraordinarily sensitive on small points; and especially on those which affect his good faith and loyalty to colleagues. I know that he is very distressed and very angry over this charge of personal intrigue; and he seems to have information that an active campaign has been going on to spread that idea. I don't know whether there is any such campaign; if so it is very silly at such a moment of tremendous crisis.

THE NEW SYSTEM.

However, though these personal questions may supply the background for the vigilance which may be exercised by the new Opposition to the new Government, it is not on these lines that criticism may turn. There will be some criticism of the new arrangement under which the old cabinet system has been brought into abeyance. For the new system has revealed defects and fissures as well as the old. It is probably true that the new system secures greater promptitude, greater energy, greater unity of purpose in the actual conduct of the war. Lloyd George works day and night; and he gets things done. But the heads of other Cabinet officers who are outside the little inner ring are more or less running loose. There was an open conflict of opinion between, for instance, the head of the Agricultural Department and the Food Controller, and between both and the War Office. While the Minister for Agriculture was encouraging the farmer to lay down more wheat and potatoes, the Food Director was insisting that the prices should be kept at a low level in the interest of the consumer; and while both were joining in a demand for further production from the land, the War Office took away 30,000 out of the 60,000 who had been left on the land.

ANOTHER INCIDENT.

Another and more exciting incident was supplied by Mr. John Hodge, the Minister for Labour. John Hodge is a burly Scotchman who belongs to the Steel-workers' union. He was for a while the leader of the Labour Party in the House of Commons; he is a shrewd cautious man, but he has not studied in the schools, and he made the extraordinary incursion into political economy and fiscal policy for which he was little suited. He declared that there must be a protective tariff against German steel; that three millions of it had been imported into England in one year before the war; and that he—speaking as if he were Premier and indeed dictator—would see that no further pound of German steel was imported into England until every furnace in England was completely employed. I need scarcely dilate on the storm of protest and indignation which this outburst produced in the Liberal and Free Trade papers. It was pointed out that a good deal of the steel imported from Germany was half-manufactured raw material which was very useful to the British manufacturer because it was produced much more cheaply than he could do it himself; that he used up this stuff to make it into a finished article; and that he actually was able to export this article back into Germany at a considerable profit to himself. Further, the figures of Mr. Hodge were shown to be wrong, for not three million pounds of steel but 800,000 had been imported into England; and finally, people asked if Mr. Hodge or Mr. Lloyd George were the Prime Minister. What added significance to this outburst of Mr. Hodge was that there is going on at this moment a very active campaign in favour of what is called among us—Tariff Reform, in other words, Protection.

It is a movement that has powerful backing in money, in journalism, and above all, in the present ardent war passions. Anything which will strike Germany anyhow, anywhere, is welcome; and if we don't win in the military welfare, there will be a strong impulse to continue the war in the sphere of business. For make no mistake about it, the hatred of Germany has not cooled or diminished as the war has gone on; on the contrary it has grown fierce with every hour, and Germany is always doing something to bring it to whiter heat than ever.

It is possible that under these circumstances we may have a strong and perhaps even irresistible movement towards some form of protection against Germany after the war. This may make the dividing line between the two parties; for the average Liberal still remains a strong Free Trader; and the working classes, though they may like the idea of getting better and more frequent work through Protection, will not look at anything which threatens to raise the price of their food; and as the most popular form of Protection at present is a preferential tariff for the Dominions, a rise in the price of food would seem to be one of the first consequences of a Protective Tariff.

It will be seen that though the war may unite, and probably will unite all parties and men for the moment, there are dangers ahead.

And there is always Ireland,

Over 500,000 People Are Now Doing So

For many years physicians have agreed that the vast majority of human ills were caused by accumulated waste in the Lower Intestine; that in our present way of living Nature could not remove all this waste without assistance, no matter how regular we might be, and that the poisons from this waste circulating through the blood pulled us away down below par and were responsible for many diseases of a serious nature.

During this time the "J. B. L. Cascade" for Internal Bathing has, because of their recommendation and those of its users, been steadily growing in favor.

Recently, however, the startling news which has been covering this country that great surgeons and specialists have been operating on the Lower Intestine for the most chronic and serious diseases, has caused Americans to become thoroughly awake to the importance of keeping this Lower Intestine free from all poisonous waste matter, and over 500,000 are now using Internal Baths.

If you try the "J. B. L. Cascade" you will find yourself always bright, cool-headed and capable—the poisoned waste matter no bilious, blue, dull and nervous. Internal Baths are Nature's own cure for Constipation—just warm water properly applied. Drugs force Nature—the "J. B. L. Cascade" gently assists her.

C. P. R. Record For Month of January

Canadian Pacific Is Not a Coal Road and Can Only Carry What the Coal Road Delivers To It

THE FREIGHT CONGESTION

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—"Nothing is more unfair than to launch general charges against the railways for delays in freight shipments," says Mr. A. D. Mactier, General Manager of the Eastern lines of the C.P.R.

"There are railways and railways in Canada and as they have not all yet been nationalized, they should not be classed together. Take for instance the record of shipments in ex-Canadian Pacific rails from St. John, New Brunswick, which shows an increase of fifty-four per cent. in January, nineteen seventeen, as compared with January, nineteen sixteen. The exact figures being two hundred and ten thousand four hundred and thirty five tons, as compared with one hundred and thirty-six thousand and thirty eight. In spite of the phenomenally severe weather of February, the C.P.R. record for the first fourteen days of that month also show a gratifying increase in tonnage. And yet January and February last year were very busy months. This record it must be remembered has been achieved in spite of a great shortage of man power. We have no lack of equipment, indeed we have offered twenty-five spare locomotives to one of our neighbours in the eastern provinces. But the use of equipment is limited by weather conditions and the extent to which labour can be secured for handling snow.

"In connection with complaints as to shipments of coal. People forget that the Canadian Pacific is not a coal road, but can only carry what the coal road deliver to it. Those who are intimate with the difficulties under which we have been working in this respect thoroughly appreciate the speed with which we have forwarded the coal once it has reached our lines and admit that our record is highly satisfactory."

CHANCELLOR McCRIMMON TO PREACH

Dr. A. L. McCrimmon, Chancellor of McMaster University, Toronto, who comes to Peterborough to-morrow to address the recruiting meeting in the Grand Opera House, will be the preacher at the Murray street Baptist church to-morrow morning. Rev. J. R. Webb will occupy his own pulpit in the evening.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA.

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bustard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

MEMORIAL WINDOW TO BE UNVEILED

The memorial window erected in Trinity church by Messrs. Chas. and Dow Mansell to the memory of their parents, the late Rev. T. J. and Mrs. Mansell, will be unveiled at the 11 o'clock service to-morrow morning. Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., of George street Methodist church, who was associated with Rev. Mr. Mansell in the Montreal conference, will be present to assist the pastor.

The window is a splendid reproduction of "The Good Shepherd," from the painting by Plockhorst, and is the third to be installed in Trinity church, the other two having been presented by Mr. H. C. Cox and Mr. W. G. Morrow respectively.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ESTIMATES WILL BE CONSIDERABLY ABOVE LAST YEAR'S EXPENDITURES

Committee Fixes Total at $17,000 for the Present, But This Does not Include Salary Increases

The Fire Department estimates for the present year's work were closely scrutinized by the Fire, Water and Light Committee, last night, with the net prospect that the 1917 appropriations must necessarily be several thousand dollars in excess of those of 1916. The total of the items presented by Chief Howard reached $19,956.25, to which was added $414.12 for substitute firemen, making $20,370.37, from which $1,126.00 was paid, leaving $19,244.37 exclusive of salary increases; and this item is down for another meeting. To arrive at a round figure as a proposed limit for consideration until the rates are struck, Ald. Smith moved, seconded by Ald. Worth, that $17,000 be regarded as the aggregate appropriation. Ald. Stratton moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the sum be $16,000. The motion carried, Aldermen Stratton, Taylor and Duncan voting contra and Aldermen Weir, Worth, Smith and Mayor Duffus supporting it. Ald. Dobbin presided. Last year's appropriation for the Fire Department was $15,603.08, of which $14,039.60 was spent, leaving a balance of $1,563.48.

The motorizing of the fire fighting apparatus was another question reserved for future consideration.

Keep Feet Straight If Walking Right

"Turn your toes out and walk like a lady," admonished our grandmothers. But Kathleen E. Stacey announces that our grandmothers were wrong. "Science," she says, "proves it." She further says:

"Walk straight," says Science, "and you walk as nature built you to walk."

"The Indian walked straight. The baby walks straight. When you toe out or in, the bones of the leg are thrown out of their correct position, and this affects the delicate adjustment of the spine. Many troubles may result.

"If your shoes are worn to one side or you heel-over, look to your manner of walking. Incorrect walking destroys beauty in walking and impairs health.

"Stand in a doorway and watch the people who pass. Notice how many heel-over and how awkward they look. See the girl who toes in and watch how ungainly she is.

"Teach your children to walk straight."

A Great Gray Owl

The interesting window display of the Peterborough Optical Parlours has recently been rendered additionally attractive by a splendid specimen of a Great Gray Owl being exhibited therein. This rare bird was recently shot by a Peterborough sport, who had it mounted by our local taxidermist. It seems this species of owl is quite rare in this section, as they are only met with in the northern fur regions, and found in common on the borders of Great Bear Lake, keeping in the woods, hunting hares and other smaller quadrupeds. It is a greyish colour and round headed.

NOTICE TO INTENDING FORD BUYERS

The quality and improvements in the Ford car have been gradually increasing from year to year, and, to-day, with its new style radiator, sloping hood, cowl dash, stream line body, crown fenders and artistic design, is considered the most attractive motor car.

Notwithstanding this, by the enormous increased production, most practical factory facilities and large buyipg ability, the Ford Motor Company has been able to reduce the price from year to year, but to-day, owing to labour conditions, rising price of material, and extreme transportation difficulties, I have been advised that the price may be increased at any time and my instruction from The Ford Motor Company is not to take orders at the present price for more cars than my shipments will take care of.

I have not been able to place in stock as many cars as my contract call for, for the above reasons and the extreme difficulties in transportation, and only those whose orders can be filled from stock on hand, will participate in the present prices.

I would therefore suggest that all intending purchasers place their orders at once. My salesman will be in the show-room at 195 Simcoe Street, both day and evening, for the purpose of conferring with those who are ready to take advantage of the present prices.

Jos. J. Duffus

Easy For People Safe At Home To Make Criticisms

Minister, calling attention to the Band's enlistment contract and its services, so orders were cancelled and the Band returned to Canada. Many of the Band were old soldiers who had long since done their bit and were now over age and unfit. That those among them who were young enough did not wish to begin the life of a soldier all over again is a thing easy to understand and I cannot see why the Band should be made the victim of insinuations after all its good work.

(4.) One day orders came to parade the non-coms. and will you believe it the orders were to strip everyone of them of his stripes and reduce his pay, and it was done. I was so enraged at this breach of faith and most unmerited humiliation that I sent several cables and at last the following to the Prime Minister, "Does Canada compel non-coms. forced to revert here, to lose both pay and pension?" The result of all this was that whilst they lost their stripes I am informed that their pay was restored and their pension as well. I was fully resolved to denounce whoever was responsible, in the House of Commons, for this indignity had it not been repaired. But you say, how did it happen? It happened from pressure brought to bear in the Old Country against Canadian-trained non-coms.

(5.) Lt.-Col. Johnston on one occasion called my attention to a whole camp full of men, all casualties, of men who had been at the front and having been too seriously wounded, were not fit to go back again, of men who were too old and had got rheumatism, etc., etc. These men were camped out in mud, though they had floors in their tents, but in the course of months, having no fires, everything had become so wet that the condition of these men was pitiable and the ex-wounded begged to be sent back to the trenches where they said they were well treated. I wired this to London and within twelve hours these men were put in huts and had fires to warm and dry them. Some of these men at last got back to Canada and no doubt they were greeted with criticism.

(6) Now then, let us look at the officers. Having no men to train the Senior Officers, to use a general term, were hung up. At the time I speak of, there were no less than 2,000 of them in England. There were 23 Lieutenant-Colonels idle in the Brigade alone, to which I belonged. I cabled and cabled, and other members in England did the same, and at last a general Board of high military officers toured the country, and we all appeared before it to see if it could find anything for us to do. I may say that for myself they said I was too old at once. I offered to revert and become a private and they asked me what difference that made as to age. I then wrote the Major-General in Chief Command and told him that I was well up in surgical cases for an amateurs and begged to be allowed to go as a private in the Ambulance Corps and to become one of the stretcher-bearers to carry the wounded men off the field and as a last resort I offered to go without cost to the country, and my offer is still open, but I was laughed at. I have Gen Steele's letter in my pocket as I write. Lt.-Col. Johnston was told that he was too old. He was promised the opportunity of seeing things at the front and that was all. Capt. Rollins was begging for employment and was idle for a long time or nearly so. What he is doing now I do not know. Some of the other officers could have reverted and gone to the front as juniors. If they did not go they must certainly have had a very good opportunity for not doing so, just as good reason as many of those who were staying at home and doing the shouting. In fact we see what they have already done and that they had been prepared to go the front—for it was not fear that kept them behind—why should all this comment and irritation be stirred up in town. A glorious Battalion seems likely to do down in eclipse all because the Government was unable to carry out its original bargain and because some people who are safetly at home are not quite satisfied with the conduct of others. It must be remembered that when conscription comes it will not mean simple conscription of the men who happen to be young enough and fit enough to go, if will be the conscription of all that anybody can give, and people who cannot give themselves, can give their property.

The Truth About The Milk We Drink

Raw Cow's Milk is The Worst Possible Kind of Milk a Baby Can Be Fed

"Milk is the most perfect food furnished by Nature. It contains the three essential elements in nutrition—PROTEIN, FAT and SUGAR—in addition to mineral matter and water in such proportions as to render it a very acceptable article of diet. A BIG GLASS OF IT IS EQUIVALENT IN FOOD VALUE TO A QUARTER OF A POUND OF BEEFSTEAK. In fact, an eminent authority has said that a glass of milk, taken over and above a man's ordinary food requirements each day, is sufficient to produce in one year's time a gain of twenty-four pounds in weight."—Professor Hawk, Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

If milk cost double what it does to-day it would still be one of the Cheapest and Best Foods in the world.

But CLEAN Milk is absolutely indispensible. To produce CLEAN Milk, it must first be CLARIFIED and then PASTEURIZED. Duty demands it. There is no other safeguard.

It has been proven that all disease-producing germs and 99 per cent. of all other bacteria are destroyed when milk is heated to a temperature of 140 to 148 degrees for 30 minutes. This process does not affect the taste or in any way interferes with the NUTRITIVE VALUE OR DIGESTABILITY OF MILK.

Professor Hawk's experiments with boiled and raw milk shows that "boiled milk digests more rapidly than raw milk. Boiled milk forms much smaller curds in the stomach than does raw milk. The curds of pasteurized milk are seldom larger than small peas. If one examines the curds formed from raw whole cow's milk in the human stomach, one will find that one hour after the milk is drunk the curds are fully as large as a man's thumb. These curds may coalesce and at a later stage in digestion enormous, rubber-like curds, at least three or four inches in length and one inch in diameter, may be regurgitated. Under the same conditions the curds of the boiled milk are seldom larger than small peas."

WHAT IS THE LESSON TO BE LEARNED FROM THESE SCIENTIFIC FACTS?

This, namely, that such wholesome and delicious Pasteurized Milk as that served to the patrons of the

What About That Ford Car?
"Take Time By The Forelock"

Is There to Be a Break All Along the Line?—Higher Prices Are Predicted by Car Manufacturers—Will There Be a Shortage as Well as an Advance in the Price of Ford Cars?

"Men profit not by what they read, but by what they heed. When Henry Ford tells President Wilson that, in the event of war with Germany, he offers his money and his big Ford factory for making munitions of war, it means that there is every probability of a serious shortage in Ford cars. The moral is that those who are thinking of buying a Ford car should procrastinate no longer. "Take Time by the forelock." Be an early bird.

Car manufacturers are predicting an advance in prices. Indications are that the Ford people may have to advance also. The Ford Motor Co. have done such marvellous things in the way of lowering the cost of their cars in the past that it would not be surprising if they raised prices now. Year after year, Ford prices have been clipped, and Ford values maintained. This result has been accomplished by the matchless business tactics and methods of the great Ford Company. They have been able to buy material in enormous quantities and pay spot cash for the same. They have been able by their wonderful labor-saving methods and their mammoth plant to produce cars in such astonishing quantities per day that their works have been declared to be one of the wonders of the age. The wonder is that in the face of the continuous advance in the prices of material and labor that Ford cars have not gone up in price long before this.

Freight rates as well have been increasing; labor has been getting scarcer and scarcer every month; almost every day new difficulties in the production and delivery of cars have to be surmounted, and yet up to this day the incomparable Ford prices are at the same low prices as last year.

In the battle of cars, Ford takes off the manufacturers' armour of high profits.

But, Mr. Prospective Buyer, don't play blind man's buff. Don't build on present prices to remain as they are. Indications point all the other way. Never leave that till to-morrow which you can do to-day.

FORD MODEL 1917 TOURING CAR

Indeed the price of a 1917 Model Ford five passenger touring car to-day is less than a year ago, and the car still retains those qualities which have made it the universal car. The remarkable low price is explained in the tremendous output of Fords. The materials used in the manufacture of the Ford are bought in such large quantities, the art of manufacture has become so highly developed and the system carried out in the great manufacturing plant is so perfect that it is possible to sell the finished product for $495, less than the price of an ordinary team of horses, and the cost of upkeep is much less. Added to this low purchasing price, the owner of a Ford has the most economical car to be had, both as to the cost of operation and repairs, and in this district he has three up-to-the-minute garages complete in every detail, each giving a service that will meet all his requirements and give him the best possible satisfaction.

The 1917 model touring car has a stream line hood, crown fenders, a new style radiator which eliminates much of the brass formerly used, and it possesses all the high qualities for which the Ford is renowned.

THE FORD'S UTILITY.

Such a car will carry the professional man, the business man, the farmer, anywhere—in rain or snow, on snow-covered roads and through drifts it is willing and dependable—and at a very low cost; in fact, the lowest cost obtainable in any car. To the man who likes to get away into the fresh, clear air of the country, and spend his spare time at the summer cottage, the Ford car is a boon. He can make his trips to and from his place of business quickly, and his expense account will be astonishingly low.

To the farmer the Ford is a money-maker, as many owners know. By using his car, he can reach business centres in a very short time, transact his business and return to his farm to continue his agricultural pursuits. In the meantime the horses have not been disturbed in their work; he has been absent from the farm for only a short time, and the net result is better satisfaction and money earned. There are numbers of farmers who can show figures that tell of greater earnings on the farm since the Ford car came, and they would not revert to the old order of things even though the Ford should of necessity be increased in price.

Lieut. Brittain Will Give An Address at Y.M.C.A. On Sunday

The Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon, at 4.15, will be of unusual interest to young men. Lieut. A. E. Britton, who recently returned from the front, will give a description of bomb-throwing and trench warfare, and will relate other interesting experiences. Lieut. Britton was formerly sergeant major and drill master of the 57th Battalion, and was connected with the Stanley Barracks, Toronto, and is a man of wide military experience. Men and older boys should not fail to hear him.

Mr. John Crane, Manager of the Dominion Bank, delivered a very interesting address on "Banking and Insurance" before the Senior Collegiate Club last evening. Mr. Crane advised the boys that there was an excellent opening in the banking business for any young man of good habits, who would carefully apply himself to the study of banking. Insurance, he said, required a certain type of salesmanship, and to master insurance also requires considerable study. He advised the boys to secure all the school preparation possible before taking up either line, and closed with a few remarks on thrift, advising them to set apart as a saving a portion of all earnings. He advised the young men not to wait until they had fifty dollars before commencing saving, but to start with a dollar and lay aside something regularly each month. This proved to be one of the most interesting sessions the Club has had this season.

Woman Suffrage Next Great Forward Stride

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—Woman Suffrage has definitely climbed up into the front seat of Liberal policies and "Votes for Women" is now the chief battle cry of the Radical forces.

Even while the Liberals were struggling for Prohibition they were also strong advocates of woman suffrage. But naturally enough Prohibition was the chief issue. Now that the Liberals have secured Prohibition they are advancing woman suffrage into premier place and linking it up with Temperance and with all the plans for dealing with war and after-war problems, believing that women can bring to the settlement of these matters invaluable aid.

Newton Rowell and the Liberals are not attempting in any way to make woman suffrage a partisan matter. They are co-operating with the Labour member, Mr. Studholme, and they are asking the government to do as they did in regard to Prohibition—that all parties in the Legislature should unite to pass unanimously a measure for giving women votes. The Liberals point out that they urged such co-operation for Prohibition for years before the government yielded, but that now the government itself recognizes the great benefits of Prohibition. To-day the Opposition is urging a similar co-operation for Woman Suffrage that there may not be any further delay in securing the benefit of the co-operation of women.

Death of Peterboro' Man in Seattle

Geo. H. Dawson of Fort Madison, has informed the Examiner of the death of his brother, Dick Dawson, in Seattle, Wash., on Feb. 14th. He writes, in part, as follows:

"He was born July 12, 1861, on the old homestead, four miles from Peterborough. He lived with his mother for a number of years in Ashburnham and learned the printing trade in the Examiner Office about the year 1875. There were very few people in Peterborough at that time but who knew little Dick Dawson. I expect to arrive with the remains Wednesday, Feb. 21. He will be buried in the Little Lake cemetery, by the side of his mother.

The funeral will probably be in the afternoon, Feb. 21st.

LITTLE WORRIES IN THE HOME

These Bring the Wrinkles and Pallid Faces That Make Women Look Prematurely Old

Almost every woman at the head of a home meets daily many little worries in her household affairs. The care of her little ones, the work about the house all contribute to these worries. Most of them may be too small to notice an hour afterwards, but they constitute a constant strain that affects the blood and the nerves and make women look prematurely old. The effect of these little worries may be noticed in sick or nervous headaches, fickle appetite, tiredness after slight exertion, and the coming of wrinkles which every woman dreads. To those thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer a speedy cure; a restoration of colour to the cheeks, brightness to the eye, a hearty appetite and a sense of freedom from weariness. Among the many thousands of Canadian women who have found new health and strength through these pills is Mrs. G. Strasser, Acton, West, Ont., who says: "I am the mother of three children and after each birth I became terribly run down. I had weak, thin blood, always felt tired, and unable to do my household work. After the birth of my third child I seemed to be worse, and was very badly run down. I found the greatest benefit from the Pills and soon gained my old time strength. Indeed after taking them I felt as well as in my girlhood, and could take pleasure in my work. I also used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones and have found them a splendid medicine for childhood ailments."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or you can procure them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TAKE SALTS IF YOUR BACK HURTS SAYS DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

No Gouging Of Estimates of Fire Dept. This Year

At the first meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee last night for the discussion of the Fire Department's estimates there was manifested by the aldermen a caution born of the experience of 1916. In the first place the Mayor and aldermen want no more of what they term false economy of a force that is not maintained at its full strength. Last year there was a saving of $2,169.19 by reason of the fact that the department was not completely manned practically throughout the entire year.

Now the Council is committed to a policy of efficiency that is based on motorizing the Department, and Ald. Dobbin's committee is practically agreed that this principle must be carried out into every detail. This naturally includes the firemen, and a beginning will be made in securing a permanent assistant chief capable of assuming Chief Howard's duties at any time he might be absent. Mr. Jamieson is really the engineer of the Department but has been acting deputy to the Chief and has suggested that he would prefer to be relieved of the additional responsibility and confine attentions to his particular work.

To maintain the force at its proper strength it is realized that the department must be made appealing to the most desirable class of men. This will entail reasonable salaries and this question will be considered in the near future by the committee.

A considerable item in the new estimates is $1,200 for hose which was ordered at the end of 1916, but must be paid from this year's revenue. The hose was purchased to replace the approximate 1,200 feet lost in the Quaker Oats fire. The purchase of motor driven apparatus will be taken up when the more pressing decision of the appropriations has been reached.

Last night's meeting clearly demonstrated the fact that the pruning knife will be deliberately used on the department this year. Gouging and spectacular slashing may be used on other appropriations but the Fire, Water and Light committee fears to strike a vital part and are handling the knife as carefully as a doctor probably operates on a million dollar patient.

SOLDIERS ARE FOUR GOALS DOWN BEATEN 9 TO 4 BY OSHAWA SEVEN

Big Surprise in Third Round Fixture When 247th Team Lost Their First O. H. A. Game of the Season—Oshawa Had the Edge All the Way and Their Victory Was Earned.

PETES WERE OFF COLOUR

The 247th Battalion team ran into an unexpected snag in their third-round game, at Oshawa, last night, when they dropped their first O. H. A. game of the season, receiving a 9 to 6 set-back. The result was as big a surprise to Oshawa as it was to the Peterborough outfit. Oshawa played their best hockey of he season, while the Soldiers played their worst, and that is about the story of the game. Handicapped by the small rink and sticky ice the Petes never got going and the Oshawa victory was earned. The Lakeshore bunch led by 4 to 1 at the end of the first period, and 7 to 4 at the close of the second, and had the beter of the argument throughout. Oshawa won the game in the first fifteen minutes, when they caught he Soldiers, first over-confident, and then all at sea on the narrow ice surface, and ran in four goals. For the balance of the game the best the Petes could do was to divide ten goals with the homesters, and at that they never got going in their usual style.

The return game will be played at Brock Street Rink on Tuesday night and with the Soldiers four goals down on the round, the session should be just about the most exciting of the year. The 247th lads are confident they can turn the trick on the Brock Street ice-box.

A record crowd saw last night's battle. There were fifty rooters on hand from Peterborough, while Whitby, Bowmanville and other towns were well represented, and Oshawa turned out en masse, packing every corner of Manager Bradley's refrigerator. The rooting was something to be remembered and the Oshawa fans went wild when the Lakeshore gang started to score in the first period. Before the battle opened the Soldiers were long-odds favourites and the home crowd were doubly delighted when their own favourites, instead of the visitors, started to pile up the scores.

It was a well-deserved win for the Oshawa lads. They checked like fiends, played their positions well, and showed some clever combination. They went into the Soldiers from the drop of the hat, and had the edge all the way. The Petes' speed was thrown away on the small rink, and as they failed to show any combination the Oshawa gang held them in check in a manner that would have surprised the Kingston fans who saw the Soldiers perform on Monday night. Never at any time did they look like the same team that put away Kingston, and the score is a fair criterion of the play.

All the Oshawa team had a hand in the victory. Childs, the clever little ex-Woodstock Berlin goalkeeper, was sure and clever in the nets, while Riordan and Bowen were a steady, hard-checking defence. Riordan got away with many of his slow, circling rushes, as in the days when he was a junior star, and also showed some of the rough stuff that earned him a warning from the O. H. A. a few years ago. All the forward line were good. Fair's back-checking was a treat And he also rushed nicely, while Hall was dangerous at all times. Venini, the junior right wing, made good with a vengeance, subbing for Rowden, and Hambly did some fine rushing and shooting.

For the Soldiers, Grover Halpin starred. The little Captain had all kinds of speed and worked his head off for victory. None of the rest of the team were up to their usual form. Armstrong never could get going and the others found the same difficulty. Adams was the best of the forwards in the first two periods, but his penalties in the last session did not help. At that the sturdy right wing man was off twice for what looked like accidents.

Oscar Bernhardt of Bradford handled the bell and the teams were as follows:

Oshawa		247th
Childs	Goal	Legros
Riordan	Right Defence	Thornton
Bowen	Left Defence	Halpin
Fair	Rover	Flanagan
Hall	Centre	Armstrong
Venini	Right Wing	Adams

Oshawa pressed from the start and Legros had to turn off several shots in the first few minutes. The Bradley gang were breaking fast and checking back like demons, and the Soldiers could not get away. Finally after ten minutes hard playing Hall batted in a re-bound on a shot by Hambly and the crowd went wild. Oshawa came right back and Hall scored again on a side shot. When Venini dashed up the boards and beat Legros for goal No. 3, in fifteen seconds the cheering must have been heard in Bowmanville. The Soldiers were bunching and getting in each other's way and the Oshawa gang were having decidedly the best of the argument. The Petes lost a couple of chances and then Bowen scored on a combination rush and the home talent was 4 to 0 ahead. Just before the period ended Armstrong got away and beat Childs with a lightning shot for the Petes first goal.

The second session opened more favourably for the 247th, for in two minutes Adams poked the rubber into the nets on a neat play, bringing the rubber around from behind. That made it 4 to 2, but Bowen broke away and worked his way inside with one of the prettiest rushes of the night, his shot beating Legros.

Adams came back with a neat rush for a goal, stickhandling around the defence and slipping the rubber past Childs.

Hambly got that one back when he took a pass from Fair and bored a fast one into the nets.

The Oshawa left wing was also responsible for the next one when he went down the side and took Legros' measure, putting Oshawa in front 7 to 4.

Harry Thornton hurt his wrist and had to retire, Oshawa dropping Venini.

Just before the close of the session Armstrong scored for the Soldiers when he hammered in a rebound on a shot from Flanagan.

The third period opened with the Petes trying hard to pull out of the hole. They were working hard, but could not get started. It was Oshawa who finally scored, Fair doing the trick with a long shot.

Jack Adams got that one back when he dodged in alone and scored. That made it 8 to 5, but Oshawa came back with another before the bell rang, Hall scoring on a pass from Hambly.

The summary:

First period—
1—Oshawa, Hall, 10 mins.
2—Oshawa, Hall, 1 min.
3—Oshawa, Venini, 15 secs.
4—Oshawa, Bowen, 3 mins.
5—Peterborough, Armstrong, 5 mins.

Second period—
6—Peterborough, Adams, 2 mins.
7—Oshawa, Bowen, 45 secs.
8—Peterborough, Adams, 3 mins.
9—Oshawa, Hambly, 4 mins.
10—Oshawa, Hambly, 2 mins.
11—Peterborough, Armstrong, 5 mins.

Third period—
12—Oshawa, Fair, 5 mins.
13—Peterborough, Adams, 4 mins.
14—Oshawa, Tall, 6 mins.

GREAT BATTLE TUESDAY NIGHT

Next Tuesday's battle between Oshawa and Peterborough in the third round of the intermediate O.H.A. promises to be the most exciting of the year, and will undoubtedly draw a record crowd. The 247th were away off colour at Oshawa last night, and were beaten 9 to 5. If they return to form they should overcome the lead Tuesday, but they will have to battle all the way to turn the trick on Oshawa, who were either playing miles above their real form last night or else have been an under-rated team all season. They checked the Petes off their feet last night, and the team that looked like a million dollars at Kingston were more like six nickels at Oshawa. Last night's win put all kinds of confidence in the Bradley gang, and they will be up here Tuesday with all kinds of pepper. They will need it all too with the soldiers in their true form.

WITH THE CURLERS

The Lindsay scores yesterday lacked the close margins of the local games. R. M. Waddell was up 11 shots, W. D. Campbell 5, but W. M. Lang was down 19, and Alex. Kay down 6.

J. D. Flavelle's crack rink was evidently in big form yesterday, putting eighteen shots over on W. M. Lang. And it is understood that Mr. Flavelle is one of the Lindsay skips coming to the open bonspiel that begins here on Tuesday afternoon.

FOR some time we have been advertising the need of Life Insurance in general. NOW we propose to show you WHY you should place your insurance with the Sun Life of Canada.

Fifteen years ago a parent in this City placed a ten pay 15 year Endowment Policy (No. 200916) in the Sun Life of Canada, on his son who was then 11 years of age.

On the 1st of February, inst. he was offered any of the following Options:—

First, a fully paid up Policy of $4045.00 payable at death.

Where can a man take $89.30 per year for 10 years and invest it in ANY OTHER WAY and produce an immediate estate of $4045.00 in case of death?

Or he could withdraw $905.55 which you will notice is more than he paid in, ALL TOLD, and still retain a FREE paid up participating policy of $1000.00, payable at death; thus his dollars did two things at the same time,—carried the risk, and gave a FREE POLICY and he saved his money for himself too.

Or he could have drawn $1256.80 in cash, which was $373.80 more than he paid in, or a return of over $141 for every hundred he paid, besides having had free protection for the past fifteen years.

HONESTLY NOW does not that look pretty good to you.

LINDSAY UP NINE SHOTS IN THE ANNUAL CUP GAME, YESTERDAY

The Peterborough-Lindsay silver cup returns to Lindsay after a year's stay with the local club as the results of the annual games that were played "here and there" yesterday. The winner showed a total margin of nine shots when the scores at the Peterborough and Lindsay rinks were added up yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. They were one up here by the score of 62 to 61, and eight up in Lindsay. Four rinks played in each town, and the score indicates the general character, especially its closeness, of the local games. The visitors had apparently come with the fixed intention of removing the silverware for they had a handbag ready for it when Tom Brightman handed it over to George Little with the compliments of the Peterborough Club.

There was a lot of good curling packed in the game. The ice was in fine shape and conducive to the brand of curling that makes the game most interesting.

The scores were as follows:

In congratulating the winners Mr. Brightman remarked that the games had been decidedly interesting and were won by the combined good playing of the Lindsay rinks. He hoped that in next year's fixture he would be drawn against Mr. Little and would make a big effort to reverse the score. At that there was some satisfaction, he added, in putting a five-end over on him. The customary cheers were exchanged, and Lindsay departed leaving a more evenly balanced record of the results of the games played between the two clubs this season.

"THE CANADIAN ARMY IN ACTION AND THE ADVANCE OF THE TANKS"

THE OFFICIAL MOVING PICTURES OF THE BATTLE OF COURCELETTE

A COMMON TRIBUTE TO THOSE OF OUR SONS WHO FOUGHT TO VICTORY AND TO THOSE WHO DIED VICTORIOUS.

YOU have heard of the Battle of Queenston Heights. What do you know about the Battle of Courcelette?

At Queenston Heights one thousand men were arrayed on the Canadian side, and 14 of them were killed and 96 wou. ded or captured.

At Courcelette about 70,000 Canadians were engaged, and there were — well, the casualties were light as casualties in the battles of this unprecedented war compare.

But what do we here in Canada know about this, the biggest of Canadian battles? Practically nothing.

History will set forth the facts. Courcelette will rank higher than Queenston Heights in 1812, higher than Lundy's Lane, higher than Ridgeway in '66, higher than Batoche in '85, or Paardeberg in 1900. Courcelette was a bigger battle than St. Julien, April 22, 1915, when the first Canadian contingent withstood the gas attack and saved Calais. There were thrice as many Canadians at Courcelette as there were British under Wellington at Waterloo.

Next week at the Empire Theatre in this city will be presented vivid official and authentic moving pictures of the Battle of Courcelette, the greatest film of the war for the eyes of the people of this country, for it shows the Canadians in action and the advance of the Tanks.

OBITUARY

DEATH OF WILLIAM DONNAN.

Well Known Former Resident of Huntingdon Succumbs to Attack of Septicaemia.

Mr. William Donnan, one of the best known farmers of the Township of Huntingdon passed away on Saturday night last after a few days' illness from blood-poison. The disease originated in a slight abrasion of one of his hands.

Deceased was born near West Huntingdon about fifty years ago and was the eldest son of the late Joseph Donnan. He is survived by his wife, and two sons who reside at home and one daughter, Mrs. Chambers, of Crookston. He is also survived by his aged mother, two brothers, Thomas of Rawdon, and James of the United States, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Montgomery of Rawdon.

Deceased spent his boyhood years in Stirling where he learned the trade of harness-making. About fifteen years ago he removed to Moira where he continued to practice his trade and also to work a small farm. Disposing of his property at Moira about three years ago he purchased the James Hawkins farm at West Huntingdon, one of the best in the township. Here by his thrift and industry he was achieving a fine success.

To Mrs. Donnan, this untimely demise will come as a great affliction for she is herself in a very frail condition of health. The two sons are at present also confined to their home by scarlet fever.

Mr. Donnan was a faithful member of the Methodist Church and though a man of independent views was politically inclined towards Conservatism.

To the friends who have suffered this great and premature bereavement the deepest sympathy will be extended.

The late William Donnan was married to a sister of Mrs. Robert Chambers, 492 Bolivar street, this city.

MARY TULLY.

Mary Porter, widow of Wm. Tully, died early this morning at the residence of her son, Lot 24, Con. 15, Otonabee. Mrs. Tully, who was 74 years of age, was a faithful member of St. Andrew's Church. She resided in Otonabee for 50 years. Two daughters, Mrs. G. McLean, Toronto, and Mrs. J. Mahood, Winterbourne, Ont., and four sons, R. G. Tully, 4th Concession; Joseph, of this city; J. D., of Selwyn, and W. T., of Otonabee, survive.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her son, Mr. W. T. Tully on Monday at 3 o'clock. A service, conducted by Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, will be held at the house at 2.30.

ELIZABETH READ.

Elizabeth C. Read, daughter of the late Geo. Read, ex-M.P.P., who as Conservative representative sat in the first Parliament after the Act of Union, died this morning.

Miss Read enjoyed the best of health previous to Friday week, when she was taken to Nicholls Hospital suffering with what proved to be a fatal attack of appendicitis. She was a member of the St. Andrew's church and her help will be much missed in the different societies and branches of church work.

The funeral will take place on Monday from the family residence, 356 Park street, leaving the house at 12.30 to proceed to Keene for interment.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The submarine campaign has already stopped the mail service to an extent that is being felt in financial circles. SIX-INCH GUNS TO BE PROVIDED FOR MERCHANT VESSELS, WITH NAVAL GUNS IF NECESSARY

Although a Final Decision Has Not Been Announced, the Administration Makes Arrangements to Meet Prussian Threat, and Officials Believe Ships Will Receive Armament Within Ten Days

STATE DEPARTMENT DOUBTS REPORT OF RELEASE OF THE YARROWDALE SEAMEN

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 19.—American merchant ships soon will defy Prussian submarines by clearing for European ports heavily armed for defence.

Naval guns, probably of 6-inch calibre, will be furnished by the government, which also will see that trained naval gunners are provided to use them, if need be.

There has been no official announcement of the purpose, but it was learned authoritatively that preparations are being made which can have no other end in view.

While of course it is possible that some new contingency may arise which would make such a step unnecessary, it is not believed in any official quarter that such will be the case. The United States government has been brought face to face with the necessity of protecting its legitimate commerce on the seas or permitting its entire economic system to be thrown out of gear by the illegal Prussian activities.

Action Within Ten Days.

Whatever may be the ultimate decision regarding the use of the United States navy either in convoying merchant ships or assisting the British navy to keep the sea lanes clear for rightful commerce it has been agreed among the naval experts of the country that merchant ships must be armed.

No one in official quarters pretends to speak for President Wilson or to state that he has reached his final decision in the matter, but all know that by his direction arrangements are being made to arm American ships in the event such a decision is announced.

No Washington official in touch with the arrangements would be surprised to see armed American merchant ships leave for Europe within the next ten days or even much sooner.

The government realizes that it would be worse than useless to allow the ships to go out with inadequate armament. Therefore when they go it will not be with old fashioned, worthless "popguns" with any sort of gunners who may be picked up, but with "sure enough" guns manned by men who will be able to hit a Prussian submarine if they have half a chance.

No Word of the Yarrowdale Crew.

The State Department waited in vain for official confirmation of the report that the American seamen of the Yarrowdale crew had been released from imprisonment by the German government.

An inquiry was addressed to Berlin late Saturday afternoon through the Spanish ambassador there, in charge of American interests, to determine the truth of the report. Officials are frankly sceptical of it.

A note has been drafted and approved by President Wilson making a peremptory demand upon Berlin for the release of the men. The note would have been sent Saturday but for the press report from Berlin last night, stating that they had already been released. Now the note will be kept in the State Department ready for cable transmission the moment the inquiry made develops the truth about the matter.

A further inquiry was made to determine whether the German government is detaining those consular officials and other Americans who were to follow the Gerard party on a second train. Nothing has been learned of the officials or their whereabouts.

The situation has been rendered much worse by complaints from consular officers leaving Germany that they and their wives have been searched by the German police officials in a humiliating and degrading manner. Men and women have been stripped and subjected to a search that was carried so far no reasonable excuse could be made for it. It has been accepted by the consuls as a direct insult to them, and officials here support their view. Official reports upon these indignities have been made to the State Department.

Americans in Turkey Safe.

A cable despatch from the American Ambassador at Constantinople, Mr. Elkus, reached the State Department, the first word from him for two weeks. His despatch indicated that conditions with regard to Americans in Turkey are comparatively satisfactory and normal.

The State Department still refuses to discuss the subject of severance of diplomatic relations with Austria, although American consular officers in Austria have been informing Americans there of the situation and affording them an opportunity to leave for home. So long as the Austrian Ambassador here is not accepted it is the opinion of officials that there is no really satisfactory explanation given of the cause of the delay.

The State Department will make public a statement setting forth its attitude toward the request of Berlin for a reaffirmation of the treaty of 1799. The department's position is that the German proposal does not represent a request for reaffirmation of the old treaty, but, in effect, is a request for a new treaty, or covenant, favouring German interests in event of war. Such an agreement could not be entered into without the sanction of the Senate and there is no thought that the United States will consider the German request further.

The War Department Saturday made a request upon the Department of Labour to locate more than 1,000 skilled machine operators for work in government arsenals on munitions. The request asked that women as well as men be considered for the work. It is the first time that women have been considered for employment in government arsenals.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Report Captain Tauscher Will Be Seized At Halifax

Names of Krupp Agent and of Wolf von Igel Are Not on th Safe Conduct List Received by British Officials, Germans Hear

SEARCH WILL BE THOROUGH

NEW YORK, February 19.—A stir was caused in German-American circles here and in Hoboken over a persistent report that Bautain Hans Tauscher, formerly Krupp agent here, who stood trial for conspiracy to blow up the Welland Canal and was acquitted, would be taken off the steamship Frederik VIII. at Halifax. The report said that the names of Captain Tauscher and Wolf von Igel, who was indicted for the same offence, were not on the list received by the British officials at Halifax from the home government of those entitled to safe conduct in Count von Bernstorff's party.

Mme. Gadski, opera singer and wife of Captain Tauscher, could not be founds for a statement. However, Miss Lotta Tauscher, his daughter, said there was not the slightest doubt that both her father and Von Igel had safe conducts approved by the British and French ambassadors in Washington and authorized by the Foreign offices of those governments.

"We do not feel in the least alarmed," Miss Tauscher said. "My father determined to go to Germany at the very last moment, and obtained his passport and safe conduct only a few hours before the Frederik VIII., with the Count and his party, left this port. It is very probable that his name was not on the first list sent to Halifax, but it will unquestionably be there before the steamship arrives.

Most of the men of the self-interned German steamships in Hoboken remained on board voluntarily. They feared that there would be a declaration of war, for the report has been persistent in Hoboken that once the German Ambassador was out of America and the American Ambassador out of Berlin there would be war. Added to that report was the one about the sinking of the American schooner Lyman M. Law by an Austrian submarine and that the seamen believed, may constitute the "over act."

A petty officer on board one of the ships said that the Germans knew just what steps would be taken to seize the German ships and that they would be prepared for it before a guard of marines could leave the New York Navy Yard. He didn't say what the Germans would do. In a self assured manner, which caused those who heard him to say "it was typically German," the officer said "the Yankees couldn't put a thing over on the Germans in regard to the ships."

Then he said that the order to seize them would come immediately after the "overt act," that it would be given to the commandant of the Navy Yard, who would call upon the Collector of the Port to assist him. The actual seizure would be made by marines, he predicted. The Prussian pilot said he knew what uses the Federal government would put the ships to, but he refuses to discuss the situation further because one of the higher officers of the ship approached.

VON IGEL'S NAME NOT ON LIST AT HALIFAX

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Everything is in readiness for the examination of the steamship Frederik VIII. with Count von Bernstorff and his suite. Interpreters have arrived from Ottawa and Toronto to help in the examination of the party. All passports are to be closely scrutinised and information regarding passengers, which is usually cabled to Kirkwall, will be in the hands of the officials here.

From this place of anchorage it will not be possible for any of the passengers on board the Frederik VIII. to see this city, neither will it be possible for citizens to see the ship unless they take a trip o fseveral miles.

It is not known here whether Wolf von Igel, who was indicted on a charge of complicity in a plot to blow up the Welland Canal, will be on board the Frederik VIII. If he is included in the party to which the British Government has granted safe conduct such has not yet been announced here.

OUR SERIAL STORY

The Red Paper

By C. HOTCHKISS

"I have plenty to interest you," said Wentworth, "perhaps to stagger your belief. I want your advice — and help. Go and wash up; you look like a coal heaver. You are well?"

"Of course. Fit for anything, from a fight to a football match. And you?"

"Equally, of course—barring worry and trouble. I have had my fight within twelve hours, and it may be that worse than a football match's coming. I want the help of your massive brain, old man."

"What's up?" asked Harper, stretching and shaking his big figure as he threw off his lethargy.

"Enough is up—up in the air. Wait until we are dressed. Take a tub — you'll find all the conveniences. I'll be ready for you in a jiffy. Then for breakfast; after that, business."

"A fight, is it?" said the other. 'You don't look truculent, Jack, only a little thinner and paler. However, fight or arbitrate, I'm with you." The big man held out his hand and shrugged his broad shoulders. The two gripped in silence; one in faith, the other in blind confidence, and both in that spirit of sympathy and understanding which binds some men together in bonds stronger than those of blood.

Two hours later, well-groomed and fed, the friends were again in the studio, Wentworth walking up and down the rugged floor as he talked, while Harper, pipe in mouth, lolled on the divan, active interest showing on his wholesome, clean-shaven face.

From the moment they had parted some weeks before Wentworth gave the history of every hour that had elapsed. It had been a long, hard story. "And now you have the last detail," he said, throwing away his exhausted cigar and flinging himself into an easy-chair. "It is not a very happy tale to welcome you with. I am at sea about the captain—and must always be, I suppose; and I am at sea regarding Merridale and Welch. But the next move is up to me. What is to be done?"

Harper refilled his pipe. "I should say that the first thing is to let me have a look at that wonderful red paper; the rest can wait awhile," was the quiet return. "You know the adage concerning two heads —though neither of us bears that of an ass, I take it."

Wentworth went to the bedroom and brought out the box, opened it and gave the paper to his friend. Harper turned it over and over in his great hands, looking at it from every point of view.

"Humph!" he finally ejaculated. "That is the blindest lead I ever struck. Looks like the fly-leaf or binding of a fancy book, and a dirty one, at that! Why in the deuce should any man want to risk a fight or a term in jail for this thing?"

"It is supposed to be valuable."

"Well, it don't look it; but as—as the captain said it was I must believe it. Valuable for what? It certainly is not clear on the face of it! And why should your father have taken it from the vault? Why should he have considered it a temptation, and—well, no matter, Jack. I'm a bit fagged from lack of rest. I'd like to sleep on the subject before I express an opinion —which is vague—at best. But if this paper is valuable, do you know what I'd do?"

"What?"

"Photograph it—just for a record, you know. You are an expert and have everything handy. Suppose the lady should lose it; she would like a copy. I'd photograph it at once."

"I hadn't thought of such a thing; but it's a good idea."

"Do it now, old man."

"Will you wait?"

"Yes, for a while. I should be getting home; but you make the exposure—you needn't develop it at once—then we'll take a Turkish bath, after which perhaps my brain will work and I can consider the matter of Welch et al."

Harper yawned prodigiously as he finished. Wentworth looked fixedly at him. "Tom, you are afraid of Merridale!"

"I am not afraid of Merridale," returned the other, bringing his strong jaws together with a snap, "but I confess to a fear of what such a man is capable of doing; not to you, perhaps, but to Miss Merridale. If you get a good negative you will protect her and not have to be nervous about the original. Lord, how bunged up I feel! Get to work, old man."

Wentworth turned away and Harper threw himself on to the broad divan, where he went instantly to sleep.

CHAPTER V.
The Red Paper.

The other wheeled an easel into the broad light and tacked the paper on a black canvas, then brought up his camera and focused carefully. The ground glass of the fine instrument was larger than the paper itself, making it possible to get a copy the exact size of the original—a thing the young man determined to do. It took some minutes to align the image on the glass, bringing out the fine lines on the screen, but that done to his satisfaction he went for a plate-holder, placed it in the camera, closed the pneumatic shutter, drew the slide and was about to make the exposure when he thought a moment and held his hand.

"I must have the blue smudge and all," he murmured to himself, glancing at his sleeping friend, who, he knew, would criticize the lack of it. "And I won't get it this way. It needs a ray filter and an orthochromatic plate."

He put back the slide and pulled out the holder, exchanging it for one containing a colour-sensitive plate, then going to a leather case on a shelf, he selected from it a red-glass cell. Unscrewing the lens he dropped the cell in its groove in the camera and replaced the lens. This, while it darkened the image and would quadruple the exposure, would give orthochromatic values to the negative; but now the image required focusing.

Not for a second did Wentworth dream of the importance of the change he had made, nor what was hanging on the moment. Had it not been for the well-known critical mental attitude of the sleeping man he would have let the matter go in a plain photograph; but now he determined to do his best and maintain his reputation as an expert amateur. He picked up the magnifying glass, threw the black velvet focusing cloth over his head, and for an instant stood looking at the image on the ground glass, not a sound being heard but the dull rumble from the avenue and the heavy breathing of Harper.

What he saw puzzled him. The image of the blank red paper was no longer there as it had been; in fact, it was not there at all, and something else seemed to have taken its place. He brought his head from beneath the focusing cloth and looked at the easel, but it was there, just as he had placed it, red paper and all. He dived under the cloth again, and was still for half a minute, then the black velvet was tossed in the air and the studio rang with a shout that brought Harper bolt upright.

"Eurkea! I have found it!" cried Wentworth, his eyes shining.

"Found what?" asked Harper in idiotic bewilderment as he tried to gather his shattered senses.

"The paper! The secret! The key! Look! Get your head under the cloth and look!"

He was incoherent from excitement.

But Harper comprehended. He rubbed his eyes and went to the camera, throwing the cloth over his head. In a moment he sprang back with an exclamation.

"By George! I see the thing! Have you a pane of red glass—red anything that is transparent?"

"Yes; the dark-room lantern."

"Fetch it out. Hurry! You've got the deadwood of the matter, and now we'll pinch it. Don't you see? The red filter back of the lens has washed out the red lines that led the eyes astray. The red, uniting with the blue smudge we thought was dirt, has turned that black. The thing is plain. The paper is a disguised map! Bring on the glass."

It was clear that Harper was right, for when the paper was laid on the table and the sheet of ruby glass placed over it, the character of the hitherto meaningless scrap stood out strongly.

It was a map of some kind; both men, with their heads together, saw that at once. The faint blue smudge was now dark, and appeared like black ink on a dark-red ground, and below, where the dirt had appeared the thickest the matter fell into writing.

Harper picked up the magnifying glass and scanned it closely while Wentworth drew back and watched his face. The young man's excitement was over; he had discovered the meaning of the paper and it satisfied him. There was a silence for a few moments as Harper studied the paper, and when at last the engineer put down the glass and, turning, looked at his friend, his usually ruddy face had paled somewhat. He drew a deep breath, but his voice was controlled and even as he said:

"No wonder Merridale was willing to go to great lengths for this! No wonder your father said this paper was of incalculable value! Old man, do you know what that thing is?"

"No; but by your manner it is something out of the common."

"Indeed, it is. It is a map—evidently a true one—of the lost San Saba mine in Texas, and underneath in writing is a full description of its bearings!

"The finder must have been a navigator, for he has plotted the latitude and longitude to the second, and given directions for approaching as though he was charting an island at sea, and furnishing sailing directions. Did you ever hear of the lost San Saba mine?"

"No."

"Well, I have. I heard much of it while I was in Texas and getting my professional legs under me. I should say that hundreds of men have lost their lives looking for that mine. At one time I caught the bug and thought of taking a whack at it myself. This was seven years ago—and I was just that calibre of a fool—but my governor vetoed my plan of exploration. Now I don't blame him."

"I well remember of your going to Texas," said Wentworth, "but, excuse me, Tom; a mine is a hole in the ground, I think, and how in the devil can a hole in the ground be lost? Real estate is not perambulent to any degree. If it was, and was valuable, someone would be likely to rope it before it got far."

"This is no joke, old man," was the serious return. "The mine in question has always been known as the San Saba. We have an idea of its location, but there is nothing definite; hardly more than that it lies to the northern part of what was once Tom Greene County. Tom Green County has been split up since my day, but as it was originally somewhat larger than the State of Massachusetts, and as the entire country about is a howling desert, unwatered, unwooded and mountainous, this localizing the mine is anything but satisfactory; the knowledge of its whereabouts has been mighty vague."

"But if once found and worked, how could it become lost?"

"I can tell you that. Rich ore was taken from it as late as 1840—silver ore, with a big sprinkling of gold. Of course, the mining methods were crude. You know something of the history of Texas. Between her struggle for independence from Mexico, the rough element in the State, and the looming up of the Mexican War, mining had no chance. The times were raw. The mines were raided by the Texans, and the workers, mostly Mexicans, were driven out or killed.

"No doubt many a man had his eye on the spot waiting for times of peace, but every one went into action in that period, and for a while the place was deserted. It is not a country in which a man may linger long without supplies from the outside, and in those days supplies were impossible. In fact the country supports nothing but cactus, greasewood tarantulas, and rattlesnakes; it is a waste of shifting sand-dunes and cliffs of rock. It did not take many years, or even months, for every sign of mine and human occupation to be obliterated. The hand of the sand-storm did the work—filled in every excavation and leveled every adobe hut — in fact, ground everything to powder, save the solid rock, and these storms will eventually cut down and level even the porphyry of the hills. A sand-storm is relentless, and Tom Greene County is the playground for them.

"The heat is hellish and the land arid. Once the trace of human work was lost—filled up—and the probability is that every man who has laid eyes on it is now dead."

"Well?"

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HAD INDIGESTION COULD KEEP NOTHING ON STOMACH

After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation; that souring and rising of the food which is so unpleasant and in many cases very painful.

It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion when Burdock Blood Bitters may be so easily obtained. This old and well-known remedy, which is a combination of nature's best roots, herbs, barks and berries will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles.

Mr. Lasare Savoy, Pokemouche, N. B., writes: "About two years ago I was troubled with indigestion that bad I could keep nothing on my stomach. I was sorely disappointed in everything I tried to relieve me. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles and can now eat anything that is set in front of me."

That grand old medicine, B.B.B., has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that it is the best cure for all stomach troubles.

"TO HELL WITH THE KAISER!" BREAKS UP GERMAN LECTURE

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Some one whose identity was not learned yelled "To hell with the Kaiser" in the grand ballroom of the Majestic Hotel, Central Park West and Seventy-second street, while Max Merz, a lecturer, was in the middle of an illustrated lecture in German, and almost broke up the gathering. Lights that had been turned out to bring out clearly the pictures on the screen were hurriedly switched on.

In the midst of the excitement Mr. Merz called to the audience:—

"Shall I continue?"

"Yes! Go on!" was the response.

Copeland Townsend, manager of the hotel, entered the room and sent for two hotel detectives, who remained until the lecture was over. Efforts to find the man who caused all the excitement were in vain.

Although the lecture was in German, the ballroom was decorated with American flags.

To cure a sore throat gargle with sulphur and water. If very bad add lemon juice and honey. A hot lemon drink taken at bed time will often check a cold. A bit of black sugar will cure heartburn. A glass of raspberry vinegar or lemon juice and water will quickly stop the hiccough.

When the sink, bathtub or washbowl has become clogged one may very easily remedy this without sending for a plumber. Take a piece of old garden hose the desired length, fit one end over the drain so that no air escapes. Then turn on the water. The direct pressure will remove the obstruction within a few minutes.

THE SECOND DORSET REGIMENT ASSAULTING THE TURKISH REDOUBTS OUTSIDE KUT-EL-AMARA.

To the Second Dorsets was given the difficult task of storming the redoubts on the extreme left flank of the Turkish position outside Kut-el-Amara when that position was captured. The regiment came up against some unbroken barbed wire about fifty yards from the loopholes of the Turkish trenches, which were constructed according to the latest principles, with brushwood head covering. Nothing could be seen but this row of loopholes and a tall pole, from which floated the Turkish flag. The Second Dorsets had to pay the price of victory, but they carried the position.

Forty Thousand Investors Hold Canadian Pacific Stock

In all countries	24,000	27,000	40,468	40,287

France	5%	5%	5.63%	5.53%
Other countries	....	2%	2.13%	2.33%

How the common stock of the Canadian Pacific Railway is held has always been an interesting study. During the past few years there has been considerable change in the grouping of the holdings. Baron Shaughnessy, president of the railroad company, has on various occasions furnished The Monetary Times with figures showing in what countries the stock is held and to what extent, and also an analysis of the shareholders' list as it stood on October 1st, 1916. This is compared with previous analyses in the above table.

It must be borne in mind, in analyzing the figures that the capital stock of the Canadian Pacific Railway has been increased several times during the period under review as follows: In November, 1909, when $30,000,000 of additional stock was allotted at 125, the amount of stock outstanding was $150,000,000. That would be the amount of stock held by the 24,000 shareholders in January, 1911. A further block of $13,000,000 was allotted in January, 1913, at 150; $2,000,000 was sold during 1912 at a premium of $2,880,831.80; and $60,000,000 was allotted at 175 in January, 1913. In June, 1913, August, 1915, and at the present time, therefore, the full $260,000,000 of stock has been issued.

In a little more than four years the number of shareholders had increased 24,468, or over 51 per cent. Last year there was a small decrease in the number. In the past few years, a remarkable change has occurred in the number of holders. Whereas three years ago there were 27,000 holders of the common stock, there were in 1915 40,468, an increase of 13,468, or 49 per cent. Last year, the number dropped to 40,287, but still a good record. These figures seem to indicate that the so-called small investor has been in the market during the past three years getting Canadian Pacific Railway stock, the large holdings having been sold to some extent and picked up by small investors. The increase in the number of holders was probably made to a large degree during the latter part of 1915, by those who had faith in the strength of the company and the maintenance of the 10 per cent. dividend. This faith was rewarded. The number of Canadian holders has increased over 161 per cent. in the last four years, and now stands at 6,531. This is an excellent showing for a country which has done more borrowing than investing.

The number of holders in Great Britain in 1916 was larger than two years previously, but smaller than in 1911. Great Britain probably sold to the United States last year. The French and German holdings have dropped considerably. The volume of shares held by United States investors is not very large, only 10.39 per cent. in 1915, a record which was beaten by Canada, which then held 12.64 per cent. of the total. The United States total has been increased most likely by purchases last year from Great Britain.

The figures in regard to Germany are of unusual interest. In January, 1911, and, June, 1913, German holdings were 10 per cent. This figure has been reduced now to 5.84 per cent.

The Farmer And The Auto

A Saturday evening scene of the cars "hitched" along the curb of any small town, made while their farmer owners are attending the weekly movies or the lyceum bureau's entertainment, would surprise a good many city folks.

The number of high grade, six or eight cylinder cars that will be found "three-quartered" toward the sidewalks proves that the best in automobiling pleasure is none too good for the present day farmer and his family.

The longer wheel bases afforded by the larger cars greatly increase the comfort of the riding over country roads and permit of higher speeds. And with the coming of the light sixes ample pulling power has been provided, in addition to the low cost of operation.

FARMERS DEMAND FACTS

Haynes dealers report a large percentage of sales made to farmers. And this does not mean that only the wealthy farmers have been buying Haynes cars.

The farmer is famous as a close buyer. He is also quite familiar with gas engines, as a result of using them with his farm machinery. He wants figures, not promises or sweet coated talk, as to exactly what a car will cost him for gas, oil, tires, repairs, etc.

Haynes dealers, by reason of 1917 being the third year during which the Haynes "Light Six" has been offered without vital change in construction, have been able to produce the definite upkeep figures demanded and to show the farmers that the Haynes gives them all the advantages of a big, high powered car at the upkeep cost of a car in the $1,000 class.

NO NEED OF EDUCATION.

The old idea that a farmer has to be "educated" to automobiling via the route of small cars first is also being exploded. Almost half of the Haynes "Light Six" sold to farmers have been purchased by people who never owned cars before.

While it is true that in many sections country driving in winter is impractical, nevertheless it is possible, should the emergency arise, when one owns a powerful car that will pull through hub deep mud or snow, as in the case of the Haynes, when even the running boards are dragging.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hins, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

So many dried fruits are more delicious when cooked in a casserole than when cooked on top of the stove.

It should never be forgotten that labour-saving machinery is just as important in the home as anywhere else.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S RUSSIAN BLOUSE.

By Anabel Worthington.

There is a time for all things and, you will agree, there are many occasions for a Russian blouse such as you see in the picture. For the length of the garment you have two chances, according to just how Russian you want to be, and the sleeves may be in either of two lengths.

The upper edges of the fronts and back of the blouse are gathered to square yokes that give a neat, fitted effect; to take care of the fulness below the yokes a belt may encircle at normal waistline, or a sash may be arranged to tie loosely and drape in front as shown.

The sailor collar and smart cuffs with braid trimming give the attractive finishing touches. Suit yourself about the number of buttons you will sew on, but there is safety in a number and also a degree of style.

Jersey of course is a most satisfying fabric, but there are many other weaves equally suited to the developing of this type of garment. So clear is the pattern that it really does all but sew the pieces together.

The blouse pattern, No. 8,129, is cut in sizes, 36-42. To make in size 36 requires three and one-half yards forty-four inch material for full length blouse; four yards braid, two and one-half yards material forty-four inches wide for shorter length.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

SLEEP AS THEY MARCH

Retreating From Mons, Soldiers Had Extraordinary Experiences

An article "Sleep for the Sleepless" the author quotes an eminent surgeon, who made a study of sleep in the French army as follows: "In the retreat from Mons to the Marne we have an extraordinary human experiment, in which several hundred thousand men secured little sleep during nine days, and in addition made forced marches and fought one of the greatest battles in history.

"How, then, did these men survive nine days apparently without opportunity for sleep? They did an extraordinary thing—they slept while they marched! Sheer fatigue slowed down their pace to a rate that would permit them to sleep while walking. When they halted they fell asleep. They slept in water and on rough ground, when suffering the pangs of hunger and thirst, and even when severely wounded. They cared not for capture, not even for death, if only they could sleep.

"The unvaried testimony of the soldiers was that every one at times slept on the march. They passed through villages asleep. When sleep deepened and they began to reel they were wakened by comrades. They slept in water, on stones, in brush or in the middle of the road as if they had suddenly fallen in death. With the ever oncoming lines of the enemy no man was safe who dropped out of the ranks, for no matter on what pretext he fell out sleep conquered him. Asleep many were captured. That the artillerymen slept on horseback was evidenced by the fact that every man lost his cap."

HOW HINDENBURG HATES

Official German Story of His Cruelty To British Officers

The Deutsche Tageszeitung's special correspondent reports from the Western German Headquarters a brutal order by Hindenburg regarding the treatment of wounded English officers. The chief medical officer of a large hospital at C— (possibly meaning Cambrai) was conducting Hindenburg through a ward where lay wounded British officers. He explained that the sister in charge had lived eleven years in England and spoke English so well that the British officers at first took her for an Englishwoman. The correspondent continues: Hindenburg's usually good-humored features grew dark. He signed to the sister to withdraw and then gave the order: "The sister is to be employed elsewhere. In this ward there is to be a sister speaking not a single word of English. I will not allow English wounded to be better off here than my brave soldiers who have the misfortune to be in English hospitals."

No Golf Until Peace

Believing that their groundsmen could be more usefully employed in other capacities on the land the members of the Nevin Golf Club, Carnarvonshire, have closed their links until the end of the war.

The Serbian Premier in a message to the Czar prayed that "with his mighty hand he may place the Cross on St. Sophia" (in Constantinople).

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged.

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUNDAY READING FOR A THOUGHTFUL HOUR

Prepared for the Examiner by a Local Church Worker

A PRAYER.

I would not ask Thee that my days
Should flow quite smoothly on and on;
Lest I should learn to love the world
Too well, ere all my time was done.

I would not ask Thee that my work
Should never bring me pain nor fear;
Lest I should learn to work alone,
And never wish Thy presence near.

I would not ask Thee that my work
Should always kind and constant be;
Lest I should learn to lay my faith
In them alone, and not in Thee.

But I would ask Thee still to give,
By night my sleep — by day my bread,
And that the counsel of Thy Word
Should shine and show the path to tread.

And I would ask a humble heart,
A changeless will to work and wake,
A firm faith in Thy Providence,
The rest—'tis Thine to give or take.

—Alfred Norris.

We believe that right in the midst of this terrible war the world is on the point of discovering in unrealized depth and meaning and sufficiency in the gospel of Jesus Christ. —Christian Guardian.

"According to your faith be it unto you," and the choice before the world to-day is, which shall it be?

There is an unprecedented opportunity for the faith which is creative of good by believing in, acting upon, and so realizing God. There is a great and natural quickening of the instinct to believe. There is also a loud and manifold call, amid all the conflicting uproar, to believe in "the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom He has sent."

"Spirits are not finely touched
But to fine issues,"

And in many quarters, especially at the front, one hears of a pathetic and wholly Christian belief that so much suffering and sacrifice must bring in "a new age," in the light of which we shall not regret it. Is it not simply part of faith in the God of the Christian Gospel to say that so God must intend it? And does not this mean that, if we intend it also, truly and actively and patiently enough it will as surely come to pass?

"Faith is that which gives reality to things hoped for," by acting without deviation upon the assurance that they are true." This is the victory that hath overcome the world even our faith." Who is he that overcometh the world but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God!

Dreamer of dreams, we take the taunt with gladness,
Knowing that God, beyond the years
you see,
Has wrought the dreams that count
with you for madness,
Into the substance of the world to be.

—Edward Arthur Burroughs.

Fidelis.

BAD PLACE FOR KINGS

Poland has not been very kind to its kings in the past, and one hopes that the new ruler, if he ever rules, will not share the fate of some of his predecessors. Henry of Valois, a worthless man, who was elected to the throne by the Diet, fled, after a reign of five months, in a most ludicrous fashion; Michael Wienlowiecki, son of a famous general, a weak and insignificant man, who was elected king against his will, "died suddenly"; one Augustus was deposed; his successor, Stanislaus Liszizynski, was compelled to leave the country; Ladislaus had to resign, and so had the last king, Stanislaus.

When the time came for Sigismund II. to take the crown, trouble arose from his marriage. He had secretly espoused, as a widower, a widow of the great house of Radziwill, and the nobles required the union to be annulled because they thought the country would gain more by a foreign alliance. Sigismund carried his point, and his wife was crowned queen, but she died soon afterwards, not without suspicions of having been poisoned by her mother-in-law.

RUMBLINGS IN GERMANY

Women Closed to Arguments But Lower Classes Restless

D. Thomas Curtin, the famous war correspondent and unnoticed visitor to Germany, has the following to say of his experiences: I lost my temper once and said to one elderly red-faced frau: "Since you have beaten the English at sea, why don't you send your ships to fetch food?" "Our fleet," she said, "is too busy choking the English fleet in its safe hiding places to afford time to go to America. You will see enough of our fleet one day, young man."

I reiterate views expressed on previous visits to Germany; that German women are not standing the anxiety of the war as well as those of France and England. They have done noble work for the Fatherland, but the grumblings of the lower third of the population are now such as have not been heard since 1848. German officials in the Press Department of the Foreign Office try to explain away the unrest to neutral correspondents like myself, but many thinking Germans are surprised and troubled by this unexpected manifestation on the part of those who for generations have been almost as docile and easily managed as children.

YPRES MAYOR LOYAL

English Papers Paid Dearly For Mistaken Story

"I need hardly ask the Burgomaster whether there is a word of truth in the statement that he was shot for treachery," said Sir Edward Carson. "Pas un mot," said the Burgomaster, when Sir Edward's remark had been interpreted to him. The scene was the Lord Chief Justice's Court and in the witness box stood the Burgomaster of Ypres, sturdy and debonair. He was plaintiff in two actions, the settlement of which had just been announced—against the Manchester Guardian and the Pall Mall Gazette.

The Manchester Guardian had published in December, 1914, a paragraph alleging that this Belgian patriot had been shot for treachery to his country and the Pall Mall Gazette had repeated it. When the case was called on Sir Edward Carson, the Burgomaster's leading counsel, announced that it had been settled. The defendant newspapers had agreed to pay $6,500 and costs.

BURGLARS AS SOLDIERS

Peculiar Type of Thieves Disappeared With War

An English paper has the following: The holiday burglar has practically vanished. What has become of him? "The housebreaker," said the Scotland Yard official, "is, like every other kind of criminal, a man living on his wits. His keen intelligence soon informed him that the war had settled his job, just as it has that of many a respectable citizen. Depending as he does upon two—or at the most three—months of the year to gain his livelihood, the summer of 1915 showed him that it was going. For people no longer went away in such great numbers, and when they did they took greater care to protect their belongings.

"And after all the burglar, evil-doer though he be, is a Briton. Possibly, also, he had golden visions of the endless loot to be cleared from captured Hun dug-outs. And so, in nine cases out of ten, being young, active, and of military age, he enlisted in the army, and, according to what one hears of the treasures stored in some of the German trenches, has had plenty of opportunities to fulfil his ambitions whilst serving his country."

Harry Lauder's Loss

The late Captain John Lauder, only child of Harry Lauder, was a clever musician, and it was one of his great delights to play over tunes for his father. Practically all the melodies that Mr. Lauder used to sing were scored by the boy, and some of them orchestrated. He had a fine baritone voice, but seldom sang his father's songs because, as he explained, "I can't sing them like the dad."

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

"WAR BABIES" IN GERMANY

Bureau Placing Them Says Foster-Parents Are All Satisfied.

Germans who have adopted "war babies" supplied by the Berlin bureau devoted to the care of children whose mothers are unable to support them are reported in the advertising literature sent out by the bureau as finding the little ones perfectly satisfactory. The bureau has 10,000 babies under its wing.

In a recent interview with a reporter of the Vossische Zeitung the Superintendent of the bureau announces that applications for children come constantly from all parts of the country. All classes of parents, "even a count," apply for infants to adopt. One specially delighted "customer," a military surgeon, having got one baby from the bureau, forthwith applied for two others. The children are transferred to foster-parents only with permission of their mothers, and only married couples may obtain them from the bureau.

In the interview, as summarized by The London Daily Mail, stress is laid on the fact that no commissions are charged. Persons who wish to adopt children can inspect an elaborate collection of photographs before visiting the bureau to see the children themselves. A public school teacher who desired to adopt a baby girl before Christmas wrote in: "A child, after all, is the nicest Christmas present." He obtained what he wanted. Only children guaranteed to be healthy are "dealt in."

If you have an electric fan anywhere handy in the kitchen use it when peeling onions and your eyes will not smart.

Care should be taken not to set a steaming hot casserole dish in cold water or in a wet sink. This will cause it to crack.

Severe Headaches And Pains in the Back

Resulted From a Deranged Kidneys and Constipation of the Bowels

It is in vain to try to regulate and restore the healthful action of the kidneys until the liver and bowels are set right.

And just here is where so many kidney medicines fail. Kidney derangements almost invariably begin with constipation and torpidity of the liver. The whole work of filtering the blood is thrown on the kidneys, and in time they fail to stand the strain. The poison in the system gives rise to severe headaches, pains in the back and tired, depressed feelings.

Because they act directly on the liver and bowels, as well as on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are eminently successful in the treatment of kidney derangements.

Mr. William Louey, Marysville, N. B., writes:—"I am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anybody who is suffering from kidney trouble or constipation. I suffered for a long time from kidney disease and pains in the back, but have found that by using one pill a week the kidneys and bowels are kept in good order, and I do not have any more pains in the back or head like I used to have. I was also a great sufferer from piles, and could get no relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This ailment is entirely cured now, and we always keep both the pills and the ointment in the house for use when they are needed."

This statement is endorsed by Mr. F. Saunders, Town Marshal, who writes that Mr. Louey's letter is true and correct.

GERMAN NEWSPAPERS ATTACK AMERICAN AMBASSADOR

A FRENCH LINER SINKS A GERMAN SUBMARINE

SHARP RAPS FOR CROWN PRINCE RUPPRECHT'S FORCES FROM BRITISH

Following Saturday's Engagement in the Miraumont Region General Haig's Men Have Further Advanced Despite Unfavourable Conditions---French Liner Guayane Sends German Submarine to the Bottom---Unsuccessful Zeppelin Raid on French Coast.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, February 19.—The German army of the Crown Prince Rupprecht group, has received several sharp raps on the knuckles during the last thirty-six hours. Following Saturday's engagement in the Miraumont region, the British have further advanced—and this despite fogs, a thawing of the frozen grounds and resultant seas of mud.

Officers are "quite satisfied" with the results, they asserted to-day.

The British lines now overlook Miraumont at several points. A violent counter-attack by the Germans north of the Ancre yesterday at noon was bloodily repulsed.

North of Armentieres the British raiders penetrated 250 yards into German second line trenches inflicting many casualties.

Other minor raids yesterday and last night were successful.

PARIS (French Official Communique), February 19.—An unsuccessful Zeppelin raid of the French coast in the neighbourhood of Boulogne was reported in to-day's official statement. Several bombs were dropped without result.

Calm was reported in the entire French front, except in Alsace, where there were patrol engagements.

WASHINGTON, February 19.—There are 100,000 spies in the United States, Senator Lee Overman declared on the Senate floo. to-day during a debate on the Espionage Bill for protection against the operations of spies and malefactors in time of war.

"I am told," Overman exclaimed, "there are now 100,000 spies on United States soil."

Overman as a member of the judiciary committee in charge of the bill has been in close touch with the Department of Justice, which drafted the measure.

WASHINGTON, February 19.—Although unchanged in its dangerous particulars, the German-American situation to-day was generally regarded by officials as more hopeful than at any time since the diplomatic break of two weeks ago.

The situation is such that the United States can state positively that the President has "no present intentions of going to Congress to discuss it in any way."

No "overt act" has occurred, and the officials see in recent actions by Germany an apparent change of attitude towards this Government.

The purpose of the President is unchanged, however. He does not intend to pause in the work of preparation, merely because there appears to be a material decrease in the number of bags of U-boats.

NEW YORK, February 19.—Members of the crew of the French S.S. Guayane, arriving here to-day from Bordeaux, reported the destruction of a German submarine which attempted to sink her off the coast of France.

Confirming the story of sinking the submarine Captain Rousellet, of the Guayane, said the submarine fired three shots at the vessel all wide of the mark. The Guayane's gunner fired two shots, and the second one was seen to hit the submarine squarely and she collapsed and disappeared.

AMSTERDAM, February 19.—A violent attack on former-American Ambassador to Germany Gerard, was made in to-days issue of the Berlin Tages Zeitung, Berlin despatches asserted.

The Von Reventlow article assailed the American correspondent's stories sent from Berlin and concluded:

"Thank Heaven Gerard has gone."

LONDON, February 19.—The British steamer Okemont, 4,349 tons, has been sunk.

WINTER GARDEN WAS A SPLENDID SUCCESS

The recruiting room, Simcoe street, was transformed on Saturday afternoon into the most fascinating winter garden, imaginable by the Business Girls' Club for their tea, the proceeds of which will be devoted to patriotic purposes. All morning the committee in charge were busy and by three the transformation was complete— the walls were hidden with green lattice work, to which pink bleeding hearts, roses and tulips clung, and hundreds of tiny silver darts. The daintily set tables were exceedingly tastefully finished in pink crepe paper and silver horseshoes. The colour scheme of the afternoon, pink, silver and white, was carried out in the costumes of those assisting, who looked very charming in their white dresses and pink, heart-shaped caps, with silver darts. One of the principal attractions of the afternoon was the tulip bed, at which a tulip with a cunning present attached, could be purchased.

About three hundred came in to tea, and the financial results were gratifying, over one hundred and ten dollars being realised. Great credit is reflected on the decoration committee for the charming effect of the whole appearance of the room.

The officers and members of the Business Girls' Club desire to offer their sincere thanks to all those who by their generous assistance helped to make the "Garden Tea" such a success; to Lieut.-Col. Ackerman for the use of the recruiting room, Messrs. W. H. Hamilton, the Peterborough Floral Company, J. J. Turner & Sons, Bellerhem, Hooper, J. M. Greene Music Co., J. John and the Ocean Blend Tea Co., and the Woolworth Co., not to mention the many kind friends who visited the rooms.

COMFORT.

Many of Dr. Lacey's patients say that their glasses are so comfortable that they do not know they are wearing them. Why don't you be one of them? See him and see better. 410 George street.

BIG SHIPMENT OF POTATOES TO CUBA DURING PAST WEEK

21,508 Sacks and Barrels from New Brunswick, Required Additional Steamer to Run Them to Havana

250,000 SACKS UP TO JAN. 30th

OTTAWA, Feb. 17. — Canadians will find food for serious reflection in a statement sent to the Department of Trade and Commerce from Cuba by J. C. Manzer, who represents that department and the New Brunswick Government there. He tells of the enormous quantities of Canadian potatoes that have been shipped to Havana. He says:

"The arrivals of potatoes this week at the port of Havana amounted to 21,508 sacks and barrels. The entire shipment came from New Brunswick, and it was necessary to put on an additional steamer from Boston in order to handle this large quantity. These shipments were sold for $136,502 at Havana, and are the most valuable Canadian shipments of potatoes that ever arrived in one week.

"During the five months ending January 30, when shipments of the 1916 crop have been coming forward, Canada has shipped to Cuba 250,000 sacks and barrels of potatoes, which were sold for upwards of $1,400,000."

Yet Great Britain, the allies and Canada herself are short of potatoes.

Lieut.-Col. Glass Relieved of Command

Saturday morning Lieut.-Col. Wilson, D.A.A., Quartermaster General, of Third Military Division, Kingston, transferred the temporary command of the 252nd Battalion to Major Thompson, thus relieving Lieut.-Col. Glass, who is retiring at his own request.

Lieut.-Col. Wilson also examined the Battalion's books and has presented this gratifying report:

"I certify that I have this date inspected the books and accounts of 252nd Battalion, and have found the same to have been kept in good condition, and all public moneys properly accounted for."

Lieut.-Col. Wilson also pays a warm tribute to Lieut.-Col. Glass, whom he characterized as a zealous, efficient and painstaking officer.

Victory Loan Totalled Three And Half Billions

LONDON, February 19.—Subscriptions to Britain's "Win the War Loan" totalled "at least three billion five hundred million," Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law announced in the House of Commons to-day, and said this was the amount of new money which had been raised. The amount stated does not include bank subscriptions, but simply those raised by popular appeal.

RECRUITS FOR THE 256th BATTALION OFF FOR TORONTO TO-DAY

Are Escorted to the Station by Band and Men of 247th Battalion---Six Recruits For the Peterborough Battalion on Saturday---Recruiting Campaign Continues---To-day's General Military News.

Sixteen Peterborough recruits for the 256th Railway Construction Battalion left Peterborough this morning via G.T.R. for Toronto, whence they will leave in a short time for service overseas. The departing soldiers were escorted to the station by the band of the 247th Battalion and A Company in command of Capt. Hamilton. A large number of friends and relatives had gathered at the station and there were the customary sad farewells, unhappily grown all too common in the past few years. The band played "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf" before the train pulled out.

Before the squad left for the station they were inspected at the Armouries by Lt.-Col. Ackerman of the 247th Battalion who addressed them briefly. He advised them to always play the game, and do what they were told to do, cheerfully and quickly. They were entering upon a big adventure and the work that they were to do, that of building railways, was of the utmost importance. They could feel that they would be playing a very important part in the big events that would bring the war to a close. He advised them to take pride in their appearance, and to always have their buttons and their shoes shined and their faces shaved, after the fashion of the British Tommy, who always looked as if he had stepped out of a band box. In conclusion Lt.-Col. Ackerman wished the departing soldiers the best of luck and a safe return, promising them a hearty reception when they came back to Peterborough.

Sergt. Stanley and four other 256th men will remain here until further orders and will continue to recruit for the battalion.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—The reorganization which is being discussed in relation to the Canadian Militia probably will have the effect of bringing back to Canada and utilizing the services of a number of officers who are now in Great Britain in excess of present requirements over there. The recruiting for overseas has not only greatly depleted the ranks of the Militia regiments at home, but to an even greater extent, proportionately, the officers' list has been drawn on. The surplus now overseas can thus be employed, temporarily at least, in the reorganization which is proposed for the joint purpose of providing home defence and augmenting the forces at the front. There has been no decision as yet as to the exact form of the new organization.

Divisional officers will need to be consulted and special staffs arranged for as a preliminary to the operation of whatever new plans is adopted. Opinions are divided as to whether the filling up of militia regiments can be accomplished successfully on the voluntary basis, without invoking the obligation features of the Militia Act. In any event, volunteer methods will first be tried.

The new plan of enlisting for overseas on a territorial basis, whereby recruits from a particular division will go to battalions enlisted in the same territory, will, it is believed, be productive of good results.

Saturday was the best recruiting day the 247th Battalion has experienced for a long time. Five recruits were taken on the strength and a sixth will be accepted after a minor operation in the hospital. The five accepted were Ptes. C. Wason, F. Evans, J. C. Finnie, Jas. A Little, and Chas. Parcels.

A series of recruiting efforts have been arranged by the 247th Battalion for this week, which are expected to bring a number of recruits into the battalion. The chief difficulty the 247th is experiencing is in securing recruits in the city of Peterborough. Some sections of the country around are doing splendidly, notably Havelock, which continues to contribute men to the 247th.

Wheat Crop Bigger Than The Estimate

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 19.—The western wheat crop has turned out thirty per cent. larger than was first estimated. The crop has proved to be 225 million bushels, as against an estimate of about 175 million. This means 75 million more for western farmers than was expected.

550 SUB CHASERS FOR THE BRITISH

All These Constructed by American Firm in Less than 500 Days.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The New York Times publishes details of the building and furnishing to the British Government by the Elco Company, Bayonne, N. J., of 550 submarine-chasers. The boats, it is stated, were built in less than 500 days. Each chaser is 80 feet long, with a beam of 12 1-2 feet, registers 32 tons, and draws only four and a half feet of water, and has a speed of nineteen knots an hour for 650 knots, and fifteen knots an hour for 1,000 knots. Two gasoline engines supply power.

C. E. F. RANKS MUST BE DROPPED AFTER APPOINTMENT ENDS

Owing to a number of complaints received at military headquarters because of confusion arising in cases where officers holding a rank in the Canadian Expeditionary Force also hold a rank in the Canadian militia, military orders contain an explanation of the status of such men.

The explanation makes it plain that appointments or promotions in the C.E.F. are effective in that force only, and give no future claim to rank or seniority in the Canadian militia.

On ceasing to be a member of the C.E.F., an officer relinquishes his rank in that force, and reverts to the rank that he held in the active militia.

Thus, if an officer ranked as a colonel in the C.E.F. and had previously held the rank of lieutenant in the militia, he would, on ceasing to be a member of the C.E.F. revert to the rank of lieutenant in the militia.

Similarly, an officer who served in the C.E.F. as a lieutenant, but who had before enlisting for active service held the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the militia, would, on relinquishing his rank in the C.E.F. revert to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Don't worry over a mistake that can be corrected, but go to work and correct it.

Impressive Addresses At Big Sunday Rally

Grand Opera House Crowded to the Doors and Hundreds Turned Away From Last Night's Recruiting Meeting ---Chancellor McCrimmon's Magnificent Speech.

CAMPAIGN IS ON

On Saturday a new record for recruiting for the ranks of the 247th Battalion was set when six men donned the khaki and were sworn in. Following this, last night at an enthusiastic meeting in the Opera House, a recruiting campaign was launched that is hoped to net one hundred men for Col. Ackerman's fighting machine. The campaign started last night under most favourable circumstances, the Opera House being crowded to the limit, while many stood behind the scenes on the stage, during the progress of the meeting. As usual young men of military age were conspicuous by their absence.

The large numbers who were turned away missed one of the finest recruiting addresses ever delivered in Peterborough. The speakers were Lieut. Brittain, Major Hodge, of Campbellford and Chancellor McCrimmon of McMaster University, Toronto. Mr. T. E. Bradburn presided and expressed his pleasure at seeing so many on hand. He was particularly glad to see the ladies present for he felt that recruiting or any other movement taken up by the ladies was sure to be a success. And they should be successful in this for he himself, passing along the street, had seen a great number of men who should join the colours—and it was up to the ladies to see that they do.

LIEUT. BRITTAIN.

Lieut. Brittain was very pleased seen walking around with a man in there. It was also, he claimed the first time he had ever been on a public platform. He was a soldier and for 25 years had earned his living as a soldier. Lieut. Brittain's quarter century as a military man must have stood him in good stead as he faced the large audience last night, for he told them his three amusing stories with a lucidness and confidence and skill that would have done credit to any veteran orator. His brief address was entirely a humourous one, entitled, "Jam, Rum and Sand Bags."

It was a refreshing narrative embodying three incidents at the front of a lighter nature and was thoroughly enjoyed. "I want you to understand that these things occurred just to an ordinary soldier at the front," said the Lieutenant, "who has honestly tried to do his bit as he saw it, and who when the time comes, (and the sooner the better), will try to do it again."

MAJOR HODGE.

Major Hodge confessed his pleasure at speaking to a Peterborough audience, for Peterborough, he said, had sent as fine a bunch of men to the trenches as had ever gone into France to fight. He himself had fought with a Peterborough officer, who was as game an officer as ever donned a uniform—Col. Ackerman—, and he had gone through battles with Heber Rogers and had seen in action other Peterborough boys who had acquitted themselves nobly. He was glad when he came home, to see more Peterborough boys from France, wearing uniforms and ready to go to the front again as soon as their time

SOLDIER'S WIDOW AND 7 CHILDREN GET PENSION OF $888

Fred Long Receives $288 and R. J. Mahood $96 a Year Covering Disabilities of War Service—Announcement Received To-day

MRS. CROSS LIVES AT NORWOOD

One of the largest pensions announced through the local Patriotic Fund office was included in to-day's list, notifying Mrs. J. E. Cross, of Norwood, that she had been allowed a pension of $888 a year, or $74 a month.

Private J. E. Cross was killed some months ago, leaving his wife and seven small children, the oldest of whom is ten years of age. The number of dependents accounts for the fact that this pension amounts to $74 a month. As the children become of age their shares of the pension automatically terminate. The pension age is 16 years for boys, and 17 years for girls.

Two Other Pensions.

Private Fred Long, of this city, who was very seriously injured at Langemarck and taken prisoner, has been notified that he has been granted a pension of $24 a month or $288 a year.

R. J. Mahood receives a pension of $96 a year.

ST. ANDREW'S PATRIOTIC SOCIETY GETS EMPIRE PROCEEDS WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Wednesday afternoon's proceeds to the Empire Theatre will be donated by Dr. F. L. Robinson to St. Andrew's Patriotic Society, under whose auspices the programme has been arranged. The first concert will be given at 3 o'clock and the second at 4.30. The programme will consist of a musical number by good local talent and a five reel Mutual production entitled, "True Nobility," based on Tennyson's lines—

"Howe'er it be, it seems to me
'Tis only noble to be good,
Kind hearts are more than coronets
And simple faith than Norman blood."

This is an inviting bill and should attract a large attendance on Wednesday afternoon.

The 4.30 programme is for the convenience of the students of the Normal and other city schools.

BRAZIL WARNS GERMANY ABOUT THREE STEAMERS

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A wireless despatch received here from Berne says the Brazilian Minister at Berlin, by order of his government, has warned Germany that Brazil will hold her responsible for the fate of three Brazilian vessels approaching the war zone. These vessels left Brazil for Entente countries since the declaration by Germany of her submarine blockade.

BRITAIN STILL FEEDS.

Germany, by her submarine measures, hasn't had much success in the attainment of her object of starving, as she has been straf eing Great Britain. The under-sea pirates have managed to hit a good many ships, but they have not succeeded in hitting Great Britain's trade in a vital spot. In the week ending Feb. 10th, the first complete week of Germany's intensified blockade, the amount of wheat that reached the United Kingdom was 2,768,200 hundred-weight, nearly double the wheat imports of the corresponding weeks of the years 1914, 1915, and 1916. The totals of cereal food products, corn, grain, meal and flour, to reach Britain, were greater in the same week this year, than in the corresponding week in all the years since the war began. Britain and her people still have the freedom of the seas.

MILITANT CHRISTIANITY.

The clergymen of Birmingham, England, according to a recent journal received, have converted the phrase "church militant" from a figure of speech to a fact. About fifty clergymen have shown that their patriotism is not of the "Brummagen" kind—have taken police duty, in order to relieve members of the regular police force, for military service; the beats of the parson "peelers" are in the vicinity of their respective churches, so that in their off hours they may be convenient to their clerical duties. This incident not only shows the spirit of the cloth, but the extent to which every class in the old land is doing its bit. This pastoral police idea might be adopted in Canada. Toronto clergymen by relieving policemen for military service, would constitute a considerable platoon; and no doubt, if Toronto clergymen and those in Peterborough, were assured that, if they took police duty, the police forces would enlist, would be prompt to follow the example of their Birmingham brethren.

THE VICTORY WAR LOAN.

The significant success of the "Victory War Loan," in Great Britain emphasizes the tremendous amount of the national popular wealth, and the willingness of the people to put themselves behind the armies and war fleets of the Mother Country, and behind the armies and navies of the allies, in order to bring victory. When we reflect that a little spot, like a pinprick on the map of the world, after devoting 21,000 millions to war purposes, is able in the space of a few weeks to get loan offerings of 5,000 or 6,000 millions of dollars, the wonder grows. All parts of the United Kingdom helped. Canny Scotland literally poured forth her bawbees, the City of Glasgow alone subscribing 500 million dollars, and the farmers in the vicinity of Dublin brought in hundreds of thousands of their hoarded gold. A feature of the loan was the infinitely small sums, the "widow's mites, that showed that their had been extensive national thrift and saving. The united spirit of the people was shown, by war widows contributing their hardly-saved pound or two, and wealthy women pouring their jewelry into the receiving stations all over the country. Lord and labourer, capitalist and costermonger, peasant and peer, rubbed shoulders and crowded each other in patriotic emulation at the entrances to banks, brokers' offices and other receiving stations. There was universal popular desire to stand by the nation in its hour of trial, and help in many cases, to the last penny, in piling up the silver bullets that Premier Lloyd-George considers the most important munition of the war. There must have been very general saving and enthusiastic patriotism of spirit that permitted a population of 45 millions to contribute to the Victory Loan of 5,000 millions, at the rate of $445 per head for every man, woman and child. A country that can do that, and not only that but stands as the cradle and nurse of the principles of freedom, free institutions, and democratic liberty that, inherited from the Mother Land, make the greatest nations of the world great and free, is worth paying for as well as fighting for.

DOING THEIR BIT.

We have noticed with pride how splendidly our Canadian soldiers at the front, are serving the cause of the allies, the cause of the Empire, the cause of their country and humanity. They are doing magnificent work, not only in actual, successful head-work and hand-work warfare, but in advertising the spirit as well as the arm of Canada. They are bringing Canada to the front in really magnificent way, and adding to the prominence this country is gaining in the eyes of the world. And there is more. Now we have a part of Great Britain shifted three thousand miles west. Halifax is made the Falmouth of England, is made the British examining port of all Atlantic liners, which are required to call at Halifax. The grand old port of Canada will be a busy and important place, and Canada will have one more of the heavy responsibilities she has so splendidly shouldered, and so successfully carried in the course of this war. Canada can't supply the ships of a navy, the cruisers and destroyers, which would have been a God-send in the circumstances that have developed, but we have a port. Not only as at Halifax, has a new responsibility fallen to Canada, but the defence of our own shores has of late become a necessity, and shows how short sighted we were when we failed to carry out the prepared plans for biulding a Canadian navy. We would not only have a port to place at the disposal of the admiralty, but we should have had an efficient fleet to meet the new menace to our shores, and do its share in keeping the sea lanes clear for traffic and troop transportation services. We offered instead money to Britain, money to build dreadnoughts, the last thing—the money—Britain needed. A nation that could raise for her own purposes, and the purposes of her Dominions, and her allies, 21,000 millions of dollars, and in the last few weeks has raised the biggest loan in human history — the Victory Loan," of 5,000 million dollars, certainly did not need a comparatively paltry contribution of 35 millions to build dreadnoughts. We see now that what is needed is armoured cruisers and destroyers; needed to patrol our waters, on our shores, and incidentally, in a very important way, contribute to the naval interests of Britain and her allies.

LIBERALISM, LABOUR AND THE LADIES.

With woman suffrage looming big over the legislative horizon, and potentially un fait accompli, it would not be uninteresting to note what direct influences and efforts, added to the fruitful propaganda of women themselves, have been contributed by the Liberal and Labour interests within the past three or four years to bring about the present prospective accomplishment. The chief items of the record with dates are given below:

1912—Mr. Alan Studholme, the Labour member for East Hamilton, introduced a bill to grant the franchise to women. Mr. William McDonald, Liberal member for North Bruce—to give the Legisaltive franchise to women having the municipal franchise.

1913—Mr. Alan Studholme re-introduced his bill. Mr. McDonald re-introduced his. Mr. J. C. Elliott, M.P.P., Liberal member for West Middlesex—a bill to grant municipal franchise to married women.

Resolution moved by Mr. Thomas Marshall, Liberal member for Monk, and Mr. C. M. Bowman, Liberal Whip, to grant municipal votes for married women.

1914—Mr. Elliott re-introduced his bill.

1916—Mr. Elliott re-introduced his bill. Mr. McDonald—a bill to grant the legislative franchise to vote at municipal elections.

1916—Mr. Elliott re-introduced his bill. Mr. McDonald—bill to give the general franchise to women.

1917—Mr. Elliott re-introduced his bill. Mr. McDonald re-introduced his bill. Newton Rowell seconded by Mr. Studholme, moves for the full granting of votes to women.

From 1912 to 1916 not only has the government rejected all these motions, but they also shelved the bills of one of their own supporters, Mr. J. W. Johnston, Conservative, M. P. P., of West Hastings.

The Obvious Utility of Savings Banks For Our School Children

Most encouraging progress is being made by the movement for the establishment of Penny Banks in Canada in connection with the Post Office Savings Bank. From a return just issued by the government, it is shown that a sum of no less than $24,712 was deposited in November, 1915, by pupils in Canadian schools, as against $23,564 in November, 1915, while in December last the deposits amounted to $13,232, as against $9,310 in the previous year. The average monthly deposits for November and December last year, varied from 68 cents per pupil at Swansea to 6 cents per pupil at Kitchener. In Montreal the monthly average was 15 cents per pupil; in Toronto, 24 cents; and in Ottawa, 24 cents. The pupils in the school at Indian Reserve had an average of 45 cents; while the average in all the schools in Canada having Penny Banks was 22 cents.

The Ontario schools take the lead in the number of such banks—possibly because the matter has been more persistently urged by the Ontario Department of Education than by a similar department in any other province. This is exemplified by the following extract from a circular issued by that Department:

"The Minister desires to express his appreciation of the devotion shown by the teachers in those schools where the Penny Bank has been in successful operation. He also wishes to point out that it is not enough merely to establish the system in a school. There must be loyal co-operation and persistent sympathy upon the part of the teachers; otherwise some few may take the opportunity to exercise a natural thriftiness, but the bank will fail in its effort to encourage thrift among the unthrifty. Thrift needs to be encouraged as steadily and persistently as good manners, or any other desirable habit."

Thrift cannot be inculcated too early. The school is the place to teach it, and the Penny Bank creates a most healthy emulation. There is another aspect which is also worth remembering. The government pays an interest of 3 per cent. on all deposits of $1 and upwards, and while giving this return has the use of the money for national purposes. A dollar in the bank is therefore a dollar lent at 3 per cent. to the Canadian Government. Thus the deposits are a patriotic method of investing cash, which would otherwise be largely wasted.—Montreal Herald.

Is The Demand For Enforcement Of The Militia Act Justifiable?

Sir Sam Hughes long since declared himself in favour of bringing the Militia act into force, nearly all the military organisations have sung the same tune, and now we have a similar declaration from the National Service Board. This latter organisation, it is safe to assume, would not make any recommendation which it did not believe to have government approval, and hence the intimations given in recent despatches from Ottawa that this suggested course is now to be taken may be accepted as official. The one thing to be regretted is that along with the announcement of the government's intentions comes the statement that only voluntary methods are to be followed. Here, as elsewhere, the government is afraid to take courageous action and is satisfied with half-way measures. However, good is certain to result because there are many young men, more particularly in Quebec, who are willing to enliat for home defence but are not ready to go overseas, while, in many cases, the one step will be but a prelude to the other. Some of the reasons why the Militia act should be invoked are forcibly put by Mr. N. W. Rowell as follows:

1. You would at once release all men in Canada who have enlisted for overseas service and permit them to go over to Great Britain to complete their training for reinforcing our divisions at the front.

2. You would protect agriculture and our essential war industries from further dislocation by our present methods of recruiting.

3. From the men thus called out for home defence, after a few months of training, you would undoubtedly secure thousands of volunteers for service overseas. The very anxiety of our present battalions to get to the front is the best evidence that if the men were called out for home service they would speedily wish to be transferred to service overseas.

4. You would put an end to the present waste of energy and money in the endeavour to secure recruits by present methods.

5. "If your army for home defence largely enlisted for overseas service, you could replace the men by calling out others as the need arose; for no man could object to serve for home defence.

Mr. Rowell suggests, as most other people have done who have advocated the invoking of the Militia act, that such a step should be accompanied by the appointment of a non-partisan board for each county, which would protect the agricultural, munitions and other interests, and be empowered to grant exemption certificates to those men who, in its judgment, cannot be spared from the positions they at present occupy.

Recruiting, by means of public appeal, has reached a cul-de-sac, and new methods are absolutely necessary. The great danger at present seems to be that no course sufficiently drastic is likely to be taken until it is too late to be of service in the war.—Brantford Expositor.

Another Champion For Penny Banks in Our Public Schools

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your excellent editorial of Saturday, "Much More Than a Fad," setting forth the advantages of Penny Banks in our public schools, a misprint occurs. Your editorial states there are 36 schools in Ontario that have adopted the Penny Bank, it should be 36 centres. As the 1916 Directors' report on Penny Banks for June 1916 shows 174 schools, not including either Toronto or Ottawa.

There are probably over 300 schools in the province at the present time that have adopted the Penny Bank.

I recently made inquiry, regarding the number of places where the system failed and the cause of such failure. In reply Mr. M. A. Mackenzie, manager of the Toronto Penny Bank replies as follows:—

"Ignorance in regard to our object and failure to appreciate the "value of our work has forced us "to cease operating in three small "centres; but against this our last "annual statement, shows an im"mense success."

"Since June we have been hardly "able to keep up with the demand "for xtension. We are opening in a "number of new centres and the "total deposits are now nearly "$350,000."

Mr. Mackenzie states he would be glad to come to Peterborough, if desired, some Monday or Friday evening, and render any assistance in his power.

The last directors' report gives a list of the chartered banks that are co-operating in this matter, for instance the Royal Bank acting for 46 schools in 8 places.

Imperial Bank acting for 22 schools in 5 places.

Bank of Toronto acting for 20 schools in 3 places.

besides 12 other banks rendering similar service.

We cannot think our local banks would be less patriotic and public-spirited than those of other towns and cities in Ontario.

You are quite right in emphasizing that this is not a fad but a very essential educational necessity and patriotic service.

I heartily concur with the recent letter by "Prosperity" on this line and believe this is a most opportune time for our School Board to take action.

Some of our Ontario schools have had ten years' experience with these banks and can furnish abundant evidence of their beneficial results. The system has the enthusiastic support and commendation of the Minister of Education and leading business men; and is neither an experiment nor a fad and our Board should see that Peterborough no longer stands aloof on this progressive factor of educational improvement and national welfare.

Yours truly,
THRIFT.

HASTINGS BOYS WRITE

In France, Jan. 18, 1917.

Hello Jack:—Well, Jack, here we are as you can see by the heading. We cannot say too much only to let you know that the old Hastings boys are well. There are J. Fitzgerald, Auck Anderson, R. McQuade, and Harry Dodd here and they are all O/K. It is just like home when we all get together and we make it a point to be together as much as we can as it sure helps us to forget our troubles to talk about old times.

It sure was a big surprise for us all to meet and to find each other well. We do not mind the mud or weather at all as everything goes in war time. We have very little snow and a person would hardly think of winter until he looks at the date.

Say, Jack, we sure have one over the stay-at-homes, as we have had a dandy trip and we all expect to do our duty against Frits. The rest of the Hastings boys are still in England but we are expecting them any time. Our work here is very interesting and we are also well fed; of course no old home meals. Our tobacco supply is a little limited, but our motto is: "Pack all your troubles in your old Kit Bag and smile, smile, smile." And you may bet we will smile all the harder when we have made Old Kaiser Bill pay dearly for what he has started. We will do the finishing and we will finish right up to the King's taste.

Well, Jack, remember us to all our old friends, wishing them all the best of luck, as we have lots.

Your old pals,
J. Fitzgerald, 226561, 16 Bat. Can'e.
A. Anderson, 814655, 28 Bat. Can's.
R. McQuade, 661 , 5 Bat. Can's.
H. Dodd, 814602, R. C. R.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE BUDLONG PAPERS

They Contained Valuable Documents

By ETHEL HOLMES

Mary Hartwell was twenty years old when her mother died. Her father had died several years before, leaving a business much tangled. It had not been settled, and Mrs. Hartwell had not received any regular income from it since her husband's death, though she had been paid from time to time small sums to keep her from absolute want.

After her mother's death Mary proposed to accept the situation of a woman doomed to work for her living and began by closing out the remnants of former times. She and her mother had remained in their home. Now Mary proposed to leave it, and the first thing to be done in preparation was to clear out family belongings that had accumulated for years.

Mary went to the attic and looked about her at the confusion and profusion of miscellaneous articles. There were discarded furniture, pictures, empty picture frames, rugs, fenders and irons—indeed, every conceivable article. There were boxes and trunks, some empty, some half filled, some full. The sight was discouraging, but Mary resolutely went to work to separate the whole into groups to be disposed of in different ways.

In one of the boxes she found some old bedding, consisting of blankets and pillows. She removed them and was thinking that she had emptied the box when, feeling in the bottom, her hand touched a bundle wrapped in paper. Taking it out, she shook off the dust and revealed written on the wrapper, "Budlong Papers."

She had never heard of any one by the name of Budlong, nor had she seen a handwriting like that in which the indorsement was written. She unwrapped the cover and revealed a number of yellow papers. She opened and glanced at several of them, which turned out to be receipted bills. There was also that part of checkbooks which comprised the stubs of checks, a lot of accounts current and some legal documents.

Mary concluded that the papers pertained to the affairs of some one by the name of Budlong and that their value had long since passed away. Rewrapping them, she tossed the bundle on to a pile of papers meant for burning.

That night before going to sleep she fell to thinking of these papers. They reminded her of the ongoing of all things. There had been some one of the name of Budlong whose existence and daily doings were represented by these accumulating records. Budlong, whoever he was, doubtless in due time passed away, the evidences of his existence were transferred from a desk in use and finally found a resting place in the bottom of a box in a garret and covered with wornout bedclothing. Truly a tombstone is not the only reminder of one who has lived and moved, earned and spent money on the face of the earth.

The next day Mary turned over the contents of the garret to a dealer in secondhand furniture and carried the old papers down to the furnace for burning. She was about to throw the Budlong papers into the roaring flames when she paused. Somehow she had not the heart to incinerate the remains of the individual's busy existence. Laying the bundle aside, she threw in the other papers, then took it upstairs and put it on a shelf in a closet among articles the disposition of which she had not decided upon.

Mary had a second cousin, Horace Drummond, who had manifested a fancy for her. Indeed, he had sounded her on the possibility of their joining the current of their lives and fighting the battle of life together. But Drummond had nothing but a meager salary and Mary had already experienced a foretaste of poverty, and, remembering that marriage means a multiplication of articles necessary to comfortable existence, she blocked her relative's way to a proposal.

There was another reason why such a union would not be advisable. Edgar Drummond, Horace's father, was a broken down man of business over whose record hung a cloud. What that cloud was Mary did not know, though she did know that the elder Drummond had been charged by his business partner with having defrauded him, had been put out of the firm and had never since been sufficiently trusted to enable him to gain a fresh start. Horace had been given to understand that the swindle had been on the other side—that the partner had ruined his father in order to secure the whole instead of half the profit on a very valuable purchase the firm had made.

Horace Drummond, having a father to support, was certainly not in a position to marry. He did not know, however, what a deprivation his being unable to do so was to Mary. He was not only acceptable to her personally, but she did not take kindly to living a single life and earning her daily bread. Horace was willing to accept the responsibilities that would accrue to him, but Mary gave him to understand that so long as his father was an incumbrance on him it would be unwise for him to take a wife.

Mary, who had been well educated, secured a position as a teacher and settled down to the work of instructing children. Horace visited her occasionally. When two persons desire to marry and are prevented by obstacles in most cases either the obstacles are removed or they marry in spite of them. Naturally both Mary and Horace looked forward to a day when they would be able to marry with a fair prospect of providing the necessaries required, but the prospect was not encouraging.

One evening Horace called on Mary and seemed very much aggrieved. He said that the transaction on account of which his father had been unjustly disgraced was turning out to be immensely profitable. Mr. Drummond was entitled to one-half of the proceeds, but there was no prospect of his ever being vindicated, to say nothing of reaping his legitimate profits.

"Just think," said Horace ruefully, "had it not been for the rascality of old Haskins you and I could now be married and living in clover."

"What was the nature of the transaction?" Mary asked.

"It was a patent right. The patent was offered to the firm of Drummond & Haskins by the inventor. My father approved of it, but Haskins declared that he would never put money into a patent right. Father was informed by the inventor that another party had agreed to furnish the money needed for introduction and development. Haskins was away at the time. Father assumed the responsibility of buying the right for the firm. When Haskins returned he claimed that father had used the firm's money for his own individual purposes, which was embezzlement. Father had taken the preliminary steps in his own name, but had made the contract in the name of the firm in duplicate, one copy for the firm, the other for the inventor. Haskins got hold of the preliminary agreement and the contract. He withheld the latter and produced the former, which alone laid father liable criminally."

"What became of the contract drawn for the inventor?" asked Mary.

"He died while the trouble was first broached. Father asked his widow for it, but she fell under the influence of Haskins or probably was offered an inducement to withhold it. Father's lawyer got out a search warrant to look for it, but the woman must have been warned, because all her husband's papers had been removed from the house."

"It seems to me," said Mary thoughtfully, "that my father had something to do with that matter."

"Your father and mine being cousins and very fond of each other, it is quite likely. Father has told me that your father learned where the papers had been hidden and got possession of them, but he did so illegally and was obliged to hide them to avoid being prosecuted criminally. It was intended that when he could do so in safety they would be produced. But when the time came they were not in the hiding place where he had put them. He believed that some one in Mrs. Budlong's interest had stolen them."

"Budlong!" said Mary. "I have seen or heard that name somewhere."

"Possibly you heard your father mention it when talking of this matter."

During the rest of Horace's visit Mary could not get the name Budlong out of her head. She went to bed that night trying to remember when and where she had known it. So intent on it was she that she remained awake till she heard the deep tones of a town clock strike the hour of midnight; then suddenly she remembered the Budlong papers.

Throwing off the covers, she jumped out of bed.

Mary had packed a trunk of odds and ends that she did not care to part with and had carried them away with her when she left her home. Having now but one room, this trunk and the one used for her clothing were kept in it. Lighting a lamp, she opened the trunk first named and, getting out the bundle of papers, opened it and spread the contents on the table. By 1 o'clock she had opened and read many papers. A few minutes after 1 she opened one which proved to be a contract for the sale of certain patent rights to the firm of Haskins & Drummond.

Mary went back to bed, but not to sleep. She could hardly wait for day to come, so eager was she to carry the news to Horace that she had found the missing contract.

The next morning Horace Drummond was awakened by a maid, who informed him that Miss Hartwell was below and wished to see him on a very important matter. He arose, made a hasty toilet and went down to the living room. There stood Mary with beaming eyes holding out to him a paper. As soon as he had read enough of it to realize what it was he sprang forward, clasped her in his arms and covered her face with kisses.

It was some time before Horace could bring himself to a condition of quiet to listen to the story of the Budlong papers. Indeed, he only received at the time a meager account, so eager was he to carry the news to his father.

How the papers came to be in the box in the garret, whether Mr. Hartwell placed them there and forgot having done so or whether some member of his family, having come upon them, tossed them into the box, not knowing what they were, was never explained.

Haskins was prosecuted by Drummond for conspiracy, but the charge was withdrawn in settlement of the ownership of the patent right, three-quarters of which went to Drummond. Horace and Mary were married, and the groom's father settled a fortune on his son and his son's wife jointly. Mary says that a case of father-in-law by no means to be dreaded.

Eskimoes Only People On Earth Not Affected

LONDON.—The Eskimos of Greenland are probably the only people in Europe who are not interested in the outcome of the great war. Such is the impression given by Jen Dangaard Imsen, governor of Greenland, who has come all the way to London to appear as a witness in a claim of the Danish Government to a cargo of fish seized by the British as a prize of war.

"They have heard of the war," said the Governor, "but they have only a vague impression of the gigantic struggle. Two Eskimo papers that are published once a month give them a rough idea of the conflict but the issues are entirely foreign to them. These papers are printed by native printers trained in Denmark. In them are reproduced war pictures taken from the Danish papers."

The waste of human life makes the deepest impression on these Greenlanders, according to Governor Dangaard. "The Eskimo believes it wicked to kill humans," he went on. "He kills all animals and thinks he has a perfect right to do so, but he shrinks from the thought of taking a human life. He heard of men being thrown against machinery in the great struggle to the south of him and believes the whole thing absurd."

The governor summed up the Greenlander's unique position, which he remarked may have something to do with his detachment from the war. "The Greenlander," he says, "has these advantages:

"He has no army to support.

"He has no navy to worry about.

"There are no policemen in Greenland.

"He has no taxes to pay

"There are no movie shows or theatres.

"All doctor bills are paid by the Danish government.

"There," added the governor, "you have a condition unique among the peoples of the world. And it must not be forgotten that the standard of civilization among these Arctic Highlanders is being raised, slowly by necessity. I am also pleased to report that his numbers are increasing. The present population of 13,000 shows a growth of about 7 1-2 per cent. in ten years.

"The Danish government, which controls the country, carefully looks after the well being of the Eskimo, and by a rigid ban on visitors to the country—nobody is allowed to go to Greenland except by special permission—leaves him to develop on natural evolutionary lines."

NEARLY $2,000,000 ALREADY.

About 25,000 War Savings Certificates Have Been Issued.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.— About twenty-five thousand war savings certificates have been issued by the Department of Finance since these new securities were first offered about a month ago. In this way nearly two million dollars have been brought into the treasury to aid in paying the Dominion's war expenditure.

The Minister of Finance has been advised that the executive committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has issued a letter to its three thousand members suggesting that the need of saving and the war savings certificates be brought prominently to the attention of their staffs and employees, and that they co-operate by assisting those desirous of purchasing by deductions from pay rolls and in other ways. The letter points out that the indirect effect of widespread purchase of the war savings certificates will be to promote the financial and economic stability of the country—a matter of the highest importance to the business community.

The Finance Department has aimed to promote the national savings movement along sound rather than spectacular lines, and the results up to the present indicate the unqualified success of this policy.

Interesting Address On The Signs of the Times By The Rev. John McNichol

Rev. R. Pogue Presided—The Speaker Dealt With Some of the Principal Signs Mentioned in the 24th Chapter of Matthew

The interesting subject, The Signs of the Times, in the light of recent world conditions, and the great prophecies of the Scriptures, was dealt with in an absorbingly interesting manner last Friday evening in an address delivered in St. Paul's church by Rev. John McNicol, Principal of the Toronto Bible College, who addressed an audience of approximately 200 to 250 people. Rev. Mr. Pogue, who presided and introduced the speaker of the evening, spoke of him as a fellow class mate and graduate of Knox College with him in 1896, where he had distinguished himself as a student. Rev. Mr. Doner assisted in the opening exercises.

In opening the subject, Rev. Mr. McNicol emphasized the point that people should not allow themselves to be carried away in the study of this subject by the consideration of only one or two signs of the times and their correspondence with prophecy. The events of any one time do not necessarily mean that the second coming of Christ is near, but if the signs correspond with signs indicated in the Scriptures, then Christians should be observant of them. In developing his theme, Rev. Mr. McNicol confined his remarks largely to some of the principal signs mentioned in the 24th chapter of Matthew, a chapter which is seldom studied by Christians, and the interpretation of which, therefore, is all the more interesting.

THREE-FOLD QUESTION.

The opening verses of this chapter show that the disciples had approached Christ and asked Him a three-fold question: When were the things Christ had been speaking of (including the destruction of Jerusalem) to take place, what was to be the sign of His second coming, and what were to be the signs at the end of the age. In order to understand what led them to ask these questions and the significance of Christ's reply, it is necessary that the Bible student shall comprehend the general theme that runs through the Scriptures.
